THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The Indian Law Reports, published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay and Allahabad, respectively.

In supersession of the previous advertisements, on and from the 1st January, 1889, the terms of subscription and sale will be as follows for current issues as well as for back numbers of the Reports from 1876:—

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 3rd February, 1893, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. II OF 1893.

An Act to annex the Estate of Porahat to the Singhbhum District, and for certain other purposes.

WHEREAS the estate of Porahat was confiscated by the British Government in the year 1858 and is now under the administration of the officer holding the appointment of Deputy Commissioner of the Singhbhum District;

And whereas the said estate has, by proclamation, been declared and appointed by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the Lieutenant-Governorship of Bengal;

And whereas it is expedient that the said estate should be annexed to the Singhbhum District, and should, as forming part of that district, be declared, for the purposes of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, to form part also of the scheduled district described in that Act as the Chutia Nagpur Division;

XIV of 1874.

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Porahat Estate Act, 1893; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Annexation of Porahat estate to Singhbhum District.

2. The estate of Porahat shall henceforth become and be part of the Singhbhum District.

Estate to become part of the scheduled district of Chutia Nagpur.

3. The said estate of Porahat, as forming part of the Singhbhum District, shall form part of the scheduled district described in Part III of the first schedule to the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, as the Chutia Nagpur Division.

Validation of acts done since the beginning of 1858.

4. All acts of executive authority, proceedings, decrees and sentences which have been done, taken or passed in or with respect to the said estate of Porahat since the beginning of the year 1858, and before the commencement of this Act, by any officer of the Government or by any person acting under his authority or otherwise in pursuance of an order of the Government and which have been or shall be ratified by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, shall be deemed to have been done, taken and passed in accordance with law; and no suit or other proceeding shall be maintained or continued against any person whatever on the ground that any such acts, proceedings, decrees or sentences were not done, taken or passed in accordance with law.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 3rd February, 1893, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. III OF 1893.

An Act to provide for the grant of Special Tenancies in certain Government lands in the Punjab.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the grant by the Government of special tenancies in certain lands in the Punjab which are the property of the Government and are wholly or partly irrigable from Government canals; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Government Tenants (Punjab) Act, 1893.

(2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

Definition.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context, "Deputy Commissioner" includes also any officer appointed by the Local Government to perform all or any of the functions of the Deputy Commissioner under this Act.

Application of Act.

3. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply the provisions of this Act to any tract of land which is the property of the Government and is wholly or partly irrigable from a canal the property of the Government.

Issue of statements of conditions of tenancies.

4. When this Act has been so applied to any tract, the Local Government may issue a statement or statements of the conditions on which it is willing to grant to tenants lands situate in such tract.

Maintenance of registers of tenancies.

5. (1) When any such statement has been issued for any tract, the Deputy Commissioner shall, in manner hereinafter provided, open and maintain for such tract a register or registers of tenancies granted on the conditions prescribed in such statement.

(2) Every such register shall have prefixed thereto a copy of the statement of conditions to which it relates and shall be in such form and shall contain such particulars as to the tenancies registered therein as the Local Government may prescribe.

Entry in register and signature thereof on grant of tenancy.

6. (1) Before a tenancy is granted to any person in any such tract, the prescribed particulars regarding the proposed grant shall be duly entered in the appropriate register, and the entry shall be signed by the proposed tenant and by the Deputy Commissioner.

Effect of signature of entry.

7. When any entry in any such register has been so signed as directed in the last foregoing section, the person signing the same as proposed tenant and his successors in interest shall, notwithstanding any previous agreement or anything contained in the Punjab Tenancy Act, 1887, or the Hazara Tenancy Regulation, 1887, or any other enactment now in force, be deemed to have accepted and to hold the lands described in such entry as a tenant from the Government on the conditions prescribed in the statement prefixed to such register.

XVI of 1887.
XIII of 1887.

Transfer of rights of tenants.

8. The rights or interests vested in a tenant by or under this Act shall not be capable of being attached, or sold in execution of a decree or order of any Court or in any insolvency proceedings, nor shall they or any of them, without the previous consent in writing of the Financial Commissioner, be transferred or charged by any sale, gift, mortgage or other private contract.

Sums due in respect to tenancy recoverable as arrears of land-revenue.

9. All sums due to the Government in respect of a tenancy granted in pursuance of this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue due from the tenant in respect of such tenancy.

PART V.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 22 :—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 2nd February, 1893 :—

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1870 was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our preliminary Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Memorandum by Mr. P. R. Desai, Pleader, District Court, Ratnagiri, dated 7th April, 1892 [Paper No. 1].
From Governor General's Agent in Baluchistan, No. 4402, dated 25th July, 1892 [Paper No. 2]

From Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. 3833 J., dated 29th August, 1892, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara, No 43 C., dated 2nd September, 1892, and enclosures Papers No. 7].
From Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Burma, No. 295-8L—1, dated 16th September, 1892, and enclosures [Papers No. 8]
From Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, No. 2416, dated 6th September, 1892, and enclosures [Papers No. 9].
Suggestions by Bewa Narain Singh, Pleader, Amritsar, dated 20th September, 1892 [Paper No. 10].
From Chief Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 2699, dated 17th October, 1892, and enclosures [Papers No. 11].
From Officiating Junior Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 907 S., dated 17th October, 1892, and enclosures [Papers No 12].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 1914, dated 10th October, 1892, and enclosures [Papers No. 13].
Notes by Lala Nihal Chand, Muzaffarnagar, dated 18th October, 1892 [Paper No. 14].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 2346, dated 19th December, 1892, and enclosure [Papers No. 15].
From Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 189, dated 12th January, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 16].

2. In section 3 of the Bill we have added a clause amending the definition of "Court." It appears to us that all references from the Collector's authority should be to an independent judicial authority, and, now that the Punjab and Oudh have divided their judicial from their revenue establishments, there are few parts of India in which there are not judicial officers who have no concern with the executive administration. We think therefore that the time has now come when the Court to which references under the Act will be made should be generally the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction. To meet, however, the case of provinces which have still no Courts of separate civil jurisdiction, or the case in which pressure of business may require assistance to the ordinary Civil Court, we have retained the clause in the original definition which empowers Local Government to appoint special judicial officers to perform the functions of a Judge under the Act.

3. Section 7 of the Bill recasts sections 11 to 15, both inclusive, of the Act. To the draft section 11 we have added words requiring the Collector to enquire into the respective interests of the persons claiming the compensation, as well as into the area and value of the land to be acquired. As regards draft section 12, we are of opinion that a claimant of compensation should not be precluded from taking exception to the measurements of the Collector, if he has good grounds for considering them incorrect; and we think that the Collector should give intimation of his award to any of the persons interested who may not be present when the award is made. We have altered the draft section 12 accordingly.

4. Section 8 of the Bill amends section 16 of the Act by requiring the Collector to take possession of the land immediately he has made the award, with a proviso permitting him to leave the occupants in occupation until possession of the land is required, upon such conditions as he and they may agree upon. We prefer the terms of the existing law, which leave to the Collector discretion as to immediate entry upon the land, and have changed section 8 of the Bill accordingly. Where the Collector postpones entry for any reason, he will ordinarily do so, as at present, on terms adjusted with the occupants; and in a later section we have provided for compensation to the occupant if his profits should be in any way bonâ fide reduced in the period between declaration under section 6 and the Collector's entry into possession.

5. In section 17 of the Act, which regulates the powers of the Collector in cases of urgency, we think that the special damage for which the persons interested are to be compensated should be expressly defined as the damages incident to such sudden dispossession, and have by section 9 of the Bill added some words to the section accordingly.

6. By sections 10 and 11 of the Bill Parts III and IV of the present Act are repealed, and a new procedure substituted for that which now obtains in the decision of objections to the Collector's award. Under the Act, if any one of the persons interested does not attend in the proceedings before the Collector, or if the Collector is unable to agree with the persons interested as to the amount of the compensation, or if upon his enquiry questions arise respecting the title to the land or interests therein, the Collector is bound to refer the matter to the Court, which then proceeds to determine it with the help of assessors appointed by the Collector and the persons interested respectively. It was pointed out in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that these provisions entailed in a great number of cases unnecessary trouble, delay and expense to the owners of land acquired under the Act, for experience has shown that failure in attendance before the Collector is more frequently due to mere indifference than to any actual dissatisfaction with the award. In the acquisition of land for a railway, for example, it constantly happens that the interest of an individual owner is so insignificant that he finds it not worth his while to attend before the Collector. His absence, however, under the rigorous conditions of the Act, necessitates a reference of the case to the Collector, with all the attendant trouble and expense, not merely to the proprietor who was absent, but to the many others who may be associated with him in the matter and who may be themselves perfectly satisfied with the award. The Bill accordingly proposed to make the Collector's award final, with the proviso that any person dissatisfied could sue the Collector in the Civil Court. The Committee are advised that in order to attain the end in view so radical a change in the procedure for the adjustment of the compensation is unnecessary. They think with more than one of the Governments consulted that it will be sufficient to provide that the Collector's reference to the Civil Court shall only be made when a person, dissatisfied with the award, asks that it be referred, the award being otherwise final. This change in the present law is reasonable, and the Committee are of opinion that it sufficiently corrects the main practical defect of the Act. They cannot leave out of sight that the valuations upon which a Collector proceeds are ordinarily made by Native subordinates whose official interests lead them to make the valuation on the lowest possible scale, and that in many cases the owners of land acquired under the Act are poor peasants who have neither the means nor the courage to undertake a formal suit against the Collector of their district, and who would accept very inadequate compensation rather than do so.

As to the discontinuance of the system of assessors all authorities are agreed. It is the universal remark that competent assessors are not easily procurable, and that there is an irresistible tendency for the assessor to become not an adviser but a partizan, adding very largely to the cost of the trial without assisting the Judge. In the words of Mr. Justice Parker, "the nominees are faithful to their trust and deliver their opinion with minds altogether unaffected by the evidence."

The Committee have accordingly substituted for sections 10 and 11 of the Bill a revision of Parts III and IV of the Act effected in accordance with the views which have here been expressed. The Collector's award will be referred to the Court whenever any person interested asks that it be referred, but only then. The Judge will give his decision on it, and in all cases there will be a right of appeal from the Judge's award to the High Court.

7. In Part III we have made some alterations of the Act in detail. Section 24 of the Act defines the matters to be considered in determining compensation. The Committee are of the opinion that the Bill introduced last year rightly required market-value to be taken at the time of the declaration under section 6, and not, as in the Act, at the time of the award; but this change in the law required the addition to the section of a clause bringing under the consideration of the Court any diminution in the profits of occupation during the period between the declaration and the Collector's entry into possession, as also the value of any standing crops or trees that may be on the land when he takes possession.

It appears more convenient to insert here than in a later part of the Act the instruction contained in section 42 of the Act that, in addition to the amount of any compensation due to the owner of the land acquired, fifteen per centum on the market-value shall be given in consideration of the compulsory nature of the acquisition. We have accordingly added a clause to this effect in the section by which we amend section 24 of the Act, and the Collector or Judge making the award will find embraced in a single section the whole of the details required for the completion of his estimate of compensation.

This section as drafted in the Bill contained a definition of market-value to which exception has been widely taken as inapplicable to many parts of the country and when applicable open to much objection. We agree with the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab and the High Court of Bengal that no attempt should be made to define strictly the term in the Act, and that the price which a willing vendor might be expected to obtain in the open market from a willing purchaser should be left for the decision primarily of the Collector and ultimately of the Court.

8. The Act (section 33) directs that when the Judge's award does not exceed that of the Collector the costs of the reference to the Judge shall be paid by the person interested, but that when the Judge's award exceeds the Collector's the whole of the costs of the reference shall be paid by the Collector. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons it was noticed that this provision led to extravagant and speculative claims, and in the Bill as introduced the adjudication of costs is left to the Courts in accordance with the ordinary rules of the Code of Civil Procedure. We think the rules which guide the adjudication of costs between litigants cannot fairly be employed in the decision of reasonable objections to the sufficiency of a Collector's award. We are of opinion that, when the Judge finds the Collector's award to have been inadequate, the Collector should ordinarily pay the costs of the reference, but we have inserted a clause giving discretion to the Court to give the Collector part of his costs whenever the claim of the objector proves to be extravagant. It will be remembered that reference to the Court will in future be much less frequent, and that if the system of assessors be discontinued the costs in such references will be much reduced.

9. In the sections which constitute Part IV of the Act (Apportionment of Compensation) we have inserted words which bring under the orders of the Court the issue as to the persons entitled to the compensation, as well as that of the share which each is entitled to receive.

10. Chapter V of the Act concerns the payment of compensation. We have added clauses to section 40 as amended by section 12 of the Bill, empowering on the one hand the Collector to deposit the amount of his award in Court, when for any reason there is no person able and willing to receive it, and on the other empowering the owner of the land, if dissatisfied with the award, to accept the amount under protest. To that extent it will no longer be to the advantage of the owner to protract proceedings and run on a claim for interest; for if, notwithstanding the express privilege given to the owner, he refuses to take the compensation-money placed at his disposal, he has no claim to interest on it.

11. In Part VII of the Act (Acquisition of Land for Companies) two sections have been added to except from the provisions applicable to ordinary Companies those Companies for which, under contract with the Secretary of State, Government is expressly bound to provide land. In Part VIII of the Act (section 51) we have, at the instance of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, empowered Collectors and Judges to serve any notices under the Act by registered letter. We think it necessary, however, expressly to require that service can be proved only by production of the addressee's receipt.

12. Section 54 of the Act gives to the Government or the public bodies whom it represents power of withdrawal from land it has proposed to acquire. This power, however, must be exercised before the award is made. After award withdrawal is prohibited, whatever may be the circumstances. Experience has shown that the only occasions on which powers of withdrawal would be really useful are when an award has shewn that the Government was seriously misled by an under-estimate of the value of the land. A case has been reported in which a municipality has been nearly ruined by being compelled to proceed with an acquisition in which the award was inordinately in excess of the original valuation. We think, therefore, that power to withdraw should be given after as well as before the award, but that, if so exercised, it should only be on terms of the most liberal compensation to the owner, and that, if he is dissatisfied with the Collector's offer, he should have the same rights of reference to the Judge as in cases of acquisition.

13. To section 55 as amended by the Bill we have added a clause permitting references to the Court to determine summarily certain questions of fact arising under the section.

14. Before the Bill is finally passed we think it would be desirable that the Act of 1870 should be wholly repealed and re-enacted with the amendments now proposed or such of them as may be eventually adopted. We attach to this Report a copy of the Act of 1870 as it will stand if amended as we now propose.

16. We recommend that the Bill as now amended, with our Report and its Appendix be republished in English and sent to the several Local Governments for consideration. As the changes we propose in the Bill mainly restore the procedure of the present Act, we do not consider that the alterations made by us render necessary the republication of the Bill in the vernacular languages.

* My remarks on the grounds on which I differ are annexed.

NOTE.

I SIGN the Report in token of my general approval of the main provisions contained in the Bill, but there are one or two points in it on which I wish to make a few remarks.

I consider that the "market-value," which will be the most important factor in determining the amount of compensation to be awarded, requires to be clearly defined both in the interests of uniformity of procedure in the various Courts and in the interests of owners of certain classes of landed property. In the ordinary acceptation of the term, "market-value" means the price which the land or building taken up for public purposes would fetch if taken into the market and sold by the owner himself, and this is no doubt ordinarily a fair method of estimating the value of the land or building. But at the same time there are cases in which the market-value as above interpreted does not represent the true value of the property. For instance, a man may build a house at a considerable cost in an out-of-the-way locality for his own personal enjoyment, but such a building, if sold in the market, might, owing to absence of demand, hardly realise half its cost of construction. In such cases it appears equitable and proper that the value of the property should be estimated, not with reference to the market-value, which depends upon the demand in the locality of its situation, but with reference to the actual cost of erecting a similar building less the sum to be set off on account of deterioration by time and user. It seems to me to be unfair that the owner of property should be compelled to part with it for a smaller amount than what it actually cost him simply because it is required for public purposes, or because, owing to its situation in a locality far removed from the centres of business and life, the property cannot realise its full value in the market. It may be urged that there is nothing in the law precluding the Collector or Judge making the award from taking the cost of construction into consideration in arriving at the market-value; but in my opinion the matter is too important to be left to the unfettered discretion even of Collectors and Judges, and the law should unmistakably lay down the course for them. Again, there is another class of owners whom the market-value of lands over which they have proprietary rights cannot adequately compensate. To such a class belong zamindars who derive a fixed annual revenue from lands which they own but in which their tenants possess occupancy-rights. The market-value of such property will always depend upon the current rate of interest in the locality The current rate of interest in the mufassil is invariably high, and the property would not ordinarily fetch more than ten or fifteen times the annual income if sold in the market. But to compel the owner of such property to part with it for such a consideration appears to me to be fraught with great hardship, even if it be not altogether unjustifiable In such cases, we should, I think, capitalize his income in such a manner that the amount awarded would, if invested in the safest marketable securities, yield him an interest equivalent to his annual income from the land. This is the principle which the Government adopt when they allow individuals to redeem the land-tax They demand twenty-five times the annual assessment as the price of redemption, and it seems to me to be only just that the income of the above-mentioned class of land-holders should be capitalized on the same principle in determining the amount of compensation due to them when their lands are compulsorily acquired by Government. For instance, if a zamindar was entitled to a fixed annual rental of Rs. 10 from the land acquired we must pay him as the cost of acquisition Rs. 250, which, if invested in four per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India, will yield him the equivalent of his annual rent in the shape of interest, and not Rs. 100 or 150 according to the market-value based upon insecure investments. For these reasons I should be glad to see 'market-value' defined in some such manner as follows:

"'Market-value' is the price which the property would fetch if taken into the market by the owner himself and leisurely and advantageous sale thereof effected; but where, owing to absence of demand in the locality, such value should fall below the actual cost of creating the property, then such actual cost, making allowance for deterioration by time or user, shall be deemed as 'market-value.' In any case, if the claimant prefers it, the market value shall be assumed to be twenty-five times the average annual income derivable from the property."

If twenty five years' purchase is considered too much, I have no objection to its being reduced to twenty, which is the rate adopted in Madras for redeeming quit-rents on inams or favourable tenures.

There is another point on which I venture to differ from the majority of the Committee Section 25, sub section (2), of the Bill says that, when an applicant has refused or omitted without sufficient reason to make a claim before the Collector, the Judge may award less, and in no case more, than the amount awarded by the Collector. I quite see the reason for not exceeding the Collector's award, but I see none for reducing it. This is however, not of much practical importance, as I do not believe that any Judge is or believed to be interested in the land, of whom, or of whose claims, he has information, whether or not they have respectively appeared before him.

"12. (1) Such award shall be filed in the Collector's office and shall, except as hereinafter provided, be final and conclusive evidence, as between the Collector and the persons interested, whether they have respectively appeared before the Collector or not, of the true area and value of the land, and the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested.

Award of Collector when to be final.

"(2) The Collector shall give immediate notice of his award to such of the persons interested as are not present personally or by their representatives when the award is made.

"13. The Collector may, for any cause he thinks fit, from time to time adjourn the enquiry to a day to be fixed by him.

Adjournment of enquiry.

"14. For the purpose of enquiries under this Act, the Collector shall have power to summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and to compel the production of documents by the same means, and (so far as may be) in the same manner, as is provided in the case of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure.

Power to summon and enforce attendance of witnesses and production of documents.

XIV of 1882.

"15. In determining the amount of compensation, the Collector shall take into consideration the matters mentioned in section twenty-three, and shall not take into consideration any of the matters mentioned in section twenty-four."

Matters to be considered and neglected.

8. (1) In section 16 of the said Act, for the words "fourteen or a reference to the Court under section fifteen", the word "eleven" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 16 of said Act.

9. In section 17 of the said Act,—

Amendment of section 17 of said Act.

(i) for the words "though no such reference has been directed or award made" the words "though no such award has been made" shall be substituted;

(ii) after the words "on such land" the words "and for any other damage sustained by them caused by such sudden dispossession and not excepted in section twenty four" shall be inserted; and

(iii) after the words "such crops and trees" the words "and the amount of such other damage" shall be inserted.

10. For sections 18 to 36, both inclusive, of the said Act, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

New sections substituted for sections 18 to 36 of said Act.

"18. Any person interested who has not accepted the award may, by written application to the Collector, require that the matter be referred by the Collector for the determination of the Court, whether his objection be to the measurement of the land, the amount of the compensation, or the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested. The application shall state the grounds on which objection to the award is taken:

Reference to Court.

"Provided that every such application shall be made,—

(a) if the person making it was present or represented before the Collector at the time when he made his award, within six weeks from the date of the Collector's award;

(b) in other cases, within six weeks of the receipt of the notice from the Collector under section twelve, or within six months from the date of the Collector's award, whichever period shall first expire.

"19. In making the reference, the Collector shall state for the information of the Court in writing under his hand—

Collector's statement to the Court.

(a) the situation and extent of the land;

(b) the names of the persons whom he has reason to think interested in such land;

(c) the amount awarded for damages and paid or tendered under sections five and seventeen or either of them, and the amount of compensation awarded under section eleven; and,

(d) if the objection be to the amount of the compensation, the grounds on which the amount of compensation was determined.

"20. The Court shall thereupon cause a notice, specifying the day on which the Court will proceed to determine the objection, and directing their appearance before the Court on that day, to be served on the following persons, namely:—

Service of notice.

(a) the applicant,

(b) if the objection is in regard to the area of the land or to the amount of the compensation, the Collector, and

(c) if the objection is in regard to the apportionment of the compensation, all persons interested in the objection.

"21. The scope of the inquiry in every such proceeding shall be restricted to a consideration of the interests of the persons affected by the objection.

Restriction on scope of proceedings.

"22. Every such proceeding shall take place in open Court, and all persons entitled to practise in any Civil Court shall be entitled to appear, plead and act (as the case may be) in such proceeding.

Proceedings to be in open Court.

"23. (1) In determining the amount of compensation to be awarded for land acquired under this Act, the Court shall take into consideration—

Matters to be considered in determining compensation.

first, the market-value of the land at the date of the publication of the declaration relating thereto under section six;

secondly, the damage sustained by the person interested, by reason of the taking of any standing crops or trees, which may be on the land at the time of the Collector's taking possession thereof;

thirdly, the damage (if any) sustained by the person interested, at the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land, by reason of severing such land from his other land;

fourthly, the damage (if any) sustained by the person interested, at the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land, by reason of the acquisition injuriously affecting his other property, moveable or immoveable, in any other manner, or his earnings;

fifthly, if, in consequence of the acquisition of the land by the Collector, the person interested is compelled to change his residence or place of business, the reasonable expenses (if any) incidental to such change; and sixthly, the damage (if any) bonâ fide resulting from diminution of the profits of the land between the time of the publication of the declaration under section six and the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land.

"(2) In addition to the market-value of the land, as above provided, the Court shall in every case award a sum of fifteen per centum on such market-value, in consideration of the compulsory nature of the acquisition.

Matters to be neglected in determining compensation.

"24. But the Court shall not take into consideration—

first, the degree of urgency which has led to the acquisition;

secondly, any disinclination of the person interested to part with the land acquired;

thirdly, any damage sustained by him which, if caused by a private person, would not render such person liable to a suit;

fourthly, any damage which, after the date of the publication of the declaration under section six, is likely to be caused to the land acquired by or in consequence of the use to which it will be put;

fifthly, any increase to the value of the land acquired likely to accrue from the use to which it will be put when acquired;

seventhly, any outlay or improvements on the land acquired commenced, made or effected after the date of the publication of the declaration under section six.

"25. (1) When the applicant has made a claim to compensation, pursuant to any notice given under section nine, the amount awarded to him by the Court shall not exceed the amount so claimed or be less than the amount awarded by the Collector under section eleven.

Rules as to amount of compensation.

"(2) When the applicant has refused to make such claim, or has omitted without sufficient reason (to be allowed by the Judge) to make such claim, the amount awarded by the Court may be less than, and shall in no case exceed, the amount awarded by the Collector.

"(3) When the applicant has omitted for a sufficient reason (to be allowed by the Judge) to make such claim, the amount awarded to him by the Court shall not be less than and may exceed the amount awarded by the Collector.

"26. Every award under this Part shall be in writing signed by the Judge, and shall specify the amount awarded under the first clause of section twenty-three, and also the amounts (if any) respectively awarded under each of the other clauses of the same section, together with the grounds of awarding each of the said amounts.

Form of awards.

"27. (1) Every such award shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the proceedings under this Part, and by what persons and in what proportions they are to be paid.

Costs.

"(2) When the award of the Collector is not upheld, the costs shall ordinarily be paid by the Collector, unless the Court shall be of opinion that the claim of the applicant was so extravagant that some deduction from his costs should be made or that he should pay a part of the Collector's costs.

"(3) The costs (if any) payable by the applicant may be recovered as if they were costs incurred in a suit and as if the award of the Court were the decree therein.

"28. If the sum which in the opinion of the Court the Collector ought to have awarded as compensation is in excess of the sum which the Collector did award as compensation, the award of the Court may direct that the Collector shall pay interest on such excess at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date on which he took possession of the land to the date of payment of such excess into Court.

Collector may be directed to pay interest on excess compensation.

"29. Save in so far as they may be inconsistent with anything contained in this Act, the provisions of the Code of Code of Civil Procedure to apply.

XIV of 1882. Civil Procedure shall apply to proceedings under this Part.

"30. Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure applicable to appeals from original decrees, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the award or from any part of the award of the Court in any proceedings under this Part."

Appeals in certain cases.

11 (1) In section 38 of the said Act, after the words "or any part thereof," and in section 39 of the said Act, after the words "apportionment thereof," the words "or as to the persons to whom the same or any part thereof is payable" shall be inserted.

Amendments of sections 38 and 39 of said Act.

(2) In the last clause of section 39 of the said Act, for the words "regular appeals in suits" the words "appeals from original decrees" shall be substituted.

12. For Part V of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new Part for Part V of said Act.

"PART V.

"PAYMENT.

"40. (1) On making an award under section eleven, the Collector shall tender payment of the compensation awarded by him to the persons interested entitled thereto according to the award, and shall pay it to them if they shall consent to receive it.

Payment of compensation to whom to be made.

"(2) If they shall not consent to receive it, or if there be no person competent to receive it, or if there be any dispute as to the title to receive it or as to the apportionment of it, the Collector shall deposit the amount of the compensation in the Court to which a reference under section eighteen would be submitted:

"Provided that any person interested may receive such payment under protest as to the sufficiency of the amount:

"Provided also that no person who has received the amount otherwise than under protest shall be entitled to make any application under section eighteen:

"Provided also that nothing herein contained shall affect the liability of any person, who may receive the whole or any part of any compensation awarded under this Act, to pay the same to the person lawfully entitled thereto.

"41. When the amount of such compensation is not paid or payment thereof tendered on or before taking possession of the land, the Collector shall pay the amount awarded with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from the time of so taking possession."

Payment of interest.

13. In section 45 of the said Act, the words "and on such reference, or on a reference under section forty-three, the Judge sitting alone shall decide the difference referred" are hereby repealed.

Amendment of section 45 of said Act.

14. After section 45 of the said Act the following shall be added, namely:—

Addition of section after section 45 of said Act.

"45A. The Judge may pass such order as he may think fit in regard to the costs of a reference made under this Part, and from such order there shall be no appeal."

Cost on references under this Part.

15. After section 50 of the said Act the following shall be added, namely:—

Addition of sections after section 50 of said Act.

"50A. The provisions of sections forty-seven to fifty, both inclusive, shall not apply, and shall be deemed never to have applied, to the acquisition of land for any railway or other company, for the purposes of which, under any agreement between such company and the Secretary of State for India in Council, the Government is, or was, bound to provide land.

Sections 47 to 50 not to apply where Government bound by agreement to provide land for companies.

"50B. In the case of the acquisition of land for the purposes of a Railway Company, the existence of such an agreement as is mentioned in section 50A may be proved by the production of a printed copy thereof purporting to be printed by order of Government."

When agreement between Company and Secretary of State need not be proved.

16. To section 51 of the said Act, after the word "business" the following shall be added, namely:—

Addition to section 51 of said Act.

"or by fixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place in the office of the officer aforesaid or of the Collector or in the court-house, and also in some conspicuous part of the land to be acquired:

"Provided that, if the Collector or Judge shall so direct, a notice may be sent by post, in a letter addressed to the person named therein and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, and service of it may be proved by the production of the addressee's receipt." XIV of 1866.

17. For section 54 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new section for section 54 of said Act.

"54. (1) Except in the case provided for in section forty-four, nothing in this Act shall be taken to compel the Government to complete the acquisition of any land.

Completion of acquisition not compulsory, but compensation to be awarded when not completed.

"(2) Whenever the Government declines to complete any such acquisition, the Collector shall determine the amount of compensation due for the damage suffered by the owner in consequence of the notice or of any proceedings thereunder, and shall pay such amount to the person interested together with all costs proved to have been incurred by him in the prosecution of the proceedings under this Act relating to the said land.

"(3) The provisions of Part III of this Act shall apply to the determination of the compensation payable under this section."

18. To section 55 of the said Act the following shall be added, namely:—

Addition to section 55 of said Act.

"Provided that the owner may, at any time before the Collector has made his award under section eleven by notice in writing, withdraw or modify his expressed desire that the whole of such house, manufactory or building shall be so acquired:

"Provided also that if any question shall arise as to whether any land proposed to be taken under this Act does or not form part of a house, manufactory or building within the meaning of this section, the Collector shall refer the determination of such question to the Court and shall not take possession of such land until after the question has been determined:

"Provided also that either party may appeal to the High Court against the decision of the Court on any such reference, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to every such appeal as if it were an appeal from an original decree of the Court.

XIV of 1882.

"(2) If in the case of any claim under section twenty-three, thirdly, by a person interested, on account of the severing of the land to be acquired from his other land, the Local Government is of opinion that the claim is unreasonable or excessive, it may, at any time before the Collector has made his award, order the acquisition of the whole of the land of which the land first sought to be acquired forms a part.

"In the case last hereinbefore provided for, no fresh declaration or other proceedings under sections six to ten, both inclusive, shall be necessary; but the Collector shall without delay furnish a copy of the order of the Local Government to the person interested, and shall thereafter proceed to make his award under section eleven."

19. In section 56 of the said Act, for the words "any municipal fund" the words "any fund controlled or managed by a local authority" shall be substituted; and for the words "incurred by the Collector in such acquisition" the words "of and incidental to such acquisition" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 56 of said Act.

20. In section 58 of the said Act, the words "no suit shall be brought to set aside an award under this Act. And" are hereby repealed.

Repeal of part of section 58 of said Act.

APPENDIX.

ACT NO. X OF 1870 AS MODIFIED BY LEGISLATION UP TO DATE, WITH THE MATTER NOW PROPOSED FOR REPEAL EXCLUDED AND THE AMENDMENTS NOW PROPOSED SHOWN IN ITALICS.

An Act for the acquisition of land for public purposes and for Companies.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law for the acquisition of land needed for public purposes and for Companies, and for determining the amount of compensation to be made on account of such acquisition; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Land Acquisition Act, 1870":

Local extent.

It extends to the whole of British India.

Repeal of Acts.

2. On and from such day Act No. VI of 1857 (for the acquisition of land for public purposes), Act No. II of 1861 (to amend Act No. VI of 1857) and Act No. XXII of 1863 (to provide for taking land for works of public utility to be constructed by private persons or Companies and for regulating the construction and use of works on land so taken) shall be repealed.

All references made to any of the said Acts in subsequent Acts, orders or contracts shall be read as if made to this Act.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—

"Land."

the expression "land" includes benefits to arise out of land, and things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth:

"Person interested."

the expression "person interested" includes all persons claiming an interest in compensation to be made on account of the acquisition of land under this Act:

"Collector."

the expression "Collector" means the Collector of a District, and includes a Deputy Commissioner and any officer specially appointed by the Local Government to perform the functions of a Collector under this Act:

the expression "Court" means a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, unless the Local Government has appointed (as it is hereby empowered to do) a special judicial officer within any specified local limits to perform the functions of a Judge under this Act:

"Company."

the expression "Company" means a Company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or incorporated by an Act of Parliament or of the Governor General in Council, or by Royal Charter or Letters Patent:

"Entitled to act."

and the following persons shall be deemed persons "entitled to act" as and to the extent hereinafter provided (that is to say)—

trustees for other persons beneficially interested shall be deemed the persons entitled to act with reference to any such case, and that to the same extent as the persons beneficially interested could have acted if free from disability:

a married woman, in cases to which the English law is applicable, shall be deemed the person so entitled to act, and, whether of full age or not, to the same extent as if she were unmarried and of full age; and the guardians of minors and the committees or managers of lunatics or idiots shall be deemed respectively the persons so entitled to act, to the same extent as the minors, lunatics or idiots themselves, if free from disability, could have acted.

Provided that—

(i) no person shall be deemed "entitled to act" whose interest in the subject matter shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Collector or Court to be adverse to the interest of the person interested for whom he would otherwise be entitled to act;

(ii) in every such case the person interested may appear by a next friend or, in default of his appearance by a next friend, the Collector or Court, as the case may be, shall appoint a guardian for the case to act on his behalf in the conduct thereof; and

(iii) the provisions of Chapter XXXI of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, mutatis mutandis, apply in the case of persons interested appearing before a Collector or Court by a next friend, or by a guardian for the case, in proceedings under this Act. XIV of 1882.

PART II.

ACQUISITION.

Preliminary Investigation.

Power to enter and survey.

4. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that land in any locality is likely to be needed for any public purpose, a notification to that effect shall be published in the local Gazette, and the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such notification to be given at convenient places in the said locality.

Thereupon it shall be lawful for any officer either generally or specially authorized by such Government in this behalf, and for his servants and workmen, to enter upon and survey and take levels of any land in such locality:

to dig or bore into the sub-soil:

to do all other acts necessary to ascertain whether the land is adapted for such purpose:

Power to mark outline.

to set out the boundaries of the land proposed to be taken and the intended line of the work (if any) proposed to be made thereon:

to mark such levels, boundaries and line by placing marks and cutting trenches;

Power to clear land.

and, where otherwise the survey cannot be completed and the levels taken and the boundaries and line marked, to cut down and clear away any part of any standing crop, fence or jungle.

Previous notice of entry.

Provided that no person shall enter into any building or upon any enclosed court or garden attached to a dwelling-house (unless with the consent of the occupier thereof) without previously giving such occupier at least seven days' notice in writing of his intention to do so.

Payment for damage.

5. The officer so authorized shall at the time of such entry pay or tender payment for all necessary damage to be done as aforesaid, and, in case of dispute as to the sufficiency of the amount so paid or tendered, he shall at once refer the dispute to the decision of the Collector, and such decision shall be final.

Declaration of intended Acquisition.

Declaration that land is required for a public purpose.

6. Subject to the provisions of Part VII of this Act, whenever it appears to the Local Government that any particular land is needed for a public purpose, or for a Company, a declaration shall be made to that effect under the signature of a Secretary to such Government or of some officer duly authorized to certify its orders:

Provided that no such declaration shall be made unless the compensation to be awarded for such property is to be paid out of public revenues, out of some fund controlled or managed by a local authority, or by a Company.

Contents of declaration.

The declaration shall be published in the local official Gazette and shall state the district or other territorial division in which the land is situate, the purpose for which it is needed, its approximate area, and where a plan shall have been made of the land, the place where such plan may be inspected.

Declaration to be evidence.

The said declaration shall be conclusive evidence that the land is needed for a public purpose or for a Company, as the case may be; and, after making such declaration, the Local Government may acquire the land in manner hereinafter appearing.

(b) if the objection is in regard to the area of the land or to the amount of the compensation, the Collector; and

(c) if the objection is in regard to the apportionment of the compensation, all persons interested in the objection.

Restriction on scope of proceedings.

21. The scope of the inquiry in every such proceeding shall be restricted to a consideration of the interests of the persons affected by the objection.

Proceedings to be in open Court.

22. Every such proceeding shall take place in open Court, and all persons entitled to practise in any Civil Court shall be entitled to appear, plead and act (as the case may be) in such proceeding.

Matters to be considered in determining compensation.

23. (1) In determining the amount of compensation to be awarded for land acquired under this Act, the Court shall take into consideration—

first, the market-value of the land at the date of the publication of the declaration relating thereto under section six;

secondly, the damage sustained by the person interested, by reason of the taking of any standing crops or trees which may be on the land at the time of the Collector's taking possession thereof;

thirdly, the damage (if any) sustained by the person interested, at the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land, by reason of severing such land from his other land;

fourthly, the damage (if any) sustained by the person interested, at the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land, by reason of the acquisition injuriously affecting his other property, moveable or immoveable, in any other manner, or his earnings;

fifthly, if, in consequence of the acquisition of the land by the Collector, the person interested is compelled to change his residence or place of business, the reasonable expenses (if any) incidental to such change; and sixthly, the damage (if any) bonâ fide resulting from diminution of the profits of the land between the time of the publication of the declaration under section six and the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land.

(2) In addition to the market-value of the land, as above provided, the Court shall in every case award a sum of fifteen per centum on such market-value, in consideration of the compulsory nature of the acquisition.

Matters to be neglected in determining compensation.

24. But the Court shall not take into consideration—

first, the degree of urgency which has led to the acquisition;

secondly, any disinclination of the person interested to part with the land acquired;

thirdly, any damage sustained by him which, if caused by a private person, would not render such person liable to a suit;

fourthly, any damage which, after the date of the publication of the declaration under section six, is likely to be caused to the land acquired by or in consequence of the use to which it will be put;

fifthly, any increase to the value of the land acquired likely to accrue from the use to which it will be put when acquired;

seventhly, any outlay or improvements on the land acquired commenced, made or effected after the date of the publication of the declaration under section six.

Rules as to amount of compensation.

25. (1) When the applicant has made a claim to compensation, pursuant to any notice given under section nine, the amount awarded to him by the Court shall not exceed the amount so claimed or be less than the amount awarded by the Collector under section eleven.

(2) When the applicant has refused to make such claim, or has omitted without sufficient reason (to be allowed by the Judge) to make such claim, the amount awarded by the Court may be less than and shall in no case exceed the amount awarded by the Collector.

(3) When the applicant has omitted for a sufficient reason (to be allowed by the Judge) to make such claim, the amount awarded to him by the Court shall not be less than and may exceed the amount awarded by the Collector.

26. Every award under this Part shall be in writing signed by the Judge, and shall specify the amount awarded under the first clause of section twenty-three, and also the amounts (if any) respectively awarded under each of the other clauses of the same section, together with the grounds of awarding each of the said amounts.

Form of awards.

27. (1) Every such award shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the proceedings under this Part, and by what persons and in what proportions they are to be paid.

Costs.

(2). When the award of the Collector is not upheld, the costs shall ordinarily be paid by the Collector unless the Court shall be of opinion that the claim of the applicant was so extravagant that some deduction from his costs should be made or that he should pay a part of the Collector's costs.

(3) The costs (if any) payable by the applicant may be recovered as if they were costs incurred in a suit and as if the award of the Court were the decree therein.

28. If the sum which in the opinion of the Court the Collector ought to have awarded as compensation is in excess of the sum which the Collector did award as compensation, the award of the Court may direct that the Collector shall pay interest on such excess at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date on which he took possession of the land to the date of payment of such excess into Court.

Collector may be directed to pay interest on excess compensation.

29. Save in so far as they may be inconsistent with anything contained in this Act, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to proceedings under this Part.

Code of Civil Procedure to apply.

XIV of 1882.

30. Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure applicable to appeals from original decrees, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the award or from any part of the award of the Court in any proceedings under this Part."

Appeals in certain cases.

PART IV.

APPORTIONMENT OF COMPENSATION.

37. Where there are several persons interested, if such persons agree in the apportionment of the compensation, the particulars of such apportionment shall be specified in the award, and as between such persons the award shall be conclusive evidence of the correctness of the apportionment.

Particulars of apportionment to be specified.

38. When the amount of compensation has been settled under section 14, if any dispute arises as to the apportionment of the same or any part thereof, or as to the persons to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, the Collector shall refer such dispute to the decision of the Court.

Dispute as to apportionment.

39. When the amount of compensation has been settled by the Court, and there is any dispute as to the apportionment thereof, or as to the persons to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, or when a reference to the Court has been made under section 38, the Judge sitting alone shall decide the proportions in which the persons interested are entitled to share in such amount.

Determination of proportions.

An appeal shall lie from such decision to the High Court, unless the Judge whose decision is appealed from is not the District Judge, in which case the appeal shall lie in the first instance to the District Judge.

Every appeal under this section shall be presented within the time and in manner provided for appeals from original decrees.

PART V.

PAYMENT.

40. (1) On making an award under section 11, the Collector shall tender payment of the compensation awarded by him to the persons interested entitled thereto according to the award, and shall pay it to them if they shall consent to receive it.

Payment of compensation to whom to be made.

of it, the Collector shall deposit the amount of the compensation in the Court to which a reference under section eighteen would be submitted:

Provided that any person interested may receive such payment under protest as to the sufficiency of the amount:

Provided also that no person who has received the amount otherwise than under protest shall be entitled to make any application under section eighteen:

Provided also that nothing herein contained shall affect the liability of any person, who may receive the whole or any part of any compensation awarded under this Act, to pay the same to the person lawfully entitled thereto.

Payment of interest.

41. When the amount of such compensation is not paid or payment thereof tendered on or before taking possession of the land, the Collector shall pay the amount awarded with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from the time of so taking possession.

PART VI.

TEMPORARY OCCUPATION OF LAND.

Temporary occupation of waste or arable land.

43. Subject to the provisions of Part VII of this Act, whenever it appears to the Local Government that the temporary occupation and use of any waste or arable land are needed for any public purpose, or for a Company, the Local Government may direct the Collector to procure the occupation and use of the same for such term as it shall think fit, not exceeding three years from the commencement of such occupation.

The Collector shall thereupon give notice in writing to the persons interested in such land of the purpose for which the same is needed, and shall, for the occupation and use thereof for such term as aforesaid, and for the materials (if any) to be taken therefrom, pay to them such compensation, either in a gross sum of money, or by monthly or other periodical payments, as shall be agreed upon in writing between him and such persons respectively.

Difference as to compensation.

In case the Collector and the persons interested differ as to the sufficiency of the compensation, the Collector shall refer such difference for the final order of the Court.

Power to enter and take possession.

44. On payment of such compensation, or on executing such agreement, or on making a reference under section forty-three,

the Collector may enter upon and take possession of the land, and use or permit the use thereof in accordance with the terms of the said notice.

Restoration of land taken.

And, on the expiration of the term, the Collector shall make or tender to the persons interested compensation for the damage (if any) done to the land and not provided for by the agreement, and shall restore the land to the persons interested therein:

Provided that, if the land has become permanently unfit to be used for the purpose for which it was used immediately before the commencement of such term and if the persons interested shall so require, the Local Government shall proceed under this Act to acquire the land as if it was needed permanently for a public purpose or for a Company.

Differenc as to condition of land.

45. In case the Collector and persons interested differ as to the condition of the land at the expiration of the term, or as to any matter connected with the said agreement, the Collector shall refer such difference for the final order of the Court.

Cost on references under this Part.

45A. The Judge may pass such order as he may think fit in regard to the costs of a reference made under this Part, and from such order there shall be no appeal.

PART VII.

ACQUISITION OF LAND FOR COMPANIES.

Company may be authorized to enter and survey.

46. Subject to such rules as the Governor General of India in Council may from time to time prescribe in this behalf, the Local Government may authorize any officer of any Company desiring to acquire land for its purposes to exercise the powers conferred by section four.

In every such case section four shall be construed as if, for the words "for such purpose," the words "for the purposes of the Company" were substituted; and section five shall be construed as if, after the words "the officer," the words "of the Company," were inserted.

Construction of sections four and five.

47. The provisions of sections six to section forty-five (both inclusive) shall not be put in force in order to acquire land for any Company, unless with the previous consent of the Local Government, and unless the Company shall have executed the agreement hereinafter mentioned.

Consent of Local Government to acquisition.
Execution of agreement.

48. Such consent shall not be given unless the Local Government be satisfied, by an enquiry held as hereinafter provided,—

Previous enquiry.

(1) that such acquisition is needed for the construction of some work, and

(2) that such work is likely to prove useful to the public.

Such enquiry shall be held by such officer and at such time and place as the Local Government shall appoint.

Such officer may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and compel the production of documents by the same means and, as far as possible, in the same manner as is provided by the Code of Civil Procedure in the case of a Civil Court.

49. Such officer shall report to the Local Government the result of the enquiry, and, if the Local Government is satisfied that the proposed acquisition is needed for the construction of a work, and that such work is likely to prove useful to the public, it shall, subject to such rules as the Governor General of India in Council may from time to time prescribe in this behalf, require the Company to enter into an agreement with the Secretary of State for India in Council, providing to the satisfaction of the Local Government for the following matters, namely :—

Agreement with Secretary of State in Council.

(1) the payment to Government of the cost of the acquisition;

(2) the transfer, on such payment, of the land to the Company;

(3) the terms on which the land shall be held by the Company;

(4) the time within which, and the conditions on which, the work shall be executed and maintained; and

(5) the terms on which the public shall be entitled to use the work.

50. Every such agreement shall, as soon as may be after its execution, be published in the Gazette of India, and also in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon (so far as regards the terms on which the public shall be entitled to use the work) have the same effect as if it had formed part of this Act.

Publication of agreement.

50A. The provisions of sections forty-seven to fifty, both inclusive, shall not apply and shall be deemed never to have applied, to the acquisition of land for any Railway or other Company, for the purposes of which, under any agreement between such Company and the Secretary of State for India in Council, the Government is, or was, bound top rovide land.

Sections forty-seven to fifty not to apply where Government bound by agreement to provide land for Companies.

50B. In the case of the acquisition af land for the purposes of a Railway Company, the existence of such an agreement as is mentioned in section 50A may be proved by the production of a printed copy thereof purporting to be printed by order of Government.

When agreement between Company and Secretary of State need not be proved.

PART VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

51. Service of any notice under this Act shall be made by delivering or tendering a copy thereof signed, in the case of a notice under section four, by the officer therein mentioned, and, in the case of any other notice, by or by order of the Collector or the Judge.

Service of notice.

Whenever it may be practicable, the service of the notice shall be made on the person therein named.

When such person cannot be found the service may be made on any adult male member of his family residing with him; and, if no such adult male member can be found, the notice may be served by fixing the copy on the outer door of the house in which the person therein named ordinarily dwells or carries of business, or by fixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place in the office of the officer aforesaid or of the Collector or in the court-house, and also in some conspicuous part of the land to be acquired:

Provided that, if the Collector or Judge shall so direct, a notice may be sent by post, in a letter addressed to the person named therein and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, and service of it may be proved by the production of the addressee's receipt.

XIV of 1866.

Obstruction to survey, &c. Filling trenches. Destroying land-marks.

52. Whoever wilfully obstructs any person in doing any of the acts authorized by section four or section eight, or wilfully fills up, destroys, damages, or displaces any trench or mark made under section four shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one month, or to fine not exceeding fifty rupees, or to both.

Magistrate to enforce surrender.

53. If the Collector is opposed or impeded in taking possession under this Act of any land, he shall, if a Magistrate, enforce the surrender of the land to himself, and, if not a Magistrate, he shall apply to a Magistrate or (within the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay,) to the Commissioner of Police, and such Magistrate or Commissioner (as the case may be) shall enforce the surrender of the land to the Collector.

Completion of acqusition not compulsory, but compensation to be awarded when not completed.

54. (1) Except in the case provided for in section forty-four, nothing in this Act shall be taken to compel the Government to complete the acquisition of any land.

(2) Whenever the Government declines to complete any such acquisition, the Collector shall determine the amount of compensation due for the damage suffered by the owner in consequence of the notice or of any proceedings thereunder, and shall pay such amount to the person interested, together with all costs proved to have been incurred by him in the prosecution of the proceedings under this Act relating to the said land.

(3) The provisions of Part III of this Act shall apply to the determination of the compensation payable under this section.

Part of house or building not to be taken.

55. The provisions of this Act shall not be put in force for the purpose of acquiring a part only of any house, manufactory or other building, if the owner desire that the whole of such house, manufactory or building shall be so acquired:

Provided that the owner may, at any time before the Collector has made his award under section eleven, by notice in writing, withdraw or modify his expressed desire that the whole of such house, manufactory or building shall be so acquired:

Provided also that if any question shall arise as to whether any land proposed to be taken under this Act does or not form part of a house, manufactory or building within the meaning of this section, the Collector shall refer the determination of such question to the Court and shall not take possession of such land until after the question has been determined:

Provided also that either party may appeal to the High Court against the decision of the Court on any such reference, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to every such appeal as if it were an appeal from an original decree of the Court.

XIV of 1882.

(2) If in the case of any claim under section twenty-three, thirdly, by a person interested, on account of the severing of the land to be acquired from his other land, the Local Government is of opinion that the claim is unreasonable or excessive, it may, at any time before the Collector has made his award, order the acquisition of the whole of the land of which the land first sought to be acquired forms a part.

In the case last hereinbefore provided for, no fresh declaration or other proceedings under sections six to ten, both inclusive, shall be necessary; but the Collector shall without delay furnish a copy of the order of the Local Government to the person interested, and shall thereafter proceed to make his award under section eleven.

Payment of Collector's charges by Municipal Body or Company.

56. Where the provisions of this Act are put in force for the purpose of acquiring land at the cost of any fund controlled or managed by a local authority or of any Company, the charges of and incidental to such acquisition shall be defrayed from or by such Fund or Company.

Exemption from stamp-duty and fees.

57. No award or agreement made under this Act shall be chargeable with stamp-duty, and no person claiming under any such award or agreement shall be liable to pay any fee for a copy of the same.

Limitation of suits for anything done in pursuance of Act.

58. No suit or other proceeding shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person for anything done in pursuance of this Act, without giving to such person a month's previous notice in writing of the intended proceeding, and of the cause thereof, nor after tender of sufficient amends, nor after the expiration of three months from the accrual of the cause of suit or other proceeding.[a]

Power to make rules.

59. The Local Government shall have power to make rules consistent with this Act for the guidance of officers in all matters connected with its enforcement, and may from time to time alter and add to the rules so made.

Publication of rules.

All such rules, alterations and additions shall, when sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the local official Gazette and shall thereupon have the force of law.

[a] Repealed, so far as relates to the limitation of suits, by Act IX of 1871, s. 2.

The Hon'ble C. C. Stevens.

RULES UNDER THE INDIAN COUNCILS ACT, 1892.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—"Before we proceed to the business on the paper I should like to make a statement to the Council upon another matter.

"Hon'ble Members will recollect that, during the last session of the Imperial Parliament, a Bill was passed affecting in several respects the Council which I have the honour of addressing, and the local Legislative Councils of Bombay, Madras, Bengal, and the North-West Provinces. The circumstances under which the measure was introduced, and the discussion which took place while it was passing through the two Houses of Parliament, are well known, and I do not think it necessary to recur to them now.

"The changes introduced by the new Act had reference to the constitution of the Legislative Councils, and to their functions. As regards their constitution, the Act provided for an increase in the number of Additional Members, and conferred upon the Governor General in Council the power of making regulations as to the conditions under which such Members should be nominated. As regards the functions of the enlarged Councils, the Act gave them the right of discussing the annual Financial Statement, and also the right of addressing questions to the Government.

"With the object of introducing these changes, it was enacted, under clause 1 of the new Act, that 'the Governor General in Council may from time to time, with the approval of the Secretary of State in Council, make regulations as to the conditions under which such nominations,' (i.e., the nominations of Additional Members) 'or any of them, shall be made by the Governor General, Governors, and Lieutenant-Governors respectively, and prescribe the manner in which such regulations shall be carried into effect.'

"The provision affecting the functions of the enlarged Councils is clause 2, of the Act, under which 'the Governor General in Council may from time to time make rules authorising, at any meeting of the Governor General's Council for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations, the discussion of the annual Financial Statement of the Governor General in Council and the asking of questions, but under such conditions and restrictions as to subject or otherwise as shall be in the said rules prescribed or declared.'

"The clause contains a like provision authorising the heads of the Local Governments to make similar rules, and it is provided that rules made under the Act by Governors in Council and Lieutenant-Governors shall be 'submitted for, and shall be subject to, the sanction of the Governor General in Council,' while the rules made by the Governor General in Council are to be 'submitted for, and shall be subject to, the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council.'

"Acting upon the lines thus laid down for our guidance in the two clauses which I have quoted, we at once entered into correspondence with the Local Governments with a view to framing regulations under clause 1 for the nomination of Additional Members. We also prepared rules with regard to the discussion of the Financial Statement and the asking of questions in this Council, and we entered into correspondence with the Local Governments as to the rules which were to be made for similar purposes in the case of their Legislatures.

"The question was one of some difficulty, and necessitated a considerable amount of correspondence. We did not think it necessary to insist upon absolute uniformity as between province and province in the matter of the new rules, but it was obviously desirable that they should be framed in a uniform spirit, and in accordance with what we believed to be the general principles accepted by Parliament when the Act was passed.

"We were able to arrive at an understanding with the Local Governments before the end of the Simla season, and by the end of October last our proposals had been submitted to the Secretary of State.

"It was my earnest hope that we should have obtained the sanction of Her Majesty's Government by a date which would have enabled us to bring the whole of the new rules into operation at the commencement of the present session, but it is scarcely matter for surprise that the Secretary of State should have thought it necessary to examine carefully proposals so far-reaching and so important as those which we have submitted to him, and we learnt a few days ago that, in consequence of a legal difficulty which had been encountered in reference to the new regulations for the appointment of Additional Members, it was not likely that we should, for some little time to come, be made aware of His Lordship's views upon the whole question.

"Under these circumstances we considered it desirable to apply to Her Majesty's Government for permission to introduce immediately that part of the new procedure which has reference to those enlargements of the functions of the Legislative Councils, of which I spoke just now I am glad to say that this suggestion was readily agreed to by Lord Kimberley, and that we have received his sanction to introduce at once the new rules under which, in future, Hon'ble Members will have the right of discussing our financial proposals, and of addressing questions to us on matters of public interest. The new rules will be published in the official Gazette, but it may be desirable that I should take this opportunity of stating briefly what their substance will be, and of mentioning one or two considerations by which we have been guided in framing them.

"The rules for the discussion of the Financial Statement are of the briefest and simplest character. They merely lay down that—(i) the Statement shall be explained in Council every year and a printed copy given to each Member; that

(ii) after the explanation has been made, each Member shall be at liberty to offer any observations he may wish to make on the Statement: and that

(iii) the Financial Member shall have the right of reply, and the discussion shall be closed by the President making such observations, if any, as he may consider necessary.

"The rules for the discussion of the Financial Statement in the Local Legislatures are framed upon the same lines, and I need not further refer to them.

"The privilege thus conferred upon the Legislative Councils is, I venture to think, one of great importance. I have, more than once, expressed in this room my strong opinion that the present practice, under which the Council has been allowed an opportunity of criticising the financial policy of the Government of India only upon those occasions when financial legislation was resorted to, could not be defended. The right to criticise the financial administration of a Government is one of which it is impossible to over-estimate the value, and I have never concealed my opinion that it was improper as well as illogical that that right should be frequently denied merely upon the technical ground that no Bill upon which a financial debate could be originated happened to be before the Council. The right to discuss, and to criticise, is one which should be either altogether withheld, or altogether conceded. The present arrangement, under which it has been exercised one year and held in abeyance the next, is altogether indefensible. These financial discussions will now take place with regularity, and not upon sufferance, and I feel no doubt that both the public and the Government of India will gain, the one by the wider knowledge and insight into public affairs which it will obtain, the other by the increased opportunity which will be given to it of explaining its position, and defending its policy.

"I will now pass to that portion of the new regulations which has reference to the asking of questions under section 2 of the Councils Act of last year. The main point which we found ourselves called upon to consider had reference to the conditions and restrictions under which the newly-conferred right should be exercised. We propose that at least six days' notice shall ordinarily be given in writing to the Secretary in the Legislative Department of any questions which an Hon'ble Member intends to ask; but that the President may, if he thinks fit, allow a question to be asked with shorter notice, or may require a longer notice should the circumstances demand it.

"We have laid down that questions must be so framed as to be merely requests for information, and must not be put in an argumentative or hypothetical form, or in defamatory language. No discussion will be permitted in respect of an answer given to a question. These two restrictions are substantially identical with those under which questions may be put to Her Majesty's Government in the British House of Commons. A question, of which notice has been given by one Member, may, if he so desires, be asked by another Member on his behalf.

"There remains one point of the utmost importance. We had to consider whether it was desirable to specify certain subjects with regard to which questions should be inadmissible. It is obvious that there are some matters with regard to which no Government can allow itself to be publicly interpellated, such matters, for example, as military preparations at a time when hostilities are in progress or in contemplation, or matters of financial policy involving the premature disclosure of information affecting the market. The conclusion to which we came was that it was better, at all events in the early days of the new procedure, not to commit ourselves to any such specification of subjects. The impropriety of a question may be due quite as much to the time and circumstances under which it is asked as to the subject-matter, and, although we believe that experience may possibly enable us to lay down rules of the kind suggested, we are of opinion that, for the present, it will be desirable to content ourselves with taking power for the President to disallow a question upon the ground that it cannot be answered consistently with public interests. The reformed Councils will, I have no doubt, show a proper appreciation of the limits within which the right of interpellation can be exercised without injury to public interests, and I have every hope that it will very rarely be found necessary to resort to the veto of the President. I may add that in this case also the rule adopted is similar to that in force in the House of Commons.

"The rules as to questions asked in the Local Legislatures are conceived in the same spirit, but they contain two special and important restrictions. Under the first of these, Members of Council are precluded from asking questions with regard to matters or branches of the administration other than those under the control of the Local Government. The second restriction is this, that in matters which are, or have been, the subject of controversy between the Governor General in Council, or the Secretary of State, and the Local Government, no question shall be asked except as to matters of fact, while the answer must be confined to a statement of the facts. The necessity of both these restrictions is, I think, so obvious that I need not take up the time of the Council by defending them.

"These are the changes which will come into immediate operation. Of those which are likely to follow, and which affect the constitution, as distinguished from the functions, of the Councils, I am obviously precluded from speaking while the matter is still in the hands of the Secretary of State. I will, however, venture to say that, even if the changes which we have been able to introduce were to stop short with those which I have now explained,—and I do not suggest for a moment that this is likely,—a very material advance will have been made in the direction of increasing the usefulness of the Legislative Councils. Their functions have, until now, with the solitary exception to be found in those occasional discussions of the Budget which I have just mentioned, been strictly and narrowly limited to those of assisting the Government of India in the work of legislation. They have been absolutely precluded from asking for information, or inquiring into matters of public interest. In advising Her Majesty's Government to allow us to exceed these limits, we feel that we have taken a very serious and far-reaching step. We have taken it under a deep sense of the responsibility which we have assumed; we are fully aware that we are effecting a radical change in the character of these Legislatures; but we are profoundly convinced that the time has come when it is desirable to bring them into closer touch with the rest of the community, and that the reform which we are about to introduce is one which will be for the advantage of the Government as well as of the people of this country.

"I ought, perhaps, to add that the new rules will be published in the Gazettes immediately."

LAND ACQUISITION ACT, 1870, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODBURN presented a preliminary Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1870 He said:—"The Report which I present is a very full one, and I do not think it is necessary for me to go into detail in explaining the changes which we have recommended.

"The changes we have recommended in the Bill are considerable. The most important of these concerns the procedure in the adjustment of claims to compensation. The present Act requires the Collector or assessing officer to refer for the decision of a Court aided by assessors any difference between himself and the owner of the land to be acquired as to the value of it. This reference has equally to be made if the owner is absent when the award is made, or if even one of many persons interested should chance to be so absent. The experience of the last twenty years has shown that the effect is to occasion a very large number of unnecessary references to the Courts. Non-attendance is very much more frequently due to indifference than to dissatisfaction with the award. The local enquiries which precede an award are often made by an official subordinate of the Collector, and, if the owner is satisfied with the preliminary estimate on the spot, he does not give himself the trouble of attending at the head-quarters of the Collector. In the case of railway lines more particularly, where the line is taken through the lands of a proprietary community, an insignificant corner of one owner's field may be taken; but, if he is not present at the award, his co-parceners, who have larger interests and do attend, may be subjected to all the expenses of a trial before assessors, although they are themselves perfectly satisfied with the award. The Bill introduced by Mr. Bliss last session proposed to make the Collector's award final, leaving any dissatisfied proprietor the option of bringing a civil suit to alter the award. We think that so material a departure from the present procedure is not necessary, and that it will sufficiently meet the requirements of the case if, instead of providing rigidly that reference shall be made irrespective of the wishes of the proprietor, reference shall be made only when the proprietor so desires. This is the recommendation that has been made by more than one of the Governments consulted, and we are of opinion that it is right We have to bear in mind that the proprietors with whom the Collector deals are often poor peasants, who have neither the means nor the courage to challenge his decisions by a formal suit against the head of the district administration, and that they would accept very inadequate compensation rather than do so. We have recommended therefore in modification of the provisions of the Bill that the existing procedure be continued with some necessary alterations.

"One of these, as in the Bill, is that the present system of trial with assessors be discontinued. The Governments and the High Courts consulted are of one opinion on this matter. They say that in practice the assessor is not an adviser to the Judge but a partisan—a useless and very expensive addition to the costs of a reference to the Courts. In the words of Mr. Justice Parker of the Madras High Court, 'the nominees of the parties are faithful to their trust and deliver their opinions with minds altogether unaffected by the evidence.'

"We have altered the definition of 'Court.' In the Act the Court to which a reference is made is in Non-Regulation Provinces the Commissioner of the Division. Since the Act was passed, the Punjab and Oudh have separated their Civil from their Revenue Courts, and there are now few parts of India in which there are not independent and distinct Civil Courts. Wherever these exist, it is to these that any objections to the Collector's award should be submitted.

"As regards costs the present Act directs that whenever the Court enhances the Collector's award—it may be by a single rupee—the Collector shall pay the whole of the costs. Under the Bill it is left to the Judge to apportion costs under the ordinary rules of the Code of Civil Procedure. The question of costs is of diminished importance if assessors be no longer appointed, but we think that the Civil Procedure rules are not quite fairly applicable to the case of reasonable objections to a Collector's award, and we have recommended that the Collector shall ordinarily pay the costs when his award is enhanced, but have given the Judge authority to apportion costs when the claim was in his opinion extravagant and unreasonable.

"Much exception was taken in the correspondence placed before the Committee to the definition of 'market-value' which was proposed in the Bill. It is certainly inapplicable in many parts of India, and it would be difficult, if not impossible, to prepare a definition which would be universally and fairly applicable. We agree with the High Court of Bengal and the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab—himself a high authority on matters of the kind—that it is better, as at present, to make no express definition, but leave it to the Collector and the Court to ascertain and determine in each case what under the conditions of the locality would be a fair price for the land it is proposed to acquire.

"In the chapter of the Act regarding the payment of compensation we have added some important clauses. The first empowers the Collector to deposit the amount of his award in Court whenever there is a dispute as to the sufficiency of it or as to the persons entitled to receive it. The second empowers the owner of the land, although dissatisfied with the award, to take payment of it and refer to the Court his claim for the balance. To the extent of the award the Government will be relieved of any charges for interest, and it will no longer be to the advantage of the owner to protract proceedings.

"These, I think, are the principal points in which we have altered the Bill. We propose to maintain, except as to the association of assessors, the existing procedure in the adjustment of compensation, which we think to be certainly the fairest to the owners of land that is being compulsorily acquired, but we have corrected in other respects those practical defects in the law which the Local Governments have brought to our notice. We think, however, as the changes are considerable, the Bill as now amended should be republished and circulated for criticism."

PORAHAT ESTATE BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Bill to annex the estate of Porahat to the Singhbhum District, and for certain other purposes, be taken into consideration He said :—" The Council will remember that this is a small Bill merely for the purpose of giving legal effect to what has been for some time the administration of this estate, which was forfeited many years ago, and a portion of which has been treated as belonging to the Singhbhum District though never formally attached to it or managed as if it were part of the Singhbhum District. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal is anxious that the matter should be put on a strictly legal footing, and this Bill was merely introduced for that purpose."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER said :—"I have now to move that the amendments which I shall presently explain be made in the Bill. The Bill, as drawn, proposed that the law in force in the Kolhan in the Singhbhum District should be applied to the estate of Porahat. It appears that for some reason that is not desirable and, as the object of the Bill is not to alter the law but merely to legalise administration, I propose to leave out all reference to the Kolhan, and in order to do so it will be necessary in the first place to change the preamble. I propose that the third paragraph of the preamble should run in this way :—

'And whereas it is expedient that the said estate should be annexed to the Singhbhum District, and should, as forming part of that district, be declared, for the purposes of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, to form part also of the scheduled district described in that Act as the Chutia Nagpur Division.'

"I introduce the word 'scheduled' before 'district' in the last line but one of the preamble, because Mr. Stevens pointed out to me that we had already in the preamble used this word in its strictly technical sense, and that Chutia Nagpur is not a technical district; but, as it is described as one of the districts in the Scheduled Districts Act, by putting the word 'scheduled' before 'district' we show that we are using 'district' on that occasion in a special sense.

"The second amendment is consequent upon the one which I have just moved. It is that section 3, which was introduced for the purpose of bringing the law in the Kolhan into force in Porahat, should be omitted, and that as that section is struck out the others should be renumbered.

"The third amendment is this. As the Bill is drawn it proposes to legalise all acts of executive authority which have been done by any officer acting under the authority of the Government or otherwise in pursuance of an order of the Government 'or which have been or shall be ratified by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.' It seemed to me on reading the section that it went too far, because there might conceivably be acts of executive authority done by an officer without any consultation with the Lieutenant-Governor and the Lieutenant-Governor might disapprove of them. I propose therefore to alter that word 'or' into 'and'. The practical effect of that will be that, if any objection is taken to anything which has hitherto been done by anybody in Porahat, the Lieutenant-Governor will be able to say 'Well, I ratify it,' or, by refusing to ratify it, will allow the objection to be good. I do not think that it is the least necessary under the circumstances that there should be any formal order of the Lieutenant-Governor, unless somebody is challenged, and in case any officer of Government is challenged on the ground that what has been done is not warranted by law, then, if it was a thing that ought to have been done, the Lieutenant-Governor has only to stop the proceeding at once by saying that he ratifies what has been done; and that seems to me to be preferable to the issue of any formal general order on the subject. I do not, however, want to assume that anything will be challenged at all.

"There is one other amendment which is purely verbal, which is not on the paper, because I did not notice it in time. In the fourth line over the page of the Bill will be found the words 'no suit and other proceeding,' &c. Of course it should be 'no suit or other proceeding,' &c. I propose therefore that the word 'and' should be turned into 'or'."

The amendments were put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER then moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

GOVERNMENT TENANTS (PUNJAB) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ELSMIE moved that the Bill to provide for the grant of Special Tenancies in certain Government lands in the Punjab be taken into consideration. He said that, on introducing the Bill on the 12th January, he had briefly explained its general purport. He had now only to add that the Local Government had approved of the measure as introduced.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ELSMIE said that he had now to move that certain verbal amendments which had been suggested to him only this morning should be made in section 8 of the Bill with a view to bringing out the meaning somewhat more clearly. He would read the whole section, so that the alterations might at once be appreciated. The section ran as follows :—

Transfer of rights of tenants.

"8. The rights or interests vested in a tenant by or under this Act shall not be capable of being attached or sold in execution of a decree or order of any Court or in any insolvency proceedings, nor shall they or any of them be transferred by sale, gift or mortgage or charged by any private contract without the previous consent in writing of the Financial Commissioner."

The proposal was that the latter part of the section should run as follows :—

" nor shall they or any of them, without the previous consent in writing of the Financial Commissioner, be transferred or charged by any sale, gift, mortgage or other private contract."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ELSMIE also moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 16th February, 1893.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 21st, 1893.

The present week has been marked by the passage across Northern India of very unsettled weather. On Sunday a well defined depression entered North-Western India from the westward. It intensified somewhat when over Rajputana, and advanced slowly eastward carrying rain with it right across Northern India. It was succeeded by a brisk barometric recovery over North-Western India and by the establishment of the normal high pressure area over that region. By the close of the week the weather was generally fine throughout Northern India. Light showers were experienced over the central parts of the country connected with the unsettled weather over Northern India, but over the Peninsula conditions were fairly quiet and settled. The weather was colder than usual over the greater part of the country, the depression of temperature in some provinces on some occasions being considerable.

The chart of the 15th showed pressure falling almost everywhere. Readings were highest over the Upper Assam Valley and relatively high over the central parts of the country, while they were low over the west coast, over the Bay, and over North-Western India. Over the last-named region three depressions were shown, one near Bareilly, one near Rawalpindi, and one over the western desert. The winds varried very considerably in direction. The force was fresh at some western stations. Light rain was reported from Gnatong, Montgomery, Murree, Quetta, Chaman, and Karachi, and the sky was overcast in North-Western India. By the 16th the depression, which on the previous day lay over the western desert, was advancing towards Eastern Rajputana, and the barometer was still falling except in Burma and the south of the Peninsula.

Gradients were moderate around the depression over Rajputana, but were slight elsewhere, though readings were a good deal higher in the Assam Valley than in any other part of the Indian region. The winds were cyclonic, and strong in places, over North-Western India, but were fairly normal in direction elsewhere. Rain was falling over the greater part of North-Western India and at Darjeeling and Sibsagar, while snow was falling at all the hill stations. The amounts reported were generally less than ½ inch. On the 17th the barometer was rising almost everywhere. Readings were generally very uniform, but the disturbance noticed over Rajputana on the previous day had advanced eastward and lay as a large diffused and shallow depression over the North-West and Central Provinces and West Bengal. A second shallow depression was crossing the Indus Valley, while readings remained highest in Assam. Rain was reported from the north of the Punjab, from a large part of the North-West and Central Provinces and from West Bengal, while snow had fallen at the hill stations. At Murree, Rawalpindi, and Sialkot the amount received exceeded one inch. On the 18th pressure was rising, except in Bengal, Assam, and the south of the Peninsula. The rise had been brisk over North-Western India, and the high pressure area, which is characteristic of the distribution of pressure at this season, had appeared over that region. The area of depression lay apparently over Bengal. The winds exhibited the normal circulation. Rain had extended to Lower and Eastern Bengal, to Assam and to Upper Burma, and falls were again reported from the north of the Punjab and of the North-Western Provinces. Snow had fallen on the hills from Ranikhet to Murree. The chart of the 19th exhibited a very general increase of pressure and the distribution was fairly normal, readings being highest in North-Western India and lowest over the west of the Peninsula and the south of the Bay. The wind circulation was also fairly normal. Scattered showers of rain were reported from North-Eastern India, from the Central Provinces, from Malabar and from Ceylon, and snow from Murree. At Colombo the fall was heavyish. On the 20th pressure was still rising and the distribution was little changed. The winds were again normal and the only rainfall reported was a few light scattered showers. On the 21st pressure had commenced to fall over a large part of the Peninsula and in Lower Burma, but elsewhere the rise still held. Both the distribution of pressure and the circulation of the winds were fairly normal. Scattered light showers were again reported, but no general or heavy rain.

Temperature.—Owing to the unsettled weather the mean temperature was generally low. The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India :—

Province.	15th.	16th.	17th.	18th.	19th.	20th.	21st.	Mean Variation of week.

MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA .	+0·5	+1·3	+0·2	−1·2	−2·1	−2·0	−2·2	−0·8

The provincial variations show that the mean temperature for the week in Bengal, Assam, the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, the Central Provinces, Sind, Rajputana, and Madras, was about normal, while in Bombay, Central India, and Guzerat, there was a deficiency of about 2½ and in Burma of about 1½°. In the early part of the week the excess of temperature over North-Western India was very considerable. On the 16th and 17th the mean temperature of the whole of India exceeded the average, but on all other days the weather was cooler than usual.

Rain.—The concluding table shows that the unsettled weather described above has been very prevalent throughout the Indian region. Of the fifty-one divisions into which India is divided, no less than thirty-two received more or less rain during the week under review, the only considerable tracks which received no rain being Burma, the Peninsula (except the Circars), and Guzerat and Katthiawar. In all other parts of India, rain was received, and in several divisions the average actual rainfall of the division exceeded half an inch. The heaviest rainfall was along the line of the hills, the average actual rainfall of the north-west of the Punjab being 0·84 inch, of the hill districts of the Punjab 0·79 inch, and of Assam (Bramahputra) 0·69 inch. In Burma and the Peninsula the anticipated rainfall of the week under review is very small, and in some cases absolutely nil. Of the divisions which received rain, twenty had more and ten less than the normal fall of the week. The greatest excess was 0·60" in the East Coast (north) followed by 0·54" in the north-west of the Punjab, by 0·47" in Assam (Bhramaputra), and by 0·41" in Assam (Surma).

The three concluding columns of the table show that the rainfall from the beginning of the year to the present date has exceeded the normal average in East Bengal, in Assam, in North Bengal, in Orissa, in all the North-Western Provinces and Punjab divisions, in Khandeish, in the central parts of the country, and in the Circars, and has been defective elsewhere. In some parts of the country, the excess ranges from twice to seven times the normal average rainfall for the same period.

The following gives the largest total amounts received during the week as reported in the rainfall telegrams of the week :—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 28th January.—Good rain in many parts of northern districts, Madura, and Tinnevelly, and light showers in most parts of presidency. Rainfall in Tinnevelly has done much good, but is insufficient in amount and not sufficiently general. Condition of standing crops almost unaltered, except in parts of Tinnevelly, where they have improved. Water supply in smaller irrigation works of Carnatic and southern districts almost exhausted. Harvest in Circars, Deccan, and on the West Coast proceeds favourably ; in remaining districts it is poor. Pasture and fodder generally sufficient. Prices almost stationary ; those of staple food-grains continue nearly double the normal rates in the southern districts.

Bombay.—For week ending 1st February.—Slight rain in parts of four districts. Standing crops damaged by locusts in parts of Shikarpur, and by blight, rats, or cloudy weather in parts of four other districts. Jowar (Sorghum vulgare) diseased in parts of Poona. Crops, including poppy in Baroda, otherwise good. Harvesting of early crops continues in three and of late crops in five districts. Preparations for next season progressing in four districts. Prices generally steady. Agricultural stock good and fodder sufficient.

Bengal.—For week ending 28th January.—Rain has fallen generally during the week, except in three districts. It has been of great benefit to the spring, poppy and other standing crops, but in Darbhanga and Muzaffarpur arhar (Cajanus indicus) and peas in flower have somewhat suffered, and in Sarun, Champaran, and Palamau a little injury has been done by hail. The rain has facilitated the sowing of spring rice, and ploughing for autumn rice and jute. The winter rice harvest has been completed in all but five districts, and the estimates of autumn are generally satisfactory. The spring harvest is beginning and prospects vary from fair to good. Prices of rice continue almost stationary. Fodder and water supplies are sufficient.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 1st February.—Weather cold, with showers in most districts. Hail has fallen in parts of four districts causing some injury to crops in places. In Benares the opium crop is somewhat blighted owing to cloudy weather and east winds, elsewhere it is healthy. Prospects have much improved by the recent rains. Prices, though fairly steady, have fallen in four districts and risen in two others.

Punjab.—For week ending 1st February.—Good rain fell throughout the province. Sowings of spring crops nearly over ; irrigation in progress in Lahore. Crops are flourishing and prospects good. The mustard crop is flowering, but is said to have been slightly damaged by hail in part of Hissar. Crops on low lands in parts of Amritsar and Sialkot have also suffered from rain. Condition of cattle is generally reported good, and fodder is sufficient in all districts except in parts of Dera Ismail Khan. Poppy crop is flourishing. Prices rising in one district, falling in another, stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 1st February.—Weather cloudy with light rain in a few districts, elsewhere clear and cold. Rust has attacked crops in parts of one district and hail has caused slight damage in parts of another ; otherwise prospects continue very favourable. Fodder fairly plentiful.

Burma.—For week ending 28th January.—LOWER BURMA: Reaping almost completed and threshing continues. Crop prospects unchanged. UPPER BURMA: Reaping of wet weather paddy almost completed, and ploughing, sowing and transplanting of dry weather crops progressing. The condition of standing crops everywhere is reported good, except in the unirrigated lands in the Pyinmana district. In Lower Burma the price of paddy has fallen slightly in Tavoy; elsewhere it is practically unchanged. In Upper Burma the price has risen slightly in one district and fallen slightly in four others. The price of rice has risen considerably in Tharrawaddy and fallen in Thayetmyo, it has also risen considerably in Mandalay and slightly in Katha and Minbu. Number on relief works, 675.

Assam.—For week ending 31st January.—Weather cold and wet. Ploughing for early rice commenced. Condition of cattle normal. Fodder and water sufficient.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 1st February.—MYSORE: Slight rain in parts of two districts. Crops withering in parts of three districts for want of water. Prospects generally fair. No change in prices.

COORG: Threshing of the rice crop commenced. Picking of coffee nearly completed. Fodder and water sufficient for cattle.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 1st February.—BERAR: Average rainfall fair. Weather fair and cool. Reaping of jowar (Sorghum vulgare) and tur (Cajanus indicus), and picking of cotton continue. Spring crops good. Linseed and gram in pod. Fodder and water sufficient. Cattle healthy. Prices almost steady.

HYDERABAD: No rain during the week. Sowing of hot weather crops finished and weeding commenced in some places. Standing rabi crops in good condition. Prices: wheat 9¼, coarse rice 9½, white juar 13¾, yellow juar 19, and tur 11 seers per current rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 1st February.—Slight falls of rain in parts, more rain needed in Bundelkhand. Condition of crops generally good except in parts of Bhopal, where they have been slightly damaged by hail. Opium in good condition except in Goona. Prices of food-grains continue steady.

Rajputana.—For week ending 1st February.—Rainfall fair in some parts and moderate in others. Agricultural operations satisfactory. Standing crops, and harvest prospects generally good. Serious damage reported in several villages of Ulwar by hail. Agricultural stock good and pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices steady in nine States, falling in three, rising in two, and fluctuating elsewhere.

Nepal.—For week ending 28th January.—Weather cold and cloudy and snowfall in district. Rainfall has done much good to the crops, but the snowfall has done some damage in the hills. Prices almost stationary.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Calcutta, the 23rd March, 1893.

No. 14.—Whereas by Resolution passed by the Secretary of State for India in Council on the 29th day of February, 1872, the provisions of the 33rd of Vict., chap. 3, sec. 1 were declared applicable to the Sonthal Parganas;

And whereas the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has proposed to the Governor General in Council a draft of the following Regulation, together with the reasons for proposing the same;

And whereas the Governor General in Council has taken the draft and reasons into consideration, and has approved of the draft and the same has received the Governor General's assent on the 17th day of March, 1893;

In pursuance of the direction contained in the said section, the said Regulation is now published n the Gazette of India:—

REGULATION V OF 1893.

A regulation to make further provision for the administration of Criminal and Civil Justice in the Sonthal Parganas.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make further provision for the administration of criminal and civil justice in the Sonthal Parganas; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Regulation may be called the Sonthal Parganas Justice Regulation, 1893.

(2) It extends to the whole of the Sonthal Parganas as described in the schedule to Act X of 1857 and in the notification of the Governor General in Council, No. 478, dated the 12th March, 1872; and (3) It shall come into force on such day, within three months from the time at which it may receive the Governor General's assent, as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Repeal.

2. The portion of section 3 of Act XXXVII of 1855 beginning with the words "shall be guided" and ending with the words "and he or they," the whole of sections 4 and 5 of that Act, section 4 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation and rule 42 of the Rules of Civil Procedure which were sanctioned by the Lieutentant-Governor of Bengal in the letter of his Secretary, No. 3803, dated the 14th August, 1873, are hereby repealed.

III of 18[illegible]

Definitions.

3. In this Regulation—

(1) "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of the Bhagalpur Division; and

(2) "Deputy Commissioner" means the Deputy Commissioner of the Sonthal Parganas.

CHAPTER II.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE.

Application of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

4. The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and such enactments amending that Code as are for the time being in force under section 3 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation, as amended by the Sonthal Parganas Laws Regulation, 1886, shall have effect in

X of 188[illegible]
III of 18[illegible]
III of 18[illegible]

the Sonthal Parganas subject to the following modifications, numbered respectively I, II, III, IV, V and VI, namely :—

"High Court." Section 4, cl. (i).

I. "High Court" shall mean—

(i) in reference to proceedings against European British subjects or persons jointly charged with European British subjects, the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal and

(ii) in reference to proceedings against other persons—

(a) in the case of the submission of a sentence of death for confirmation (sections 374 to 379), of the postponement and commutation of a sentence of death passed on a pregnant woman (section 382), of appeal from or revision of a sentence of death (Chapters XXXI and XXXII) and of appeal from an original or appellate order of acquittal (section 417), the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, and

(b) in other cases, the Commissioner;

Provided that the Commissioner may, if he shall think fit, transfer to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal any criminal case pending before him as the High Court under this section which should in his opinion, be disposed of by that Court, and thereupon the said High Court of Judicature shall, with respect to the case so transferred, be deemed to be the High Court under this section.

Court of Session. (Sections 7, 9 and 193 and Chapter XXIII.)

II. (1) The Sonthal Parganas shall be a sessions division, the Court of the Deputy Commissioner shall be the Court of Session for the sessions division, and the Deputy Commissioner shall be the Judge of the Court of Session.

(2) As Judge of the Court of Session, the Deputy Commissioner may take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction without the accused person being committed to him by a Magistrate, and, when so taking cognizance of an offence, shall follow the procedure prescribed for the trial of warrant-cases by Magistrates.

Appeal from Deputy Commissioner to High Court. (Section 408.)

III. Subject to the provisions of section 413 of the Code, a person convicted on a trial held by the Deputy Commissioner may appeal to the High Court.

Enhancement of punishment on appeal. (Section 423.)

IV. When an appeal has been preferred, the Appellate Court may enhance any punishment which has been awarded by the Lower Court :

Provided that, if the appeal is from the sentence of a Magistrate of any class, the Appellate Court shall not inflict a greater punishment than might have been inflicted by a Magistrate of the first class.

Orders not reversible on technical grounds alone. (Section 537.)

V. Notwithstanding anything in the Code, a finding, sentence or order shall not be reversed or altered on appeal or revision on account of any irregularity of procedure, unless the irregularity has occasioned or is likely to occasion a failure of justice.

Fees for processes, copies and inspection of records. (Section 553.)

VI. Rules under section 553, clause (c), may regulate the following among other matters, namely :—

(a) the fees to be paid for processes ; and

(b) the fees to be paid for copies and inspection of records.

CHAPTER III.

CIVIL JUSTICE.

Classes of Courts in the Sonthal Parganas.

5. Besides the Courts of Settlement-officers there shall be two classes of Civil Courts in the Sonthal Parganas, namely :—

(1) Courts established under the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887 ; and — XII of 1887.

(2) Courts of officers appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under section 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855.

Division of remainder of Chapter into Parts.

6. The rest of this Chapter is divided into two parts, as follows :—

PART I.—Courts established under the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887. — XII of 1887.

PART II.—Courts of Officers appointed under section 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855.

PART I.

Courts established under the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887.

Grades of Courts established under Act XII, 1887.

7. The Courts established under the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, shall in the Sonthal Parganas be of two grades, namely :— — XII of 1887.

(1) the Court of the District Judge ; and

(2) the Courts of Subordinate Judges.

Appointment of District Judge and Subordinate Judges.

8. The Deputy Commissioner shall be the District Judge, and the Local Government may appoint any Sub-Divisional Officer to be a Subordinate Judge.

Extent of original jurisdiction of District Judge and Subordinate Judges.

9. The jurisdiction of the District Judge or a Subordinate Judge extends, subject to the provisions of section 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to suits of which the value exceeds one thousand rupees and which are not excluded from his cognizance by the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation or by any other law for the time being in force : — XIV of 1882. III of 1872.

Provided that such jurisdiction shall not extend to any suit for money in which the amount claimed, exclusive of interest, does not exceed five hundred rupees.

Procedure in original suits, and appeals from decrees and orders therein.

10. The trial of such suits shall be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure as for the time being in force in the Bhagalpur District, and the course of appeal from decrees and orders in such suits shall, where an appeal is allowed by law, be that prescribed in section 20, sub-section (1), — XIV of 1882.

and section 21, sub-section (1), of the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, and in section 584 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the expression "High Court" in the said sections being construed to mean the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

XII of 1887. XIV of 1882.

11. Nothing in sections 3 to 9 (both inclusive), 12, 18, 19, 22 to 25 (both inclusive,) 27 to 36 (both inclusive) and 40 of the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, shall apply to a Court established under that Act in the Sonthal Parganas.

Limitation of the application of Act XII, 1887.

XII of 1887.

PART II.

Courts of Officers appointed under section 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855.

12. The Courts of officers appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under section 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855 shall be of four grades, namely:—

Grades of Courts of officers appointed under Act XXXVII, 1855, section 2.

(1) the Court of the Commissioner;

(2) the Court of the Deputy Commissioner;

(3) the Courts of Sub-Divisional Officers; and (4) the Courts of Deputy Collectors not in charge of a sub-division, and Sub-Deputy Collectors.

13. The Local Government may fix and vary the number of Courts of Sub-Divisional Officers and of Deputy Collectors not in charge of a sub-division and Sub-Deputy Collectors, and the local limits of the jurisdiction of those Courts.

Determination of number and local jurisdiction of inferior Courts.

14. Except as otherwise provided by any other enactment for the time being in force, jurisdiction with respect to suits which are not cognizable either by a Court established in the Sonthal Parganas under the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, or by a Settlement-officer under the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation shall be had,— Original jurisdiction of Courts.

XII of 1887. III of 1872.

(a) up to the value of one hundred rupees or such other value not exceeding five hundred rupees as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, prescribe, by the Court of a Deputy Collector not in charge of a sub-division, or Sub-Deputy Collector; and (b) without limit as regards the value, by the Court of a Sub-Divisional Officer or the Court of the Deputy Commissioner.

15. (1) Subject to the provisions of the first proviso to section 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855 and of section 10 of this Regulation with respect to the jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in relation to suits cognizable by Courts established under the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, and subject also to the provisions of sub-section (3), and of any other enactment for the time being in force, the Court of the Commissioner shall, for the purposes of all enactments relating to civil jurisdiction for the time being in force, be deemed to be the High Court for the Sonthal Parganas.

Court of Commissioner to be High Court, and Court of Deputy Commissioner to be District Court.

XII of 1887.

(2) Subject to the provisions of the same proviso with respect to the trial and determination of suits of value exceeding one thousand rupees which are within the cognizance of a Court established in the Sonthal Parganas under the Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, and subject also to the provisions of sub-section (3) and of any rules and orders for the time being in force under section 10 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation, the Court of the Deputy Commissioner shall, for the same purposes, be deemed to be the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction and the District Court for the Sonthal Parganas:

XII of 1887. III of 1872.

Provided that the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that the Court of a Sub-Divisional Officer shall, for the purposes of any enactment specified in the notification, be deemed to be the District Court for the local area within its jurisdiction.

(3) For the purposes of the Indian Divorce Act the Commissioner shall be deemed to be the District Judge, and the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal to be the High Court.

IV of 1869.

16. (1) The general superintendence and control over Civil Courts of all other grades shall be vested in, and all such Courts shall be subordinate to, the Court of the Commissioner.

Control over Courts.

(2) Subject to the general superintendence and control of the Court of the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner shall control all Civil Courts of the third and fourth grades.

17. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Chapter with respect to revision, a decree or order made in an original suit of value not exceeding fifty rupees by a Sub-Divisional Officer, or in an original suit of value not exceeding one hundred rupees by the Deputy Commissioner, shall, if no question of title to immoveable property or to office connected with such property was directly or indirectly in issue in the suit, be final.

Appeals from original decrees or orders.

(2) From every other decree or order in an original suit an appeal shall lie, when the decree or order was made—

(a) by a Deputy Collector not in charge of a sub-division or by a Sub-Deputy Collector, to the Sub-Divisional Officer: provided that the Deputy Commissioner shall have power to order any such appeal to be transferred to his own file;

(b) by a Sub-Divisional Officer, to the Deputy Commissioner;

(c) by the Deputy Commissioner, to the Commissioner.

18. Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Chapter with respect to revision, an appellate order or decree shall be final in all cases where the decision of the Lower Court is affirmed, and no second appeal shall be allowed except when the Sub-Divisional Officer or Deputy Commissioner has varied the decision of the Lower Court. In this case an appeal will lie to the Commissioner. The appellate order or decree upon a second appeal shall in all cases be final.

Revision.

19. (1) The Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner may, of his own motion or otherwise, call for the record of any case decided by a Court under his control in which an appeal does not lie or in which, for cause shown to his satisfaction, an appeal has not been preferred within the time limited therefor, and may pass such order in the case as he thinks fit.

(2) The Deputy Commissioner may, by order in writing, empower any Sub-Divisional Officer under his control to exercise the powers conferred on the Deputy Commissioner by sub-section (1) with respect to the decisions of all or any of the Courts of Deputy Collectors not in charge of a sub-division, or Sub-Deputy Collectors, under the control of the Deputy Commissioner.

Power for Deputy Commissioner to distribute business.

20. The Deputy Commissioner may, by order in writing, direct that any civil business cognizable by him and the Courts under his control shall be distributed among those Courts in such manner as he thinks fit:

Provided that no direction under this section shall empower any Court to exercise any powers or deal with any business beyond the limits of its proper jurisdiction.

Power for Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner to transfer proceedings.

2. The Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner may withdraw any suit or other proceeding pending in any Court under his control and try it himself or refer it for disposal to any other Court under his control and competent to try it.

Review.

22. (1) The Commissioner may, for sufficient reason, review any decree or order which has been passed by himself and from which an appeal has not been preferred to Her Majesty in Council.

(2) A Court subordinate to that of the Commissioner shall not review any decree or order made by it, except for the purpose of correcting a clerical error or other error manifestly the result of an oversight, without previously obtaining,—

(a) in the case of the Court of a Deputy Collector not in charge of a sub-division, or Sub-Deputy Collector, or of a Sub-Divisional Officer, the permission of the Deputy Commissioner, and

(b) in the case of the Court of the Deputy Commissioner, the permission of the Commissioner.

Decrees and orders not reversible on technical grounds alone.

23. A decree or order made by the Court of an officer appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under section 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855 shall not be reversed or altered on appeal or revision on account of any irregularity of procedure, unless the irregularity has occasioned or is likely to occasion a failure of justice.

CHAPTER IV.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

Addition to section 6, Regulation III of 1872.

24. To section 6 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation the following shall be added, namely:— III of 1872.

"EXPLANATION.—The expression 'intermediate adjustment of account' in clause (a) of this section means any adjustment of account which is not final, and includes the renewal of an existing claim by bond, decree or otherwise when, without the passing of fresh consideration, the original claim is increased by such renewal.

"Illustration.— A bond is given for Rs. 75, of which Rs. 25 are interest. Unless the obligee can prove to the satisfaction of the Court that he gave such consideration for the bond as rendered the transaction fair and equitable, of the Rs. 75, Rs. 50 only will bear interest, and the limit of the claim on the bond will be Rs. 100."

Pending proceedings.

25. All cases and proceedings, whether original or on appeal, review, reference or revision, pending in the Court of the Commissioner of the Bhagalpur Division, or of the Deputy Commissioner or any subordinate officer of the Sonthal Parganas, shall be disposed of as if this Regulation had not been passed; and no decree or order which may be made or passed in any such pending case in pursuance of any jurisdiction intended or purporting to be conferred by, or by the authority of, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under Act XXXVII of 1855, or any other enactment for the time being in force, shall be deemed invalid or be deprived of any of its effect by reason of the objection that such jurisdiction was not or could not have been lawfully conferred.

Pending appeals.

26. Appeals and applications for revision from decrees, orders and decisions passed by the Deputy Commissioner or any subordinate officer of the Sonthal Parganas, and not appealed against before the date on which this Regulation comes into force, shall lie and be disposed of as if passed by Courts exercising similar jurisdictions under this Regulation.

Limitation of the scope of directions under Act XXXVII, 1855, section 1, clause 2.

27. Any directions which the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may issue under section 1, clause 2, of Act XXXVII of 1855 must be consistent with this Regulation and with all other enactments for the time being in force in the Sonthal Parganas.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Part I, of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names, habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics, markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI, (which will consist of four parts) Part I contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 24th March, 1893, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. VII OF 1893.

An Act to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Inland Emigration Act, 1893; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Substitution of new section for section 1, Act I of 1882.

2. For section 1 of the said Inland Emigration Act, 1882, the following shall be substituted, namely :—

Short title.

"1. This Act may be called the Assam Labour and Emigration Act, 1882.

Local extent.

"It extends—

(a) to the territories respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces and Assam, and to the district of Ganjam; and

(b) to such other portions of the territories administered by the Governor of Fort St. George in Council as the Governor in Council, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, from time to time direct.

Commencement.

"It shall come into force—

(i) in the territories mentioned in clause (a) of this section, at once; and

(ii) in any territories to which it may be extended by a notification under clause (b) of this section, on such day as may be specified in that behalf in such notification."

Amendments of section 3.

3. (1) In section 3 of the said Act, in the definition of the expression "the labour-districts," the words "Chittagong, the Chittagong Hill Tracts," and "Khasi Hills" are hereby repealed.

(2) In the same section of the said Act, in the definition of the word "emigrate," the words "not being a labour-district" are hereby repealed; and for the words "Chief Commissioner of Oudh" the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"Chief Commissioners of Oudh and the Central Provinces, or from any portion of the territories administered by the Governor of Fort St. George in Council in which this Act may, for the time being, be in force."

(3) In the same section of the said Act, in the definition of the word "dependent", for the word "means" the word "includes" shall be substituted.

Amendments of section 4.

4. In section 4 of the said Act, after the word "labour-district," where it first occurs, the words "or specified area thereof," and after the same word, where it afterwards occurs, the words "or area", shall be respectively inserted.

Amendment of section 9.

5. For the penultimate paragraph of section 9 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"No such contract shall be made for a term exceeding four years or, if the contract is entered into under the provisions of section 111 of this Act, for a term exceeding one year, commencing from the date of its execution; or shall stipulate for a less rate of monthly wages for a completed daily task regulated in accordance with the provisions of this Act than five rupees in the case of a man and four rupees in the case of a woman, for the first three years of the term of the contract, and six rupees in the case of a man and five rupees in the case of a woman for the fourth year of such term."

Addition of new section after section 9.

6. After the same section of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

In absence of specific obligation, underground labour not obligatory.

"9A. Unless the contract contains a specific obligation to this effect, no labourer shall be bound by any labour-contract entered into under this Act to undertake any work involving underground labour in mines."

7. After section 11 of the said Act the following sections shall be inserted, namely :—

Addition of new sections after section 11.

"11A. If the Local Government, after such enquiry as it thinks sufficient, is of opinion that any labourer was recruited or conveyed to a labour-district, or compelled or induced to enter into a labour-contract, by any coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation, or that any such irregularity has occurred in connection with his recruitment or the execution of his contract as makes it just to rescind his contract, the Local Government may, by an order in writing, direct the labour-contract of such labourer to be cancelled.

Power of Local Government to cancel contract for wrongful recruitment.

"On receipt of any such order by the Local Government, the Superintendent, Inspector or Magistrate shall cancel the contract referred to, and shall thereupon make an endorsement that it has been so cancelled on the labourer's copy of the contract or, if the same be not forthcoming, shall give to the labourer a certificate to that effect.

"11B. When the labour-contract of any labourer is or has been cancelled under the last foregoing section, the Local Government may, at its discretion and on the application of the labourer concerned, cancel the labour-contracts of any labourers, being the wife, husband, father, mother, son or daughter of the labourer whose labour-contract is or has been cancelled, who may have entered into a labour-contract at the same place with the same employer or, in the case of labour-contracts cancelled in the labour-districts, may be employed on any estate belonging to the same employer.

Power to cancel contract of labourer related to labourer whose contract is cancelled.

"11C. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the Superintendent, Inspector or Magistrate may send back to his native district any labourer, together with his dependents (if any) whose contract has been cancelled under section 11A, and may recover the whole or any part of the expenses incurred in so sending him back as follows, namely :—

Repatriation of labourers whose contracts cancelled for wrongful recruitment.

(b) when the contract has been cancelled in a labour-district, from the employer on whose estate the labourer was under contract to labour, as if it were an arrear of wages.

"11D. In any case in which a labourer is sent back to his native district under the provisions of the last foregoing section, the Superintendent, Inspector or Magistrate may provide an escort or make such other arrangements as may appear to him to be necessary for ensuring that such labourer is actually conveyed to such district. Any expenditure incurred in providing such escort or making such arrangements may be recovered as part of the amount expended in sending such labourer back to his native district."

Escort for repatriated labourer.

8. For section 16 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely :—

Substitution of new section for section 16.

"16. No sub-contractor shall be licensed to act on behalf of more than one contractor."

Sub-contractor only to represent one contractor.

9. After section 42 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely :—

Addition of new sections after section 42.

"42A. If the employer with whom any labourer intends to contract, or the agent of such employer, has given notice to the Superintendent that before any labour contract is entered into by him or on his behalf with any labourer, the labourer shall be examined by a competent medical man and certified by him to be in a fit state of health and able in point of physical condition to reside and labour for hire in the labour-district in which the estate of such employer is situate, the Superintendent shall not permit such labourer to execute a labour-contract until such certificate from such medical man as aforesaid has been produced and shown to him.

Employer may require medical certificate as to fitness to labour previous to contract.

"42B. If the employer or his agent has directed that such examination shall be made by any medical officer in the service of Government, such officer making the examination shall be entitled to receive from such employer or his agent such a fee not exceeding eight annas for each labourer so examined as the Local Government may fix."

Medical officer entitled to fee.

10. In section 84 of the said Act, after the word "registered" the words "and such further sum (if any) by way of compensation as the Superintendent thinks reasonable" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 84.

11. In section 86 of the said Act all the words after the word "labour-districts" are hereby repealed.

Amendment of section 86.

12. For sections 111 and 112 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely :—

Substitution of new sections for sections 111 and 112.

"111. Any employer may enter into a labour-contract for any term not exceeding one year commencing from the date of the execution of the contract with any native of India within the labour-district in which the estate on which such native contracts to labour is situated. When any employer has executed any such contract with any such native within a labour-district, he shall, within one month from the date of the execution of such contract, forward it in duplicate to the Inspector within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such estate is situated. On receipt of the contract so forwarded, the Inspector shall enter an abstract thereof in a register to be kept by him for the purpose, and shall then give one copy of the contract to the labourer and the other copy to his employer.

Labour-contracts executed in labour-districts between employer and native direct.

Registration of such contracts.

"111A. When, for the first time after the registration of any such contract with a labourer, the Inspector visits the estate on which such labourer is employed, the employer shall cause such labourer to appear before the Inspector for the purpose of having his contract verified, and such labourer may thereupon apply to the Inspector to cancel the contract;

Verification and cancellation of such contracts and, if he shows cause sufficient in the opinion of the Inspector to justify the cancellation, the Inspector shall cancel the contract, and shall thereupon make an endorsement that it has been cancelled on the labourer's copy of the contract, or, if such copy be not forthcoming, shall give to the labourer a certificate to that effect.

Power of Inspector or Magistrate to require labourer who has executed such contract to appear before him.

"111B. The Inspector or Magistrate may at any time, either on the application of the employer or the labourer or of his own motion, require the employer to cause any labourer who has entered into a contract under section 111 and is employed upon any estate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Inspector or Magistrate to appear before him for the purpose of having his contract verified; and, if such labourer applies to the Inspector or Magistrate to cancel his contract and shows cause sufficient in the opinion of the Inspector or Magistrate to justify such cancellation, the Inspector or Magistrate shall cancel the contract as provided in the last preceding section.

Labour-contracts executed within labour-districts before Inspector or Magistrate.

"112. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 111, any employer may enter into a labour-contract with any native of India in a labour-district for any term not exceeding four years commencing from the date of the execution of the contract if he appears either in person or by agent with such native before the Inspector or Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the estate upon which such native is about to contract to labour is situated.

"Such Inspector or Magistrate shall thereupon explain the labour-contract to such native and shall, if satisfied that he is competent to enter into and understands the same, call upon him and the employer or his agent to execute it in his presence, and, if they execute it, shall attest such execution with his signature.

"An abstract of every such labour-contract shall be entered in a register to be kept by the Inspector or Magistrate for the purpose; and one copy of such contract shall then be given to the labourer and the other copy to his employer or his agent.

"In respect of every labour-contract an abstract whereof is registered under section 111 or under this section, the employer who executes such contract in person or by agent shall pay to the Inspector or Magistrate such fee, not exceeding one rupee, as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Execution of labour-contract before Inspector or Magistrate of Dhubri.

"112A. For the purposes of the last preceding section an estate situated in any one of the following districts of the Assam Valley Division, namely, Kamrup, Darrang, Nowgong, Sibsagar and Lakhimpur, shall be deemed to be also situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Inspector and Magistrate resident at the civil station of Dhubri in the Goalpara District; and, subject to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, contracts to labour on any estate in any of the labour-districts above named may be executed and registered before the Inspector or Magistrate at Dhubri in accordance with the provision of the last preceding section.

Power of Local Government to frame rules in connection with the execution of labour-contracts at Dhubri.

"112B. The Local Government may, after previous publication, make rules consistent with this Act with respect to all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the execution and registration of contracts under section 112A before the Inspector or Magistrate at Dhubri;

(b) the medical examination at Dhubri by the Civil Surgeon or other competent medical man of labourers and persons intending to become labourers and their dependents;

(c) the conditions under which depôts, rest-houses and other places may be established and maintained at Dhubri for the reception and lodging of labourers and persons intending to become labourers and their dependents; the sanitation and management of such depôts, rest-houses and other places; the arrangements for food, water and conservancy therein; the clothing and necessary utensils to be supplied to persons lodged therein; and the hospital accommodation for and medical treatment of such persons;

(d) the control and inspection by officers of Government of such depôts, rest-houses and other places; and

(e) the registers to be kept, and the reports and returns to be made, by the persons in charge of such depôts, rest-houses and other places."

Substitution of new section for section 114.

13. For section 114 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Powers of Inspector or Magistrate to inspect lands and houses and to make requisitions and inquiries.

"114. Any Inspector or Magistrate or any person authorized by either of them in writing in this behalf may at any time enter and inspect all lands and houses wholly or partially used by or for labourers, or by or for any other natives of India employed on any estate, and may require that all such labourers or natives, or any particular class or classes or individual or individuals of them, shall be brought before him, and that a copy of the labour-contract of any labourer shall be produced, and may make any inquiries which he thinks proper touching the condition or treatment of such labourers or other natives or any of them, and the employer shall be bound to comply with such requisition and to answer such inquiries to the best of his ability."

Amendment of section 115.

14. In section 115 of the said Act, for the words "whole number of days in the current month," the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"number of working days in the current month. The number of working days in any month shall be ascertained by deducting the number of Sundays from the whole number of days in the month."

Amendment of section 121.

15. For the last sentence of section 121 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"The Inspector shall from time to time, when visiting the estate, on the application of the employer, and may also at any other time on the application of either the employer or the labourer, endorse on the labourer's labour-contract, after such enquiry as may be necessary, the number of days so to be added to the term thereof:

"Provided that an employer who omits to apply for the endorsement of such days on any labourer's labour-contract, when the Inspector is actually visiting the estate, shall, in the absence of sufficient reasons to the contrary shown to the satisfaction of the Inspector, be debarred from applying afterwards for such endorsement in so far as days of absence which occurred prior to the date of the Inspector's last visit are concerned."

Amendment of section 128.

16. Between the first and second paragraphs of section 128 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"The Magistrate of the District may also of his own motion summon such a Committee, if, either from his own observation or upon the report of an Inspector, Magistrate or Medical Officer, he is of opinion that any estate or portion of an estate is, for any of the reasons aforesaid, unfit for the residence of labourers or of any particular class of labourers."

Addition of new section after section 128.

17. After the same section of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Local Government may order Committee.

"128A. If it appears to the Local Government, upon the report of an Inspector, Magistrate or Medical Officer,—

(a) that any estate or portion of an estate is for any of the reasons given in the last preceding section unfit for the residence of labourers or of any particular class of labourers, or

(b) that the percentage of mortality of labourers or of any particular class of labourers employed on any estate or on any portion of an estate is such as would justify the institution of an inquiry by a medical officer under section 130 of this Act,

the Local Government may direct the Magistrate of the District to summon a Committee under the last preceding section; and the Magistrate of the District shall forthwith proceed to summon a Committee accordingly."

Addition to section 129.

18. To the last paragraph of section 129 of the said Act the following shall be added, namely:—

"Where the finding relates to the whole of any estate and the employer has no other estate in the same labour-district on which the labourer may be employed, the Inspector shall cancel the labour-contract of such labourer, and shall thereupon make an endorsement that it has been cancelled on the labourer's copy of the contract, or, if such copy be not forthcoming, shall give to the labourer a certificate to that effect."

Addition of new section after section 129.

19. After section 129 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Local Government may pass orders on proceedings of Committee.

"129A. The Local Government may call for the proceedings of any Committee summoned under section 128 or section 128A of this Act, and, if the finding of such Committee is not unanimous, the Local Government may record any finding thereon which such Committee was competent to record, and such finding shall have the same effect as the finding of a Committee under section 129."

Amendments of section 130.

20. In section 30 of the said Act, after the words "Local Government" each time they occur the words "or the Magistrate of the District" shall be inserted, and to the same section the following shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that, when the mortality among any particular class of labourers employed on an estate or any specified portion of an estate exceeds the percentage specified in this section, the Local Government or Magistrate of the District may direct an inquiry under this section limited to such particular class of labourers."

Amendments of section 132.

21. (1) In section 132 of the said Act, for the words "and that such estate or portion is thereby rendered" the words "or that such estate or portion is" shall be substituted.

(2) In the same section, for the words following the word "labourers" the first time it occurs down to and including the same word the second time it occurs, the words "or of any particular class of labourers, it may make a declaration in writing to that effect", shall be substituted.

Substitution of new section for section 133.

22. For section 133 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Power to certify fitness of estate or portion found or declared to be unfit.

"133 If it at any time appears to the Inspector that any estate or smaller area, which has been found or declared under any of the preceding provisions to be unfit for the residence of labourers or of any particular class of labourers, has become fit for the residence of such labourers or class of labourers, as the case may be, he shall, with the previous sanction of the Magistrate of the district in which such estate or area is situate, give a certificate to that effect signed by him. Thereupon all such labourers as are mentioned or referred to in the last paragraph of section 129, and whose contracts have not been cancelled by the Inspector under that section, shall again be bound to labour on the estate or area, as the case may be, to which the certificate relates for the unexpired periods (if any) of their respective contracts."

Addition of new section after section 140.

23. After section 140 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely :—

Power to cancel contract of labourer related to labourer whose contract is cancelled or determined.

"140A. When the labour-contract of any labourer is or has been cancelled or determined under section 111A, 111B, 122 or 140, the Inspector or Magistrate, as the case may be, may, at his discretion, and on the application of the labourers concerned, cancel the labour-contract of any labourer employed on any estate belonging to the same employer being a wife, husband, father, mother, son or daughter of the labourer whose labour-contract is or has been so cancelled or determined."

Amendment of section 142.

24. In the last paragraph of section 142 of the said Act, for the words "third, fourth and fifth years" the words "third and fourth years" shall be substituted.

Addition of new sections after section 142.

25. After section 142 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely :—

Power to equalize terms of contract in case of husband and wife.

"142A. In any case in which the contract of a labourer determines at a different time from that of any other labourer who is the wife or husband of such labourer, the Inspector or Magistrate may, on the joint application of such labourers, equalise the terms of their respective contracts, and may for this purpose add to the term of the contract which expires first and deduct from the term of the contract which expires last in such proportions as may appear to him to be equitable.

"Every such addition or deduction from the term of any contract shall be certified by such Inspector or Magistrate on the back of both the employer's and the labourer's copies of the contract, or, if the same be not forthcoming, by writing under the Inspector or Magistrate's hand, copies of which shall be delivered to the employer and the labourer.

"J.—Repatriation of Labourers and others.

Repatriation of labourers whose contract is determined under section 122.

"142B. If any labourer, not being a native of the labour-districts, whose contract is determined under section 122, desires to be sent back to his native district, the Inspector may, instead of awarding a sum as receivable by such labourer from his employer, as provided by that section, order the employer to deposit such amount, whether in excess of the three months' wages awardable under that section or otherwise, as shall, in the Inspector's opinion, be sufficient to cover the entire expenses of sending the labourer to such district. Such amount shall be deposited by the employer in the Inspector's office and shall be expended by the Inspector in sending the labourer back to his native district.

"On failure of the employer to deposit such amount within twenty-four hours in accordance with any such order, the Inspector may pay the same, and any amount so paid shall be recoverable from the employer as if it were an arrear of wages.

Repatriation of immigrants not under contract who are physically incapacitated.

"142C. If any person, being a native of India but not being a labourer, who has emigrated from his native district to a labour-district for the purpose of labouring for hire in any estate situate therein, or being a dependent of any person who has so emigrated, has no means of subsistence and is, in the opinion of the Inspector or Magistrate, permanently incapacitated from earning his livelihood in a labour-district, the Inspector or Magistrate may, on the application of such person, send him back together with his dependents (if any) to his native district, and may, subject to the control of the Local Government, charge the expenses incurred in so doing to the Inland Labour Transport Fund.

Repatriation of labourers wrongfully recruited.

"142D. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the Inspector or Magistrate may send back to his native district any labourer, together with his dependents (if any), whose contract has been cancelled under section 111A or 111B on the ground of coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation, or of any irregularity in connection with his recruitment or the execution of his contract, and may recover, as if it were an arrear of wages, from the employer on whose estate such labourer was under contract to labour the whole or any part of the expenses incurred in so sending him back.

Repatriation of persons not under contract wrongfully recruited.

"142E. If it appears to the Inspector or Magistrate, on complaint made before him or otherwise, that there is reason to suppose that any native of India, not being a labourer, has been induced by any coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation to emigrate to a labour-district, the Inspector or Magistrate shall call upon the employer on whose behalf such person was made or induced to emigrate, or to whose estate he is being or has been conveyed, or, if the employer cannot be communicated with without undue delay, upon his agent or any one accompanying such person or conveying him to any labour-district or estate, to appear before the Inspector or Magistrate and show cause why such person should not be sent back to his native district.

"If the Inspector or Magistrate is of opinion, after such enquiry as he thinks sufficient, that such person was engaged or compelled or induced to emigrate by any such coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation as would justify his being sent back to his native district, the Inspector or Magistrate shall record a finding to this effect, and shall send such person, if he so desires, together with any other persons dependent on him (if any) back to his native district

"Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the whole or any part of the amount expended in sending a person back to his native district under this section may be recovered as if it were an arrear of wages from the employer on whose behalf such person was induced to emigrate or to whose estate he was being or had been conveyed; or if the employer is not known, or if there is no such employer, by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the person accompanying such person or conveying him to any labour-district or estate.

Arrangements may be made for escorting persons ordered to be repatriated.

"142F. In any case in which a labourer or other person is sent back to his native district under the provisions of section 142D or section 142E, the Inspector or Magistrate may provide an escort or make such other arrangements as may appear to him to be necessary for ensuring that such labourer or person is actually conveyed to such district. Any expenditure incurred in providing such escort or making such arrangements may be recovered as part of the amount expended in sending such labourer or other person back to his native district."

Amendment of sections 143 and 145.

26. To section 143 of the said Act the words "In addition to any other power to make rules conferred by this Act" shall be prefixed; and in section 145 of the said Act, for the word "hereunder" the words "under this Act" shall be substituted.

Substitution of new section for section 151.

27. For section 151 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Garden-sardár failing to report himself, &c.

"151. Whoever, being a garden-sardár, fails, within fourteen days after his arrival in the local area within which he is authorized to enter into contracts under this Act, to report himself to the local agent (if any) specified in his certificate, or fails without sufficient cause to return to his employer within the time specified in his certificate, or fails to account for the money advanced to him by his employer for the purpose of engaging labourers, and whoever, being a garden-sardár or a person appointed under section fifty or section seventy-three to accompany labourers to a labour-district, wilfully abandons any labourer or his dependent on the way to such district, or removes or attempts to remove any person to a labour-district before he has been registered as provided by section sixty-six, or induces or attempts to induce any person to go to a labour-district or to leave the local area specified in the certificate of such sardár before he has been so registered, or aids or attempts to aid him in proceeding to a labour-district or in leaving any such local area before he has been so registered,

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or with both."

Substitution of new section for section 152.

28. For section 152 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Garden-sardár making over labourers to contractors, or committing like offences.

"152. Any garden-sardár who makes over to any contractor, sub-contractor or recruiter, or to the garden-sardár or local agent of any employer other than the employer by whom his certificate was granted or, without authority from his employer, to any other person, any persons whom he has engaged or intends to engage as labourers, or places any such person in a contractor's depôt or in the place of accommodation provided by a recruiter in accordance with the provisions of section 27, or allows any persons engaged as labourers by any contractor or sub-contractor or recruiter to share the accommodation provided by him under section 57, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both; and his certificate may be impounded by the convicting Magistrate.

"Any Magistrate impounding a certificate under this section shall send it for cancellation to the Magistrate by whom it was countersigned."

Amendment of section 164.

29. In section 164 of the said Act, after the word "inquiry" the words "or omits to comply with any requisition" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 170.

30. In the second paragraph of section 170 of the said Act, after the words "any Inspector who receives any such statement shall" the words "if the employer so desires" be inserted, and to the same section the following shall be added, namely:—

"The Inspector may also at any time other than that of his visit to the estate, on the application of either the employer or the labourer, after due enquiry, endorse such days of absence on, and add them to the term of, the labour-contract: Provided that an employer who omits to apply for the endorsement of such days on any labourer's labour-contract when the Inspector is actually visiting the estate shall be debarred, in the absence of sufficient reasons to the contrary shown to the satisfaction of the Inspector, from applying afterwards for such endorsement so far as days of absence reported in statements sent to the Inspector previous to the date of his last visit are concerned."

Addition of new section after section 171.

31. After section 171 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Statement of deserters.

"171A. Every employer may, on or before the fifteenth day of each month, send to the Inspector a statement in writing in such form as the Local Government may prescribe containing the names of all or any of his labourers who have deserted from his service during the preceding month, or who, having deserted at any previous time, have been absent during the preceding month, or who, having deserted during the month or previously, have been arrested or have returned to his service during the preceding month."

32. For section 173 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely :—

Substitution of new section for section 173.

"173. The police-officer in charge of such station shall, on the appearance of the parties, take down in writing the statements of the labourer arrested and of the person arresting the labourer.

Procedure at police-station.

"If the labourer admits the contract and does not claim to be forwarded to a Magistrate, the police-officer may permit the person arresting the labourer to convey him to the estate on which he is under contract to labour, and shall then transmit the statements recorded and a report of his proceedings to the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the police-station is situated.

"If the labourer does not admit the contract or claims to be forwarded to the Magistrate, or if, for any reason, it appears to the police-officer desirable that he should be so forwarded, the police-officer shall forthwith send such labourer, together with the statements recorded as aforesaid and a report of his proceedings, to the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the police-station is situated.

"If the estate on which the labourer is under contract to labour is not situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate referred to in the last two preceding paragraphs, such Magistrate shall forward the statements and report received by him from the police to the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such estate is situate. He shall also, when the labourer has been sent to him by the police, either forward the labourer to, or take security for his appearance before, such Magistrate.

"On receipt of such statements and report, the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such estate lies may, after making such inquiry as he considers desirable into the case, pass such order in accordance with law as he thinks proper. For the purpose of any such inquiry such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, in any case in which the labourer arrested has not been sent to, or appeared before, him, require the labourer to appear before him."

Additions to section 175.

33. In section 175 of the said Act—

(a) after the words "one month" the words "or with fine which may extend to twenty rupees, or with both,"

(c) after the words "three months" the words "or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both,"

shall be added respectively.

34. For section 182 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely :—

Substitution of new sections for section 182.

"182. When any labourer is convicted under section 171 of absence from labour or is sentenced to imprisonment for an offence under this Act, the Magistrate so convicting or sentencing him shall endorse on the employer's copy of the labour-contract the period during which such labourer is convicted under the section aforesaid of being absent from his labour or the term for which he is sentenced to imprisonment, or both, as the case may be.

Endorsement on contract of period of unlawful absence or imprisonment for offence against Act.

"182A. When any labourer is convicted under section 175 of desertion from his employer's service, the Magistrate convicting him shall, on the application of the employer or his agent, endorse on the employer's copy of the labour-contract (in addition to the term of imprisonment to which the labourer may be sentenced for such desertion), the period during which the Magistrate finds that the labourer was absent from his labour in contravention of his contract owing to such desertion :

Endorsement on contract of period of desertion or imprisonment for desertion.

"Provided that no such endorsement shall be made in any case in which the labour-contract has been cancelled under the provisions of section 177 or in any case in which the original term of the labour-contract has expired on the date of the conviction, and more than three years have elapsed from the date of the labourer's desertion to that of his arrest :

"Provided also that the employer has duly reported the particulars of the desertion in the monthly statement provided for in section 171A.

"182B. When any labourer is sentenced to imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years for any offence other than an offence under this Act, the Court or Magistrate so sentencing him shall, if the employer or his agent shall so request, endorse on the employer's copy of the labour-contract the period for which the labourer is sentenced to imprisonment, or, if such period exceeds the unexpired term of the labour-contract on the date of the sentence, so much of such period as is equal to such unexpired term.

Endorsement on contract of period of any other imprisonment.

"182C. The periods endorsed under the three last preceding sections shall be added to the term for which the labourer contracted to serve ; and such labourer shall not be deemed to have performed his labour-contract till he has served for the term specified therein in addition to the periods so endorsed."

Periods endorsed to be added to term of contract.

35. After section 183 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely :—

Addition of new section after section 183.

"183A. Whoever, being bound under section 111 to forward any labour-contract to the Inspector, or under section 111B to cause any labourer to appear before the Inspector or Magistrate, wilfully omits or neglects so to forward such labour-contract to the Inspector at or within the time specified, or to cause such labourer to appear before the Inspector or Magistrate within a reasonable time, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees."

Failure to forward contract under section 111 or to cause labourer to appear under section 111B.

Amendment of section 192.

36. In section 192 of the said Act, after the words "leave allowances" the words "for meeting the cost of sending labourers and other persons back to their native districts" shall be inserted.

Amendments of schedule.

37. (1) In the schedule to the said Act, opposite the word "labour" where it first occurs, the following note shall be inserted, namely:—

"* State nature of labour, if the labourer is to be required to work under the ground.

(2) In the same schedule, for the portion which follows the tabular statement, headed "Form of Description of Labourer," the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"[Endorsement to be filled up by Registering officer before whom the contract is executed.]

I hereby certify that, before the said A B signed this contract, I personally explained it to him.

Dated at } Signed ________
This day of } Registering officer or Inspector or Magistrate.

[Endorsements on labourer's copy of contract, to be filled up when the contract is determined or cancelled.]

I hereby certify that the foregoing contract has been determined by efflux of time.

Dated at } Signature of Employer
This day of } or Inspector.

I hereby certify that the foregoing contract has been cancelled under the provisions of section of Act .

Dated at } Signature of Inspector
This day of } or Magistrate.'

Repeal of Act XXII of 1891.

38. Act XXII of 1891 (an Act to extend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882,) is hereby repealed.

2. We have made few changes in the recommendations made in February. In the subsequent remarks the references are to the sections of the Bill which we now present.

3. In section 3, the interpretation-clause, we have added, at the instance of the Governments of Bombay and the Punjab and the Chief Commissioner of Burma, a provision which will enable the Local Government to apply the Act for the acquisition of village-sites in those parts of the country where it may be customary for the State to provide village-sites. The Committee are in concert with the great majority of the authorities consulted in declining to recommend any further extension of the scope of the Act.

4. In section 17 we have introduced a sub-section permitting a shorter procedure under the direct orders of Government in those cases where sudden changes in the course of a river require new land to be immediately taken for the convenience of the traffic on a railway.

5. In section 19 we have, on the suggestion of the High Court of Bengal, added to the particulars which will be included in the report of the Collector to the Judge when a matter of dispute is referred for the decision of the Civil Court.

6. In section 27 we have widened the discretion of the Judge in the apportionment of costs, to meet an objection pressed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. It is represented that the owners of land frequently suppress the evidence as to the value of their property, which it is their duty to adduce before the Collector, hoping to deploy it to greater advantage before the Judge. We have now given express power to the Judge to give effect to this consideration in his award of costs when he is of opinion that evidence given before him has been wilfully kept back in the proceedings before the Collector.

7. We have removed to Part VIII the sections which now stand there as sections 53 and 54. They concern questions of procedure in the Civil Court, and, being thus made generally applicable, several sections in earlier parts of the present Act become superfluous, and have been accordingly omitted.

8. Section 31 contains the regulations as to the payment of the compensation-money. To this we have added additional sections laying down the procedure of the Collector and the Judge in those cases in which the occupant of the land acquired is from any disability incompetent to alienate it, or in which the compensation-money must remain in deposit till the settlement of a dispute as to title. One of the objections urged by Local Governments against the present law was that excessive charges of interest accumulated against Government when owners refused the Collector's award. The revised Bill met this objection by requiring the Collector to make immediate payment of his award, and empowering the owner to take payment of the compensation tendered, without prejudice to a protest regarding the sufficiency of it. In the cases abovementioned, however, it is only fair to the owner that the compensation-money deposited by the Collector should be immediately so invested as to yield him interest till the title to it is settled. We have added a clause giving formal power to the Collector with the sanction of the Local Government to adjust compensation by an exchange of land, a method of settlement which has been found in some provinces useful and convenient to all parties.

9. In this connection we may remark, in answer to a criticism by the Bengal Board of Revenue, that a deposit of money by the Collector in a Civil Court is, we understand, a paper transaction, which merely places the amount at the credit of the Court in its personal ledger in the Collector's treasury.

10. Part VI of the revised Bill, as of the present Act, concerning the temporary occupation of land, permits a reference to the Civil Court as to the sufficiency of the Collector's compensation. The Governments of Bombay and the North-Western Provinces have asked that the reference may include a question as to the apportionment of the compensation. We have adopted this suggestion.

11. We have altered the terms of the first clause of section 48, which gives certain powers to Government to withdraw from a contemplated acquisition of land, so as to make it quite clear that this withdrawal may be made at any time before possession is taken, but not afterwards. Instances were quoted in our Preliminary Report in which the Collector was proved by the Judge's award to have been seriously misled as to the value of the land, and in which the Government would not have acquired the land had it received a correct appraisement. We think that a Government which provides compensation from the taxes of the Empire should have larger powers of withdrawal than are given by the present Act but we are of opinion that no such power should be given after possession has once been taken, and that each Local Government must protect itself by executive instructions to Collectors to refrain from taking possession, until after the award of the Judge, in every case in which there is material difference between the Collector and the owner as to the value of the property.

12 To section 50 we have added, at the desire of the Government of Bombay, a clause permitting the appearance before the Collector or the Court of the representative of a local authority or company on whose behalf land is being acquired. We cannot, however, agree that this authority should be permitted to appeal from the Collector's award. We have not given to Government itself power to make this appeal, because the Collector is only the agent of Government in the acquisition of land; his action is taken under rules laid down for his guidance, which include a preliminary valuation; and these rules ordinarily provide, and ought to provide, that, where the Collector finds cause to anticipate that his eventual award will substantially exceed his provisional estimate, he shall stay proceedings till he receives the further instructions of higher authority. No local authority or company is compelled to proceed under the Land Acquisition Act. If it can procure its land more cheaply by private negotiation, it is entirely at liberty to do so, but, if it elects to set in motion the very special powers given to Government for public objects, it can expect no higher privileges and powers than those given to Government itself.

13. We may explain, in answer to a criticism by the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, that power was given to the Collector in section 17 to give special damages for sudden dispossession in order to cover injuries which sudden dispossessions constantly entail. If, for instance, an owner is suddenly deprived of a pasture meadow, the market-value of the meadow may not represent the actual amount of his loss. It may be impossible to find fresh pasture for his cattle in the emergency except at special charges. We think it right that the Collector should be empowered, whenever he deprives a man suddenly of his land, to meet liberally the exceptional expenses to which the owner may be put.

14. We have again considered the question of a definition of the term "market-value," but we adhere to the opinion of our Preliminary Report that it is preferable to leave the term undefined. No material difficulty has arisen in the interpretation of it; the decisions of the several High Courts are at one in giving it the reasonable meaning of the price a willing buyer would give to a willing seller; but the introduction of a specific definition would sow the field for a fresh harvest of decisions; and no definition could lay down for universal guidance in the widely divergent conditions of India any further rule by which that price should be ascertained.

15. The Bombay Government have pointed out the difficulty of discriminating accurately between clause (3) of section 24 and clause (4) of section 25 of the present Act. The former permits to be taken into consideration in an award of compensation any damage sustained by reason of the acquisition injuriously affecting other property of the owner. The latter excludes from consideration any damage caused by the use to which the land acquired will be put, and it was contended that under the latter clause it was doubtful whether an owner could be compensated for the damage caused to the rest of a building-site by the construction on part of it of a public latrine. We think that, even as the Act at present stands, there is no doubt of the right of the owner to compensation for damage of this sort; but we have so altered clause (4), section 24 of the Bill, as to make it quite clear that we exclude from compensation only a possible depreciation of the acquired land itself from the use to which it will be put; that is to say, if garden lands are appropriated for a latrine, the owner will get compensation as for garden lands without reference to the lower value they will subsequently have.

16. The other alterations are merely verbal amendments, and need not be referred to in detail.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Land Acquisition Bill, 1893.

(Part I.—Preliminary.—Sections 1—3.)

No. III.

A Bill to amend the law for the acquisition of land for public purposes and for Companies.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law for the acquisition of land needed for public purposes and for Companies, and for determining the amount of compensation to be made on account of such acquisition; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Land Acquisition Act, 1893.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

Repeal.

2. (1) The Land Acquisition Act, 1870, is hereby repealed.

(2) But all proceedings commenced, officers appointed or authorised, agreements published and rules made under the said Act shall, as far as may be, be deemed to have been respectively commenced, appointed or authorised, published and made under this Act.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to the said Act or to any enactment thereby repealed shall, so far as may be, be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

Definitions.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) the expression "land" includes benefits to arise out of land, and things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth:

(b) the expression "person interested" includes all persons claiming an interest in compensation to be made on account of the acquisition of land under this Act:

(c) the expression "Collector" means the Collector of a District, and includes a Deputy Commissioner and any officer specially appointed by the Local Government to perform the functions of a Collector under this Act:

(d) the expression "Court" means a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, unless the Local Government has appointed (as it is hereby empowered to do) a special judicial officer within any specified local limits to perform the functions of the Court under this Act:

(e) the expression "Company" means a Company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or under the (English) Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, or incorporated by an Act of Parliament or of the Governor General in Council, or by Royal Charter or Letters Patent:

(f) the expression "public purpose" includes the provision of village-sites in districts in which the Local Government shall have declared by notification in the official Gazette that it is customary for the Government to make such provision: and

(g) the following persons shall be deemed persons "entitled to act" as and to the extent hereinafter provided (that is to say)—

trustees for other persons beneficially interested shall be deemed the persons entitled to act with reference to any such case, and that to the same extent as the persons beneficially interested could have acted if free from disability:

a married woman, in cases to which the English law is applicable, shall be deemed the person so entitled to act, and, whether of full age or not, to the same extent as if she were unmarried and of full age; and

Provided that—

(i) no person shall be deemed "entitled to act" whose interest in the subject-matter shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Collector or Court to be adverse to the interest of the person interested for whom he would otherwise be entitled to act;

(ii) in every such case the person interested may appear by a next friend, or, in default of his appearance by a next friend, the Collector or Court, as the case may be, shall appoint a guardian for the case to act on his behalf in the conduct thereof;

The Land Acquisition Bill, 1893.

(Part II.—Acquisition.—Sections 4-9.)

XIV of 1882.

(iii) the provisions of Chapter XXXI of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, mutatis mutandis, apply in the case of persons interested appearing before a Collector or Court by a next friend, or by a guardian for the case, in proceedings under this Act; and

(iv) no person "entitled to act" shall be competent to receive the compensation-money payable to the person for whom he is entitled to act, unless he would have been competent to alienate the land and receive and give a good discharge for the purchase-money on a voluntary sale.

PART II.

ACQUISITION.

Preliminary Investigation.

Publication of preliminary Notification, and powers of officers thereupon.

4. (1) Whenever it appears to the Local Government that land in any locality is likely to be needed for any public purpose, a notification to that effect shall be published in the official Gazette, and the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such notification to be given at convenient places in the said locality.

(2) Thereupon it shall be lawful for any officer, either generally or specially authorized by such Government in this behalf, and for his servants and workmen,— to enter upon and survey and take levels of any land in such locality;

to dig or bore into the subsoil;

to do all other acts necessary to ascertain whether the land is adapted for such purpose;

to set out the boundaries of the land proposed to be taken and the intended line of the work (if any) proposed to be made thereon;

to mark such levels, boundaries and line by placing marks and cutting trenches;

and, where otherwise the survey cannot be completed and the levels taken and the boundaries and line marked, to cut down and clear away any part of any standing crop, fence or jungle:

Provided that no person shall enter into any building or upon any enclosed court or garden attached to a dwelling-house (unless with the consent of the occupier thereof) without previously giving such occupier at least seven days' notice in writing of his intention to do so.

Payment for damage.

5. The officer so authorized shall at the time of such entry pay or tender payment for all necessary damage to be done as aforesaid, and, in case of dispute as to the sufficiency of the amount so paid or tendered, he shall at once refer the dispute to the decision of the Collector, and such decision shall be final.

Declaration of intended Acquisition.

Declaration that land is required for a public purpose.

6. (1) Subject to the provisions of Part VII of this Act, whenever it appears to the Local Government that any particular land is needed for a public purpose, or for a Company, a declaration shall be made to that effect under the signature of a Secretary to such Government or of some officer duly authorized to certify its orders:

Provided that no such declaration shall be made unless the compensation to be awarded for such property is to be paid out of public revenues, out of some fund controlled or managed by a local authority, or by a Company.

(2) The declaration shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall state the district or other territorial division in which the land is situate, the purpose for which it is needed, its approximate area, and, where a plan shall have been made of the land, the place where such plan may be inspected.

(3) The said declaration shall be conclusive evidence that the land is needed for a public purpose or for a Company, as the case may be; and, after making such declaration, the Local Government may acquire the land in manner hereinafter appearing.

After declaration, Collector to take order for acquisition.

7. Whenever any land shall have been so declared to be needed for a public purpose, or for a Company, the Local Government, or some officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, shall direct the Collector to take order for the acquisition of the land.

Land to be marked out, measured and planned.

8. The Collector shall thereupon cause the land (unless it has been already marked out under section 4) to be marked, out. He shall also cause it to be measured and (if no plan has been made thereof) a plan to be made of the same.

Notice to persons interested.

9. (1) The Collector shall then cause public notice to be given at convenient places on or near the land to be taken, stating that the Government intends to take possession of the land, and that claims to compensation for all interests in such land may be made to him.

(2) Such notice shall state the particulars of the land so needed, and shall require all persons interested in the land to appear personally or by agent before the Collector at a time and place therein mentioned (such time not being earlier than fifteen days after the date of publication of the notice), and to state the nature of their respective interests in the land and the amount and particulars of their claims to compensation for such interests, and their objections (if any) to the measurements made under section 8.

The Land Acquisition Bill, 1893.

(Part II.—Acquisition.—Sections 10-17.)

(3) The Collector shall also serve notice to the same effect on the occupier (if any) of such land and on all such persons known or believed to be interested therein, or to be entitled to act for persons so interested, as reside, or have agents authorized to receive service on their behalf, within the revenue-district in which the land is situate.

(4) In case any person so interested resides elsewhere, and has no such agent, the notice shall be sent to him by post in a letter addressed to him and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866.

I of 1866.

10. (1) The Collector may also require any such person to make or deliver to him, at a time and place mentioned (such time not being earlier than fifteen days after the date of the requisition), a statement containing, so far as may be practicable, the name of every other person possessing any interest in the land or any part thereof as co-proprietor, sub-proprietor, mortgagee, tenant or otherwise, and of the nature of such interest, and of the rents and profits (if any) received or receivable on account thereof for the year next preceding the date of the statement.

Power to require and enforce the making of statements as to names and interests.

(2) Every person required to make or deliver a statement under this section or section 9 shall be deemed to be legally bound to do so within the meaning of sections 175 and 176 of the Indian Penal Code.

V of 1860.

Enquiry into Measurements, Value and Claims, and Award by the Collector.

11. On the day so fixed or on any other day to which the enquiry has been adjourned, the Collector shall proceed to enquire into the objections (if any) which any person interested has stated pursuant to a notice given under section 9 to the measurements made under section 8, and into the value of the land, and into the respective interests of the persons claiming the compensation, and shall make an award under his hand of—

Enquiry and award by Collector.

(i) the true area of the land;

(ii) the compensation which in his opinion should be allowed for the land; and

(iii) the apportionment of the said compensation among all the persons known or believed to be interested in the land, of whom, or of whose claims, he has information, whether or not they have respectively appeared before him.

12. (1) Such award shall be filed in the Collector's office and shall, except as hereinafter provided, be final and conclusive evidence, as between the Collector and the persons interested, whether they have respectively appeared before the Collector or not, of the true area and value of the land, and the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested.

Award of Collector when to be final.

(2) The Collector shall give immediate notice of his award to such of the persons interested as are not present personally or by their representatives when the award is made.

13. The Collector may, for any cause he thinks fit, from time to time adjourn the enquiry to a day to be fixed by him.

Adjournment of enquiry.

14. For the purpose of enquiries under this Act, the Collector shall have power to summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and to compel the production of documents by the same means, and (so far as may be) in the same manner, as is provided in the case of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure.

Power to summon and enforce attendance of witnesses and production of documents.

XIV of 1882.

15. In determining the amount of compensation, the Collector shall be guided by the provisions contained in sections 23 and 24.

Matters to be considered and neglected.

Taking Possession.

16. When the Collector has made an award under section 11, he may take possession of the land, which shall thereupon vest absolutely in the Government, free from all encumbrances.

Power to take possession.

17. (1) In cases of urgency, whenever the Local Government so directs, the Collector, though no such award has been made, may, on the expiration of fifteen days from the publication of the notice mentioned in the first paragraph of section 9, take possession of any waste or arable land needed for public purposes or for a Company. Such land shall thereupon vest absolutely in the Government, free from all encumbrances.

Special powers in cases of urgency.

(2) Whenever, owing to any sudden change in the channel of any navigable river or other unforeseen emergency, it becomes necessary for any Railway Administration to acquire the immediate possession of any land for the purpose of making thereon a river-side or ghat station, or of providing convenient connection with or access to any such station, the Collector may, immediately after the publication of the notice

The Land Acquisition Bill, 1893.

(Part III.—Reference to Court and Procedure thereon.—Sections 18—23.)

mentioned in sub-section (1) and with the previous sanction of the Local Government, enter upon and take possession of such land, which shall thereupon vest absolutely in the Government free from all incumbrances:

Provided that the Collector shall not take possession of any building or part of a building under this sub-section without giving to the occupier thereof at least forty-eight hours' notice of his intention so to do, or such longer notice as may be reasonably sufficient to enable such occupier to remove his moveable property from such building without unnecessary inconvenience.

(3) In every case under either of the preceding sub-sections the Collector shall at the time of taking possession offer to the persons interested compensation for the standing crops and trees (if any) on such land and for any other damage sustained by them caused by such sudden dispossession and not excepted in section 24; and, in case such offer is not accepted, the value of such crops and trees and the amount of such other damage shall be allowed for in awarding compensation for the land under the provisions herein contained.

PART III.

REFERENCE TO COURT AND PROCEDURE THEREON.

18. (1) Any person interested who has not accepted the award may, by written application to the Collector, require that the matter be referred by the Collector for the determination of the Court, whether his objection be to the measurement of the land, the amount of the compensation, or the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested.

Reference to Court

(2) The application shall state the grounds on which objection to the award is taken:

Provided that every such application shall be made,—

(a) if the person making it was present or represented before the Collector at the time when he made his award, within six weeks from the date of the Collector's award;

(b) in other cases, within six weeks of the receipt of the notice from the Collector under section 12, or within six months from the date of the Collector's award, whichever period shall first expire.

19. In making the reference, the Collector shall state, for the information of the Court, in writing under his hand,—

Collector's statement to the Court.

(a) the situation and extent of the land, with particulars of any trees, buildings or standing crops thereon;

(b) the names of the persons whom he has reason to think interested in such land;

(c) the amount awarded for damages and paid or tendered under sections 5 and 17, or either of them, and the amount of compensation awarded under section 11; and,

(d) if the objection be to the amount of the compensation, the grounds on which the amount of compensation was determined.

20. The Court shall thereupon cause a notice, specifying the day on which the Court will proceed to determine the objection, and directing their appearance before the Court on that day, to be served on the following persons, namely:—

Service of notice.

(a) the applicant;

(b) all persons interested in the objection except such (if any) of them as have consented without protest to receive payment of the compensation awarded; and,

(c) if the objection is in regard to the area of the land or to the amount of the compensation, the Collector.

21. The scope of the inquiry in every such proceeding shall be restricted to a consideration of the interests of the persons affected by the objection.

Restriction on scope of proceedings.

22. Every such proceeding shall take place in open Court, and all persons entitled to practise in any Civil Court in the Province shall be entitled to appear, plead and act (as the case may be) in such proceeding.

Proceedings to be in open Court.

23. (1) In determining the amount of compensation to be awarded for land acquired under this Act, the Court shall take into consideration—

Matters to be considered in determining compensation.

first, the market value of the land at the date of the publication of the declaration relating thereto under section 6;

secondly, the damage sustained by the person interested, by reason of the taking of any standing crops or trees which may be on the land at the time of the Collector's taking possession thereof;

thirdly, the damage (if any) sustained by the person interested, at the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land, by reason of severing such land from his other land;

fourthly, the damage (if any) sustained by the person interested, at the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land, by reason of the acquisition injuriously

The Land Acquisition Bill, 1893.

(Part III.—Reference to Court and Procedure thereon.—Sections 24-28.) Part IV.—Apportionment of Compensation.—Sections 29-30. Part V.—Payment.—Section 31.)

affecting his other property, moveable or immoveable, in any other manner, or his earnings;

fifthly, if, in consequence of the acquisition of the land by the Collector, the person interested is compelled to change his residence or place of business, the reasonable expenses (if any) incidental to such change; and sixthly, the damage (if any) bonâ fide resulting from diminution of the profits of the land between the time of the publication of the declaration under section 6 and the time of the Collector's taking possession of the land.

(2) In addition to the market-value of the land, as above provided, the Court shall in every case award a sum of fifteen per centum on such market-value, in consideration of the compulsory nature of the acquisition.

Matters to be neglected in determining compensation.

24. But the Court shall not take into consideration—

first, the degree of urgency which has led to the acquisition;

secondly, any disinclination of the person interested to part with the land acquired;

thirdly, any damage sustained by him which, if caused by a private person, would not render such person liable to a suit;

fourthly, any damage which, after the date of the publication of the declaration under section 6, is likely to be caused to the land acquired by or in consequence of the use to which it will be put;

fifthly, any increase to the value of the land acquired likely to accrue from the use to which it will be put when acquired;

seventhly, any outlay or improvements on the land acquired, commenced, made or effected after the date of the publication of the declaration under section 6.

Rules as to amount of compensation.

25. (1) When the applicant has made a claim to compensation, pursuant to any notice given under section 9, the amount awarded to him by the Court shall not exceed the amount so claimed or be less than the amount awarded by the Collector under section 11.

(2) When the applicant has refused to make such claim, or has omitted without sufficient reason (to be allowed by the Judge) to make such claim, the amount awarded by the Court shall in no case exceed the amount awarded by the Collector.

(3) When the applicant has omitted for a sufficient reason (to be allowed by the Judge) to make such claim, the amount awarded to him by the Court shall not be less than and may exceed the amount awarded by the Collector.

Form of awards.

26. Every award under this Part shall be in writing signed by the Judge, and shall specify the amount awarded under the first clause of sub-section (1) of section 23, and also the amounts (if any) respectively awarded under each of the other clauses of the same sub-section, together with the grounds of awarding each of the said amounts.

Costs.

27. (1) Every such award shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the proceedings under this Part, and by what persons and in what proportions they are to be paid.

(2) When the award of the Collector is not upheld, the costs shall ordinarily be paid by the Collector unless the Court shall be of opinion that the claim of the applicant was so extravagant or that he was so negligent in putting his case before the Collector that some deduction from his costs should be made or that he should pay a part of the Collector's costs.

Collector may be directed to pay interest on excess compensation.

28. If the sum which, in the opinion of the Court, the Collector ought to have awarded as compensation is in excess of the sum which the Collector did award as compensation, the award of the Court may direct that the Collector shall pay interest on such excess at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date on which he took possession of the land to the date of payment of such excess into Court.

PART IV.

APPORTIONMENT OF COMPENSATION.

Particulars of apportionment to be specified.

29. Where there are several persons interested, if such persons agree in the apportionment of the compensation, the particulars of such apportionment shall be specified in the award, and as between such persons the award shall be conclusive evidence of the correctness of the apportionment.

Dispute as to apportionment.

30. When the amount of compensation has been settled under section 11, if any dispute arises as to the apportionment of the same or any part thereof, or as to the persons to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, the Collector may refer such dispute to the decision of the Court.

PART V.

PAYMENT.

Payment of compensation or deposit of same in Court.

31. (1) On making an award under section 11, the Collector shall tender payment of the compensation awarded by him to the persons interested entitled thereto according to the award, and shall pay it to them if they shall consent to receive it.

The Land Acquisition Bill, 1893.

(Part V.—Payment.—Sections 32-34. Part VI.—Temporary Occupation of Land.—Section 35.)

(2) If they shall not consent to receive it, or if there be no person competent to alienate the land, or if there be any dispute as to the title to receive the compensation or as to the apportionment of it, the Collector shall deposit the amount of the compensation in the Court to which a reference under section 18 would be submitted:

Provided that any person interested may receive such payment under protest as to the sufficiency of the amount:

Provided also that no person who has received the amount otherwise than under protest shall be entitled to make any application under section 18:

Provided also that nothing herein contained shall affect the liability of any person, who may receive the whole or any part of any compensation awarded under this Act, to pay the same to the person lawfully entitled thereto.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in this section the Collector may, with the sanction of the Local Government, instead of awarding a money compensation in respect of any land, make any arrangement with a person having a limited interest in such land, either by the grant of other lands in exchange, the remission of land-revenue on other lands held under the same title or in such other way as may be equitable having regard to the interests of the parties concerned.

(4) Nothing in the last foregoing sub-section shall be construed to interfere with or limit the power of the Collector to enter into any arrangement with any person interested in the land and competent to contract in respect thereof.

[L. C. C. Act, 1845, ss. 69 and 78.]

Investment of money deposited in respect of lands belonging to persons incompetent to alienate.

32. (1) If any money shall be deposited in Court under sub-section (2) of the last preceding section and it appears that the land in respect whereof the same was awarded belonged to any person who had no power to alienate the same, the Court shall—

[Ibid., s. 69.]

(a) order the money to be invested in the purchase of other lands to be held under the like title and conditions of ownership as the land in respect of which such money shall have been deposited was held, or

(b) if such purchase cannot be effected forthwith, then in such Government or other approved securities as the Court shall think fit;

[Ibid., s. 78.]

and shall direct the payment of the interest or other proceeds arising from such investment to the person or persons who would for the time being have been entitled to the possession of the said land, and such moneys shall remain so deposited and invested until the same be applied—

[L. C. C. Act, s. 69.]

(i) in the purchase of such other lands as aforesaid; or

(ii) in payment to any person or persons becoming absolutely entitled thereto.

(2) In all cases of moneys deposited to which this section applies the Court shall order the costs of the following matters, including therein all reasonable charges and expenses incident thereto, to be paid by the Collector, namely:—

(a) the costs of such investments as aforesaid;

(b) the costs of the orders for the payment of the interest or other proceeds of the securities upon which such moneys are for the time being invested, and for the payment out of Court of the principal of such moneys, and of all proceedings relating thereto, except such as may be occasioned by litigation between adverse claimants.

[L. C. C. Act, s. 74.]

Investment of money deposited in other cases.

33. When any money shall have been deposited in Court under this Act for any cause other than that mentioned in the last preceding section, the Court may, on the application of any party interested or claiming an interest in such money, order the same to be invested in such Government or other approved securities as it may think proper, and may direct the interest or other proceeds of any such investment to be accumulated and paid in such manner as it may consider will give the parties interested therein the same benefit therefrom as they might have had from the land in respect whereof such money shall have been deposited or as near thereto as may be.

Payment of interest.

34. When the amount of such compensation is not paid or deposited on or before taking possession of the land, the Collector shall pay the amount awarded with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from the time of so taking possession until it shall have been so paid or deposited.

PART VI.

TEMPORARY OCCUPATION OF LAND.

Temporary occupation of waste or arable land. Procedure when difference as to compensation exists.

35. (1) Subject to the provisions of Part VII of this Act, whenever it appears to the Local Government that the temporary occupation and use of any waste or arable land are needed for any public purpose, or for a Company, the Local Government may direct the Collector to procure the occupation and use of the same for such term as it shall think fit, not exceeding three years from the commencement of such occupation.

(2) The Collector shall thereupon give notice in writing to the persons interested in such land of the purpose for which the same is needed, and shall, for the occupation and use thereof for such term as aforesaid, and for the materials (if any) to be taken therefrom, pay to them such compensation, either in a gross sum of money, or by monthly or other periodical payments, as shall be agreed upon in writing between him and such persons respectively.

(3) In case the Collector and the persons interested differ as to the sufficiency of the compensation, or apportionment thereof, the Collector shall refer such difference to the decision of the Court.

Power to enter and take possession, and compensation on restoration.

36. (1) On payment of such compensation, or on executing such agreement, or on making a reference under section 35, the Collector may enter upon and take possession of the land, and use or permit the use thereof in accordance with the terms of the said notice.

(2) On the expiration of the term, the Collector shall make or tender to the persons interested compensation for the damage (if any) done to the land and not provided for by the agreement, and shall restore the land to the persons interested therein:

Provided that, if the land has become permanently unfit to be used for the purpose for which it was used immediately before the commencement of such term, and if the persons interested shall so require, the Local Government shall proceed under this Act to acquire the land as if it was needed permanently for a public purpose or for a Company.

Difference as to condition of land.

37. In case the Collector and persons interested differ as to the condition of the land at the expiration of the term, or as to any matter connected with the said agreement, the Collector shall refer such difference to the decision of the Court.

PART VII.

ACQUISITION OF LAND FOR COMPANIES.

Company may be authorized to enter and survey.

38. (1) Subject to such rules as the Governor General of India in Council may from time to time prescribe in this behalf, the Local Government may authorize any officer of any Company desiring to acquire land for its purposes to exercise the powers conferred by section 4.

(2) In every such case section 4 shall be construed as if, for the words "for such purpose," the words "for the purposes of the Company" were substituted; and section 5 shall be construed as if, after the words "the officer," the words "of the Company," were inserted.

Previous consent of Local Government and execution of agreement necessary.

39. The provisions of sections 6 to 37 (both inclusive) shall not be put in force in order to acquire land for any Company, unless with the previous consent of the Local Government, nor unless the Company shall have executed the agreement hereinafter mentioned.

Previous enquiry.

40. (1) Such consent shall not be given unless the Local Government be satisfied, by an enquiry held as hereinafter provided,—

(a) that such acquisition is needed for the construction of some work, and

(b) that such work is likely to prove useful to the public.

(2) Such enquiry shall be held by such officer and at such time and place as the Local Government shall appoint.

(3) Such officer may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and compel the production of documents by the same means and, as far as possible, in the same manner as is provided by the Code of Civil Procedure in the case of a Civil Court. XIV of 1882.

Agreement with Secretary of State in Council.

41. Such officer shall report to the Local Government the result of the enquiry, and, if the Local Government is satisfied that the proposed acquisition is needed for the construction of a work, and that such work is likely to prove useful to the public, it shall, subject to such rules as the Governor General of India in Council may from time to time prescribe in this behalf, require the Company to enter into an agreement with the Secretary of State for India in Council, providing to the satisfaction of the Local Government for the following matters, namely:—

(1) the payment to Government of the cost of the acquisition;

(2) the transfer, on such payment, of the land to the Company;

(3) the terms on which the land shall be held by the Company;

(4) the time within which, and the conditions on which, the work shall be executed and maintained; and

(5) the terms on which the public shall be entitled to use the work.

Publication of agreement.

42. Every such agreement shall, as soon as may be after its execution, be published in the Gazette of India, and also in the

The Land Acquisition Bill, 1893.

(Part VII.—Acquisition of Land for Companies.—Sections 43-44. Part VIII.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 45-49.)

local official Gazette, and shall thereupon (so far as regards the terms on which the public shall be entitled to use the work) have the same effect as if it had formed part of this Act.

Sections 39 to 42 not to apply where Government bound by agreement to provide land for Companies.

X of 1870.

43. The provisions of sections 39 to 42, both inclusive, shall not apply, and the corresponding sections of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, shall be deemed never to have applied, to the acquisition of land for any Railway or other Company, for the purposes of which, under any agreement between such Company and the Secretary of State for India in Council, the Government is, or was, bound to provide land.

When agreement between Railway Company and Secretary of State need not be proved.

44. In the case of the acquisition of land for the purposes of a Railway Company, the existence of such an agreement as is mentioned in section 43 may be proved by the production of a printed copy thereof purporting to be printed by order of Government.

PART VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Service of notices.

45. (1) Service of any notice under this Act shall be made by delivering or tendering a copy thereof signed, in the case of a notice under section 4, by the officer therein mentioned, and, in the case of any other notice, by or by order of the Collector or the Judge.

(2) Whenever it may be practicable, the service of the notice shall be made on the person therein named.

(3) When such person cannot be found, the service may be made on any adult male member of his family residing with him; and, if no such adult male member can be found, the notice may be served by fixing the copy on the outer door of the house in which the person therein named ordinarily dwells or carries on business, or by fixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place in the office of the officer aforesaid or of the Collector or in the court-house, and also in some conspicuous part of the land to be acquired:

Provided that, if the Collector or Judge shall so direct, a notice may be sent by post, in a letter addressed to the person named therein and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, and service of it may be proved by the production of the addressee's receipt

XIV of 1866.

Penalty for obstructing acquisition of land.

46. Whoever wilfully obstructs any person in doing any of the acts authorized by section 4 or section 8, or wilfully fills up, destroys, damages or displaces any trench or mark made under section 4, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one month, or to fine not exceeding fifty rupees, or to both.

Magistrate to enforce surrender.

47. If the Collector is opposed or impeded in taking possession under this Act of any land, he shall, if a Magistrate, enforce the surrender of the land to himself, and, if not a Magistrate, he shall apply to a Magistrate or (within the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay) to the Commissioner of Police, and such Magistrate or Commissioner (as the case may be) shall enforce the surrender of the land to the Collector.

Completion of acquisition not compulsory, but compensation to be awarded when not completed.

48 (1) Except in the case provided for in section 36, the Government shall be at liberty to withdraw from the acquisition of any land of which possession has not been taken.

(2) Whenever the Government withdraws from any such acquisition, the Collector shall determine the amount of compensation due for the damage suffered by the owner in consequence of the notice or of any proceedings thereunder, and shall pay such amount to the person interested, together with all costs reasonably incurred by him in the prosecution of the proceedings under this Act relating to the said land.

(3) The provisions of Part III of this Act shall apply, so far as may be, to the determination of the compensation payable under this section.

Acquisition of part of house or building.

49. (1) The provisions of this Act shall not be put in force for the purpose of acquiring a part only of any house, manufactory or other building, if the owner desire that the whole of such house, manufactory or building shall be so acquired:

Provided that the owner may, at any time before the Collector has made his award under section 11, by notice in writing, withdraw or modify his expressed desire that the whole of such house, manufactory or building shall be so acquired:

Provided also that, if any question shall arise as to whether any land proposed to be taken under this Act does or not form part of a house, manufactory or building within the meaning of this section, the Collector shall refer the determination of such question to the Court and shall not take possession of such land until after the question has been determined.

(2) If, in the case of any claim under section 23, sub-section (1), thirdly, by a person interested, on account of the severing of the land to be acquired from his other land the Local Government is of opinion that the claim is unreasonable or excessive, it may, at any time before the Collector has made his award, order the acquisition of the whole of the land of which the land first sought to be acquired forms a part.

(3) In the case last hereinbefore provided for, no fresh declaration or other proceedings under sections 6 to 10, both inclusive, shall be necessary; but the Collector shall without delay furnish a copy of the order of the Local Government to the person interested, and shall thereafter proceed to make his award under section 11.

Acquisition of land at cost of a local authority or Company.

50. (1) Where the provisions of this Act are put in force for the purpose of acquiring land at the cost of any fund controlled or managed by a local authority or of any Company, the charges of and incidental to such acquisition shall be defrayed from or by such fund or Company.

(2) In any proceeding held before a Collector or Court in such cases the local authority or Company concerned may appear and adduce evidence for the purpose of determining the amount of compensation:

Provided that no such local authority or Company shall be entitled to demand a reference under section 18.

Exemption from stamp-duty and fees.

51. No award or agreement made under this Act shall be chargeable with stamp-duty, and no person claiming under any such award or agreement shall be liable to pay any fee for a copy of the same.

Notice in case of suits for anything done in pursuance of Act.

52. No suit or other proceeding shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person for anything done in pursuance of this Act, without giving to such person a month's previous notice in writing of the intended proceeding, and of the cause thereof, nor after tender of sufficient amends.

Code of Civil Procedure to apply to proceedings before Court.

53. Save in so far as they may be inconsistent with anything contained in this Act, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to all proceedings before the Court under this Act. XIV of 1882.

Appeals in proceedings before Court.

54. Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure applicable to appeals from original decrees, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the award or from any part of the award of the Court in any proceedings under this Act. XIV of 1882.

Power to make rules.

55. (1) The Local Government shall have power to make rules consistent with this Act for the guidance of officers in all matters connected with its enforcement, and may from time to time alter and add to the rules so made.

(2) All such rules, alterations and additions shall, when sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

CONSTITUTION OF LEGISLATIVE COUNCILS.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—" When, upon a recent occasion, I made a statement to the Council with regard to the procedure to be adopted under the Indian Councils Act of last year, in so far as that procedure had to do with the right of interpellation and of financial discussion, I said that it was out of my power, for the moment, to make any announcement as to the regulations affecting the nomination of Additional Members.

"I am glad to inform the Council that the difficulty which I then mentioned as having prevented the Secretary of State from giving his consent to our proposals, and which I shall presently explain has been satisfactorily surmounted, and I am now able to tell the Council how the matter stands, both in regard to the Local Councils and in regard to that which I have now the honour of addressing.

"It is, I think, important that we should have a clear idea at the outset of the extent to which these questions have been taken out of our discretion by the terms of the Act, and how far we are free to deal with them by means of the Rules which I am about to lay upon the table.

"In the first place, the maximum number of Additional Members has been, in all cases, fixed by the Act. In Madras and Bombay the present strength is represented by a minimum of 5 and a maximum of 9, including the Advocate-General. Under the Act, there is to be a minimum of 9 and a maximum of 21. The condition laid down in the Act of 1861, that one-half of the Additional Members must be non-officials, still remains in force.

'In the Bengal Legislative Council the present maximum number of Councillors is 12, and this figure is raised by the new Act to 20, subject to the old condition that one-third of the Additional Members must be non-officials.

"In the North-Western Provinces the present strength of Additional Members is 9, and the maximum under the Act is 15, of whom, as in the case of Bengal, one-third must be non-officials.

"These maximum numbers were fixed after much consultation with Her Majesty's Government and with the Local Governments concerned. It is, I think, clear that no one can take upon himself to lay down confidently that, in the case of legislative bodies like these, any one particular number is exactly appropriate. Our communications with the Local Governments, to which I have just referred, disclosed a certain amount of variety of opinion, although the divergence was within comparatively narrow limits. I may, however, say that when the question was first taken up—and Hon'ble Members will recollect that this Bill has been before Parliament for at least three sessions—we found a complete consensus of opinion on the part of all the Local Governments consulted in favour of the view that the Councils might, with advantage, be enlarged, and that it was desirable to increase their authority, and to give them a constitution under which they would be able to afford to the Provincial Governments a larger measure of assistance and support.

"There was another point upon which the consensus of opinion of the Local Governments was equally noticeable. It was felt by all of them that what was desirable was to improve the present Councils rather than to attempt to put in their place bodies comprising a large number of persons, and possessing the attributes of Parliamentary assemblies of the European type. It is a little remarkable that, although the measure was, as I said just now, during three successive sessions before Parliament, no serious attempt was, to the best of my belief, made to substitute largely increased numbers for those which are mentioned in the present Act and in the Bills introduced in preceding sessions.

"Another provision of the Act which requires to be specially considered, in addition to those which have reference to the numbers of the Additional Members, is the provision which has reference to the manner in which they are to be nominated. It is laid down in section 1 (4) that the 'Governor General in Council may from time to time, with the approval of the Secretary of State in Council, make regulations as to the conditions under which such nominations, or any of them, shall be made by the Governor General, Governors and Lieutenant-Governors respectively, and prescribe the manner in which such regulations shall be carried into effect.'

"It is under this section that the regulations to which I am about to refer have been made.

"Now, it will not escape the attention of the Council that, under the words which I have quoted, the responsibility for these nominations remains with the Governor General and the heads of the Local Governments concerned, and the Secretary of State, in forwarding the Act to us officially, was careful to point out that 'the ultimate nominating authority still rests with those to whom it was entrusted by the Statute of 1801, and that the responsibility attaching to the careful exercise of this authority by no means diminishes as the number of non-official Members increases, and as the scope of their attributes is enlarged.'

"It was, however, clearly understood, throughout the discussion of the measure, that, subject to this ultimate responsibility, the authority upon whom the duty of making the nomination was thus cast should be encouraged to avail himself, as far as the circumstances permitted, of the advice and assistance of any public bodies whose character and position rendered it likely that they could be consulted with advantage. I will read to the Council the words in which this part of the subject was dealt with by the Secretary of State. Writing on the 30th June, 1892, he says—

'It appears to me probable, nevertheless, that the diffusion in the more advanced provinces of education and enlightened public spirit, and the recent organization of local self-government, may have provided, in some instances, ways and means of which the Governments may appropriately avail themselves in determining the character that shall be given to the representation of the views of different races, classes and localities. Where Corporations have been established with definite powers upon a recognised administrative basis, or where Associations have been formed upon a substantial community of legitimate interests, professional, commercial or territorial, Your Excellency and the Local Governors may find convenience, or advantage, in consulting, from time to time, such bodies, and in entertaining at your discretion an expression of their views and recommendations with regard to the selection of Members in whose qualifications they may be disposed to confide.'

"There can be no doubt, I think, that the language thus used by the Secretary of State reflected the general feeling on both sides of the British Parliament. It would be easy to multiply quotations, but I will content myself with referring to the important statement made during the course of the debate on the second reading by Mr. Gladstone, who, the Council will remember, was then leader of the Opposition.

"He pointed out that the only reasonable interpretation which could be put upon the clause giving the Governor General power, not only to nominate Additional Members, but to make regulations as to the conditions under which they were to be nominated, was an interpretation which assumed that something was meant 'beyond mere nomination.' 'The speech of the Under Secretary,' he said, appeared to him 'to embody the elective principle in the only sense in which we should expect it to be embodied. My construction of the Under Secretary's speech is that it implies that a serious effort should be made to consider carefully those elements which, in the present condition of India, might furnish material for the introduction into the Councils of the elective principle.' Towards the commencement of his speech Mr. Gladstone had pointed out that the proposals of Her Majesty's Government were apparently intended 'to leave everything to the discretion, judgment and responsibility of the Governor General and the authorities in India,' and, after dwelling upon the difficulty and responsibility of the task, he added: 'I am not disposed to ask of the Governor General or of the Secretary of State that they shall at once produce large and imposing results. What I wish is that their first steps shall be of a genuine nature, and that whatever scope they give to the elective principle shall be real.'

"I should like at this stage to dwell upon the fact that the Government of India, ever since I have had the honour of being connected with it, while it has insisted upon the ultimate responsibility of the Government for these nominations, has constantly urged that any Bill which might be passed should render it possible for the Governor General, and for the heads of the Local Governments, to have recourse to the advice of what, for the want of any more convenient expression, I will describe as 'suitable constituencies.'

"I will venture to quote to the Council an extract from a Despatch sent home by us as long ago as the 24th December, 1889, in which we placed on record our opinion that it would be 'well that the measure about to be laid before Parliament should not absolutely preclude us from resort to some form of election where the local conditions are such as to justify a belief that it might be safely and advantageously adopted.'

"We went on to say that 'we should have been glad if the Bill had reserved to us authority to make rules from time to time for the appointment of Additional Members "by nomination or otherwise," and we should have considered it sufficient if the consent of Your Lordship in Council had been made a condition precedent to the validity of such rules. Such an enactment would have provided for the gradual and tentative introduction of a carefully guarded mode of electing Additional Members.'

"I am glad to have had the opportunity of referring to what we said upon this occasion, because I have seen it not unfrequently stated that the Government of India had strenuously opposed the introduction of anything approaching to the elective principle into the Bill, and that we had accepted it reluctantly and under pressure.

"These, then, are the conditions under which we are called upon to frame regulations for the appointment of Additional Members. I think the first observation which it would occur to any one to make would be that, given legislative bodies of the dimensions prescribed for us, or of any dimensions approaching to those laid down in the Act, it would be altogether hopeless to attempt the introduction of a representative system in the sense in which the words are understood in Western communities. How, for instance, would it be possible in a province like that of Bengal, with a population of 70 millions, to allot the handful of seats at our disposal so as to divide the country, either in respect of geographical areas, or in respect of the different communities which inhabit it, in such a manner as to distribute the representation equitably, or to make it really effectual? And I am bound to admit that, to the best of my belief, even those who are credited with opinions of the most advanced type upon Indian political questions have carefully guarded themselves against being supposed to claim for the people of India any system of representation closely imitating the Parliamentary systems of Western Europe.

"We are met, moreover, with this difficulty that, in many parts of India, any system of election is entirely foreign to the feelings and habits of the people, and that, were we to have recourse to such a system, the really representative men would probably not come forward under it.

"Upon a careful review of the whole matter, and of the contents of the Act, as well as of the circumstances under which it had been introduced and passed into law, it appeared to us that the mandate under which we were called upon to act might be summarised in the four following propositions:—

(1) It is not expected of us that we shall attempt to create in India a complete or symmetrical system of representation.

(2) It is expected of us that we shall make a bonâ fide endeavour to render the Legislative Councils more representative of the different sections of the Indian community than they are at present.

(3) For this purpose we are at liberty to make use of the machinery of election wherever there is a fair prospect that it will produce satisfactory results.

(4) Although we may to this extent apply the elective principle, it is to be clearly understood that the ultimate selection of all Additional Members rests with the Government, and not with the electors. The function of the latter will be that of recommendation only, but of recommendation entitled to the greatest weight, and not likely to be disregarded except in cases of the clearest necessity.

"It is in this light that the question has been considered and discussed by us with the Local Governments. We do not believe that the seats placed at our disposal can be distributed according to strict numerical proportion, or upon a symmetrical and uniform system. We do not believe, to use Mr. Gladstone's words, that, under the Act, 'large and imposing results' are to be at once obtained, but we do believe that, by having resort to sources other than the unassisted nomination of the Government, we shall be able to obtain for these Councils the services of Members who will be in the truest sense representative, but who will represent types and classes rather than areas and numbers.

"We believe that it should not be beyond our power to secure in this manner for the Government the advice and assistance of men connected with different parts of the country, thoroughly aware of the interests and wishes of their countrymen, and able to judge of the extent to which those interests are likely to be affected by any measure of legislation which may be proposed. If we can obtain men of this description, not by selecting them ourselves, but by allowing the great sections of the community a voice in the matter, we believe that the persons selected will bring to our deliberations a very much greater weight of authority than they would have possessed had we been content to rely upon nomination alone.

"It would be impossible for me, within the limits of such a statement as I desire to make this morning, to explain in detail the rules as they will affect each of the four Local Governments concerned. I may say, however, that in each case we have provided by our Rules for the appointment of a number of non-official Additional Members in excess of the minimum determined by the Act, and also that we propose to use at once to the utmost the power of increasing the number of Additional Members in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces, by proclaiming the full maximum allowed under the Act. And I may here explain, in order to avoid misapprehension, what was the nature of the difficulty to which I referred just now, and also upon a former occasion, as having prevented the Secretary of State from at once giving his consent to our scheme as it stood. It was this: we had proposed that officials should be ineligible for 'election,' or, to use the strictly correct term, for 'recommendation.' A doubt, I believe, arose as to the legality of this exclusion. The legal point was eventually decided in favour of the rule as we had framed it, but, on a full consideration of the case, the Secretary of State in Council came to the conclusion that it was not proper that the whole official class should be subjected to such a disability, and the omission of the rule was consequently proposed by His Lordship and agreed to by us.

"It may, perhaps, interest my hearers if, as an illustration of the manner in which the new Rules will operate, I mention the leading features in the Bengal scheme.

"We have provided that, out of the 20 Councillors who may be nominated under the Act, not more than 10 shall be officials. Under the Act at least one-third of the Additional Members must be non-officials. This would give the Bengal Council 7 unofficial Members. Under the Rules there will be 10, and of these 7 will be nominated by the Lieutenant-Governor on the recommendation of the following bodies and Associations :—

A.—The Corporation of Calcutta ;

B.—Such Municipal Corporations, or group or groups of Municipal Corporations, other than the Corporation of Calcutta, as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe by notification in the Calcutta Gazette ;

C.—Such District Boards, or group or groups of District Boards, as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid ;

D.—Such Association or Associations of merchants, manufacturers or tradesmen as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid ;

E.—The Senate of the University of Calcutta.

"We have provided that each of the above groups shall (except as hereinafter provided in Rule VII) have at least one Councillor nominated upon its recommendation, but that the Corporation, the Mercantile Associations and the Senate shall have not more than one each.

"It is, however, further provided that the Lieutenant-Governor may nominate to such of the remaining seats as shall not be filled by officials, in such manner as shall, in his opinion, secure a fair representation of the different classes of the community, and that one seat shall ordinarily be held by a representative of the great landholders of the province. It was in our belief absolutely necessary that a part of the seats at our disposal should be reserved in this manner, and filled up by nomination pure and simple. Only by such a reservation was it possible to provide for the representation of those sections of the community which, although sufficiently important to claim a voice in our deliberations, happen to be in a minority, and therefore unable to secure by means of their votes the return of a Member acceptable to themselves. Members thus nominated, although not owing their nomination to the suffrages of their fellow-citizens, will, we hope, be regarded as distinctly representative of the class from which they are taken.

"It is also laid down that it shall be a condition in the case of any person recommended by a Municipal Corporation, or group of Municipal Corporations, that he shall be a person ordinarily resident within the Municipality of the district in which it is situated, or in some one of the Municipalities constituting the group, or of the districts in which they are situated. A similar condition is laid down with reference to persons recommended by District Boards.

"There are other provisions relating to matters of detail, but I do not think it necessary to trouble the Council with them, as the Rules will be published forthwith.

"The Rules for Madras and Bombay, and for the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, differ in some particulars, but are conceived in the same spirit. These also will be published without loss of time.

"It remains for me to say a few words with regard to the manner in which it is proposed to deal with the Council which I have the honour of addressing.

"The Government of India has, from the first, held that the reform of the Viceroy's Council must, to some extent, be dependent upon, and subsequent to, that of the local Councils. It seemed to us that, if the difficulty of obtaining an effectual system of representation was great in the case of the local Councils, it must, à fortiori, be greater still in the case of a Council entrusted with the duty of legislating for the whole of India, and, in our belief, the strongest argument in favour of dealing, in the first instance, with the local Legislatures was that we were likely to find in them, when they had been strengthened and reformed, the most convenient electoral bodies for the purpose of choosing a part at all events of the Additional Members who will be appointed to the Legislative Council of the Viceroy.

"This view found much acceptance in Parliament. In his speech in the House of Lords on March 6th, 1890, Lord Northbrook said—'For the present he would not be disposed to go further in respect of the Supreme Council except, perhaps, to allow a selection by each of the subordinate local Legislatures.'

"In the same debate Lord Ripon remarked—That 'he was glad to concur with his noble friend who had just spoken' (Lord Northbrook) 'in the expression of a desire to see the elective or representative element introduced into those Councils. If that step were taken, it would be desirable to introduce the same element into the Council of the Governor General, very likely in the manner suggested, by selection from the local Councils.'

"We have made a proposal of this kind to the Secretary of State. The maximum number of Additional Members who can be nominated to the Governor General's Council is 16. Of these at least 8 must, under the Act, be non-officials. We have recommended that there shall be 10 non-officials. We have suggested that 4 of these might be selected and recommended to us by the local Legislatures of the four Provinces having local Councils, that one at least would be required to represent the interests of commerce, and that one might perhaps be chosen from the Calcutta Bar. We propose that the discretion of the Viceroy with regard to the sources from which the remaining 4 might be obtained should be interfered with as little as possible. There may be found in those provinces which do not possess Legislative Councils certain classes and sections of the community so far accustomed to collective action in the promotion of their common interests that they would be qualified to unite in submitting a recommendation in respect of any seat which the Governor General may desire to fill up from a particular province, and we have been in communication with the Governments of these provinces upon this subject. It is, however, clear that whatever arrangement may be made with this object should be as elastic as possible. We might, for example, find from time to time that the consideration of some particular measure requires the presence in this Council of a Member specially conversant with the subject, or with the territories which the contemplated legislation will affect, and this contingency must certainly be provided for in the case of those provinces which have no local Legislatures, and for which such legislation as is required must be undertaken in the Council of the Governor General. We do not, therefore, in the case of these provinces see any necessity for such detailed rules for the submission of recommendations as have been proposed for the local Councils. We shall, however, endeavour as far as possible, in the event of a Member being required for this Council from any of the four provinces not having local Councils, to give that Member, by resorting as far as possible to the system of recommendation, a more representative character than would attach to him if he were arbitrarily selected by the head of the Government.

"This is the scheme which, in so far as this Council is concerned, we have submitted to the Secretary of State in terms closely corresponding to those of which I have now made use. We shall at once embody our proposals in a set of rules which will be forwarded for the final sanction of Her Majesty's Government. I have every hope that rules will have been agreed to and will be in operation before the next Calcutta session.

"I have now explained, as far as is necessary, the procedure which will be followed in giving effect to both portions of the Indian Councils Act. It is not unlikely that our proposals will disappoint the expectations of those who would gladly see us travel further and faster along the path of reform. We claim, however, for the changes which we have been instrumental in procuring that they will, beyond all question, greatly increase the usefulness and the authority of these legislative bodies. We are able to show that the number of Additional Members has been materially increased; that we have considerably widened the functions of the Councils by the admission of the right of interpellation and the discussion of the Financial Statement; and, finally, that we shall no longer rely on nomination, pure and simple, for the selection of Additional Members. These are all substantial steps in advance. I hope the Government of India will have the assistance of all concerned in carrying out the Rules in such a way as to secure in the most effectual manner the objects with which they have been framed. It is highly probable that experience will suggest improvements in matters of detail, and I need not say that, in so far as we are not bound by the limits indicated in the Act, we shall be glad to consider the Rules as to some extent experimental and tentative, and that we shall welcome any suggestions which may be offered to us for the purpose of making them work as satisfactorily as possible."

QUESTION.

The Hon'ble MR. FAZULBHAI VISHRAM enquired whether the Government of India contemplate any arrangement regarding the emigration of Indian labourers to Australia, and, if so, whether such emigration will be subject to the provisions of the Act (XXI of 1883 as amended by Act XVIII of 1890) that applies to the emigrants proceeding to the Mauritius, Bourbon and the West Indies, or whether some other, and, if so, what, measure or measures are proposed to be adopted for the protection of the labourers in question.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS replied:—"The only Australian colonies from which applications for Indian labour have at any time been received are Queensland and South Australia.

"Negotiations for importing Indian coolies into Queensland and the Northern Territory of South Australia were opened as long ago as 1881, but, so far as Queensland is concerned, the project was abandoned two years later. The Government of South Australia went so far as to pass, in consultation with the Government of India, an Ordinance for controlling Indian emigration, but nothing was done to bring it into practical operation, and the Government of India heard nothing further till 1891, when an amending Ordinance was received from the Colonial Government. By this enactment a provision in the earlier measure, which required the appointment of an Immigration Agent-General or Protector of Emigrants, was repealed. The Government of India objected to the alteration and informed the Colonial Government that they regarded this condition as essential for the well-being of the emigrants, and would be unable to legalize emigration to the Northern Territory unless an Indian officer, acquainted with the language and habits of Indian coolies, were accepted as Protector.

"No further official communication has been received on the subject, and there has been no emigration up to date. Should emigration to any of the Australian colonies ever be established, it will probably be brought under the Indian Emigration Act, XXI of 1883, and it will be necessary to make some such arrangements for the protection of the coolies as prevail in British Guiana, the emigration laws of which were generally followed in the preparation of the South Australian Ordinance."

PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER asked for leave to postpone his motion that the Bill to amend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Philip Hutchins, the Hon'ble Mr. Woodburn, the Hon'ble Mr. Mackay, the Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose, the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans, the Hon'ble Mr. Fazulbhai Vishram and the Mover. He said :—

"I had hoped at the time when giving notice of this motion that all the papers connected with the Bill to which it refers would have been in before now; that there would have been time for the Select Committee to consider the various objections which have been taken to the Bill as it stands, and to present a Preliminary Report before the end of this session. Although I never intended to propose to pass the Bill during this session, I thought that a preliminary report such as that to which I have referred would probably be of very great assistance both to those in charge of the Bill and to those officers and persons who might desire to criticise it. I found, however, that for want of the proper materials no such preliminary report as I desired would really have the effect for which I wanted it, and that therefore I should merely be giving a certain amount of trouble to a number of gentlemen who have something else to do if I were upon this occasion to ask them to meet as a Select Committee. I propose, therefore, simply for the present to announce that I will, so far as I can, endeavour, before we meet again next cold weather, to examine all the criticisms which may be made on the Bill, so as to be in a position then to lay it before the Select Committee with the fullest information as to what the feelings and wishes of the classes who may be affected by the Bill will be. I may, however—as I think it will tend to clear the air, and as every one must be aware that the Government of India can have no object in bringing forward a Bill of this kind, except to supply the mercantile classes of the country with the most satisfactory tribunal which the nature of the circumstances will permit—I may, I say, for that reason explain, as regards the only two points which, as far as I know, have been made the subject of animadversion, the opinion which I hold (I can speak positively for myself, but not for any one else), and which I think is the generally accepted view, on the subject of those two points.

"The first of those points is the qualification of the Judges. As the present Small Cause Court stands, one-third of the Judges—that means two, because there is no case in which there are more than six—two of the Judges in each Court must be advocates of some one of the High Courts in India; or as I saw it put, and very properly put, the other day in one of the notes that came before me, they should be taken from the ranks of the practising Bar; but for the remainder, three or four, as the case may be, there is absolutely no qualification whatever prescribed, and it would be within the power of the nominating authority to nominate to those Judgeships any person whomsoever. I do not suppose it would be likely that any person having absolutely no qualification would be appointed; but unquestionably it is possible, if not probable, that the qualifications selected might be very deficient, and therefore I do think it extremely important that a professional qualification of some kind or other should be laid down for every person who is to be appointed a Judge of a Small Cause Court. Whether the particular qualifications mentioned in the Bill are the best I do not pretend to say. They have been laid down partly with reference to existing practice, and partly with reference to the qualification required for the Judges of the High Court, but I should be quite prepared to accept any modification of those qualifications which the Select Committee, when it meets, or this Council at large, should consider desirable; and the question whether the special qualification of being a practising barrister should be confined to the Chief Judge alone, or should extend, as now, to one-third of the Judges in each Court, is one as to which I am absolutely indifferent. If it be considered desirable that this special qualification should continue to apply, as it does at present, to one-third of the Judges in each Court, I for one have no objection whatever to it. It is, I admit, a thing which is, as far as I know, unique, that there should be any exceptional qualification for some among the puisne Judges in any Court, or that there should be any difference whatever between the second and the last Judge, except that which necessarily arises from the difference in date of their appointments; but, if it is thought desirable that such a difference should continue, I have no reason whatever to oppose it, and certainly would not oppose it.

"The other point is one, perhaps, of a little more difficulty. The history of all these Small Cause Courts has been the same; and in saying this I am not speaking only of the Small Cause Courts of India, but of the County Courts in England, the Civil Bill Courts in Ireland, and the corresponding Courts in France. In every case they have been originally intended to give a cheap, ready and not particularly discriminating remedy for the collection of small debts. In every case it has been found that wherever you attempted to draw a line as to the extent of the jurisdiction of these Courts the attempt had failed, and that there were always cases just a little above the jurisdiction, undistinguishable in principle from those just within it, and then the jurisdiction had to be extended and the line drawn a little higher; and so on. Thus, to take as a fair illustration the County Courts in England, established forty years ago with a maximum jurisdiction of £20 and an exclusive jurisdiction of £5, these have grown until they have now in some respects an unlimited jurisdiction, in some they go as high as £300, in all cases as high as £100, whilst the jurisdiction to be exercised without appeal extends up to £20 in all cases in which no interest in land is affected, except with leave of the judge; but where the judge gives leave, or where land is affected, you have an appeal given in every case down to the lowest. Well, the same thing precisely has happened in India, and Courts which, when originally established, were intended for the recovery of what I am surprised to find are regarded as small causes here have had their jurisdiction gradually extended. I certainly should never have looked upon a case involving Rs. 1,000 as a small cause, but, having been established with a jurisdiction up to Rs. 1,000, they have been extended and now they have a jurisdiction up to Rs. 2,000. Further, there is from the Small Cause Court no direct appeal; but there is a curious complicated clause—I have seen it described as a hateful clause—by which a kind of revision can be effected by invoking the interference of the High Court—more expensive, more cumbrous and less efficacious than an appeal. Whatever may happen in other respects, in my opinion, that power of revision, which is sanctioned I believe by clauses 38, 39 and 40, ought to go. They cannot, in my opinion, ever work well, and, whether anything is substituted for them or not, I consider that they ought not to stand. It will be perfectly understood that the power of revision which the High Courts have under a clause in their Charter would be absolutely unaffected by the removal of those clauses. I have on another occasion expressed a strong opinion that, whether we have a right or not—and that is a subject on which I decline to express any opinion—to interfere with the original civil jurisdiction of the High Court under its Charter, we ought not in any case to interfere, and so far as I am concerned I do not propose to interfere, with the original jurisdiction of the High Court.

"But on the other question I am perfectly clear—that there is no Judge living, from the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain downwards, who ought to be entrusted with authority to decide a question involving Rs. 2,000 without an appeal. Whether the matter should be settled by restricting the jurisdiction to Rs. 1,000, or by giving, as the Bill proposes, an appeal in cases of value between Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 2,000, or, in the manner I have heard suggested, by giving concurrent jurisdiction in cases between Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 2,000, allowing the defendant an absolute right to remove such cases into the High Court if he pleases, and barring him of any appeal if he chooses to consent to the case remaining in the Small Cause Court—any of these solutions of the question I should be willing to assent to. But to leave a Court with power to dispose of cases involving £150 or thereabouts in value in a single hearing, and at the discretion of a single man, I consider would amount to a failure of justice. My own view would be that every cause, however small, should be appealable; and I may mention as an illustration that the most hotly contested case in which I was ever concerned—one which was heard on five different occasions, and which twice went to the Court of Appeal in England, was one in which the value of the cause, estimated as causes are valued in India, was twopence—the case of Brown versus The Great Western Railway Company. But, as I have said, my sole desire is that these Courts should be made as efficient for their purpose as the means at our disposal will permit, and, if the classes who are most interested in these causes would think it better to limit the jurisdiction to the original sum of Rs. 1,000, abolishing all appeals, and all revisions except such as come under the 26th clause of the Charter of the High Court, I should be perfectly willing to acquiesce. Questions of that kind I should desire to leave to the discretion of the Select Committee, and I should wish to put upon that Committee every one who would be interested in the matter and capable of giving an opinion upon the points in issue. In the meantime I propose, when I have got the opinions already asked for on the Bill, to give such publicity to these as I reasonably and properly can, in order that the whole question may be thought out, and that I may get as much assistance as possible from the parties interested, so that by the time we meet next cold weather I may be able to get the Bill into a form in which it will be generally acceptable."

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS said :—"Although I am not strictly in order in offering any remarks with regard to the statement just made by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller, I think the Council will be glad to know that the postponement of this Bill till next cold weather will not cause any serious administrative inconvenience. Hon'ble Members are aware that the Bill arose originally out of complaints that the Calcutta Court was not getting through its work in a satisfactory manner; there were great delays and constant adjournments, entailing heavy expense on litigants. I am in a position to say that there is no longer any ground for complaint in this respect. The report on the working of the Court during last year reached me a few days ago, and it shows that the duration even of contested suits has been reduced to two months, while uncontested cases are now disposed of, on an average, in twenty days, which is just half the time occupied in Madras and Bombay."

Leave to postpone the Motion was granted.

INLAND EMIGRATION ACT, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 23rd March, 1893.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT for 1893-94.

PART I.

IMPERIAL REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Preliminary.

In accordance with the Rules made under the Indian Councils Act of 1892, the annual Financial Statement must be explained in the Legislative Council of the Government of India and may be discussed by the Members of that Council, each of whom is entitled to receive a printed copy of the Statement.

A printed copy of the Financial Statement has been supplied to each Member of the Council, and I shall now proceed to explain the general financial position of the Government of India; such discussion of the Financial Statement as may be considered necessary can take place subsequently.

2. In the explanation which I propose to lay before this Council I shall confine myself almost entirely to Imperial Revenue and Imperial Expenditure, and I shall neither take up matters of minor importance nor attempt to deal with Provincial and Local Finance, my special object at the present moment being to convey to the Council and to the public a correct outline of the general financial position of the Government of India: those who wish for further and fuller information will find it in the body of the Financial Statement.

3. I shall deal, as is usual, with the transactions of the Government of India under the three following heads:—

(1) The Accounts of the financial year 1891-92 which have been finally closed.

(2) The Revised Estimate of the financial year 1892-93 which ends on the 31st instant.

(3) The Budget Estimate of the coming year—1893-94.

The explanation I am about to give is printed as Part I of the Financial Statement, and where Revenue or Expenditure is mentioned, it should be understood that Imperial Revenue or Imperial Expenditure is meant, unless the contrary is stated in the context.

4. The financial position of the Government of India, at the present moment, is such as to give cause for apprehension, and I shall be obliged, in the explanation I am about to lay before this Council, to go back a short way into the history of the past in order to bring out more clearly the nature of the difficulties with which we have to contend and the causes to which they owe their existence. It will not be necessary for this purpose to go back further than March 1891, the month in which the Budget Estimates of the financial year 1891-92 were issued. This is the latest year of which the Accounts have been finally closed.

Section I.—Accounts of 1891-92.

5. When the Budget Estimates for the year 1891-92 were being framed, just two years ago, the rate of exchange was taken at what would now seem the excessive figure of 1*s.* 5¼*d.* the rupee; the surplus shown in the Estimates was Rx. 115,600, and practical equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure was secured.

It was explained in the Financial Statement issued in March last that from a financial point of view the unfavourable incidents of the year 1891-92 were (1) a fall in the average rate of exchange of the year to 1*s.* 4·713*d.*, involving an increase of the net Expenditure under Exchange by Rx. 782,200, (2) a considerable increase in Military Expenditure, chiefly on account of expeditions, and (3) a falling off in Land Revenue owing to scarcity; on the other, or favourable, side of the account there was (1) a very large increase of Railway Revenue, (2) a substantial increase of net Opium Revenue, and (3) a satisfactory growth of Ordinary Revenue other than Land Revenue.

It appeared at that time, March 1892, that the changes for the worse which had occurred during the year 1891-92 would slightly outweigh the changes for the better, and Expenditure was shown in the Revised Estimates of 1891-92 as being somewhat in excess of Revenue; at the same time it was anticipated that some improvement might occur at the last moment and that the Accounts of the year when finally closed would show a surplus. This hope has been realised, and the Accounts of 1891-92 have closed with a surplus of Rx. 467,000—a not unsatisfactory result, even though the larger part of that surplus is due to a payment which it was expected would be made to the War Office in 1891-92 having been postponed to 1892-93; the provision made on this account in the Revised Estimates of 1891-92 was £240,000. The amount actually paid in 1892-93 was £208,000 and the finances of the year 1891-92 have been relieved at the expense of those of the current year.

6. With 1891-92 the era of surpluses, I regret to say, comes to an end. During the four years from 1884-85 to 1887-88 there was an aggregate deficit of Rx. 5,039,000. In 1888-89 there was a surplus of Rx. 37,000, in 1889-90 of Rx. 2,612,000, in 1890-91 of Rx. 3,688,000, in 1891-92 of Rx. 467,000, the aggregate surplus of the four years being Rx. 6,804,000. The Revised Estimates of the year which is now drawing to a close, and the Budget Estimates of the year on which we are about to enter show deficits of considerable magnitude.

Section II.—Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

7. I now come to the Revised Estimates of 1892-93—the year which is just about to close,—and I shall in the first place call attention to the conditions under which these Estimates of 1892-93 were originally framed. The fall in the rate of exchange during the year 1891-92 had been so great that in the Financial Statement for 1892-93 some difficulty was experienced in securing equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure. The fall in the rate of exchange, from 1*s.* 5¼*d.*, the figure taken for the Budget Estimates of 1891-92, to 1*s.* 4*d.*, the highest rate which it was considered safe to take for 1892-93, caused the charge for Exchange to increase by no less than Rx. 1,708,000. We were able to cover this heavy loss and to secure a small surplus of Rx. 146,600 in the Budget Estimates of 1892-93, but it was only a concurrence of fortunate incidents that enabled us to do so. These fortunate incidents were (1) the receipt of contributions to the extent of Rx. 466,000 from Local Governments on revision of the Provincial Contracts, (2) the anticipated growth of general Revenue under the Principal Heads (excluding Opium) to the extent of Rx. 625,000, (3) the anticipated growth of Railway Revenue to the extent of Rx. 606,000 in India, less increased expenditure in England of £51,800, and (4) a substantial improvement under Interest in India owing to our having been able to avoid borrowing for some years, and to our having increased the Paper Currency investment by one crore of rupees.

8. The rate of exchange taken in the Budget Estimates of the current year—namely, 1*s*. 4*d*. the rupee—has not been realised. The actual rate of exchange at the present time is unsettled, and at this moment is below 1*s*. 2·5*d*., and the average rate for the year is slightly below 1*s*. 3*d*.; the net charge for Exchange has increased by Rx. 1,936,600, of which Rx. 1,635,300 is due to the fall in the rate of exchange, and the remainder to increase of sterling Expenditure. Nor is this fall in Exchange the only untoward event which has affected the figures of the year 1892 93; there is also an increase of the net sterling Expenditure in England, amounting to £602,600, and involving, with Exchange at the Budget rate of 1*s*. 4*d*., an increased burden of Rx. 903,900, and there is an increase in the Expenditure under Army Services in India to the extent of Rx. 515,500.

9. The three great causes of increased Expenditure during the year 1892 93 have been (1) the fall in the rate of exchange, which caused an increase of Rx. 1,635,300, (2) increased sterling Expenditure, involving a burden of Rx. 903,900, and (3) increased Expenditure on the Army in India to the extent of Rx. 515.500, making a total of Rx. 3,054,700. As the surplus shown in the Budget Estimates was only Rx. 146,600, and the three causes I have just mentioned increased the Expenditure by Rx. 3,054,700, it will probably be a surprise to most people to learn that the deficit shown in the Revised Estimates is only Rx. 1,081,900, a figure which will no doubt be still further reduced when the Accounts of the year are finally closed. The Budget Estimates show a surplus of Rx. 146,600 and the Revised Estimates show a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900; there has, therefore, been during the year a falling off or deterioration on the whole account of Rx. 1,228,500, being the amount of surplus shown in the Budget Estimates plus the amount of deficit shown in the Revised Estimates. The three great causes which I have already mentioned having been sufficient to cause a falling off to the extent of Rx. 3,054,700 and the actual falling off, everything included, being only Rx. 1,228,500, it follows there must have been an improvement in other directions of Rx. 1,826,200, being Rx. 3,054,700 minus Rx. 1,228,500. I shall explain a little later in what way this improvement of Rx. 1,826,200 was obtained, but in the first instance it will be convenient to state the causes of the increase in sterling Expenditure and of the increase in Expenditure on the Army in India.

10. The chief increases in sterling Expenditure in England are £427,800 under Army Services, £123,400 under Marine, £81,900 under Superannuation Allowances and Pensions, and £37,600 under Interest.

The increased Expenditure under Army was caused by the payment of an arrear charge of £208,000 to the War Office in 1892-93 instead of in 1891-92 as originally intended, and by the adoption of a rule for the payment of furlough allowances and retired pay in arrears at the end of each month instead of in arrears at the end of each quarter. Such a change must, from the nature of the case, add to the total charge in the first year because the allowances are paid sooner than would otherwise be the case, and the amount due at the end of the year is reduced. The same cause accounts for the increase of £81,900 in civil Superannuation Allowances and Pensions. The increase in the Marine charge is due to payments on account of the construction of ships and a dredger, which were not provided for in the Budget Estimates.

The increase of £37,600 under Interest is due to discount on a sterling loan of £1,300,000 raised during the year for advances to Railway Companies and discharge of Railway Debentures.

11. The increased Expenditure of Rx. 515,500 on Army Services in India is due to the following causes:—

	Rx.
Suppression of disturbances in the Lushai Country . .	60,000
Isazai Field Force	50,000
Gilgit Agency	9,000
Kajuri Kach Force	100,000
Kurram Escort	45,000
Transport charges for supply of Gilgit Agency . . .	78,400
Arrear charges connected with the Manipur Expedition . .	7,600
Rise in price of food and forage and increase in the number of transport animals to be fed (about)	150,000
Total .	500,000

There were also other increases of charge of minor importance and some decreases of no great magnitude which need not be separately specified.

12. I come now to the explanation of the fact that, with an increase of sterling Expenditure involving at the Exchange of 1*s*. 4*d*., a burden on the finances of Rx. 903,900, with an increase in Army Expenditure in India amounting to Rx. 515,500, and with an increase of Rx. 1,635,300 on account of the fall in the rate of exchange, giving in all a deterioration of Rx. 3,054,700, the deficit is only Rx. 1,081,900. In making this explanation it will be most convenient to deal separately with the Opium Revenue, deducting Opium Expenditure from Opium Revenue so as to get the figure of net Revenue. It is at first sight not a little remarkable that an unfavourable Opium crop should, for the present, have had the effect of materially increasing the Revenue and at the same time largely reducing the Expenditure, the total gain in net Opium Revenue in India as compared with the figures of the Budget Estimates being no less than Rx. 971,900.

In the first place I may mention that the poppy cultivation failed to a large extent in the cold weather of 1892, so that the sums paid to the cultivators, which sums fall into the accounts of the current year, were greatly reduced in amount, and the total Expenditure in India under Opium in 1892-93 proved to be Rx. 1,593,900 as compared with the Budget provision of Rx. 2,233,900, the saving being Rx. 640,000.

The knowledge that the crop of Opium was a poor one immediately affected the market, and a rise took place in the price of Bengal Opium. In making our Budget calculations we had estimated the price of Bengal Opium at R1,050 a chest, while the average price actually obtained has proved to be R1,247. If we could have continued our sales throughout the financial year at the figures of the earlier months, the gain from the increased price of Bengal Opium would have been Rx. 1,065,200. As the reserve stock of Opium was running down, this could not be done, and the quantity of Bengal Opium to be sold monthly was reduced from 4,500 chests to 3,642 chests with effect from 1st October 1892. The exports of Malwa Opium also proved smaller than the Estimate, and than had been the case for many years. Consequently the gross Revenue from Opium exceeds the figure of the Budget Estimates by only Rx. 331,900. As the gross Revenue from Opium increased by Rx. 331,900 and the Expenditure was reduced by Rx. 640,000, the increase in the net Revenue is Rx. 971,900.

13. In addition to the great improvement in net Revenue from Opium, which I have just explained, and which, I must admit, is accidental, temporary, and, from a financial point of view, far from satisfactory, there has been a general increase of Revenue under almost every head in the Estimates.

The total gross Revenue in India shown in the Budget Estimates of 1892-93 was Rx. 65,399,500; the amount shown in the Revised Estimates which are now published is Rx. 66,423,300, being an increase of Rx. 1,023,800. Of this increase I have already taken into account the increase of Rx. 331,900 in Revenue from Opium; excluding the temporary and accidental increase in Opium Revenue, there has been, therefore, during the year an improvement in Revenue of Rx. 691,900.

There is nothing which has so beneficial an influence on the growth of the general Revenue as timely and plentiful rains and good harvests, and as India has been on the whole somewhat unfortunate in these respects during the last few years, the increase of Revenue which I have just stated is specially satisfactory, inasmuch as it shows that, although the progress of the country may have been impeded by the occurrence of unfavourable seasons, it has not been stopped or even seriously checked. Nevertheless, the growth of Revenue during the year appears to show traces of the influence of unfavourable seasons. There is not a very remarkable increase of Revenue in any direction, and the satisfactory aggregate increase which has been secured is due to moderate increases under almost all heads, and indicates steady and general improvement rather than unusual expansion.

14. The only decreases of Revenue of any importance are Rx. 120,700 under XXIV Exchange, Rx. 76,000 under Customs, and Rx. 34,800 under Interest.

The amount of Revenue shown under XXIV Exchange depends on the average market rate of Exchange during the year, on the rates fixed by contract with the Railway Companies for regulating certain transactions between them and the Government, on the nature and extent of these transactions during the year, on the extent of Remittances during the year, and on the rate of Exchange fixed yearly for the settlement of accounts between the Indian and the Home Government. Increases or decreases of Revenue under such a head are of course no indication of the general progress or prosperity of the country. The falling off under Interest is due to the fact that the Railway Companies did not overdraw their capital to the extent anticipated, and an increase or decrease of Revenue from interest on advances to Railway Companies has not any bearing on the question of the growth of ordinary Revenue. The falling off in Customs Revenue is due to reduced exports of rice from Burma.

The principal increases of Revenue are the following:—

Head of Account.	Rx.
State Railways	143,600
Land Revenue	117,800
Salt	104,900
Mint	99,400
Excise	79,800
Irrigation, Major Works including Land Revenue due to Irrigation	69,900
Stamps	60,200
Army receipts	51,100
TOTAL	726,700

15. As the increase in net Opium Revenue is Rx. 971,900, and the increase of Revenue under other heads is Rx. 691,900, we get a total improvement in Revenue of Rx. 1,663,800. This it will be recollected is the increase in Imperial Revenue, and does not take into account Provincial and Local Revenue, the amount of which has no bearing on the surplus or deficit of the year. I may, however, mention that the increase of Provincial and Local Revenue during the year is Rx. 592,500.

16. The growth of Revenue during the current year has, as I have just shown, been satisfactory, and it is hardly less satisfactory that the public Expenditure in India during the same period has, with only a single exception of importance, been kept well within the Budget Estimates. The Budget Estimate of this Expenditure for the current year was Rx. 41,628,500 and the corresponding figure of the Revised Estimate is Rx. 41,341,600, a reduction in the aggregate Expenditure of Rx 286,900. If we eliminate from the account the decrease in Opium Expenditure of Rx. 640,000, which must be admitted to be accidental and temporary, and with which I have separately dealt, it will be seen that the increase of Expenditure under all other heads has been Rx 353,100, an increase which is more than accounted for by the increased Expenditure of Rx. 515,500 on Army Services which I have already explained.

The Expenditure under all heads other than Opium and Army Services is very closely in accord with the Budget Estimates both in aggregate amount and in details and need not be further examined. It will suffice to mention that, excluding Expenditure under Opium and Army Services, there is a small saving of Rx. 162,400, an amount slightly less than the saving which occurs under the Railway Revenue Account.

17. The explanations already given, and which I fear may have proved somewhat tedious, place me in a position to sum up in a few words the financial results of the year 1892-93.

In the first place we have had a net increase of sterling Expenditure amounting to £602,600, which (taking exchange at the Budget rate of 1*s.* 4*d.*) involves an increased charge of Rx. 903,900. In the next place we have had increased Expenditure on the Army in India amounting to Rx. 515,500 ; and lastly, and most important of all, there has been a fall in the rate of exchange from 1*s.* 4*d.* to 1*s.* 3*d.*, involving a net increase of the charge in the columns headed Exchange of no less than Rx. 1,635,300. The total falling off during the year from these three causes being Rx. 3,054,700. To balance this great and disastrous falling off we have in the first place the temporary and accidental increase in net Opium Revenue in India of Rx. 971,900; in the next place we have a satisfactory growth of Revenue under other heads of Rx. 691,900, and we have a slight saving of Expenditure (excluding Army Services and Opium) which amounts to Rx. 162,400. The total improvement is Rx. 1,826,200.

Our losses exceed our gains by Rx. 1,228,500, and the Budget surplus of Rx. 146,600 is converted into a deficit on the Revised Estimates of Rx. 1,081,900.

18. The Final Accounts of each financial year usually, and I may say invariably, show improvement over the Revised Estimates, and I fully anticipate that in March 1894 my successor will be able to announce that the actual deficit of the year 1892-93 is below the figure at which it is now placed.

However satisfactory this result may appear at first sight, and under all the circumstances of the case, a closer examination of the figures affords ground for apprehension.

The temporary and accidental gain in net Revenue from Opium will disappear in 1893-94 and the influence of short crops in past years will still further reduce the income from Opium. On the other hand, the loss due to the fall in the rate of exchange will remain, and will increase, because there is at the present time no prospect that the rate of exchange will be as high in 1893-94 as it has been in 1892-93, and the fall will not merely add largely and directly to the burden of Indian Expenditure, but will materially increase the cost to be incurred on account of the British troops serving in India, whose pay is fixed in sterling. On the other hand, we may expect to retain a large proportion of the increase of ordinary Revenue which we obtained in 1892-93, and the causes by which the sterling Expenditure was swollen in the current year will no longer operate.

The prospective loss exceeds the amount of gain on which we can reckon, and we may say at once, and without waiting to examine the Budget Estimates of 1893-94, that the deficit of the year 1893-94 must exceed that of 1892-93 by a considerable amount.

Section III.—Budget Estimate of 1893-94.

19. In the Estimates of the coming year the total Imperial Revenue in India and England amounts to Rx. 66,648,800, and the total Imperial Expenditure to Rx. 68,243,900, and the deficit is Rx. 1,595,100.

The announcement of a large deficit will not, I believe, come as a surprise to those who have paid any attention to financial matters during the past year, or who have taken their opinions on the subject from the public press. I shall now explain the exact influence exercised upon the financial position of the Government of India by the various causes which have come into operation during the last twelve months, and which have resulted in transforming the small surplus of the Financial Statement of 1892-93 into a deficit for the coming year which exceeds one and a half crores of rupees. The immediate and principal cause, as every one knows, is the fall in the rate of exchange, but there are other causes of less importance which also require notice.

20. In the explanation I am about to make I shall take as my starting point the Budget Estimates of 1892-93, which showed a surplus of Rx. 146,600, and shall trace the various changes, favourable and unfavourable, which in the course of twelve months have brought us face to face with a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100. For the purposes of this explanation it will be convenient to again call attention in this place to the leading features of the position as it presented itself in March 1892.

In the Financial Statement for 1892-93 it was stated that the fall in the rate of exchange from 1*s.* $5\frac{1}{4}$d. to 1*s.* 4*d.* had imposed on the finances of India an additional burden to the extent of Rx. 1,708,000, being the increase of Exchange on the net sterling Expenditure, in addition to an increase of Rx. 205,000 in the pay of the British Troops, and it was explained that this increase of charge had been met (1) by contributions from Local Governments, (2) by anticipated increase of Railway Revenue, (3) by growth of Revenue under the Principal Heads, and (4) by some improvement under Interest owing to our having been able to avoid borrowing for some years, and to our having invested in Government securities a larger amount of the Paper Currency Reserve. The additional burden thrown on the finances in March 1892 was a very heavy one, and it was only a combination of favourable circumstances that enabled us to meet it for the time. The further and additional burden thrown on the finances at the present time is even greater than that of a year ago and another combination of equally favourable circumstances does not recur.

21. In the Estimates of the coming year the rate of exchange has been taken at 1*s.* $2\frac{3}{4}$d., the approximate market rate of the date on which the Estimates were first compiled. The market rate of the present moment is considerably below 1*s.* $2\frac{3}{4}$d., but the recent fall appears to be due, to a considerable extent, to misapprehension and panic. In any case it is quite impossible for us to recast our Estimates from day to day in the vain hope of being able to follow the fluctuations in Exchange. It will suffice to say that a drop in Exchange from 1*s.* $2\frac{3}{4}$d. to 1*s.* $2\frac{1}{2}$d. would add Rx. 439,000 to the Expenditure. The rate of 1*s.* $2\frac{3}{4}$d. taken in the Estimates, though in excess of the market rate of to-day, is five farthings lower than the rate taken in the Budget of 1892-93, and the additional Expenditure, direct and indirect, for which we have to provide in consequence of this fall in the rate of exchange comes to no less than Rx. 2,229,400.

£15,650,300, and the charge for Exchange at 1*s*. 2⅝*d*. the rupee is Rx. 9,814,600; if we could have taken Exchange at the rate adopted in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, namely, 1*s*. 4*d*., the net charge for Exchange would have been only Rx. 7,825,200, and consequently the fall in the rate of exchange between March 1892 and March 1893 has added directly to the Expenditure of the Government of India the difference between these amounts, or the sum of Rx. 1,989,400.

The pay of the British Troops serving in India, or in any other part of Her Majesty's dominions, is fixed in sterling, and must be converted into the currency of the country in which they are serving at a rate fixed annually, and intended to approximate to the average market rate of the year. The fall in the rate of exchange to 1*s*. 2⅝*d*. has added on this account a further sum of Rx. 240,000 to the Indian Expenditure, causing the total additional charge, direct and indirect, on account of Exchange to amount to Rx. 2,229,400.

The estimated surplus of 1892-93 was Rx. 146,600, and the estimated deficit of the coming year is Rx. 1,595,100, showing a total deterioration in the year of Rx. 1,741,700; as this sum is less by Rx. 487,700 than the falling off due to the fall in Exchange alone, it will be obvious that but for the fall in exchange below last year's Budget rate of 1*s*. 4*d*., the Estimates of 1893-94 would have shown an improvement over those of 1892-93 amounting to Rx. 487,700, and I should now have been in a position to announce a surplus of Rx. 634,300 instead of a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100. An increase of Rx. 1,913,000 (Rx. 1,708,000 plus Rx. 205,000) in the burden on account of exchange, followed in twelve months by a further increase of Rx. 2,229,400 on the same account, the total increase amounting to over four crores of rupees, has imposed a strain on the Indian Finances which they are at present unable to bear.

22. I shall now explain in what manner the improvement of Rx. 487,700, to which I have just alluded, has been obtained.

In the first place I may mention that the estimated net sterling Expenditure of 1893-94 is less than that of 1892-93 by £99,300, giving, at an exchange of 1*s*. 4*d*., a reduction of charge to the extent of Rx. 148,900. The details of this reduction will be found in the body of the Financial Statement, and I shall not further notice the question of sterling Expenditure in the present place. There remain for examination the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure shown in the Indian portion of the Accounts.

In examining the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for 1893-94 I shall deal with net Receipts in the case of Opium and Railways; in other words, I shall deduct the Expenditure from the Receipts, and employ net figures. I adopt this course in consideration of the fact that in both cases the Expenditure is so closely connected with the Receipts, and constitutes so large a deduction therefrom, that to treat the total gross receipts as Revenue would be misleading. I do not consider it necessary for my present purpose to treat any other head of Revenue in a similar manner.

In the net Revenue from Opium the Estimates of 1893-94 as compared with the Budget Estimates of 1892-93 show a falling off of Rx. 338,400; this is partly due to reduced exports of Malwa Opium. There has also been a large reduction in the quantity of Bengal Opium to be sold, and though the falling off from this cause will be partly covered by the anticipated increase in the selling price, the reduction in Revenue from the sales of Bengal Opium alone is Rx. 207,000.

Under the Railway Revenue Account the net Receipts in India have increased from Rx. 6,678,300 to Rx. 6,899,400, or by Rx. 221,100.

23. Putting aside for the time the Revenue from Opium and the Railway Receipts, with which I deal separately, the total increase of Revenue in the Estimates of the coming year, as compared with the Budget Estimates of 1892-93, is Rx. 647,700. This satisfactory increase is spread over nearly all heads. The only large item of increase is Rx. 313,500 under Land Revenue, and there are decreases under a few heads.

The increase shown under Excise is only Rx. 36,500, and it may be well that I should explain that the increase of Imperial Revenue under this head would have been Rx. 104,000 had it not been decided recently to assimilate the Opium Law of Lower Burma to that of Upper Burma, or in other words to prohibit the consumption and possession of Opium by Natives of Lower Burma. This change involves a reduction of the Excise Revenue in 1893-94 by Rx. 67,500 and of the Opium Revenue by Rx. 22,500. The further loss which falls on the Provincial Revenues is Rx. 22,500. The loss of Revenue will be somewhat greater in subsequent years, as the proposed change is not expected to come into effect until three months of the next financial year have elapsed, and the reduction of Revenue will, therefore, affect only nine months of the year 1893-94.

24. Turning to the Expenditure side of the account, I have to observe that, excluding Opium Expenditure and the Expenditure of the Railway Revenue Account, the total increase of Expenditure in India in the coming year is estimated at Rx. 431,600.

In explaining the causes of this increase of Expenditure it will be convenient to state the increase or decrease under each Group of Heads ordinarily shown in the Indian Accounts. The following are the increases of Expenditure under each Group :—

	Increase. Rx.
Army Services	686,800
Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint	48,800
Grant for Famine Relief and Insurance	42,600
Buildings and Roads	40,300
Direct Demands on the Revenue (excluding Opium)	13,400
Salaries and Expenditure of Civil Departments	10,800
TOTAL	842,700

The increase under Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint, calls for no special remarks. It is due to the development of the Departments concerned, and is accompanied by a more than proportionate increase of Receipts. That under Buildings and Roads occurs in Military Works Expenditure: the grant for 1892-93 was below the normal amount. The increase under the Famine Grant is merely a matter of account.

The small increases of Rx. 13,400 and Rx. 10,800 do not require special notice, but the increase of Rx. 686,800 under Army Services is of more importance. Of this sum, Rx. 240,000 is due to the increase in the pay stated in rupees of British troops serving in India and is caused by the fall in the rate of exchange. This portion of the increase has already been taken into account in dealing with the question of Exchange and may be excluded from the present calculation.

The following are the principal causes of the balance of the increase in Expenditure on Army Services (Rx. 446,800) :—

	Rx.
Provision for the Kajuri Kach Force, the Kurram Escort, and Arrear charges of the Chin and Lushai Expeditions	174,000
Increased Expenditure on Ordnance Establishment and Stores	88,200
Rise in the price of food and forage and increase in the number of transport animals to be fed	70,000
Transport and supply arrangements for Gilgit	30,000
Increased cost of clothing for British Troops	27,100
TOTAL	389,300

25. The decreases in Expenditure during the coming year, 1893-94, are as follows:—

	Decreases. Rx.
Interest	233,200
Construction of Railways	118,300
Special Defences	18,600
Miscellaneous Civil Charges	32,400
Irrigation	8,600
TOTAL	411,100

Of the items of decrease, the only one that requires special explanation is that under Interest. Speaking generally, this decrease may be said to be due to the transfer of Rx. 10,792,490 of the 4½ per cent. Loan during the current year to a 4 per cent. loan, thus effecting a saving of Rx. 54,000, and to the continuance of the practice of applying the surpluses of past years to the construction of Railways and Canals, and thus obviating the need for borrowing. On the other hand there is an increase of the interest charge on increased deposits in Government Savings Banks. The reduction under Construction of Railways is due to the fact that we have no surplus Revenue to devote to such a purpose.

26. The final result at which we arrive is that, if we exclude the indirect increase of Expenditure in India caused by the fall in the rate of exchange, and leave out of account Opium Expenditure and the Expenditure in the Railway Revenue Account (for both of which a net figure has been taken) there has been an increase of Expenditure under certain heads in the Estimates of 1893-94 as compared with those of 1892-93 of Rx. 602,700, of which Rx. 446,800 is due to higher Expenditure under Army in India, and that there is a decrease under all other heads of Rx. 411,100.

27. I am now in a position to summarise in a few words the causes that have brought about a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 in the Estimates of 1893-94 as compared with the surplus of Rx. 146,600 shown in the Financial Statement for 1892-93. In the first place, the fall in the rate of exchange has caused increased Expenditure to the amount of Rx. 2,229,400; in the second place, net Opium Revenue is worse by Rx. 338,400, and in the third place, the cost of Army Services in India (excluding pay of British troops) is greater by Rx. 446,800. The total deterioration from the three causes I have mentioned is Rx. 3,014,600. There is on the other side of the account an improvement in ordinary Revenue in India to the extent of Rx. 647,700, an improvement of Rx. 221,100 in net Railway receipts in India, a reduction in the net sterling charge which reduces Expenditure by Rx. 148,900, and a reduction in Indian Expenditure (excluding Opium, the Railway Revenue Account, and Army Services) of Rx. 255,200. The total improvement is Rx. 1,272,900, and deducting this amount from the total deterioration of Rx. 3,014,600 we get a net falling-off of Rx. 1,741,700, which is just sufficient to account for the surplus of Rx. 146,600 shown in the Budget Estimates of 1892-93 being converted into a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 in the Estimates of 1893-94.

The figures may be stated in the following manner:—

Deterioration.	Rx.	Improvement.	Rx.
Exchange	2,229,400	Increase in Ordinary Revenue in India	647,700
Reduction in net Opium Revenue	338,400	Reduction in net sterling Expenditure	148,900
Increased cost of Army in India, excluding increase in pay of British Troops due to fall in exchange . .	446,800	Reduction in India Expenditure, excluding Opium, Railway Revenue Account and Army Services	255,200
		Improvement in net Railway Receipts	221,100
TOTAL .	3,014,600	TOTAL .	1,272,900

Section IV.—Present Position and Future Policy.

28. The Revised Estimates of the current year show a deficit of Rx.1,081,900; the Budget Estimates of the coming year show a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100. The prospects of the future are disheartening because, although the ordinary Indian Revenue grows rapidly, the fluctuations in Exchange are such as to set all calculation at defiance. The increase in Expenditure during the last two years, caused by the fall in the rate of exchange amounts to Rx. 4,142,400, and the increase of Expenditure due to this cause has not yet come to an end. The heavy fall in the rate of exchange has most seriously affected the position of Government servants not domiciled in India; their case cannot be put on one side much longer, and, as matters now stand, no remedy is possible which does not involve further increase of Expenditure.

We have, also, to take into consideration the possibility of the United States stopping their purchases of silver; the effect of which on the rate of exchange must be serious and might be disastrous. It has been found necessary to take net Opium Revenue for the coming year at a lower figure than has appeared in the Estimates during the last 22 years.

29. Under the circumstances stated in the preceding paragraph the natural and ordinary course would be for the Government of India to at once take such measures as would suffice to cure the existing deficit and establish equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure. Financial embarrassment gathers weight and force the further it proceeds, and it is the obvious duty of every Government to allow no avoidable delay to occur in dealing with a declared deficit. Postponement of action cannot be justified except on grounds of irresistible weight.

30. It will be found on examination of the existing position that there are insuperable objections to any attempt to deal with the anticipated deficit of 1893-94 at the present moment. The immediate cause of our financial difficulties, and the cause which, by comparison and for the time being, dwarfs all others, is the fall in the gold value of silver, which, as I have already shown, has added to the Indian Expenditure in two years more than four crores of rupees. If that fall could be stayed and the rate of exchange with England fixed permanently at even its present low figure, the difficulty of dealing with the present deficit would be comparatively light. The Revenue continues to grow in a satisfactory manner; even under the influence of indifferent seasons and poor harvests it has made fair progress. If we could feel assured that there would be no further fall in exchange, I have little doubt that increase of Revenue, restriction and reduction of Expenditure, with possibly some taxation of a temporary nature, would, in a very short time, re-establish equilibrium. A serious effort would no doubt be required in the first instance, but with a fixed rate of exchange we would have a definite task before us and our measures could be regulated accordingly. But it unfortunately happens that, unless some settlement of the currency question is obtained, there is no prospect of even the most moderate degree of stability in the rate of exchange. The disastrous and unprecedented fall in the gold value of silver which has been experienced during the last few years has destroyed confidence, and we know that the question of stopping their purchases of silver is being seriously agitated in the United States of America. The exact consequences of such stoppage it is impossible to foretell, but the conclusion I have come to is that the consequences would, at any rate for a time, be disastrous to the Indian Exchequer, and that the Government of India would in such case be involved in pecuniary difficulties of greater magnitude, and more lasting in their effects, than any which have hitherto been experienced in this country.

The imports of silver into India during the current year and the two preceding years have been of great magnitude. In the year 1890-91 the net imports of silver were Rx. 14,175,136, in 1891-92 they were Rx. 9,022,184, and in 1892-93 they promise to amount to Rx. 13,000,000. If the United States ceased to purchase silver, the best calculation I have been able to make shows that India would have to absorb about Rx. 8,000,000 worth of silver yearly in addition to what she imports already, and it is impossible to contemplate such a contingency without grave apprehension.

The consequences of a forced and sudden addition to the yearly imports of silver into India of Rx. 8,000,000 in a single year would, in the first instance at any rate, be overwhelming, and I should expect that the Eastern Exchanges would be for the time completely disorganised. The fall in the gold value of silver would be so great that the production of silver might be curtailed, but we cannot be certain that this result would follow, or to what extent it would follow, and as mines that are in full working could not, and would not, be stopped immediately, the process of reduction would take time. If such reduction of output did take place, it would be due to the fall in the price of silver, and would not last longer than the fall in price lasted: every rise in price would be followed by increased activity at the mines and would tend to restore production to its old figure. In short, the stoppage of the purchases of silver by the United States must result in a great fall in the price of that metal, and though a portion of the first fall might be recovered, it cannot reasonably be expected that, under such circumstances, even the present price of silver would be restored; confidence in the future would be still further weakened, and fluctuations in exchange, of excessive amount and most injurious in their consequences, would be inevitable.

31. I have now shown what we must expect if there is no settlement of the currency question, and if the United States stop their purchases of silver. The prospect of a settlement of the currency question lies on the other side of the shield. A settlement of this question would prevent any further fall in exchange, and would be likely to bring about, at the very least, some slight rise.

It is no violent hypothesis to assume that a settlement of the currency question might raise the rate of exchange by one penny, and so great is the influence of exchange on our finances that a rise of even this small amount would give us equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure in the coming year, and cause our present financial difficulties to disappear.

In other words, our financial position for the coming year is at the mercy of Exchange and of those who have it in their power to affect in any way the price of silver. If we budget for the present deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 and exchange rises one penny we shall have a surplus; if it falls a penny we shall have a deficit of more than three crores; if we impose taxation to the extent of one and a half crores of rupees, a turn of the wheel may require us to impose further taxation of not less magnitude; another turn and we may find that no taxation at all was required. It will be obvious from what I have just said that what we have got to consider in making our arrangements for next year, is not so much the question of increasing the public Revenue, or restricting that portion of the public Expenditure which is under our control, but the chances of a settlement of the currency question.

32. I regret that I am unable to give any more definite information regarding the prospects of a settlement of this question than the public at present possess. We know that the question excites the greatest interest in the United States; and we know that even if the people of that country were willing to let it sleep, the inexorable logic of events will force them before long to take a fresh departure either in one direction or in the other.

The International Monetary Conference which recently assembled at Brussels separated without arriving at any definite conclusions, but it is proposed that it should re-assemble in May. We do not know whether that proposal will be carried out or not, but in the mean time the currency question as it affects India is being considered by a Committee of experts in London under the presidency of the Lord High Chancellor of England.

The proceedings of that Committee are secret, and the Government of India have no information as to what the nature of its Report will be, or as to whether the Committee will agree upon a unanimous Report or not. But we know, as do the public, that the Report of the Committee will be made very shortly, and the Government of India have been informed by Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India that the decision on the Indian currency question cannot be delayed much longer. Under these circumstances the Government of India have decided—and the soundness of the decision does not appear to me to admit of dispute—that the proper course is to await the decision of the Home authorities on this question before adopting measures, which must necessarily be of a stringent and exceptional nature, with the object of re-establishing equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure. The immediate restoration of equilibrium would require the imposition of heavy taxation or a large reduction of Expenditure; and yet neither this taxation nor reduction of Expenditure, or even a combination of both means, would be final, or anything better than a temporary makeshift, if the currency question is not settled; measures that might suffice to meet the existing deficit would, in my opinion, be wholly inadequate if the United States ceased to purchase silver. I submit that the Government of India cannot be expected to initiate a policy at the present moment which must have very serious effects on the industry of the country, and disturb and unsettle the Administration, when the lapse of only a month or two might, and in all probability will, show either that their policy was mistaken and their measures uncalled for, or that that policy is wholly insufficient to meet the requirements of the case, and that their treatment of the disease had irritated the patient without materially advancing his progress towards health.

Disappointing as this decision may appear to some persons, and strongly as I am opposed to delay in dealing with financial embarrassment, I entertain no doubt that the course which the Government of India (with the sanction of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India) have decided to adopt in the present conjuncture is the wisest under the circumstances and I trust that the Indian public will acknowledge the difficulties of the present position, and will not press for a hasty decision, or the inconsiderate adoption of measures which must, from the very nature of the case, prove to be either inadequate or unnecessary.

33. The Government of India having decided to budget for a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100, and the various Local Governments having decided to draw upon their Provincial and Local balances and to budget for expenditure in excess of their Revenue for the year by Rx. 751,200, the question of Ways and Means for the coming year becomes one of unusual importance.

We have to find money to cover the deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 in the Imperial Account, and of Rx. 751,200 in the Provincial and Local Account; we have also to find Rx. 3,550,000 for Expenditure on Railways and Canals, which is not charged against Revenue; and we have to provide funds for loans to Local Bodies, agriculturists, and others, to an extent (excluding the repayment of the balance of a loan by the Bombay Port Trust) which involves a net outgoing of Rx. 327,900.

We have also to meet the payments by the Secretary of State not taken into calculation in any of the above amounts to the extent of £1,889,100, amounting at the exchange of 1*s.* 2⅝*d.*, to Rx. 3,070,400, of which about one-half only will be recovered in India from the remitters.

The task appears, at first sight, a formidable one, but I am glad to be able to say that a loan of 300 lakhs of rupees, to be raised in India, will, so far as can be judged at present, be sufficient to meet all our wants. The amount of this loan is less by 55 lakhs of rupees than the amount which we propose to spend on Railways and Canals and to charge otherwise than against Revenue, and is probably not in excess of the amount which might be raised yearly in the Indian market without producing any serious disturbance.

As the Government of India have not borrowed for some years, and Government Securities now stand high in price, it may be anticipated that the loan will be raised on favourable terms.

34. This satisfactory result as regards the amount to be borrowed is partly due to the high cash balance of Rx. 15,204,200 with which we expect to open the coming year. It is anticipated that the cash balance will be reduced during 1893-94 by Rx. 2,561,100. It is also due in part to the large net deposits in Government Saving Banks which we are now receiving. The figures of net receipts for the past two years, and the estimated receipts for the present and coming years, are as follows:—

	Rx.
1890-91	530,400
1891-92	824,100
1892-93	977,200
1893-94	811,000

The Bombay Port Trust has taken advantage of the favourable condition of the money market and proposes to repay on 1st April next a loan of Rx. 616,100. The Rampore State will also pay the balance (Rx. 220,000) of the amount it is providing for the construction of the Moradabad-Rampore Railway. The Ways and Means of the year are proportionately strengthened.

35. It is expected that the drawings of the Secretary of State will amount to £17,200,000 in the current year and to £18,700,000 in the coming year, making £35,900,000 in the two years. The large amount of these drawings may give rise to the erroneous belief that there has been a great and permanent increase in the Home charges. This is not the case. The Home Expenditure of the last four years has been as follows:—

1890-91	15,568,875
1891-92	15,974,699
1892-93 (Revised Estimate)	16,563,600
1893-94 (Budget Estimate)	15,843,800

The increased drawings are largely due to payments for Railway stores, and to repayments of money received in former years from Railway Companies, and such repayments, though inconvenient at the present time and involving a considerable temporary addition to the Home charges, will have a beneficial effect on the balance of India's indebtedness in the future.

36. I have already explained that our position in the coming year depends almost entirely on the course of exchange, and though I must recur to the subject again, I have no intention of adding to the mass of literature that has grown up in connection with the currency question.

The arguments for, and against, an International settlement of that question, and the arguments for, and against, independent action on the part of India, appear to me to have been exhausted. Every scheme that it has been possible for human ingenuity to devise has been elaborated with the utmost care, and pressed on the attention of a perplexed and suffering public as being, in the opinion of its authors, a safe and infallible remedy for undoubted evils. I must plead guilty in my own case to having added something to the burdens of the patient public, but I hope I have not, as sometimes happens in the heat of argument on the currency question, ever used language which conveyed the impression that I looked upon the man with whom I had the misfortune to differ in opinion as being necessarily a person of doubtful honesty and deficient in ordinary intelligence. If I have done so I retract and apologise. The matter is too serious to permit of any weight being attached to merely personal considerations and I think I may now fairly call on the disputants to recognise that the suit has, for the time being, passed beyond the stage of pleading and of argument, and that it only remains to await the decision of the tribunal. If the members of that tribunal decide that a remedy is possible by means of independent action on the part of India and should be tried, let us, whatever our private and personal opinions may be, accept that decision and loyally endeavour to give effect to it. In asking others to accept a decision which they may, possibly, not wholly approve, I am not requiring them to do something which I am not prepared to do myself. The remedy which I have always advocated, which I still prefer, and which I hope may some day be adopted, is the solution of the currency question by International agreement; yet this is the solution which at the present moment is not under consideration.

If, on the other hand, it be decided that, having regard to the interests of India in their widest sense, no remedy for our undoubted difficulties by means of independent action on the part of this country is practicable, or should be attempted, it will be our plain and obvious duty to address ourselves, as best we may, to the task of establishing, securing, and maintaining the integrity of the financial position of India. That task may be a heavy one, but difficulties that are met in the right spirit are already half overcome, and I have confidence in the resources of the country and in the industry of its people.

37. In the first Financial Statement which issued under my name just four years ago, after calling attention to the financial dangers that threatened us in connection with the question of Exchange and the fall of the Opium Revenue, I remarked that "if we could get rid of the Exchange difficulty, I should be prepared to adopt a hopeful view of the future, and if there were in addition no risk of a great war, I should look forward to our progress in coming years with as much confidence as it is ever safe to feel in financial matters."

In the following year when dwelling on the improvement that had taken place in the course of twelve months and on the grounds for expecting further improvement in the immediate future, I added the following words :—

"I fully recognize that we have difficulties of no slight magnitude still to meet, that the finances are exposed to many dangers, and that unforeseen disasters might for a time upset our calculations. There is every need for caution and for economy, and I should greatly regret if anything I now say, or have said in the past, conveyed the impression that the Government of India are in a position to embark on a policy of adventure of any description."

When I made these remarks the tide of Indian financial prosperity was rising, and it was held in some quarters that the policy I advocated was unnecessarily timid. The remission of taxation, it was said, would relieve the springs of industry, and public works should be vigorously prosecuted with funds raised by gold loans in London.

One of those disasters the occurrence of which a study of the history of the Indian finances, and more than twenty years' practical experience of their working, had taught me to regard as possible at any moment, and on the shortest warning, has now come upon us, and I do not think the critics will look back with much satisfaction to the opinions they formerly expressed; for my part I have no wish to dwell on the subject, and I recall the matter at the present time merely with the object of adding force to what I have now to say.

Even under present circumstances, when the horizon is dark with the approach of what may prove to be the greatest financial convulsion of the present century, I do not draw back from the opinion I formerly expressed that the revenues of India are adequate to meet her wants; but I wish to say in the most emphatic terms that if the Ship of State is to pass successfully through the storm which she is now entering, our measures must be taken in due time, must be regulated by prudence and forethought, and must be carried into execution with strict regard to economy.

PART II.

IMPERIAL, PROVINCIAL, AND LOCAL REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Section I.—Accounts of 1891-92.

38. The Revised Estimates for the year 1891-92 showed a deficit of Rx. 80,000. In announcing that deficit in last March, I stated my belief that the Final Accounts would show an improvement, and that it was more than probable that equilibrium would be secured. In June the Under-Secretary of State for India was able to announce in Parliament that this expectation had been realized, and he estimated the surplus of the year at Rx. 354,000. The actual surplus has proved slightly higher, being Rx. 467,535.

39. Explanations of the variations under the several heads will be found in the Appropriation Report, published in the Gazette of India of the 18th instant. The following statement contains a general comparison of the Revised Estimates with the Accounts of the year :—

		Revised Estimate.	Accounts.	Accounts Better.	Accounts Worse.

Surplus or Deficit	Rx.	—80,000	+467,535	547,535	...

1891-92, Results.

40. The improvement in the Revenue and Expenditure in India was Rx. 422,900, of which Rx. 220,576 occurred in the Provincial and Local section of the Accounts, and Rx. 202,324 in the Imperial section. The improvement in the Revenue and Expenditure in England amounted to Rx. 345,211. The two amounts last mentioned make up the final improvement of Rx. 547,535, which converted the estimated deficit of Rx. 80,000 into a surplus of Rx. 467,535.

1891-92, in India

41. Most of the heads of Revenue contributed to the increase of Rx. 553,960 in the Revenue in India. The largest increases occurred under the Principal Heads of Revenue, Rx. 190,849 (Rx. 85,274 of which was in Land Revenue), and under Railways Rx. 283,089.

1891-92, Expendi India.

42. In the Revised Estimates for the year, there was an under-estimate of the Military Expenditure in India of Rx. 116,062. Smaller variations under other heads result in a net increase of Rx. 14,998. These two sums together make up the amount, Rx. 131,060, shown as increase of expenditure in India in the table in paragraph 39.

Expenditure in England.

43. The decreases of expenditure in England Rx. 218,701 and in Exchange on it Rx. 123,087, are explained by the refusal of the War Office to receive in the year 1891-92 the sum provided in the Revised Estimate to pay off the claims of the War Office on account of British Forces serving in India.

1891-92, Expenditure not charged to Revenue.

44. The Capital Outlay on Railways and Irrigation Works, not charged to Revenue, was Rx. 3,500,000 as entered in the Revised Estimates.

Section II.—Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

45. The following statement compares the figures of the Budget and Revised Estimates of 1892-93 for Revenue and Expenditure in India and in England :—

1892-93, General Results.

46. The considerable deficit which is now anticipated in 1892-93 may be ascribed to the fall in the rate of exchange. Had the rate of 1*s*. 4*d*. the rupee, which was taken in estimating last March, been realised, a surplus appreciably larger than that shown in the Budget Estimate would have been secured.

The Revenue has shown satisfactory progress in the year, almost every head showing an increase: and the Expenditure in India as a whole has been kept below the Estimate. The portion of these improvements which occurs on the Imperial section of the Estimates is more than sufficient to cover the increase in the sterling Expenditure in England with Exchange on it at the rate of 1*s*. 4*d*. the rupee. The increase in net Expenditure caused by the fall in the rate of Exchange from 1*s*. 4*d*. to 1*s*. 3*d*. the rupee (the effect of that fall on the head XXIV—Exchange being neglected) amounts to Rx. 1,635,300, which is Rx. 553,400 in excess of the deficit of the Revised Estimate. Consequently if that fall had not occurred, instead of a deficit, there would have been a surplus of over Rx. 550,000.

1892-93, Revenue in India.

47. The Revenue in India is now expected to be Rx. 1,616,300 in excess of the Estimate made in March last. Of this amount, an increase of Rx. 1,023,800 occurs in Imperial Revenue, and of Rx. 592,500 in Provincial and Local Revenue.

1892-93, Decreases of Revenue in India.

48. The only important decreases of Revenue in India are (1) one of Rx. 75,000 under Customs, for which diminished exports of rice from Burma account, and (2) one of Rx. 120,700 under XXIV—Exchange. It is very difficult to frame satisfactory estimates under the head XXIV—Exchange. The factors influencing the amount of the gain taken to that head, or of the loss taken to the corresponding charge head, 31—Exchange, as the case may be, are—

(1) The amounts of the withdrawals of Capital by Railway Companies for expenditure. It is possible to make an estimate of these amounts, though considerable variations are found to occur frequently, the Companies requiring more or less money than they anticipated at the beginning of the year.

(2) The amounts of payments to Railway Companies for Revenue Stores. These can be estimated on the basis of past experience, but are subject to variations.

(3) The rates of exchange fixed by the several contracts with the Companies for the adjustment of Capital and Revenue transactions. The rates for the adjustment of withdrawals of Capital in India are in most cases fixed definitely by the contracts, but the rates for the adjustment of withdrawals of Capital in England and for the adjustment of Revenue transactions depend on the course of exchange in the half-year immediately preceding that of the occurrence of the transactions.

(4) The amounts of the transactions other than those of Railway Companies which enter into the Remittance Account with London. These can be estimated from past experience, but are subject to variation from various causes.

(5) The rate of exchange fixed annually for the adjustment of transactions between India and England. This is known beforehand.

(6) The average rate of exchange at which the Secretary of State sells his Bills on India during the year. This cannot be foreseen with any accuracy.

The differences between the actual average rate of exchange, (6), and the other rates of exchange mentioned applied to the amounts of the transactions concerned give the gain or loss by Exchange entered under one or other of the two heads.

Of the total reduction of Rx. 120,700 below the Budget Estimate of the current year for this uncertain head of Revenue, the decrease occurring in connection with the transactions of Railway Companies is Rx. 70,900, and that in connection with other payments and receipts on the Remittance Account is Rx. 49,800.

1892-93, Increases of Revenue in India.

49. The more important increases of Revenue are—

	Rx.
Land Revenue, including that due to Irrigation	203,300
Opium	331,900
Salt	103,900
Stamps	228,600
Excise	101,200
Forests	60,400
Mint	99,400
State Railways	235,500
Irrigation—Major Works, Direct Receipts	164,000
Army receipts	51,100

The increase in Land Revenue is the consequence partly of a favourable season, and partly of settlement operations having resulted in larger increments of Revenue than anticipated. All Provinces, except the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, contribute to the increase, but the Province showing the largest increase is Burma: in addition to a specially large increase from settlement operations and extensions of cultivation, the Revised Estimates for that Province include arrears of the rent due by the Ruby Mines Company amounting to Rx. 20,000.

The price of Opium rose very much after March last: the average price realised at the monthly sales of Bengal Opium has been R1,247 a chest as compared with the estimated price of R1,050; and the receipts in Bengal have consequently exceeded the Estimate by Rx. 422,200, notwithstanding the reduction from October last in the quantity offered for sale each month. The increase in Bengal is partially counterbalanced by a falling off in Bombay consequent on a diminution of the exports of Malwa opium.

The increase under Salt occurs in the Northern India Salt Department, from which the issues have been unusually high. In Bombay the issues have fallen off largely from those of 1891-92, and in Madras, Bengal and Burma to a smaller extent.

The Stamp Revenue has increased in almost every Province and notably in Madras, Bengal, and Bombay.

The Excise Revenue has also increased in most Provinces, especially Bengal, Lower Burma, and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. The Revenue in Madras, however, is expected to be Rx. 50,000 less than the Budget Estimate.

The increase under Forest has been secured in Burma. The season in Lower Burma has been a specially favourable one for floating timber down the rivers.

The Mint Receipts have increased because the amount of silver tendered for coinage has been considerably above the average.

The falling-off in the Railway Revenue from the exceptional amount realised in 1891-92 has not been so great as it was deemed prudent to assume in the Budget Estimate.

The increase under Irrigation is ascribed partly to the recovery of arrears in Orissa, but mainly to the area irrigated from the canals in the Punjab and in the North-Western Provinces having been greater than was anticipated.

The Army Receipts are uncertain. The receipts from the sales of cattle and remounts and of Commissariat and Ordnance Stores, from issues of malt liquor and from arms issued to the Police, will be greater than anticipated.

1892-93, Revenue in England

50. The small increase in the Sterling Receipts occurs chiefly in Telegraph Revenue, Superannuation Fund Subscriptions, and Miscellaneous Store Receipts.

1892-93, Expenditure in India.

51. The expenditure in India is expected to be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 492,300. Of this amount a decrease of Rx. 286,900 occurs in the Imperial Expenditure and of Rx. 205,400 in the Provincial and Local Expenditure.

The decrease is the net result of a number of decreases and increases.

1892-93, Decreases of Expenditure in India.

52. The more important decreases are as follow :—

	Rx.
Land Revenue	74,800
Opium	640,000
Forest	75,100
Police	54,000
Education	51,109
Famine Relief	53,200
State Railways, Working Expenses	76,400
Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure	70,100

The decrease under Land Revenue occurs in all Provinces except Bengal (where there has been an increase of Expenditure on Surveys and Settlements), and Burma (where the large increase of Revenue has involved increased Expenditure in collection), and is due partly to new measures not being introduced so soon as expected and partly to Local Governments making rather liberal provision in the Budget Estimates for the existing scale of expenditure.

The decrease under Opium is due to the failure of the Opium crop in Bengal. This failure necessitated a considerable reduction in the quantity of opium offered for sale at the monthly sales, beginning with the sale of October last.

The Budget Estimates made too liberal provision for the expenditure under Forest, especially in Bombay and Madras, in which Provinces the Revenue is also less than the Estimate.

Under Police the Expenditure will exceed the Budget Estimate by Rx. 22,800 in Bengal, where the provision made for the charges in South Lushai has proved to be insufficient by Rx. 500 in Assam, this small excess being also caused by increased charges in the Lushai country, and by Rx. 15,900 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where a scheme of reorganisation not provided for in the Budget Estimates has been sanctioned and brought partially into operation. In other Provinces the Police Expenditure will generally fall short of the Budget provision: the reasons are the same as those given for the decrease in Land Revenue Expenditure.

The decrease under Education is distributed over nearly all the Provinces, and may also be ascribed to too liberal provision in the Budget Estimates.

The decrease under Famine Relief occurs because the favourable rains in Madras rendered it unnecessary to utilise fully the amount provided by the Madras Government in view of the unfavourable prospect which existed in March last. In Bombay also the provision made was not required. On the other hand the Local expenditure in Bengal has been greater than the estimate, and in Ajmere and Rajputana some expenditure has been incurred under this head in addition to that on Public Works undertaken to provide labour for persons in distress.

The reduction of Expenditure on State Railways—Working Expenses occurs on the North-Western Railway on which the traffic has been exceptionally light this year: on other Railways generally the improvement in the traffic has caused an increase of both the Working Expenses and the Receipts.

The decrease under Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure is caused by the transfer to the account of the Assam-Bengal Railway Company of the amount spent on the survey of the line by the Government of India before the Company was formed. The actual expenditure in the year on Railway Surveys is higher than the Budget Estimate, as some new surveys not included in the Estimate were begun.

1892-93—Increase of Expenditure in India.

53. The savings of which the more important items are explained in the preceding paragraph are to a considerable extent counterbalanced by increases under other heads. Of these the more important are—

	Rx.
Interest on Debt	56,800
Political	50,500
Irrigation—Minor Works	43,100
Army	5,15,500

The excess under Interest arises in connection with the successful conversion of the larger part of the outstanding 4½ per cent. loans into 4 per cent. debt. The half-yearly dates for the payment of the 4 per cent. paper issued in exchange differ from the dates for the 4½ per cent. paper received in exchange, in such a way that the payment of a portion of one-half year's interest is made in the later months of 1892-93 instead of in the earlier months of 1893-94. There was also a charge, adjusted in India, of Rx. 9,600 for brokerage on the conversions effected in London. But for these non-recurring increases the conversion would have resulted in a saving of ½ per cent. per annum for nine months on the amount converted: in future years the saving will be ½ per cent. on the amount converted.

The increase under Political is caused by increase in the establishments at Gilgit (partly by transfer from the Military Estimates), by the occupation of the Kurram Valley, by missions on th North-West Frontier, and by expenditure in the Lushai country.

The increase under Irrigation—Minor Works—is due to expenditure in Upper Burma and Rajputana on works undertaken in consequence of the scarcity which occurred in those Provinces before the last rains.

The excess under Army is due to the following causes the approximate amounts for each being stated :—

		Rx.	Rx.
Expeditions.	Lushai	60,000
	Isazai	50,000
	Kajuri Kach	100,000	262,600
	Kurram	45,000
	Manipur (arrears)	7,600
	Transport and supply arrangements for feeding the Indian and Kashmir troops in Gilgit		78,400
	The new system of supply of clothing to British troops		20,500
	Purchase of additional horses, and other smaller grants		10,000
	Rise in the price of food for men and animals and an increase in the number of transport animals to be fed		150,000

1892-93, Provincial and Local Adjustments.

54. The sum of Rx. 797,900 entered opposite "Adjustment of Provincial and Local Surplus or Deficit" represents the amount by which the reduction of their accumulated balances by Local Governments has been less than they proposed when the Budget Estimates were framed. Of this improvement in the position of Local Governments increase of Revenue accounts for Rx. 592,500, and reduction in Expenditure for Rx. 205,400.

1892-93, Expenditure in England.

55. The increase of £613,200 in the Expenditure in England is accounted for by the increases under the following heads :—

Interest on debt	37,600
Marine	123,400
Superannuation	81 900
Army Effective charges	237,900
„ Non-effective charges	189,900

The increase under Interest is due to the discount and commission charges of £43,900 on the sterling loan of £1,300,000 raised during the year for advances to Railway Companies and discharge of Railway Debentures, the provision made for interest on temporary loans, on the other hand, not being required.

The increase under Marine is caused by payments for the construction of the troop-ships Warren Hastings and Minto and the dredger Mud Turtle, which were not provided for in the Estimate.

Under Effective Army charges, £208,000 of arrears of payments to the War Office, which it was intended to pay in 1891-92, have been paid this year: the payments of furlough allowances are expected to exceed the Estimate in consequence of the payment of allowances monthly instead of quarterly which has the effect of causing the allowances due for the last two months or so of 1892-93 to be paid within the year instead of in the early months of the following year: the payments for Clothing, Commissariat and Medical Stores are increased by £78,600: and, on the other hand, the amount provided for Ordnance Stores is expected to be less by £86,000, representing payments postponed to next year.

The increase in the non-effective Army charges is due to the payment of pensions monthly instead of quarterly, as explained above in regard to furlough allowances.

The increase under Superannuation Charges is also due to the cause just mentioned.

1892-93, Exchange.

56. The net charge for Exchange on the Revenue and Expenditure in England is Rx. 9,811,400, being an increase of Rx. 1,936,600 over the Budget Estimate of Rx. 7,874,800. Of this increase the sum of Rx. 301,300 represents the Exchange at the Budget rate of 1*s.* 4*d.* the rupee on the net increase of sterling Expenditure, and the remainder, Rx. 1,635,300, is due to the fall in the rate to 1*s.* 3*d.* the rupee.

Section III.—Budget Estimate of 1893-94.

1893-94, General Results.

57. The following statement compares the Revenue and Expenditure in India and in England in the Budget Estimate of 1893-94 with that in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93:—

The reasons which have led the Government of India to take the very unusual course of adopting a Budget Estimate which results in a large deficit have been explained in Part I. A very substantial development of revenue is taken credit for. The increase of expenditure is also considerable; it would, however, have been more than covered by the increase in Revenue, but for the serious addition to the Exchange on sterling expenditure caused by the fall in the rate from 1*s.* 4*d.* to 1*s.* 2⅞*d.* the rupee.

1893-94, Revenue in India.

58. The Estimates for next year anticipate an increase of Revenue in India over the Budget Estimate of 1892-93 of Rx. 1,624,200. Of this amount, an increase of Rx. 934,500 occurs in Imperial Revenue, and of Rx. 689,700 in Provincial and Local Revenue.

1893-94, Decreases of Revenue in India.

59. There is only one important decrease of Revenue, namely, that under Opium, of Rx. 318,400. Of this, the larger part, Rx. 207,000, is caused by the reduction in the quantity of Bengal Opium to be offered for sale necessitated by the failure of the crop last year and the exhaustion of the reserve: had it not been for the considerable rise in the price of opium which enables us to count on securing a higher average price next year than that taken last March, the decrease in the Bengal Opium Revenue would have been very much larger. The remainder of the decrease is caused by the heavy falling-off in the exports of Malwa Opium from Bombay and by the change in the Lower Burma Opium regulations described in paragraph 71 below.

A decision of the Government which leads to an appreciable diminution of Revenue may be mentioned here. It has been decided that officers who are entitled to make family remittances through the Government may do so at the rate of Exchange of 1*s.* 4⅜*d.* the rupee, instead of at 1*s.* 2⅝*d.*, the rate fixed for the adjustment of transactions between England and India in 1893-94. This concession will it is estimated cost Rx. 77,700 and reduces the receipts under XXIV—Exchange by that amount. The increase in the receipts under that head in connection with the Railway Companies' transactions, however, more than counterbalances this loss, and the receipts under XXIV—Exchange in the Estimates for 1893-94 are slightly higher than in the Budget Estimates for 1892-93.

It may be mentioned also that the rate of 1*s.* 4⅜*d.* will be applied to the payment of furlough and absentee allowances in England as well as to remittances: the additional Expenditure entailed will appear in the sterling charges, which would be less were the official rate of exchange, 1*s.* 2⅝*d.*, applied to the calculation of the allowances due.

1893-94, Increases of Revenue in 1893-94.

60. The following are the more important increases of Revenue which are anticipated in the Budget Estimate:—

	Rx.
Land Revenue including that due to Irrigation . . .	592,900
Stamps	204,500
Provincial Rates	84,000
Telegraph	58,200
Railways, State and Guaranteed	722,600

The increase in Land Revenue is distributed over all Provinces except the North-Western Provinces. The Estimates for each Province will be noticed more in detail in paragraph 67.

It is believed safe to assume that most of the increase in Stamp Revenue in 1892-93 will be retained in 1893-94.

The Receipts under Provincial Rates generally rise or fall with the Receipts on account of Land Revenue, and the increase of Rx. 84,000 is contributed to by nearly all the Provinces.

Under Telegraph a moderate normal increase of Revenue is taken in the Estimates.

Under Railways it is assumed that the Revenue shown in the Revised Estimate of 1892-93 will be realised in 1893-94, together with an increase consequent on the increased mileage open and on specific circumstances expected to develope the traffic on lines already opened.

1893-94, Expenditure in India.

61. The increase of Expenditure in India over the Budget Estimate of 1892-93 amounts to Rx. 1,114,900, composed of an increase of Rx. 835,700 in the Imperial Expenditure and Rx. 279,200 in the Provincial and Local Expenditure.

1893-94, Decreases of Expenditure in India.

62. The decreases of Expenditure in India, which it has been found possible to secure next year, are unfortunately not large. The only important ones are—

	Rx.
Assignments and Compensations	37,800
Interest on Debt	256,800
Famine Relief	89,500
Construction of Railways charged against Revenue . .	226,400
Irrigation—Minor Works	93,600

The saving under Assignments and Compensations is secured by the stoppage of the Goa Subsidy of Rx. 40,000 and the Customs Tariff Compensation of about Rx. 6,000 payable to the Indo-Portuguese Government under the treaty of 1879, which was abrogated with effect from the 15th January 1892. The saving of the subsidy in 1892-93 was counterbalanced by the payment of arrears of the Customs Tariff Compensation under the treaty, and of compensations to the owners of Salt Pans which were claimable under the treaty on its termination. Some of these last-mentioned compensations will remain over for settlement in 1893-94 as the assessment of the amounts due takes time.

The decrease under Interest is due to the amount transferred from Ordinary to Public Works Debt on account of the Capital outlay on Railways and Irrigation Works, and to a saving of Rx. 54,000 secured by the conversion, in July last, of Rx. 10,792,490 of the 4½ per cent. Loan into 4 per cent. Paper.

The scarcity which prevailed in March last in Madras and other Provinces rendered it necessary to make a considerable provision for Famine Relief in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. Fortunately that necessity does not exist now. But the Governments of Madras and Bengal have judged it prudent to enter Rx. 30,000 and Rx. 10,000 respectively for possible Famine Relief next year as a precautionary measure.

Of the decrease under Construction of Railways charged against Revenue Rx. 118,300 is Imperial. In the general position of the finances as disclosed in this statement, it was impossible to allot anything from Revenue for the construction of Railways, and the Capital outlay next year has accordingly to be restricted to the grant not charged to Revenue and the sum available from the Famine Insurance Grant. The remainder of this decrease is Provincial: so large a provision as last year is not required for the Mayaveram-Mutupet Railway in Madras and the Hyderabad-Umarkot Railway in Bombay.

The Budget grant for Imperial Expenditure on Irrigation--Minor Works in 1892-93 included Rx. 44,000 for Famine Relief Works in Ajmere and Rajputana. It is not necessary to make a similar provision next year. Several of the Local Governments have also reduced their Provincial Expenditure under this head below the Budget Estimate of 1892-93.

1893-94, Increases of Expenditure in India.

63. The more important increases of Expenditure in India are—

	Rx.
Land Revenue	81,400
Political	61,700
State Railways—Working Expenses	208,700
" " Interest	180,400
Military Works	58,500
Civil Works	140,800
Army	686,800

The increase under Land Revenue is due to expenditure on Surveys and Settlements in several Provinces, and to increased expenditure being necessary to collect the increased receipts.

The increase under Political is mainly caused by an increase of the Civil staff at Gilgit (partly by transfer from the Military Estimates), by the occupation of the Kurram Valley, by the demarcation of the Burma-Siam boundary, and by increased expenditure on Imperial Service Troops.

Of the increases in State Railway Expenditure that for Working Expenses is required to earn the anticipated higher revenue, and that for Interest is a transfer from Ordinary Debt, following the yearly addition to the Capital Expenditure.

Of the increase under Military Works a portion is counterbalanced by a decrease in the sterling Expenditure in England, and the remainder is explained by the fact that a special deduction was made from the grant for 1892-93 in view of the excess expenditure in 1891-92.

The increase of Expenditure on Civil Works occurs entirely in the Provincial and Local section of the Accounts. The necessities of the position have compelled the Government of India to restrict Imperial Expenditure on Public Works. Burma and Assam are the Provinces in which the largest increases of Provincial Expenditure are proposed.

The last of the increases is the largest, that under Army. The main items of Expenditure accounting for the increase are—

	Rx.
Increased pay of British Troops owing to the fall in the rate of exchange from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 2¾d.	240,000
Grant of Armament pay to the Garrison Artillery necessitated by the similar grant in England	14,900
Increased expenditure on Ordnance establishment and stores	88,200
Increased cost of clothing British Troops under the new system promulgated in Army Circular No. 165 of 1892	27,100
A rise in the price of food for men and animals and an increase in the number of transport animals to be fed	70,000
An increase in the gross amount of pensions to Native soldiers and the payment of pensions in the Eastern Circle, Bengal, within the year for five quarters instead of for two half-years in consequence of the transfer of the payments to the Civil Department	23,500
Extension of grass-farming operations	13,500
The provision made for the cost of the Kajuri Kach and Kurram Valley Forces, and arrear charges of the Chin and Lushai Expeditions	174,000
Transport and supply arrangements for feeding the Indian and Kashmir troops in Gilgit	30,000
The reconstitution of the Hindustani Regiments	12,500
The provision of Rx. 18,800 instead of Rx. 6,800 for the transfer of the 1-1st Goorkha Regiment from Dharmsala to a more healthy Station	12,000

In the above list no item which does not amount to a lakh of rupees is mentioned. There are other smaller items of increase, and, on the other hand, there are a few items of decreased expenditure.

1893-94, Provincial and Local Adjustments

64. The entry of Rx. 410,500 opposite "Adjustment of Provincial and Local Surplus or Deficit" in the table in paragraph 57 means that the Local Governments propose to draw against their accumulated balances to a smaller extent than in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. This reduction of the drawings against balances is due entirely to the improvement of Provincial and Local Revenues: and is secured notwithstanding an increase of expenditure. The increase of Provincial and Local Revenues is Rx. 689,700 and the increase of Expenditure Rx. 279,200.

1893-94, Expenditure in England.

65. A decrease of £106,600 in the sterling expenditure in England is expected. A reduction of £54,400 occurs under Special Defence Works in consequence of the approaching completion of the payments due by India for the stores for the Aden Defence Works. Under Army there is a reduction of £97,000. The cause of this is a diminution by £270,000 in the payments for Ordnance stores. Considerable progress having been made with the re-armament of the Army in India, it may be hoped that these charges will still further decline in future years. On the other hand, the cost of other Military stores is increased by £66,300: payments for deferred pay are higher by £52,000, a consequence of the considerable augmentation of the strength of the British Army in India in 1885 and 1886; and the non-effective Army charges are increased by £56,300.

The Marine charges in England also show an increase of £39,700 mainly because of further heavy payments to be made on account of the Troopships Warren Hastings and Minto.

The variations in the remaining heads of the Home Estimates other than Marine, Army and Special Defences are smaller, and, on the whole, nearly counterbalance each other.

1893-94, Exchange.

66. The increase of Rx. 1,960,700 in the Exchange on Expenditure in England is due to the fall in the rate of exchange from 1*s.* 4*d.* to 1*s.* 2¾*d.* the rupee. Had it been possible to hope that Council Bills will be sold at an average rate of 1*s.* 4*d.* in 1893-94, the column for Exchange would have shown a small reduction proportionate to the decrease in sterling expenditure.

Section IV.—Examination of the Estimates under the more important heads of Revenue and Expenditure.

LAND REVENUE.

67. The Estimates for 1892-93 and for 1893-94, and the Actuals for the three preceding years, are shown in the following statement:—

	Accounts, 1889-90.	Accounts, 1890-91.	Accounts, 1891-92.	Budget Estimate, 1892-93.	Revised Estimate, 1892-93.	Budget Estimate, 1893-94.

Land Revenue in 1892-93.

The Budget Estimate for 1892-93 was higher than it otherwise would have been owing to the inclusion of arrears from the previous year, mostly in Madras, the collections having been postponed on account of scarcity. The south-west monsoon rains were favourable: such arrears, due to the scarcity, as have not been finally remitted have been collected except some in Ajmere; and the Revised Estimate is for an amount considerably in excess of the Budget Estimate. In Madras, though the Estimate of March last will be realised, the failure of the north-east monsoon is causing some anxiety in regard to a few districts, and prevents an increase over the Budget Estimate.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh is the only Province in which the collections this year will fall below the Budget Estimate: floods in two districts and the fact that the estimate for the recovery of arrears was rather high account for this falling off.

Land Revenue in 1893-94.

In all other Provinces the collections will appreciably exceed the Budget Estimate. The increase is explained mainly by the fact that the Estimates did not make sufficient allowance for the increases resulting from settlement operations and extension of cultivation.

In the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 a further considerable increase of Revenue is counted on. Except Bengal, where the increase is trifling, and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where there is a decrease of Rx. 26,400 owing to the amount of arrears to be recovered being taken at a lower figure, experience having shown that every year some considerable arrears remain uncollected, all Provinces contribute to the increase, the amounts being—

	Increase as compared with the Budget Estimate for 1892-93.
	Rx.
India (chiefly Ajmere and Biluchistan)	29,600
Central Provinces	30,400
Lower Burma	155,000
Upper "	55,000
Assam	88,400
Punjab	77,000
Madras	47,800
Bombay	132,300

The progress of settlement operations is the cause of these increases in most cases: in the Punjab there will also be some receipts from the sale of lands in the Gujranwala District in connection with the colonisation scheme for the utilisation of the newly opened Chenab Canal: (there were similar receipts this year which increased the Punjab Revenue in the Revised Estimate): in Sind and Burma larger revenue will be secured from extension of cultivation as well as from settlement assessments: and in Ajmere there are arrears to be collected.

Bengal Opium Revenue in 1892-93.

The Budget Estimate of the receipts from Bengal Opium was based on the assumption that 54,000 chests would be sold in the year at an average price of R1,050. Owing to the failure of the crop it became necessary to reduce the quantity to be sold each month to 3,642 chests, beginning with the sale of October 1892, and the total quantity sold in the year has accordingly been 48,852 chests only. On the other hand, the average price realised has been R1,247 a chest. The rise in price has more than counterbalanced the reduction in quantity, and in Bengal the Revised Estimate shows an increase of Rx. 422,200 over the Budget Estimate.

Bengal Opium Revenue in 1893-94.

For next year the present price and the recent course of prices justify the assumption of an average price of R1,250, or R200 a chest, higher than that taken in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. The reduction in the quantity to be sold is, however, so great that the receipts from the sales of Bengal Opium even at that price will be less than the Budget Estimate of this year by Rx. 207,000.

Bombay Opium Revenue in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The exports of Malwa Opium through Bombay have fallen much below the actuals of 1891-92. And although some falling off was anticipated, the receipts in Bombay in 1892-93 are now expected to be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 100,900. For next year the Bombay receipts are placed at the same figure as in the Revised Estimate of this year.

Opium Expenditure in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The Opium Expenditure consists almost entirely of the payments for Bengal Opium. The crop this year was again a poor one, and, as an average crop was estimated for, there has been a saving of Rx 639,800. For 1893-94 the Estimate again provides for the payments in connection with an average crop, it being too soon to forecast the outturn with confidence.

Salt Revenue in 1892-93.

The consumption of salt has increased considerably for India as a whole and the Revised exceeds the Budget Estimate by Rx. 103,900. The receipts are lower than last year in Madras, Bengal and Burma, and much lower in Bombay. The increase in the receipts of the Northern India Salt Department however more than counterbalances the falling off elsewhere, and it is probable that Northern India salt has in some tracts displaced Bombay and imported salt.

Salt Revenue in 1893-94.

The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 has been taken at a somewhat lower amount than the Revised Estimate for 1892-93.

The Stamp receipts in 1892-93 are expected to be in excess of the Budget Estimate by Rx. 228,600, the renewed improvement, which began in 1891-92 after the check in this head of Revenue in 1890-91, having continued this year. The increase this year being considerably in excess of the average, the Budget Estimate for next year has been placed slightly lower than the Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

Excise Revenue in 1892-93.

As in England so in India, the Excise Revenue shows a constant tendency to rise. The Revenue in 1892-93 is now expected to be Rx. 101,200 in excess of the Budget Estimate which was slightly below the actuals of 1891-92. The Punjab and Madras are the only Provinces which do not contribute to this increase. In the Punjab the decrease is nominal. In Madras the stoppage in the annual increment of Revenue which has occurred for several years is probably a consequence of the scarcity which was felt in that Province up to July last.

The increase is largest in Bengal where the stricter policy introduced some years ago, which had for a time the effect of reducing the Revenue, is now producing the usual result of augmenting it.

The next largest increase is in Lower Burma: the Budget Estimate allowed for a reduction of the Excise Revenue in that Province below the figure of 1891-92 because of certain measures designed to restrict the consumption of opium which were introduced rather more than a year ago: this expectation has not been fulfilled, and the Revenue in Lower Burma this year is expected to exceed that of 1891-92 by Rx. 33,300.

In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh some important changes of policy were introduced in the latter part of 1891-92. These changes were expected by the Local Government to result "in a very considerable decrease of Revenue during the first few years at least." Nevertheless the Revenue in 1892-93 will be Rx. 25,700 higher than that of 1891-92.

Excise Revenue in 1893-94.

The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 of Excise Revenue for the whole of India except Lower Burma is taken at an amount rather higher than the Revised Estimate for this year.

In Lower Burma it has been decided to make a very important change of policy, and to assimilate the rules regarding the sale, possession and consumption of opium to those in force in Upper Burma. The sale to and possession by persons of Burmese race will be generally prohibited. It is estimated that this change will involve an annual loss of Revenue of Rx. 150,000, of which Rx. 120,000 will occur under Excise and Rx. 30,000 under the head Opium. As the change was only finally decided on at the beginning of this month, and, as the necessary arrangements for its introduction require some time to complete, the Chief Commissioner fears that he will not be able to introduce the change for two or three months, and it has been assumed for the purpose of the Estimates that the change will not be made till 1st July: accordingly the loss of Revenue in 1893-94 has been taken at three-fourths of the amounts named above.

Customs Revenue in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The Customs Revenue has not done well this year on the whole; but the chief cause of the falling off in the Revenue as compared with the Budget Estimate for the year and with the actuals of 1891-92 is the diminished export of rice from Burma and Bengal. The crop in Burma is reported to be a good one but late, and the depression of trade in Europe is believed to have had some effect in retarding exports. Prices are high in Burma and Bengal, but low in Europe.

If the exports are only retarded, the Revenue next year should show some recovery: for this reason and because it is reasonable to expect that the special depression of the Customs Revenue which has occurred this year will to some extent disappear, the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 has been taken higher than the Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

Income Tax Revenue in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The increase of Revenue under this head, which ought to accompany growth in wealth and population, and more effective administration of the tax, has been secured this year and is assumed, to a smaller extent, in the Budget Estimate of next year.

Forest Revenue in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The increase in the receipts in 1892-93 occurs chiefly in Lower Burma, where the season was specially favourable for floating timber down the rivers. The recurrence of an equally favourable season in 1893-94 is not assumed in the Budget Estimate.

INTEREST.

Interest Revenue.

75. The Interest receipts since 1889-90 are shown below :—

		Accounts, 1889-90.	Accounts, 1890-91.	Accounts, 1891-92.	Budget Estimate, 1892-93.	Revised Estimate, 1892-93.	Budget Estimate, 1893-94.

Interest Revenue in India in 1892-93.

The Revised Estimate of Revenue in India is less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 43,300. The Guaranteed Railways did not find it necessary to overdraw their Capital account to the extent anticipated, and the receipts from Interest on overdrawn Capital are less than the Estimate by Rx. 35,800. The Government of the North-Western Provinces reduced the rate of interest on the loans to certain municipalities from 4½ to 4 per cent. and made a refund in order to give retrospective effect to the reduction. The receipts in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh are consequently less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 13,200. In other Provinces the Budget Estimate will be more than realised.

Interest Revenue in India in 1893-94.

The Bombay Port Trust have borrowed in the open market in order to repay the balance, amounting to Rx. 616,104, of a loan granted by Government some years ago, the favourable state of the money market enabling them to borrow at a lower rate than that fixed when the Government loan was made, and the Government have waived their right to receive the higher rate during the term of the loan, and agreed to accept repayment on 1st April next. This does not affect the Interest receipts in 1893-94, as the interest is payable yearly on 1st April, but it will reduce them in future years.

In 1893-94 the Railway Companies are not expected to overdraw their Capital account to a greater extent than this year, but the receipts of interest in India on loans to municipalities and agriculturists will increase with the yearly growth of the Capital amounts. The Governments of Bombay and Madras made in 1892-93 advances of very large amounts to agriculturists. The Government of India are anxious to extend these advances as much as possible, but the state of the balances renders it necessary to reduce the amounts available for the purpose in 1893-94 considerably below the amounts advanced this year.

Interest Revenue in England in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The receipts in England in the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 and in the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 are lower than last year and than the Budget Estimate of this year, because the rate of interest obtainable on temporary investments of the cash balance has been unusually low, and the balances are expected to be such next year that little money will be available for temporary investment.

Interest Expenditure.

76. The Expenditure under Interest (other than that charged to Railways and Irrigation Works) has been as follows since 1881-82 :—

YEAR.	India.	England.	Exchange.	TOTAL.

Interest Expenditure in India.

In addition to the decrease in the Interest charges in India caused by the annual transfer from the Ordinary to the Public Works Debt, a further saving of Rx. 54,000 a year has been secured by a reduction of ¼ per cent. in the rate of interest payable on Rx. 10,792,490 of the rupee debt.

In 1890-91 an offer was made to convert the 4½ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879 into 4 per cent. paper on certain terms: the offer was accepted by holders of paper of the value of Rx. 8,313,000; and the balance of the two loans outstanding was reduced by that amount, and on the 1st April 1892 stood at Rx. 12,126,817. Under the terms of the loans repayment can be made, after three months' notice, on 15th September 1893. In order to reduce the amount to be dealt with on that date a further offer for conversion into 4 per cent. paper was made, on terms less favourable to the holders than those of 1890, in the Notification No. 2290, dated 6th June 1892. Holders of paper for the amount of Rx. 10,792,490 accepted these terms. The result is that an annual saving of interest of Rx. 53,963 has been secured with effect from 30th June 1892, and that only a balance of Rx. 1,334,327 remains to be dealt with on 15th September next. For the reason explained in paragraph 53, the saving will not produce an effect on the Accounts until the year 1893-94.

Interest Expenditure in England.

The increase in the Expenditure in England in 1892-93 is caused by the discount on the sterling loan raised during the year.

The net Expenditure this year and next will not differ much from that of the Budget Estimate for 1892-93 or the Actuals of 1891-92. The steady progress of the Department necessitates an annual increase of Expenditure, and also secures an annual increase of Revenue.

Telegraph Revenue and Expenditure.

The position of the Telegraph Department in regard to progress of Revenue and Expenditure is similar to that of the Post Office. The increase of Revenue this year will be greater than that taken in the Budget Estimate, and a further increase is assumed in 1893-94.

The coinage in 1890-91 was exceptionally large: in 1891-92 it was small: this year it has again risen very high, and the total for the year will not fall very much short of that in 1890-91. The Estimate for 1893-94 is framed for an average coinage.

The value of silver bullion presented at the Mints for coinage has been as under in the last few years:—

General Administration Expenditure.

The Expenditure on General Administration,—the larger part of the Indian Expenditure is Provincial—necessarily rises with the increase of the administration in efficiency and complexity. Over 60 per cent. of the increases shown in the totals given above under the head in the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 and in the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 occurs in the Exchange on the Sterling Expenditure.

Law and Justice, Police, Education, and Medical Expenditure.

The Expenditure under Law and Justice, Police, Education, and Medical also tends to increase from year to year. The Expenditure on these heads is almost entirely Provincial and Local, and as the Local Governments are mostly in a flourishing financial position, the difficulties of finding funds to devote to the improvement of the administration and to meeting the growing wants of the country are not so great as in the case of Imperial Expenditure.

Marine Expenditure.

The increases under Marine are caused by the construction in England of the new vessels mentioned in paragraphs 55 and 65. In Bengal and Burma also expenditure is being incurred on the construction of a pilot vessel, a light-ship and steam-launches. The charges in other Provinces and of the Imperial Marine Department are not increasing.

Political Expenditure.

The reasons for the increase of Political Expenditure this year and next have been explained in paragraphs 53 and 63.

Furlough Allowances and Pension Expenditure.

The only heads in this group regarding which any explanation seems necessary are the second and third. In addition to the increase caused by the fall in exchange and, in the case of pensions, by the normal increase in the number of pensioners, the Expenditure under both these heads in the Revised Estimate is augmented by the practice recently introduced in England of paying the allowances monthly instead of quarterly. Pensioners have availed themselves of the concession to a smaller extent than officers on leave, and some provision is made in the Budget Estimate for pensioners making their election to draw monthly after the close of this year. The addition from this cause is not a permanent increase to the Expenditure, but occurs only while the change is being introduced.

Expenditure on Famine Relief.

The reduction in the amounts to be spent this year and next year on Famine Relief has been explained in paragraphs 52 and 62.

Loss on Famine Railways.

The increase in the net loss on the two Railways this year and next, as compared with the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, is mainly due to the fall in the rate of exchange, the Interest charges being payable in sterling.

Capital Expenditure on Protective Railways.

The balance available from the Famine Insurance Grant of Rx. 1,500,000 after meeting the charges for Famine Relief, Protective Irrigation Works, and the loss on the two Railways, is applied to Capital Expenditure on the construction of Railways.

Railways in 1892-93.

The net loss on the Railway Revenue Account in the current year is now expected to amount to Rx. 1,710,800 or Rx. 136,300 in excess of the loss taken in the Budget Estimate. The net traffic receipts of State Railways are increased by Rx. 311,900: the sterling payments of interest in England are less by £18,500, but the fall in Exchange causes an additional charge under Exchange amounting to Rx. 563,000. The surplus profits payable to the old Guaranteed Railway Companies are increased by Rx. 31,600. The Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure will be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 70,100, owing to a refund by the Assam-Bengal Railway Company of past outlay incurred by the State on Surveys of the line.

State Railways, 1892-93.

The gross traffic receipts of State Railways will probably exceed the amount entered in the Budget by Rx. 235,500, while the saving in working expenses will be Rx. 76,400.

The principal fluctuations in net receipts are the following:—

	Revised Estimate more (+) or less (—) than the Budget Estimate.
	Rx.
East Indian	+ 156,500
Rajputana-Malwa	+ 244,300
Mu Valley	— 30,500
Burma	+ 95,000
Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot	— 12,500
Patna-Gya	— 14,500
Oudh and Rohilkhand	— 10,000
Indian Midland	+ 12,500
Bengal Nagpur	— 35,000
North Western	—110,000
South Indian	+ 25,300

As was the case last year on the lines shewing a considerable increase, the principal cause of the improvement is heavier traffic in wheat and seeds. The increase on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway is almost entirely attributable to this cause. On the East Indian Railway there has also been an improvement in coaching traffic, and the absorption into this system of the Patna-Gya Railway accounts for a portion of the improvement. On the Burma Railway there has been an unusually brisk traffic in rice, more particularly during the later months.

The increase in the net receipts of the South Indian Railway is caused by reduction in working expenses owing to the extensive renewals allowed for not having been carried out.

The large decrease in the case of the North Western Railway is due to great depression in traffic caused by diminution of grain exports and by breaches of the line during the monsoon. The decrease in the case of the Mu Valley Railway is due to the estimates of receipts and working expenses having been based on insufficient data, while that in the case of the Bengal Nagpur is attributable to a partial local failure of crops.

The receipts on the Bengal and North Western and Tirhoot System are slightly in excess of the original estimate, but the Company's share of net earnings is higher than was anticipated, and the Government share smaller. The Patna-Gya Railway has been incorporated with the East Indian Railway from 1st July 1892. On the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway the receipts are higher than the original estimate, but the expenses have increased to a larger extent owing to heavy repairs and renewals of permanent-way.

Guaranteed Railways, 1892-93.

The Madras Railway and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway show improvements of Rx. 15,000 and Rx. 65,000, respectively, in net receipts. The gross earnings of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway exceed the Budget Estimate by Rx. 80,000 due chiefly to heavier traffic in seeds and cotton. Part of the improvement has been absorbed by increased charges for working. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway shows a decrease in net receipts of Rx. 80,000. There have been increased charges owing to renewals of engines, the fall in the rate of exchange, and payments to other lines of their shares of through traffic earnings.

State Railways, 1893-94.

In 1893-94 the gross receipts of State Railways are estimated at Rx. 512,100 more than in the Revised Estimate of 1892-93. The most noticeable variations in net receipts, from the Revised Estimate of 1892-93, are as follow:—

	Rx.
East Indian Railway	+45,000
Rajputana-Malwa Railway	—35,000
Oudh and Rohilkhand	+10,000
Indian Midland Railway	+20,000
North Western Railway	+75,000
Bengal Nagpur	+35,000
South Indian	+17,500
Southern Mahratta	+18,000

The expectation of so considerable an improvement over the probable receipts of this year may seem sanguine. But the several increases have been taken either—

(1) in consequence of additional mileage recently opened or to be opened next year; or

(2) in the case of more recently opened lines, in the hope that the average increase of receipts secured in past years will continue in 1893-94; or

(3) in the case of the older lines showing exceptionally bad results in 1892-93, by the expectation of a return to normal conditions in 1893-94, and it is believed that they will be secured. The traffic on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway during 1892-93 has been so specially favourable that it has not been considered prudent to anticipate such good results in 1893..

Guaranteed Railways, 1893-94.

The net traffic receipts of Guaranteed Railways are taken at Rx. 3,235,000, or Rx. 25,000 below the Revised Estimate of 1892-93. The estimate for the Madras Railway is the same as the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 In the case of the Bombay, Baroda Railwav, it has not been considered prudent to anticipate so large a traffic as in 1892-93, but the reduction in earnings has been to a large extent counterbalanced by a reduction in expenses owing to the completion in 1892-93 of repairs of damages by floods, the net result being a decrease of Rx 5,000 only. The net receipts of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway are estimated at Rx. 20,000 less than in 1892-93 in consequence of a larger provision for renewal of engines.

Irrigation Revenue and Expenditure in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The Revised Estimate of receipts is higher than the Budget Estimate for the current year by Rx. 187,600, the increase being due to extended irrigation in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab, Bombay, and Madras.

The decrease of Rx. 66,600 in the receipts for 1893-94, as compared with the Revised Estimate of the current year, is due mainly to the demand for water in the Punjab and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh having fallen off considerably owing to abundant rain in the autumn of 1892, and partly also to the fact that the realizations of the current year in Bengal have been swollen by collection of arrears.

The decrease would have been larger but for an increase of Rx. 90,300 in Madras, due to new settlements and extension of irrigation.

Net Earnings of Major Irrigation Works.

The gross receipts, working expenses, and net earnings of Major Irrigation works for the five years ending 1891-92 and the Revised and Budget Estimates for 1892-93 and 1893-94 are as follow:—

Revenue.

The improvement in Revenue in the Revised Estimates is due mainly to the sale of certain ferry plant and stores in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and to the sale of a Government building in Burma.

Expenditure.

The increase in Military Works expenditure in the Revised Estimate is due to large expenditure having been incurred in providing accommodation for troops in the Chin Hills. There is a decrease in Imperial Civil Works expenditure of Rx. 37,400, due mainly to transfer of grants to the head Minor Works and Navigation to provide for outlay on Famine Relief works in Upper Burma.

The Military Works Budget for 1893-94 provides for a small increase in expenditure, while the Civil Works Budget provides for an increased expenditure of Rx. 154,600, all of which is Provincial and Local, the Provincial balances, especially in Lower Burma and Assam, admitting of larger assignments for expenditure on public works.

	Revised "	559,300
1893-94	Budget "	536,600

The anticipated short expenditure during the current year is attributable to the expenditure in England on stores and armaments having been over-estimated.

The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 is less than the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 by Rx. 22,700.

The total expenditure on Special Defence Works being estimated at Rx. 5,030,000, if the amounts shown above for 1892-93 and 1893-94 are spent, there will remain Rx. 426,287 to be incurred in 1894-95 and future years.

Capital Expenditure on Railway Construction.

89. The following table gives the figures of the estimates for 1892-93 and 1893-94 for Capital Expenditure on Railways exclusive of sums found by Local Governments out of Provincial resources, the amounts charged to the Famine grant and to the head "37—Construction of Railways" being included for convenience, although charged to Revenue :—

	India.	England.	Exchange.	Total.
	Rx.	£	Rx.	Rx.
1892-93, Budget Estimate	2,542,000	1,382,000	691,000	4,615,000
1892-93, Revised Estimate	2,880,300	1,068,000	640,800	4,589,100
1893-94, Budget Estimate	1,980,200	1,151,800	722,300	3,854,300

Of the totals shown above the following amounts are taken as charges against the Famine Relief Grant namely, in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, Rx. 1,011,700, in the Revised Estimate, 1892-93, Rx. 993,900, and in 1893-94, Rx. 1,054,300.

The Capital Expenditure on Railways in 1892-93 will be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 25,900.

During the course of the year additional funds were allotted for the East Coast, Godhra-Rutlam, Tirhoot and East Indian Railways, but, on the other hand, the grant for the Assam-Bengal Railway was withdrawn on the transfer of that line to a Company, and the allotment was further reduced by the amount of the refund by that Company of the outlay incurred by the State in the previous year. The heaviest expenditure has been incurred on the East Coast, the Mu Valley, the Godhra-Rutlam, and the Mushkaf-Bolan Lines. The Villupuram-Guntakal Section of the South Indian Railway, the Dharmaveram-Hindupur Extension, and the Barsoe-Kissengunge Branch will be practically completed at the close of this year.

The provision for 1893-94 is less than the estimated expenditure during 1892-93 by Rx. 734,800. Large grants have been allotted to the East Coast, Mushkaf-Bolan, Mu Valley, Godhra-Rutlam, and Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad Railways, but, owing to the reduced grant available, work on the Mari-Attock line has been partially suspended. The funds allotted will, it is anticipated, be sufficient to advance work on the Godhra-Rutlam Railway and on the Jherriah Extension of the East Indian Railway, so as to admit of the lines being opened before the close of the year. A considerable length of the East Coast line will also be advanced sufficiently to admit of its being opened for public traffic, and the Lucknow-Rai Bareli line will be practically completed during the year.

1892-93, Council Bills.

The total estimate of the Secretary of State's drawings for the two years 1892-93 and 1893-94 is £35,900,000. To reduce to some extent the very large drawings in 1893-94 the Secretary of State has raised the drawings of the current year above the Budget Estimate of £17,000,000, and it is now expected that £17,200,000 will be drawn in 1892-93.

Sterling loans in 1892-93.

The Southern Mahratta Railway Company Debentures for £600,000, which it was intended, as stated in paragraph 99 of the last Financial Statement, to discharge on 31st March 1892 were renewed. The Secretary of State was consequently able to reduce the amount of the sterling loan of the year from £1,800,000 to £1,300,000. The loan was issued at an average price of £96-18*s.*-4½*d.* per cent.

1892-93, Capital transactions with Railway Companies.

92. The Capital transactions with the Railway Companies vary with the changes in the programmes of the Companies. The Estimates for 1892-93 as now prepared show an increase in the net receipts from the Companies of £239,200. The following statement shows the details of the transactions :—

Great Indian Peninsula Railway	435,000	352,800
Madras Railway	102,000	67,300
	1,430,300	950,600

The Assam-Bengal Railway Company was expected to raise its whole capital of £1,500,000 in 1892-93; £102,905 was, however, paid in March 1892, and only £1,179,000 is expected to be paid this year, leaving £218,095 to be paid hereafter. The receipts from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway are now expected to exceed the Budget Estimate by £169,200, fresh Capital having been raised to the extent of £209,600 in excess of the estimate, while debentures for £40,400 were renewed instead of being replaced by fresh capital. The reduction of £97,800 in the Capital receipts from the Madras Railway Company represents the value of debentures renewed instead of being replaced.

The payments for discharge of debentures of the Great Indian Peninsula and Madras Railways provided for in the Budget, were not required owing to the renewal of the debentures as already explained. The issues to the Companies for Expenditure depend necessarily on their actual requirements, which are not always foreseen with accuracy.

1892-93. Deposits and Advances.

The "Deposits and Advances" in 1892-93 are now expected to result in a net payment of £300 instead of a net receipt of £4,600 owing to smaller recoveries and larger advances on account of Expenditure in England on Defence works at Aden recoverable from the Imperial Government.

1892-93, Remittances to India.

There has been a large increase in the family remittances from India in 1892-93, owing to the fall of the market rate of exchange considerably below the rate fixed for the year for the adjustment of such transactions, but this increase was partially counterbalanced by a falling-off in the remittances by Money Orders. The net remittances from India were also affected by larger repayments in England of advances on account of Emigration of coolies and supplies to Her Majesty's ships of the East India Station, etc.

93. The following is the Budget Estimate of the Ways and Means of the Home Treasury for 1893-94:—

	Budget, 1893-94. £
Net Receipts.
Council Bills	18,700,000

On account of remittances from India	1,383,200
Add—Closing Balance	1,972,526
TOTAL	24,025,026

1893-94, Council Bills.

It is now estimated that the drawings of the Secretary of State in 1893-94 will be £18,700,000. The Budget Estimate of the current year provided for drawings amounting to £17,000,000.

Capital transactions with Railway Companies.

The very large increase next year is almost fully explained by the variations in the capital transactions of Railway Companies in the two years. In the last Financial Statement, credit was taken for a net receipt in 1892-93 from Railway Companies of £357,900, whereas according to the present Statement, there will be a net payment to the Companies in 1893-94 of £1,189,200.

Sterling loan in 1893-94.

It is the present intention of the Secretary of State to raise a loan of £1,300,000 in 1893-94 to be applied to the discharge of £729,000 Oude and Rohilkund Railway Debentures and £520,200 South Indian Railway Debentures falling due in the course of the year.

It should be understood that, in stating the present intentions of the Secretary of State no sort of pledge is given that he will adhere to the programme.

The headings in italics are connected with, and explained by, the corresponding figures of the Secretary of State's account in England. The others refer to purely Indian transactions.

8 Ways and Means in India in 1892-93. Main features.

95. We expect to close the year 1892-93 with a cash balance of Rx. 15,204,205 against Rx. 13,298,844 taken in the Budget Estimates of the year, being an improvement of Rx. 1,905,361. The more important items of variation from the Budget Estimates are:—

On the one hand an increase of Rx. 1,842,900 in the payments of Council Bills. For the bulk of this the fall in exchange is responsible, the sterling drawings having been increased by £200,000 only.

And on the other hand, an increase in the net revenue in India of Rx. 1,310,700, a reduction in the drawings of Provincial Governments on their accumulated balances of Rx. 797,900, a net receipt from Railway Companies on Capital Account of Rx. 29,400 instead of the net payment of Rx. 408,500 which was anticipated, an increase in the opening balance of Rx. 536,961 and other improvements in the net cash receipts which, though large in the aggregate, would require too much detail to be explained here.

Ways and Means in India in 1893-94. Main features.

96. In 1893-94 we have to provide for the payment of Council Bills Rx. 4,301,600 more than was required in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, about one-half of this being caused by the increase in the sterling drawings and one-half by the fall in the rate of exchange.

To meet this very heavy demand on our cash balances, we have a repayment of a loan of Rx. 616,100 by the Bombay Port Trust, a reduction of Rx. 410,500 in the excess of Provincial and Local Expenditure over Revenue, and some other improvements in net cash receipts.

For the remainder of the increased demand on the balances provision has been made by the entry of a loan of Rx. 3,000,000.

Council Bills, 1893-94.

97. As already explained in paragraphs 35 and 93, the increase in the amount of the Bills of the Secretary of State is not due to any increase in the sterling expenditure of the Government of India, but to the fact that whereas the Secretary of State this year received from Railway Companies on Capital Account more than he paid, the reverse will be the case in 1893-94.

Public Loan.

98. No public loan has been raised in India since 1889-90. The present estimates provide for a loan of three crores in 1893-94. But the Government of India are unable to say whether this is the exact amount that will be raised, and full liberty is reserved, as usual, to modify the present estimates to any extent that may be considered expedient, to increase or reduce the amount of the loan if necessary, and not to issue a loan at all if it should be found that none is required.

Savings Banks.

99. The following are the usual details of the transactions of Savings Banks during the last few years :—

YEAR.	Net additions to deposits cash.	Interest.	Total addition.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
1887-88	656,330	224,000	880,300
1888-89	685,200	261,800	947,000
1889-90	—362,900	272,200	—90,700
1890-91	250,700	279,700	530,400
1891-92	517,900	306,200	824,100
1892-93 Budget	459,400	333,800	793,200
1892-93 Revised	636,800	340,400	977,200
1893-94 Budget	438,600	372,400	811,000

The Post Office Savings Banks deposits continue to increase. The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 is taken at about the same amount as in that of 1892-93.

Loans to Municipalities, etc.

100. As stated in paragraphs 34 and 75, the Bombay Port Trust have taken advantage of the favourable state of the money market to raise a 4 per cent. public loan to repay Government the balance of a 4½ per cent. loan of Rx. 616,100. Excluding this special receipt in 1893-94, the net amount of advances in 1893-94 is taken at Rx. 327,900 against Rx. 611,500 entered in the Estimate of 1892-93. The gross amount placed at the disposal of Local Governments and Administrations for advances to Local Bodies, etc., in 1893-94 is Rx. 608,200, being Rx. 54,700 less than the amount entered in the Budget Estimate of the current year. Larger amounts, if available, could be advantageously allotted for advances and loans to cultivators and municipalities, but unfortunately the state of the Government balances does not permit of further amounts being granted at present. The large excess over the Budget of the amount entered in the Revised Estimate of 1892-93 on account of loans to municipalities, etc., is due chiefly to an additional loan having been sanctioned during the year for the Kidderpore Docks, and also to increased advances to agriculturists in Madras and Bombay.

Capital of Railway Companies.

101. The Capital transactions of Railway Companies in 1892-93 are now expected to produce a net receipt in India of Rx. 29,400 instead of a net payment of Rx. 408,500 provided in the Budget Estimate. This is due generally to smaller withdrawals by the Companies and to some extent to the receipt from the Mysore Durbar of Rx. 44,300, being the value of the Nanjangod extension of the Mysore Railway.

Cash balances.

102. The current year is now expected to close with a cash balance of Rx. 15,204,205, and for 1893-94 a closing balance of Rx. 12,643,105 is taken. The estimated transactions of the year thus result in a reduction in the balances of Rx. 2,561,100.

Section VII.—Summary.

103. The principal features in this Statement are—

(a) The Accounts of 1891-92 have closed with a surplus of Rx. 467,535.

(b) The Revised Estimates of 1892-93 show a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900 against the surplus of Rx. 146,600 shown in the Budget Estimates of the year. The sterling Expenditure has considerably exceeded the Budget Estimates; the Expenditure in India has on the whole been less than the Estimates, a considerable increase in Military Expenditure having been more than counterbalanced by a large saving in Opium Expenditure in consequence of the failure of the crop: the Revenue has shown satisfactory progress. If the rate of exchange taken in the Budget Estimate, 1*s.* 4*d.* the rupee, had been realised, there would have been a surplus somewhat higher than that shown in the Budget Estimates. But the fall in the rate of exchange to 1*s.* 3*d.* has caused an increase of Expenditure of Rx. 1,635,300 and converted the surplus into a heavy deficit.

(c) The Budget Estimates of 1893-94 show a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100.

(d) The main cause of the deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 is the fall in the rate of exchange. The Currency question is now under the consideration of the Secretary of State. Till he has decided what action, if any, should be taken in regard to the currency, it is impossible to say whether the deficit in the coming year will be of the amount shown in the Budget Estimate, or whether it will be largely increased, or will disappear and become a surplus. The decision of the Secretary of State is expected to be not much longer delayed, and in the circumstances just stated, the Government of India have postponed for the present the determination of the measures to be taken to place the finances in equilibrium.

(e) The rate of exchange is taken at 1*s*. 2¾*d*, and at that rate the direct addition to the expenditure caused by the fall from 1*s*. 4*d*. is estimated at Rx. 1,989,400.

(f) The sterling Expenditure will be somewhat less than in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. The Expenditure in India will, on the other hand, be considerably higher. The estimate of net revenue from Opium is taken at Rx. 5,061,200, being lower than the amount taken for any of the last 22 years. A substantial improvement in Railway Revenue and in the Revenues generally is anticipated.

(g) The Capital Expenditure on Railways and Irrigation Works, not charged against Revenue, is estimated at Rx. 3,986,700 in 1892-93 and at Rx. 3,550,000 in 1893-94. These sums are in addition to Rx. 1,215,400 charged against Revenue and the Famine Grant in 1892-93, and Rx. 1,119,300 charged against the Famine Grant in 1893-94.

(h) It is expected that the Secretary of State will in 1893-94 sell Council Bills to the amount of £18,700,000 and raise a loan of £1,300,000 for the discharge of Railway Debentures. These announcements are accompanied by the usual reservation of entire liberty to the Secretary of State to vary the amounts to be obtained by bills or raised by loan as he may find occasion.

(i) The Estimates provide for the issue of a loan in India of Rx. 3,000,000. Full liberty is, however, reserved to the Government of India to raise a smaller or a larger loan, or not to raise a loan at all if it should appear later that none is required.

(j) The dominant factor influencing the financial position of India at the present time is the rate of Exchange. If that rate rises as high as 1*s*. 4*d*., the deficit shown in the Budget Estimates will disappear. If it falls still further, the deficit will be further increased: it is impossible for the Government of India to decide what measures should be taken for the restoration of financial equilibrium until the Home authorities have given their decision on the currency question.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 11th, 1893.

During the period under review the fairly fine weather which prevailed during the previous week disappeared, and conditions became very unsettled throughout a large part of Northern and Central India. A well-marked depression appeared over the Western Desert and passed slowly eastward across the country. This disturbance drew the wind into east over the Gangetic plain; etc., and rain fell very generally over Northern and Central India. On the Hills snow was received and the weather was abnormally cold almost everywhere.

The chart of Sunday, March 5th, showed a deepish depression overlying the Western Desert the centre being near Deesa, while a shallow subsidiary depression lay near Peshawar. The winds were cyclonic over North-West India, south-easterly up the Gangetic plain, and variable elsewhere. Light rain had fallen over Baluchistan, part of the Punjab, and at most of the Central Provinces' stations, and except at Chanda, where 2·71 inches was reported, the amounts were moderate or small. On the 6th pressure was rising over the Indus Valley, over the Peninsula and over Burma, and was falling elsewhere. The depression over the Western Desert was still shown, but that over the north of the Punjab had disappeared, and the area of highest pressure was established in the neighbourhood of Peshawar. A small local depression was also shown over Central India, the centre lying between Nowgong and Sutna. The direction of the wind over Northern and Central India was largely determined by the depression over the Western Desert, while in the Peninsula the directions were variable. In Assam and Burma the wind was north-easterly and northerly. Showers were very widely distributed, rain being reported from a large part of the Punjab, Rajputana, the Central Provinces, and the south of the Peninsula. On the next day, the 7th, pressure was rising over most of Northern India and falling elsewhere. Pressure was highest over the Punjab, and lowest over Ceylon and the south of the Bay. A fairly general easterly current of wind prevailed, the force being fresh to strong at several stations. Rain was again widely distributed, being reported over the Punjab, west of the North-West Provinces, central parts of the country and the Peninsula. Snow was reported from the hill stations. The chart of the 8th showed irregular changes in pressure, but the general distribution was little altered. North-westerly winds began to re-appear over the Gangetic plain, but elsewhere the directions were generally from some easterly point. The weather had cleared over North-Western India and snow had ceased on the Hills, but over the central parts of the country and the Peninsula thunder showers had occurred.

On the morning of the 9th the barometer was rising over North-East India and the east of the Peninsula. It was changing irregularly elsewhere. Pressure was highest over the Punjab and lowest over the south of the Bay, gradients being rather steep. The wind continued generally easterly (between north-east and south-east) except in parts of North-West India. Rain was reported from Baluchistan, from Bengal, from Central Provinces, and from several places in the Peninsula. The amounts were considerable in South-West Bengal and the Nizam's Dominions, and generally moderate or small elsewhere. On Friday, the 10th, pressure was giving way almost everywhere. Readings remained highest over Northern India and lowest in the extreme south, so that gradients for easterly winds still prevailed. Rain had almost ceased in Bengal and the Peninsula, but was still reported from Baluchistan and Rajputana, from Guzerat and the Central Provinces, and the Bombay Deccan. In the last named district the amounts were considerable. On Saturday, the 11th, pressure was still falling and the general distribution was little changed. Wind was north-westerly and northerly around a large part of the Bay, but elsewhere directions were still between north-east and south-east. Widely-distributed showers were again reported, the amounts received being in some instances considerable.

Temperature.—The unsettled weather described above has kept temperature low almost everywhere, the only exceptions being the Punjab, Bombay, Central India, Sind, and Rajputana on the 5th, and Burma on the 9th, 10th, and 11th, when there was some excess. The following table shows the variation of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:—

PROVINCE.	5th.	6th.	7th	8th	9th.	10th.	11th	Mean variation of week.
Burma	− 0·7	− 1·3	0	−1·5	+0·6	+1·9	+2·4	+0·2
Bengal and Assam	− 5·6	− 4·8	−4·6	−2·2	−4·5	−5·6	−4·4	−4·5
North-Western Provinces and Oudh	− 3·8	− 4·2	−6·3	−4·2	−3·9	−2·3	−5·5	−4·3
Punjab	+ 0·2	− 6·1	−7·8	−7·2	−5·4	−4·1	−4·3	−[illegible]
Bombay	+ 0·4	− 1·0	−2·4	−1·7	−1·4	−1·7	−1·9	−1·4
Central Provinces and Berar	− 4·4	− 6·4	−6·0	−7·8	−11·4	−7·3	−11·0	−7·8
Central India and Guzerat	+ 1·0	− 1·9	−2·5	−3·7	−3·3	−1·8	−6·8	−2·7
Sind and Rajputana	+ 1·9	− 1·8	−2·3	−2·5	−2·9	−4·5	−5·4	−2·5
Madras	− 0·7	− 1·3	−1·9	−1·7	−1·2	−0·9	−1·0	−1·2
MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA	− 1·3	− 3·2	−3·8	−3·6	−3·7	−2·9	−4·2	−3·2

From the above it will be seen that the mean temperature of the whole of India was 3·2° lower than usual, and that on each day of the week there was a deficiency which ranged from 1·3° on the 5th to 4·2° on the 11th. The Provincial variations show that, owing to the hot weather in Burma at the close of the week, there was a slight excess of temperature for that Province, but that for all other Provinces the deficiency noticed in the previous weeks has continued and was largest in Central Provinces and Berar.

Rainfall.—As noticed above the rainfall of the week has been very widely distributed, and the concluding table shows that only in seven of the rainfall divisions was there absolutely no fall. In seven other divisions, however, the actual average rainfall was less than a tenth of an inch. The divisions which received actually or practically no rain during the week included the Burma divisions, East Bengal, Behar, Konkan, Guzerat, Kathiawar, Sind, west of Rajputana, and the Central division of the East Coast. Of those divisions which received rain the majority had more than the normal. This was particularly the case in the Peninsula, where there was a very large excess.

The three concluding columns in the table show that the rainfall of the past two weeks has been defective over North-East India and a considerable part of the North-West India, while it has been largely in excess over the central parts of the country and the Peninsula.

The following gives the largest total amounts received during the week as reported in the rainfall telegrams of the week:—

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 18th March.—Further exceptionally heavy rainfall almost throughout the Presidency, and especially so in the Circars and all Southern Districts. Cultivation and sowing of summer crops actively progressing in the Southern and parts of Central Districts. Cotton and crops standing under wells in Southern and Central Districts much benefited. Some harvest still proceeding with fair outturn. Pasture reviving generally and condition of cattle improving. Prices slightly easier except in the Circars and on the west coast but change small, and exceptionally high rates previously reported continue.

Bombay.—For week ending 22nd March.—Slight rain in parts of six districts. Standing crops damaged by rain, blight, rust or rats in parts of five districts; otherwise condition good. Reaping of late crops completed in four districts and progressing in the rest. Preparations for next season continue in eight districts. Cotton-picking progressing in six districts and in Baroda and Kathiawar. Prices generally steady. Agricultural stock good; fodder sufficient.

Bengal.—For week ending 18th March.—There has been general rain during the week, and in all divisions except East Bengal the amount has been considerably in excess of the normal. Towards the end of the week the weather became fine and clear, a change which has helped to mature the standing crops. The spring harvest is progressing, and, in spite of the damage done by the rain, the general outturn is expected to be up to the normal standard. Opium collections are being rapidly completed, and the yield, as at present reported, will probably be fair. The mango and mahua (Bassia latifolia) crops are late and expected to be short, and the former has in parts suffered somewhat from the rain. Spring rice and indigo are doing well. Sugarcane is still being cut and pressed in some districts. Cultivation for the autumn crops is well forward, and in some places the sowing has begun. Prices of rice remain almost stationary. Fodder and water-supplies are plentiful in all districts. Cattle are reported well.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 22nd March.—The weather is still unsettled and showers have fallen in most districts, in some accompanied by hail. A severe hailstorm has destroyed a large area of spring cultivation in the Agra district, and damaged the crops in two-thirds of the Banda district. Harvesting operations continue and prospects are on the whole favourable. Poppy crops are in good condition, and opium collection is progressing. Prices are fairly stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 22nd March.—Rain has fallen in most districts. Sowings of extra spring crops going on in three districts. Condition of standing crop is good to average. Damage from hail and excessive rain reported from several districts. Condition of cattle is generally reported good. Fodder sufficient in all districts except Rawalpindi. Poppy crop is in good condition. Prices rising in two districts, falling in one, and stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 23rd March.—Clear weather has prevailed with rising temperature. Crop reports from the northern districts are reassuring and fair outturns are expected. The damage caused by the late rain in the Nagpur country was much more considerable, and over a large area wheat will not yield over 8 annas in the rupee; gram and peas yielding still less. Prospects in Chhattisgarh appear to be decidedly better than in the Nagpur districts.

Burma.—For week ending 18th March.—LOWER BURMA: Agricultural operations completed as regards wet-weather paddy. Dry-weather crops in Thayetmyo in good condition. UPPER BURMA: Agricultural operations in respect of dry-weather cultivation progressing in all districts, except in the Southern Shan States where they are backward. In Sagaing reaping of jowar (Sorghum vulgare) and Sessamum nearly completed, and of beans and wheat progressing. Reaping of peas progressing in Lower Chindwin and completed in Myingyan. Wheat crop is being reaped in the Southern Shan States. Condition of standing crops good in all districts except in part of Bhamo, where it is poor owing to excessive rain. In the Tavoy district of Lower Burma the price of paddy has risen slightly, while in the Sagaing district of Upper Burma it has fallen considerably. In all other districts changes are unimportant. In Lower Burma the price of rice has fallen considerably in Henzada and Shwegyin and slightly in Thayetmyo. In Upper Burma it has risen considerably in Mandalay and Upper Chindwin, while it has fallen considerably in Meiktila and slightly in Sagaing, Minbu, and Yeu. Number on relief works, Meiktila, not reported.

Assam.—For week ending 22nd March.—Weather seasonable. Ploughing for late rice and sugarcane-pressing continue. Condition of cattle normal. Fodder sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 22nd March.—BERAR: Weekly average rainfall 71 cents, highest being in Wun 7 inches 39 cents. Weather warm. Spring crops suffered from recent rain in four districts. Harvest in progress. Fodder and water sufficient. Cattle healthy. Prices almost stationary.

HYDERABAD: Rain 1 inch 85 cents, total from first January 9 inches. Harvesting of crops continues. No further damage has been done to the crops during the week. Prices: wheat 9½, rice 9, white juar 13½, yellow juar 19, and tur 11 seers per current sicca rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 22nd March.—MYSORE: One inch 73 cents in Civil and Military station; rainfall good in parts of the Bangalore and Hassan districts. Crops good and prospects favourable. Paddy harvested in parts Prices risen in Kolar and fallen in Hassan district slightly.

COORG: Threshing of rice and raggi (Eleusine Coracana) nearly completed. Coffee has blossomed on most estates. Prospects generally good. Prices stationary. Water and fodder for cattle fair.

Central India.—For week ending 22nd March.—Slight rain during week in the Gwalior and Bhopal Agencies. Agricultural operations in progress. Probable outturn below average in Gwalior, generally fair elsewhere. Crops slightly damaged by recent rain and hail. Condition of agricultural stock generally good. Pasturage sufficient. Prices of food-grains rising in Gwalior, steady elsewhere.

Rajputana.—For week ending 22nd March.—Slight rain in parts of Bikaneer and Ulwar. Agricultural operations satisfactory. Standing crops and harvest prospects generally good. Slight damage in parts. Agricultural stock good. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices falling in four States, rising in three, and steady elsewhere.

Nepal.—For week ending 18th March.—Rainfall 1·03. Weather cloudy. Prospects promising. Hail has damaged some crops.

(a) Not a passenger. (b) Not passengers but cartmen. (c) Of these, two were not passengers.

2. As compared with the average of the two corresponding periods of 1890 and 1891, the number of accidents to trains, rolling stock, permanent-way, etc., during the six months ending the 30th June, 1892, shows an increase of 325 or of 14·94 per cent., with an increase of 1,114 88 miles or of 6·76 per cent. in the mean mileage worked, and of 3,304,856 miles or of 10·83 per cent. in the train-mileage run.

Principal variations as compared with the average of the corresponding periods of 1890 and 1891.

3. The chief variations occurred under "Collisions between light engines," 32 against 14; "Goods trains or parts of goods trains, engines, etc., leaving the rails," 207 against 146; "Trains running over cattle on the line," 1,150 against 979; "Trains running over obstructions on the line," 62 against 89; "The bursting of tubes, etc. of engines," 52 against 72; "The failure of machinery, springs, etc. of engines," 248 against 192; "The failure of couplings," 130 against 106; and "Other accidents," 143 against 119.

4. The increase under "Collisions between light engines," was chiefly due to the numbers recorded on the East Indian and North Western railways having risen from 4 to 14 and from 2 to 7 respectively.

5. "Goods trains or parts of goods trains, engines, etc., leaving the rails," showed an increase of 61 accidents. The chief variations were increases of 36 on the South Indian railway, of 22 on the East Indian railway and of 14 on the Burma state railway, and a decrease of 11 each on the Eastern Bengal state railway and the Bengal and North Western railway including the Tirhoot section.

6. The number of cattle accidents was largest on the Southern Mahratta railway, viz., 337; next to that line comes the South Indian railway with 144; then the Rajputana-Malwa state railway with 84; the East Indian railway with 77; the Eastern Bengal state railway with 74; the Oudh and Rohilkhand railway with 62; the North Western railway with 60, and the Madras railway with 57.

As compared with the average of the corresponding periods of the two previous years, the chief increases occurred on the Southern Mahratta and South Indian railways, viz., 115 and 32 accidents respectively.

In relation to train-mileage run the number was highest on the Southern Mahratta railway, which gave an average of 1 accident in 3,599 train-miles, the Dibru-Sadiya railway coming next with an average of 1 in 4,031; then the Jorhat, the Nizam's Guaranteed state, the South Indian and the Eastern Bengal state railways with averages of 1 in 5,860, 1 in 7,300, 1 in 10,926 and 1 in 21,559, respectively. The lowest number recorded relatively to train-mileage run was on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India railway, viz., 1 in 295,086, the Great Indian Peninsula railway coming next with an average of 1 in 137,024; then the North Western railway with 1 in 73,051, the East Indian railway with 1 in 69,613, the Burma state railway with 1 in 56,377, and the Gaekwar's Dabhoi railway with 1 in 52,009.

7. The decrease of 27 accidents under "Trains running over obstructions on the line" was mainly due to there having been 9 less on the Eastern Bengal state railway, 6 less on the Rajputana-Malwa state railway, 6 less on the Southern Mahratta railway and 5 less on the North Western railway.

8. Under "The bursting of tubes, etc., of engines" there was a decrease of 20 accidents, with a decrease of 16 on the South Indian railway alone.

9. The number of accidents from "The failure of machinery, springs, etc., of engines" was more by 56. The principal variations were iucreases of 59 on the East Indian railway, of 19 on the North Western railway and of 14 on the Rajputana-Malwa state railway, and decreases of 25 on the Nizam's Guaranteed state railway and of 15 on the South Indian railway.

10. Under "The failure of couplings" the accidents numbered 130 against 106, of which 42 against 22 took place on the Rajputana-Malwa state railway alone.

11. The cases recorded under the head "Other accidents" increased chiefly on the East Indian railway, viz., 47 against 10, on the Eastern Bengal state railway, 25 against 7, and on the Bengal-Nagpur railway, 17 against 7; and decreased mainly on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India railway, viz., 4 against 20, and on the South Indian and the Burma state railways, nil against 8.

12. The increase under "Passenger trains or parts of passenger trains leaving the rails" was chiefly owing to the numbers recorded on the East Indian railway having been 17 against 1.

Casualties to passengers and servants not included in paragraph 1.

13. The casualties to passengers and to servants in the employ of railways or of contractors, from accidents not coming under the classification adopted in paragraph 1, were, as compared with the average of the corresponding periods of 1890 and 1891, in the case of passengers, 27 killed and 79 injured, against 31 killed and 96 injured, and, in the case of servants, 95 killed and 302 injured, against 80 killed and 237 injured. (For details, vide abstract No. 2)

Total casualties from all causes.

14. The total casualties to persons from all causes, including trespassers, cases of suicide, etc., were 305 killed and 509 injured, against 280 killed and 434 injured, the average of the corresponding periods of the two preceding years. (For details vide abstract No. 2)

Casualties in yards, workshops, etc.

15. In addition to the above, 55 persons were reported to have been killed, and 92 injured in yards, workshops, etc, and 606 persons to have died in carriages and at stations from causes unconnected with the working of trains.

Working of continuous automatic brakes.

16. A statement is appended to the abstract return of accidents showing, for the six months ending the 30th June, 1892, all cases in which the continuous automatic brakes failed to act when required to be brought into action or caused delay in the working of trains.

---

17. The accidents, for the second quarter of 1892, are dealt with in the following note :—

Note on accidents for the 2nd quarter of 1892.

Casualties resulting from accidents to trains, rolling stock, etc., for the 2nd quarter of 1892.

The following table gives the number of accidents as classified in paragraph 1 of the previous note, which resulted in loss of, or injury to, life and limb, and shows the railways on which they occurred :—

2. East Indian railway.—On the 25th April, 1892, a down goods train collided with an up mixed while the latter was standing at the Maharajpur station, owing to the points not having been properly set. The engines of both the trains were damaged and eight passengers slightly injured. The Station Master and the Assistant Station Master, who were in fault, were prosecuted.

3. Indian Midland railway.—On the 3rd April, 1892, a collision took place at Barkhera on the Bhopal-Itársi state railway between a down special and an up fast special, owing to the latter train having been shunted beyond the south facing points while the former was entering the station without due caution. Two firemen were slightly injured and the permanent-way and rolling stock damaged. The staff at fault were departmentally punished.

4. Bengal and North-Western railway.—On the 12th May, 1892, a bullock was run over by the engine of a ballast train at mileage 8 between Maijapur and Gonda Kacheri, and the result was the derailment of 16 trucks. Eight coolies were killed and seven seriously injured.

5. Rajputana-Malwa state railway.—On the 15th May, 1892, at Mhow the rear portion of a shunting train, which had been uncoupled in shunting, collided with the front portion owing to the engine having been stopped by danger signals. A khalasi was injured.

6. South Indian railway.—On the 8th April, 1892, a bullock cart was struck by the cow-catcher of an engine at a level crossing between Kalambur and Kannamangalam stations. Two men, who were on the cart, were slightly injured.

On the 18th April, 1892, the engine of a mixed train ran through a level-crossing gate between Vencatachellum Chattram and Nellore stations, owing to the gates not having been properly closed before the arrival of the train. The gateman, in trying to close the gates, was struck by the engine and killed.

On the 8th June, 1892, the roof of a third class carriage was found on fire between Tanjore and Búdalúr stations and some of the passengers took fright and jumped out. One passenger was killed and six injured.

7. North Western railway.—On the 31st May, 1892, at mileage 596-14, near Fuller's Camp catchsiding, a collision took place between a trolly occupied by the Executive Engineer, Quetta, and a Sub-Engineer, and another trolly occupied by the Pay Clerk. The Sub-Engineer in jumping off the trolly broke his leg.

8. Eastern Bengal state railway.—On the 12th April, 1892, owing to a heavy storm, a lampman was wounded in the oil godown at Katihár by the fall of some corrugated sheets.

On the 31st May, 1892, an up mixed train collided with a down mixed train, which was standing in the Dinagepore yard. The accident was due to the carelessness of the staff. Three passengers were slightly injured.

9. Great Indian Peninsula railway.—On the 30th April, 1892, at Dhámangaon, one loaded and four empty wagons, which had been set in motion by a storm, collided with an empty van which has being repaired at that station. Three coolies, who were working at the van, were slightly injured.

On the 24th May, 1892, the wheels of an unprotected light trolly were run over by a down mail at mileage 343-15 between Ghángápur and Gulbarga stations. The Time-keeper, in jumping off the trolly, was seriously injured.

10. Bombay, Baroda and Central India railway.—On the 21st May, 1892, a collision took place at Nadiád between an up mail and an up special goods owing to the failure of a vacuum brake. One passenger was seriously injured and thirteen others slightly.

11. Dibru-Sadiya railway.—On the 2nd June, 1892, an elephant and a mahout were run over and killed by an up goods at mile 20 between Digboi and Dihing bridge stations. There was also some damage to the rolling stock.

PROCLAMATIONS.

PUBLIC.

Calcutta, the 16th March, 1893.

No. 354.—Whereas, by proclamation issued on the 17th January 1862 under the provisions of the Act 24 and 25 Vict., Cap. 67 (the Indian Councils Act, 1861), the Governor General of India in Council extended the provisions of the said Act to the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal, and further directed in conformity with the provisions of the said Act that the number of Councillors whom the Lieutenant-Governor of the said Division of the Presidency of Fort William might nominate for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations should be twelve;

And whereas, by Section 1, sub-section (2), of the Act 55 and 56 Vict., Cap. 14 (the Indian Councils Act, 1892), it was provided that it should be lawful for the Governor General in Council by proclamation from time to time to increase the number of Councillors whom the said Lieutenant-Governor may nominate for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations, provided that not more than twenty should be so nominated;

It is hereby declared by the said Governor General in Council that from and after the date of this proclamation the number of Councillors whom the said Lieutenant-Governor may nominate for the said purpose shall be twenty.

No. 355.—Whereas, by proclamation issued on the 26th November 1886 under the provisions of the Act 24 and 25 Vict., Cap 67 (the Indian Councils Act, 1861), the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and Chief Commissioner of Oudh were constituted, for the purposes of the said Act, a Province to which the provisions of that Act touching the making of Laws and Regulations should be applicable, and the said Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner was appointed to be the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province so constituted;

And whereas, by the same proclamation, the Governor General in Council directed in conformity with the provisions of the said Act that the number of Councillors whom the said Lieutenant-Governor might nominate for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations should be nine;

And whereas, by Section 1, sub-section (2), of the Act 55 and 56 Vict., Cap. 14 (the Indian Councils Act, 1892), it was provided that it should be lawful for the Governor General in Council by proclamation from time to time to increase the number of Councillors whom the said Lieutenant-Governor may nominate for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations, provided that not more than fifteen should be so nominated;

It is hereby declared by the said Governor General in Council that from and after the date of this proclamation the number of Councillors whom the said Lieutenant-Governor may nominate for the said purpose shall be fifteen.

The 17th March, 1893.

No. 359.—The following Regulations which have been made by the Governor General in Council under the provisions of section 1, sub-section (4), of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, as to the conditions under which nominations of Additional Members of Council shall be made by the Governors of Madras and Bombay, and nominations of Councillors by the Lieutenant-Governors of the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William and of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, respectively, for their assistance in making Laws and Regulations, have received the approval of the Secretary of State for India in Council and are now published for general information :—

Regulations under Section 1 (4) of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, for Madras.

I.—Of the persons, other than the Advocate General or officer acting in that capacity, to be nominated additional Members of Council by the Governor of Madras for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations not more than nine shall be officials.

II.—The nominations to seven seats shall be made by the Governor on the recommendation of the following bodies and Associations respectively, namely,—

A.—The Corporation of Madras;

B.—Such Municipal Corporations or group or groups of Municipal Corporations other than the Corporation of Madras as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe by Notification in the Fort St. George Gazette;

C.—Such District Boards, or group or groups of District Boards, as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

D.—Such Association or Associations of merchants, manufacturers or tradesmen as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

E.—The Senate of the University of Madras:

Provided that the bodies described above under A, B, C, D, and E, respectively, shall each (except as hereinafter provided in Rule VII) have at least one person nominated upon its recommendation, and A, D, and E, not more than one each.

III.— The Governor may at his discretion nominate persons to such of the remaining seats as shall not be filled by officials in such manner as shall in his opinion secure a fair representation of the different classes of the community; provided that one seat shall ordinarily be held by a zemindar paying not less than R20,000 as peshkash annually to Government.

IV.—When a vacancy occurs and is to be filled under Rule II of these Regulations, the Governor shall cause the proper body or group of bodies or Association or Associations to be requested to recommend a person for nomination by the Governor.

V.—The recommendation shall be made—

(a) in the case of a Municipal Corporation or of a District Board, or of the Senate of the University, by a majority of votes of the Corporation, Board, or Senate respectively;

(b) in the case of Associations not established by law, in the manner laid down in their rules or articles of association for carrying resolutions or recording decisions upon questions of business brought before the Association;

(c) in the case of a group of Municipal Corporations, District Boards, or Associations, by the majority of votes of representatives to be appointed, according to such scale as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe, by the Corporations, Boards, or Associations.

VI.—It shall be a condition in the case of any person to be recommended by a Municipal Corporation or group of Municipal Corporations that he shall be a person ordinarily resident within the Municipality or the district in which it is situated, or in some one of the Municipalities constituting the group or of the districts in which they are situated. A similar condition shall also apply to persons to be recommended by District Boards.

VII.—If within two months after receiving the request of the Governor as provided by Rule IV the body or Association or group of bodies or Associations fails to make a recommendation, the Governor may nominate at his discretion a person belonging to the class which the body or Association or group is deemed to represent.

VIII.—If the Governor shall decline to nominate any person who has been, under these Regulations, recommended for nomination, a fresh request shall be issued as provided in Rule IV, and the procedure laid down in Rules V and VII shall apply.

IX.—(a) As soon as conveniently may be after these Regulations come into force, seven of the seats held by non-official persons shall be filled up by recommendation under Rule II.

(b) If there shall not be the full number of seven vacancies available at once for this purpose, the Governor shall determine at his discretion, subject always to the proviso in Rule II, which of the bodies or groups mentioned in that Rule shall be requested to recommend the persons to fill up such vacancies as may then be available; and so whenever and as often as any further vacancies among non-official members become available, until the full number of seven has been completed.

Regulations under Section 1 (4) of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, for Bombay.

I.—Of the persons, other than the Advocate General or officer acting in that capacity, to be nominated additional Members of Council by the Governor of Bombay for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations not more than nine shall be officials.

II.—The nominations to eight seats shall be made by the Governor on the recommendation of the following bodies and Associations respectively, namely,—

A.—The Corporation of Bombay;

B.—Such Municipal Corporations or group or groups of Municipal Corporations other than the Corporation of the City of Bombay as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe by Notification in the Bombay Government Gazette;

C.—Such District Local Boards, or group or groups of District Local Boards as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

D.—The Sardars of the Deccan or such other class of large land-holders as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

E.—Such Association or Associations of merchants, manufacturers or tradesmen as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

F.—The Senate of the University of Bombay:

Provided that the bodies described above under A, B, C, D, E, and F, respectively, shall each (except as hereinafter provided in Rule VII) have at least one person nominated upon its recommendation, and A and F not more than one each.

III.—The Governor may at his discretion nominate persons to such of the remaining seats as shall not be filled by officials in such manner as shall in his opinion secure a fair representation of the different classes of the community.

IV.—When a vacancy occurs and is to be filled under Rule II of these Regulations, the Governor shall cause the proper body or group of bodies or Association or Associations to be requested to recommend a person for nomination by the Governor.

V.—The recommendation shall be made—

(a) in the case of a Municipal Corporation or of a District Local Board, or of the Sardars of the Deccan, or such other class of large land-holders as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe, or of the Senate of the University, by a majority of votes of the Corporation, Board, Body, or Senate respectively;

(b) in the case of Associations not established by law, in the manner laid down in their rules or articles of association for carrying resolutions or recording decisions upon questions of business brought before the Association;

(c) in the case of a group of Municipal Corporations, District Local Boards, or Associations, by the majority of votes of representatives to be appointed, according to such scale as the Governor in Council may from time to time prescribe, by the Corporations, Boards, or Associations.

VI.—It shall be a condition in the case of any person to be recommended by a Municipal Corporation or group of Municipal Corporations that he shall be a person ordinarily resident within the Municipality or the district in which it is situated, or in some one of the Municipalities constituting the group or of the districts in which they are situated. A similar condition shall also apply to persons to be recommended by District Local Boards.

VII.—If within two months after receiving the request of the Governor as provided by Rule IV the body or Association or group of bodies or Associations fails to make a recommendation, the Governor may nominate at his discretion a person belonging to the class which the body or Association or group is deemed to represent.

VIII.—If the Governor shall decline to nominate any person who has been, under these Regulations, recommended for nomination, a fresh request shall be issued as provided in Rule IV, and the procedure laid down in Rules V and VII shall apply.

IX.—(a) As soon as conveniently may be after these Regulations come into force, eight of the seats held by non-official persons shall be filled up by recommendation under Rule II.

(b) If there shall not be the full number of eight vacancies available for this purpose, the Governor shall determine at his discretion, subject always to the proviso in Rule II, which of the bodies or groups mentioned in that Rule shall be requested to recommend the persons to fill up such vacancies as may then be available; and so whenever and as often as any other vacancies among non-official members become available, until the full number of eight has been completed.

Regulations under Section I (4) of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, for Bengal.

I.—The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has been authorised by the Proclamation of the Governor General in Council in the Home Department, No. 354, dated 16th March 1893, to nominate twenty Councillors for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations. Of these twenty Councillors not more than ten shall be officials.

II.—The nominations to seven seats shall be made by the Lieutenant-Governor on the recommendation of the following bodies and Associations respectively, namely :—

A.—The Corporation of Calcutta;

B.—Such Municipal Corporations or group or groups of Municipal Corporations other than the Corporation of Calcutta as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe by Notification in the Calcutta Gazette;

C.—Such District Boards, or group or groups of District Boards, as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

D.—Such Association or Associations of merchants, manufacturers or tradesmen as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

E.—The Senate of the University of Calcutta:

Provided that the bodies described above under A, B, C, D, and E, respectively shall each (except as hereinafter provided in Rule VII) have at least one Councillor nominated upon its recommendation, and A, D, and E, not more than one each.

III.—The Lieutenant-Governor may at his discretion nominate persons to such of the remaining seats as shall not be filled by officials in such manner as shall in his opinion secure a fair representation of the different classes of the community; provided that one seat shall ordinarily be held by a representative of the great landholders of the Province.

IV.—When a vacancy occurs and is to be filled under Rule II of these Regulations, the Lieutenant-Governor shall cause the proper body or group of bodies or Association or Associations to be requested to recommend a person for nomination by the Lieutenant-Governor.

V.—The recommendation shall be made—

(a) in the case of a Municipal Corporation or of a District Board, or of the Senate of the University, by a majority of votes of the Corporation, Board, or Senate respectively;

(b) in the case of Associations not established by law, in the manner laid down in their rules or articles of association for carrying resolutions or recording decisions upon questions of business brought before the Association;

(c) in the case of a group of Municipal Corporations, District Boards, or Associations, by the majority of votes of representatives to be appointed, according to such scale as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe, by the Corporations, Boards, or Associations.

VI.—It shall be a condition in the case of any person to be recommended by a Municipal Corporation or group of Municipal Corporations that he shall be a person ordinarily resident within the Municipality or the district in which it is situated, or in some one of the Municipalities constituting the group or of the districts in which they are situated. A similar condition shall also apply to persons to be recommended by District Boards.

VII.—If within two months after receiving the request of the Lieutenant-Governor as provided by Rule IV the body or Association or group of bodies or Associations fails to make a recommendation, the Lieutenant-Governor may nominate at his discretion a person belonging to the class which the body or Association or group is deemed to represent.

VIII.—If the Lieutenant-Governor shall decline to nominate any person who has been, under these Regulations, recommended for nomination, a fresh request shall be issued as provided in Rule IV, and the procedure laid down in Rules V and VII shall apply.

IX.—(a) As soon as conveniently may be after these Regulations come into force, seven of the seats held by non-official persons shall be filled up by recommendation under Rule II.

(b) If there shall not be the full number of seven vacancies available at once for this purpose, the Lieutenant-Governor shall determine at his discretion, subject always to the proviso in Rule II, which of the bodies or groups mentioned in that Rule shall be requested to recommend the persons to fill up such vacancies as may then be available; and so whenever and as often as any further vacancies among non-official Councillors become available, until the full number of seven has been completed.

Regulations under Section 1 (4) of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, for the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

I.—The Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh has been authorised by the Proclamation of the Governor General in Council in the Home Department, No. 355, dated 16th March 1893, to nominate fifteen Councillors for his assistance in making Laws and Regulations. Of these fifteen Councillors not more than seven shall be officials.

II.—The nominations to six seats shall be made by the Lieutenant-Governor on the recommendation of the following bodies and Associations respectively, namely,—

CALCUTTA MINT,
The 16th March, 1893.

ORDERS BY THE VICE-CHANCELLOR AND SYNDICATE OF THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

(i) The following revised rules for the Premchand Roychand Studentship Examination have been substituted for those given in pages 204—205 of the University Calendar for 1892.—

1. Five Studentships of R1,600 a year each, to be called the Premchand Roychand Studentships, shall be maintained on the interest of the endowment.

2. Any graduate of the University of Calcutta, who has been admitted to the degree of Master or Doctor in any Faculty, shall be eligible for only one of these Studentships during twelve years from the time that he passed the Entrance examination.

3. Each Studentship shall be tenable, in the first instance, for two years, during which the Student will be expected to carry on some special investigation or work in the subject or subjects in which the Studentship was awarded. The Studentship shall be extended for a further period of three years, provided the Student satisfies the Syndicate that he has carried out such investigation or work, and he continues it during this further period. At the end of each year after the first year, the Student shall submit to the Syndicate a report of the work in which he has been engaged during that year.

4. One election shall be made annually after examination, provided any one candidate be declared by the Examiners to be entitled to a Studentship. Should the Examiners in any year report that no candidate has, in their opinion, shewn sufficient proficiency to entitle him to a Studentship, it shall be competent to the Syndicate to award the vacant Studentship in any subsequent year.

5. The Studentship shall be awarded in alternate years in Literary and Scientific subjects.

The Literary subjects shall be as follows :—

(1) One of the following languages :—

English. Greek.
Sanskrit. Latin.
Arabic.

(2) Comparative Philology, Paleography, and Epigraphy with reference to the language taken up.

(3) Logic and Mental Philosophy, including History of Philosophy, both European and Indian.

(4) Natural Theology and Moral Philosophy, including History of Philosophy, both European and Indian.

(5) History, Political Economy, and Political Philosophy.

The Scientific subjects shall be as follows :—

(1) Pure Mathematics.
(2) Mixed Mathematics.
(3) Inorganic Chemistry and Chemical Technology.
(4) Organic Chemistry.
(5) Electricity, Magnetism and Sound (to be treated both mathematically and experimentally).
(6) Heat, Molecular Physics, and Physical Optics (to be treated both mathematically and experimentally).
(7) Botany.
(8) Physiology and Zoology.
(9) Geology and Mineralogy.

No candidate shall be allowed to take up more than two subjects.

6. The Syndicate shall have power to define, from time to time, in consultation with experts, the limits of the several subjects, with a view to specialization, as far as possible.

7. Candidates must give notice six months before the examination, of their intention to appear, and must, at the time of giving such notice, state in writing the subject or subjects they intend to take up, and pay a fee of R32 to the Registrar.

Every candidate must also state, as definitely as possible, the subject or part of a subject in which he intends, if elected to a Studentship, to carry on special investigations, with a view to retain the Studentship during the second term of three years; and the ex-mination will be so framed as to test the extent of his knowledge in that subject or part of a subject. A candidate may also state what contribution, if any, he has made to the subject or subjects in which he desires to be examined.

8. The names of the Premchand Roychand Students, past and present, shall be printed in the Calendar after the names of the Fellows.

Rules for the Premchand Roychand Studentship Examination passed by the Syndicate.

1. The examination shall be held in the month of November, and two papers shall be given each day.

2. In each of the subjects for examination, four three-hour papers shall be set.

3. The number of questions set in each paper shall be at least twice as many as are required to be answered to secure full marks.

4. Each paper shall carry 100 marks.

5. In subjects 3 and 4 of the Scientific course, two theoretical papers shall be set.

In each of the Scientific subjects 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, three theoretical papers shall be set.

6. In subjects 3 and 4 of the Scientific course, the practical examination shall carry 200 marks.

In each of the Scientific subjects 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, the practical examination shall carry 100 marks.

The number of days over which the practical examination shall extend, will be fixed by the Examiner in consultation with the Syndicate.

7. Only marks in excess of 30 in each paper shall be counted towards the total, and each mark above 70 shall count as 2 marks towards the total.

8. The Examiners shall meet together before the examination in order to compare their questions, and after the examination in order to draw up a report (to be printed in the University Minutes), declaring the name of the candidate whom they consider entitled to the Studentship.

The above rules will come into effect at the examination of 1894.

(ii) The undermentioned candidates have passed the Tagore Law Examination held by Mr. Arthur Caspersz, Tagore Law Professor for 1893, on the Law of Estoppel in British India :—

In Order of Merit.

1. Thakur, Akshaykumar.
2. Ta, Jadunath.
3. Bandyopadhyay, Haripada.
4. Ray, Lalitmohan.

On the results of the Examination the Sir Jotindra Mohan Tagore gold and silver medals have been awarded to Akshaykumar Thakur and Jadunath Ta, respectively.

NOTICES.

Applications and all communications relating to the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888, should be placed under cover addressed "Secretary to the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department (PATENTS BRANCH), CALCUTTA."

The Office of the Secretary under the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888, is open for the transaction of business on all days (except Sundays and Gazetted Holidays) from 11 A.M. to 4 P.M.

Applications for the registration of Trade Marks as "Designs" under Part II of the "Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888)" are frequently received in the Office of the Secretary appointed under the said Act. It is hereby notified for general information that the Government of India are advised that Trade Marks are not "Designs" within the meaning of the said Act, and, therefore, are not capable of such registration.

M. W. ROGERS, Lieut.-Col., R.E.,
Secy. under the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The Indian Law Reports, published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay and Allahabad, respectively.

In supersession of the previous advertisements, on and from the 1st January, 1889, the terms of subscription and sale will be as follows for current issues as well as for back numbers of the Reports from 1870:—

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By Dr Geo. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Part I, of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages, Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI, (which will consist of four parts) Part I contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Selected Committee on the Bill to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th March, 1893 :—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

From Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, No. 430, dated 20th February, 1893 [Paper No 1].
From Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. 268T., dated 20th February, 1893 [Paper No. 2]
From Under Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 1303, dated 21st February, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 3].
Telegram from Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 101, dated 24th February, 1893 [Paper No. 4].
From Chief Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 485, dated 24th February, 1893 [Paper No. 5].
From Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 790, dated 25th February, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].
From Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 1022, dated 13th March, 1893, and enclosure [Papers No. 7].
From Secretary, Indian Association, dated 10th March, 1893 [Paper No. 8].

2. Section 4 of the Bill (as now revised).—After considering the remarks of the Indian Tea Association we have thought it advisable to omit section 5 of the Bill as introduced, which empowered the Local Government to exempt individual estates from the operation of the Act. We have amended section 4 so as to empower the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Government of India, to exempt any labour-district or specified portion of a labour-district. This section, as it now stands, will not prevent the exemption of individual estates in special cases, but it gives prominence to what we believe to be the intention of the Government of India, namely, that in withdrawing portions of labour-districts from the Act, regard should be had to the circumstances of specified and compact areas in a labour-district rather than to those of individual estates.

3. Section 5 of the Bill.—Having regard to the objections urged by persons interested in the tea industry, and strongly supported by the Chief Commissioner of Assam in his letter of the 12th August, 1892, we have raised the maximum period of contract from three to four years, as the majority of us are not satisfied that a three-years' term is sufficient to recoup the employer the expenses incurred in importing the labourer and maintaining him during the period of his acclimatization in the labour-districts.

The necessary consequential changes have been made in other sections of the Bill.

We have also provided that the labourer shall receive wages at a higher rate during the fourth year of the term of his contract.

4. Section 7 of the Bill.—We have inserted a general provision empowering the Local Government in the recruiting districts as well as in the labour-districts to cancel a labour-contract in cases in which the labourer has been illegally or fraudulently recruited. Provision has also been made for the repatriation in such cases of the labourer and of his relatives and dependents (if any).

5. Section 8 of the Bill.—Having regard to section 18 of the Act, which renders a contractor liable for the acts and defaults of his sub-contractor, we think it desirable that no sub-contractor should be licensed to act on behalf of more than one contractor. We have amended section 16 of the Act accordingly.

6. Section 10 of the Bill.—It seems to us reasonable that in cases in which a labour-contract is cancelled under section 84 of the Act at the instance of the employer or his representative, the Superintendent should have power, if he thinks it necessary, to award compensation to the labourer. We have amended section 84 of the Act accordingly.

7. Section 11 of the Bill.—We propose to retain section 86 of the Act in a modified form, in order to make it clear that the rules in Chapter V of the Act do not apply to the transport by sea of labourers and emigrants from the Madras Presidency, which will, we understand, be regulated by the rules of the Native Passenger Ships Act.

8. Section 12 of the Bill.—We think it desirable that the rules framed by the Chief Commissioner of Assam under (proposed) section 112B of the Act to regulate the execution of labour-contracts at Dhubri should be made after previous publication. We have inserted words to this effect in the section. The previous publication will, we understand, be made in the manner provided for in the General Clauses Act, I of 1887.

9. Sections 16 and 17 of the Bill.—We have omitted the words "or otherwise," as suggested by the Indian Tea Association, and have provided that a District Magistrate may summon a Committee under section 128 of the Act, and that the Local Government may direct such a Committee to be summoned, on the report of an Inspector, Magistrate or Medical Officer.

10. Section 19 of the Bill.—It seems to us desirable that the unanimous finding of a Committee should be final. We have accordingly restricted the power of the Local Government to declare under (proposed) section 129A of the Act that an estate or a portion of an estate is unfit for the residence of labourers to cases in which the finding of the Committee has not been unanimous.

11. Section 25 of the Bill.—We have revised the wording of (proposed) section 142C of the Act in accordance with the suggestion of the Chief Commissioner of Assam so as to make it clear that only such emigrants as have gone up to the labour-districts for the purpose of labouring on any estate, and their dependents (if any), may be repatriated at the charge of the Inland Labour Transport Fund.

12. Section 34 of the Bill.—We have adopted the suggestion made by the Chief Commissioner of Assam with reference to (proposed) section 182B of the Act that periods of imprisonment under the ordinary law should only be endorseable as an addition to the term of the labour-contract when the labourer is sentenced to such imprisonment for a period not exceeding three years.

13. We have also made certain other additions and modifications in the Bill as introduced which need not be referred to in detail, as they are either mere changes in drafting or changes on points of minor importance not materially affecting the measure.

P. CHENTSAL RAO.†

C. C. STEVENS.‡

J. BUCKINGHAM.§

The 16th March, 1893.

* In addition to the two points mentioned by the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao, with whom I agree both as regards the age limit and the maximum term of labour-contracts, I would insist on the local registration of all labourers whose contracts are enforceable under the Inland Emigration Act.

† I append a note on the two points on which I differ.

‡ I concur in the dissent of the Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose.

§ The only two points I feel bound to take strong exception to are the reduction of the term of contract to four years and the amendment of section 9, under which contracts executed between employer and Native direct are restricted to one year.

NOTE.

THERE are two points in the Bill to which I take exception, and they are (1) the non-alteration of section 11 of the Emigration Act, which creates an exception to the general law of majority for contractual purposes, and (2) the period of maximum duration of a labour-contract laid down in section 9 of the Bill.

First.—As to the age, section 11 of the Contract Act as modified by section 3 of Act IX of 1875 fixes the age of competency to contract at 18 years; but section 11 of the Emigration Act lowers that age to 16. If in the case of ordinary contracts, whose breach is attended only by civil liability, the law, acting in the interests of the individual, requires in the contractor the physical and mental development attained at the age of 18 years, it seems to me that in the case of contracts involving criminal liability and expatriation from home and surroundings, undertaken by classes of a low order of intelligence, the age limit should be increased and not lowered. When, again, it is remembered that the Indian labourer's lot is a life-long dependence for the means of subsistence on the persistence of his bodily powers, that his best period of growth is between the years of 16 and 20 and that his physical development is arrested and stunted by hard and continuous manual labour during this period of his life in marshy and feverish climates, it is clear that there are considerations which should induce a paternal Legislature to hesitate before sanctioning the emigration of boys of 16 and 17 to estates and plantations in jungly situations of excessive rainfall. Again, it is well known that the class from which recruiters are drawn leave much to be desired on the score of character, and that, in their anxiety to secure for their employers the maximum of labourers within the minimum of time, many recruiters are not over-scrupulous in regard to the age of the recruits, and what with the uncertainty which the question of the accurate determination of age presents even to the medical experts, it frequently happens that boys and girls even under the statutory age are decoyed and sent to work on the plantations. These statements are supported by the Deputy Commissioner of Chhattisgarh, who gives in his report some typical cases to illustrate the manner in which unscrupulous recuiters abuse their powers. I think I have said enough to show that an alteration raising the limit of age prescribed by section 11 is urgently called for in the circumstances of the case. I would propose to leave the age to be governed by the ordinary law and repeal section 11 of the Act. There is nothing in this proposal to militate against the interests of the employers, because it is obviously to their advantage to be served by able-bodied men able to cope with wind and weather, rather than by striplings of 16 and 17, who may break down under the stress of continuous plantation labour.

2. In regard to the maximum duration of a labour-contract, the Bill proposed three years, which was the period fixed by law before the Act, I of 1882, and this reversion to the old state of things has met with almost universal approval. In fact, it is the one point in which all the official authorities consulted are unanimously agreed. Even the Select Committee is equally divided on this point, and it is only a narrow majority of the Committee that have agreed to raise the limit to four years. The only argument that was forwarded during the discussion in favour of the limitation being raised to four, was that the reduction of the period to three years, coupled with the provision of section 142, enabling the labourer to redeem his liberty, is calculated to inflict pecuniary loss upon the employers. This statement deserves some examination. It assumes that in a large number of cases the labourers are only too ready to unfetter themselves of their contract even at the expense of amounts which must to persons in their condition of life be nothing less than small fortunes. Such an assumption, if true, is a sad commentary on the lot of the labourer in the plantations, and any argument based on such an assumption ought not to be entertained for a moment by the Legislature of this country. Apart, however, from the side-light thus thrown on the conditions of coolie life in the tea-gardens, it is worth one's while to consider whether the statement is tenable even from the employer's point of view. Admitting the average initial cost of procuring a labourer is Rs. 90 (it was stated to be something above Rs. 60 by the Hon'ble Mr. Inglis in the debate on the Bill of 1882, and facilities for communication have since vastly improved), and distributing this sum over the period of the contract, the employer will pay during each of the three years Rs. 30 in addition to the wage fixed per annum. This I consider is highly favourable to the employer, considering the expensiveness of living and the almost prohibitive cost of securing local labour in places like Assam. At the end of each year of labour, therefore, the labourer will work out one-third of the initial cost of recruiting. If, therefore, the labourer redeems immediately after his arrival at the garden, the employer gets Rs. 108 or Rs. 18, more than his preliminary cost. If the labourer redeems after working out one year of the contract and Rs. 30 of the initial cost, the employer receives Rs. 96, which again is Rs. 36 more than the balance of the recruiting expense he is entitled to. And, in cases where the labourer redeems after working out two years of the contract and Rs. 60 of the cost of recruiting, the employer will receive Rs. 60, which again is Rs. 30 more than the balance of recruiting cost at the end of the second year. If these principles and calculations are correct, it is clear that the employer is always a gainer at whatever stage of the contract the labourer chooses to exercise his privilege of redemption. It has always to be remembered that, but for the Emigration Act and its penal provisions, including the extraordinary one of arming a private individual and interested party with the powers of arresting without a warrant, employers, if left to their own resources and the remedies of the civil law, would find immediately that recruiting is a much more costly and frequently ruinous affair than it now is. On the other hand, if the coolies receive fair treatment, there is nothing to prevent the renewal of their contract, and good employers having nothing to fear even if the maximum duration be reduced to two years. As the Additional Commissioner, Mr. Wace, remarks, "If an employer cannot induce a labourer after the third year to renew his contract, he scarcely deserves to retain the hold which the present limit of five years gives him."

For the foregoing reasons, I am of opinion that the term of the contract should not exceed three years.

P. CHENTSAL RAO.

No. II.

A Bill to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Inland Emigration Act, 1893; and

(2) it shall come into force at once.

Substitution of new section for section 1, Act I of 1882.

2. For section 1 of the said Inland Emigration Act, 1882, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Short title.

"This Act may be called the Assam Labour and Emigration Act, 1882.

Local extent.

"It extends—

(a) to the territories respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, and Assam, and to the district of Ganjam; and

(b) to such other portions of the territories administered by the Governor of Fort St. George in Council as the Governor in Council, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, from time to time, direct.

Commencement.

"It shall come into force—

(i) in the territories mentioned in clause (a) of this section at once; and

(ii) in any territories to which it may be extended by a notification under clause (b) of this section on such day as may be specified in that behalf in such notification."

Amendments of section 3

3. (1) In section 3 of the said Act, in the definition of the expression "the labour-districts," the words "Chittagong, the Chittagong Hill Tracts," and "Khasi Hills" are hereby repealed.

(2) In the same section of the said Act, in the definition of the word "emigrate," the words "not being a labour-district" are hereby repealed; and for the words "Chief Commissioner of Oudh" the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"Chief Commissioners of Oudh and the Central Provinces, or from any portion of the territories administered by the Governor of Fort St. George in Council, in which this Act may, for the time being, be in force.

(3) In the same section of the said Act, in the definition of the word "dependent" for the word "means" the word "includes" shall be substituted.

Amendments of section 4.

4. In section 4 of the said Act, after the word "labour-district" where it first occurs, the words "or specified area thereof", and after the same word, where it afterwards occurs, the words "or area" shall be respectively inserted.

Amendment of section 9.

5. For the penultimate paragraph of section 9 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"No such contract shall be made for a term exceeding four years or, if the contract is entered into under the provisions of section 111 of this Act, for a term exceeding one year, commencing from the date of its execution; or shall stipulate for a less rate of monthly wages for a completed daily task regulated in accordance with the provisions of this Act than five rupees in the case of a man and four rupees in the case of a woman, for the first three years of the term of the contract, and six rupees in the case of a man and five rupees in the case of a woman for the fourth year of such term."

Addition of new section after section 9.

6. After the same section of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"In absence of specific obligation, underground labour not obligatory."

"9A. Unless the contract contains a specific obligation to this effect, no labourer shall be bound by any labour-contract entered into under this Act to undertake any work involving underground labour in mines."

Addition of new sections after section 11.

7. After section 11 of the said Act the following sections shall be inserted, namely:—

Power of Local Government to cancel contract for wrongful recruitment.

"11A. If the Local Government, after such enquiry as it thinks sufficient, is of opinion that any labourer was recruited or conveyed to a labour-district, or compelled or induced to enter into a labour-contract, by any coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation, or that any such irregularity has occurred in connection with his recruitment or the execution of his contract as makes it just to rescind his contract, the Local Government may, by an order in writing, direct the labour-contract of such labourer to be cancelled.

"On receipt of any such order by the Local Government, the Superintendent, Inspector or Magistrate shall cancel the contract referred to, and shall thereupon make an endorsement that it has been so cancelled on the labourer's copy of the contract or, if the same be not forthcoming, shall give to the labourer a certificate to that effect.

"11B. When the labour-contract of any labourer is or has been cancelled under the last foregoing section, the Local Government may, at its discretion and on the application of the labourer concerned, cancel the labour-contracts of any labourers, being the wife, husband, father, mother, son or daughter of the labourer whose labour-contract is or has been cancelled, who may have entered into a labour-contract at the same place with the same employer or, in the case of labour contracts cancelled in the labour-districts, may be employed on any estate belonging to the same employer.

Power to cancel contract of labourer related to labourer whose contract is cancelled.

"11C. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the Superintendent, Inspector or Magistrate may send back to his native district any labourer, together with his dependents (if any) whose contract has been cancelled under section 11A, and may recover the whole or any part of the expenses incurred in so sending him back as follows, namely:—

Repatriation of labourers whose contracts cancelled for wrongful recruitment.

(b) when the contract has been cancelled in a labour-district, from the employer on whose estate the labourer was under contract to labour, as if it were an arrear of wages.

"11D. In any case in which a labourer is sent back to his native district under the provisions of the last foregoing section, the Superintendent, Inspector or Magistrate may provide an escort or make such other arrangements as may appear to him to be necessary for ensuring that such labourer is actually conveyed to such district. Any expenditure incurred in providing such escort or making such arrangements may be recovered as part of the amount expended in sending such labourer back to his native district."

Escort for repatriated labourer.

8. For section 16 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new section for section 16.

"16. No sub-contractor shall be licensed to act on behalf of more than one contractor."

Sub-contractor only to represent one contractor.

9. After section 42 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Addition of new sections after section 42.

"42A. If the employer with whom any labourer intends to contract or the agent of such employer has given notice to the Superintendent that before any labour-contract is entered into by him or on his behalf with any labourer, the labourer shall be examined by a competent medical man and certified by him to be in a fit state of health and able in point of physical condition to reside and labour for hire in the labour-district in which the estate of such employer is situate, the Superintendent shall not permit such labourer to execute a labour-contract until such certificate from such medical man as aforesaid has been produced and shown to him.

Employer may require medical certificate as to fitness to labour previous to contract.

"42B. If the employer or his agent has directed that such examination shall be made by any medical officer in the service of Government, such officer making the examination shall be entitled to receive from such employer or his agent such a fee not exceeding eight annas for each labourer so examined as the Local Government may fix."

Medical officer entitled to fee.

10. In section 84 of the said Act, after the word "registered" the words "and such further sum (if any) by way of compensation as the Superintendent thinks reasonable" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 84.

11. In section 86 of the said Act all the words after the word "labour-districts" are hereby repealed.

Amendment of section 86.

12. For sections 111 and 112 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new sections for sections 111 and 112.

"111. Any employer may enter into a labour-contract for any term not exceeding one year commencing from the date of the execution of the contract with any native of India within the labour-district in which the estate on which such native contracts to labour is situated. When any employer has executed any such contract with any such native within a labour-district, he shall, within one month from the date of the execution of such contract, forward it in duplicate to the Inspector within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such estate is situated. On receipt of the contract so forwarded, the Inspector shall enter an abstract thereof in a register to be kept by him for the purpose, and shall then give one copy of the contract to the labourer and the other copy to his employer.

Labour-contracts executed in labour-districts between employer and native direct.

Registration of such contracts.

"111A. When, for the first time after the registration of any such contract with a labourer, the Inspector visits the estate on which such labourer is employed, the employer shall cause such labourer to appear before the Inspector for the purpose of having his contract verified, and such labourer may thereupon apply to the Inspector to cancel the contract;

Verification and cancellation of such contracts.

and, if he shows cause sufficient in the opinion of the Inspector to justify the cancellation, the Inspector shall cancel the contract, and shall thereupon make an endorsement that it has been cancelled on the labourer's copy of the contract, or, if such copy be not forthcoming, shall give to the labourer a certificate to that effect.

"111B. The Inspector or Magistrate may at any time, either on the application of the employer or the labourer or of his own motion, require the employer to cause any labourer who has entered into a contract under section 111 and is employed upon any estate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Inspector or Magistrate to appear before him for the purpose of having his contract verified; and, if such labourer applies to the Inspector or Magistrate to cancel his contract and shows cause sufficient in the opinion of the Inspector or Magistrate to justify such cancellation, the Inspector or Magistrate shall cancel the contract as provided in the last preceding section.

Power of Inspector or Magistrate to require labourer who has executed such contract to appear before him.

"112. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 111, any employer may enter into a labour-contract with any native of India in a labour-district for any term not exceeding four years commencing from the date of the execution of the contract if he appears either in person or by agent with such native before the Inspector or Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the estate upon which such native is about to contract to labour is situated.

Labour-contracts executed within labour-districts before Inspector or Magistrate.

"Such Inspector or Magistrate shall thereupon explain the labour-contract to such native and shall, if satisfied, that he is competent to enter into and understands the same, call upon him and the employer or his agent to execute it in his presence; and, if they execute it, shall attest such execution with his signature.

"An abstract of every such labour-contract shall be entered in a register to be kept by the Inspector or Magistrate for the purpose; and one copy of such contract shall then be given to the labourer and the other copy to his employer or his agent.

"In respect of every labour-contract an abstract whereof is registered under section 111 or under this section, the employer who executes such contract in person or by agent shall pay to the Inspector or Magistrate such fee, not exceeding one rupee, as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

"112A. For the purposes of the last preceding section an estate situated in any one of the following districts of the Assam Valley Division, namely, Kamrup, Darrang, Nowgong, Sibsagar, and Lakhimpur, shall be deemed to be also situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Inspector and Magistrate resident at the civil station of Dhubri in the Goalpara District; and, subject to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, contracts to labour on any estate in any of the labour-districts above named may be executed and registered before the Inspector or Magistrate at Dhubri in accordance with the provision of the last preceding section.

Execution of labour-contract before Inspector or Magistrate of Dhubri.

"112B. The Local Government may after previous publication make rules consistent with this Act with respect to all or any of the following matters, namely:—

Power of Local Government to frame rules in connection with the execution of labour-contracts at Dhubri.

(a) the execution and registration of contracts under section 112A before the Inspector or Magistrate at Dhubri;

(b) the medical examination at Dhubri by the Civil Surgeon or other competent medical man of labourers and persons intending to become labourers and their dependents;

(c) the conditions under which depôts, rest-houses, and other places may be established and maintained at Dhubri for the reception and lodging of labourers and persons intending to become labourers and their dependents; the sanitation and management of such depôts, rest-houses and other places; the arrangements for food, water and conservancy therein; the clothing and necessary utensils to be supplied to persons lodged therein, and the hospital accommodation for and medical treatment of such persons;

(d) the control and inspection by officers of Government of such depôts, rest-houses and other places; and

(e) the registers to be kept, and the reports and returns to be made, by the persons in charge of such depôts, rest-houses and other places."

13. For section 114 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new section for section 114.

"114. Any Inspector or Magistrate or any person authorised by either of them in writing in this behalf may at any time enter and inspect all lands and houses wholly or partially used by or for labourers, or by or for any other natives of India employed on any estate, and may require that all such labourers or natives, or any particular class or classes or individual or individuals of them, shall be brought before him, and that a copy of the labour-contract of any labourer shall be produced, and may make any inquiries which he thinks proper touching the condition or treatment of such labourers or other natives or any of them, and the employer shall be bound to comply with such requisition and to answer such inquiries to the best of his ability."

Powers of Inspector or Magistrate to inspect lands and houses and make requisitions and inquiries.

Amendment of section 115

14. In section 115 of the said Act, for the words "whole number of days in the current month," the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"number of working days in the current month. The number of working days in any month shall be ascertained by deducting the number of Sundays from the whole number of days in the month."

Amendment of section 121.

15. For the last sentence of section 121 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"The Inspector shall from time to time, when visiting the estate, on the application of the employer, and may also at any other time on the application of either the employer or the labourer, endorse on the labourer's labour-contract, after such enquiry as may be necessary, the number of days so to be added to the term thereof:

"Provided that an employer who omits to apply for the endorsement of such days on any labourer's labour-contract, when the Inspector is actually visiting the estate, shall, in the absence of sufficient reasons to the contrary shown to the satisfaction of the Inspector, be debarred from applying afterwards for such endorsement in so far as days of absence which occurred prior to the date of the Inspector's last visit are concerned."

Amendment of section 128.

16. Between the first and second paragraphs of section 128 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"The Magistrate of the District may also of his own motion summon such a Committee, if, either from his own observation or upon the report of an Inspector, Magistrate or Medical Officer, he is of opinion that any estate or portion of an estate is, for any of the reasons aforesaid, unfit for the residence of labourers or of any particular class of labourers."

Addition of new section after section 128.

17. After the same section of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Local Government may order Committee.

"128A. If it appears to the Local Government upon the report of an Inspector, Magistrate or Medical Officer—

(a) that any estate or portion of an estate is for any of the reasons given in the last preceding section unfit for the residence of labourers or of any particular class of labourers, or

(b) that the percentage of mortality of labourers or of any particular class of labourers employed on any estate or on any portion of an estate is such as would justify the institution of an inquiry by a medical officer under section 130 of this Act,

the Local Government may direct the Magistrate of the District to summon a Committee under the last preceding section; and the Magistrate of the District shall forthwith proceed to summon a Committee accordingly."

Addition to section 129.

18. To the last paragraph of section 129 of the said Act the following shall be added, namely:—

"Where the finding relates to the whole of any estate and the employer has no other estate in the same labour-district on which the labourer may be employed, the Inspector shall cancel the labour-contract of such labourer, and shall thereupon make an endorsement that it has been cancelled on the labourer's copy of the contract, or, if such copy be not forthcoming, shall give to the labourer a certificate to that effect."

Addition of new section after section 129.

19. After section 129 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Local Government may pass orders on proceedings of Committee.

"129A. The Local Government may call for the proceedings of any Committee summoned under section 128, or section 128A of this Act, and, if the finding of such Committee is not unanimous, the Local Government may record any finding thereon which such Committee was competent to record, and such finding shall have the same effect as the finding of a Committee under section 129."

Amendments of section 130.

20. In section 130 of the said Act, after the words "Local Government" each time they occur the words "or the Magistrate of the District" shall be inserted, and to the same section the following shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that, when the mortality among any particular class of labourers employed on an estate or any specified portion of an estate exceeds the percentage specified in this section, the Local Government or Magistrate of the District may direct an inquiry under this section limited to such particular class of labourers."

Amendments of section 132.

21. (1) In section 132 of the said Act, for the words "and that such estate or portion is thereby rendered" the words "or that such estate or portion is" shall be substituted.

(2) In the same section, for the words following the word "labourers" the first time it occurs down to and including the same word the second time it occurs, the words "or of any particular class of labourers, it may make a declaration in writing to that effect" shall be substituted.

Amendments of section 133.

22. For section 133 of the said Act, the following shall be substituted:—

Power to certify fitness of estate or portion found or declared to be unfit.

133. If it at any time appears to the Inspector that any estate or smaller area, which has been found or declared under any of the preceding provisions to be unfit for the residence of labourers or of any particular class of labourers, has become fit for the residence of such labourers or class of labourers, as the case may be, he shall, with the previous sanction of the Magistrate of the district in which such estate or area is situate, give a certificate to that effect signed by him. Thereupon all such labourers as are mentioned or referred to in the last paragraph of section 129, and whose contracts have not been cancelled by the Inspector under that section, shall again be bound to labour on the estate or area, as the case may be, to which the certificate relates for the unexpired periods (if any) of their respective contracts."

Addition of new section after section 140.

23. After section 140 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely :—

Power to cancel contract of labourer related to labourer whose contract is cancelled or determined.

"140A. When the labour-contract of any labourer is or has been cancelled or determined under section 111A, 111B, 122 or 140, the Inspector or Magistrate, as the case may be, may, at his discretion, and on the application of the labourers concerned, cancel the labour-contract of any labourer employed on any estate belonging to the same employer being a wife, husband, father, mother, son or daughter of the labourer whose labour-contract is or has been so cancelled or determined."

Amendment of section 142.

24. In the last paragraph of section 142 of the said Act, for the words "third, fourth and fifth years" the words "third and fourth years" shall be substituted.

Addition of new sections after section 142.

25. After section 142 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely :—

Power to equalize terms of contract in case of husband and wife.

"142A. In any case in which the contract of a labourer determines at a different time from that of any other labourer who is the wife or husband of such labourer, the Inspector or Magistrate may, on the joint application of such labourers, equalise the terms of their respective contracts, and may for this purpose add to the term of the contract which expires first and deduct from the term of the contract which expires last in such proportions as may appear to him to be equitable.

"Every such addition or deduction from the term of any contract shall be certified by such Inspector or Magistrate on the back of both the employer's and the labourer's copies of the contract, or, if the same be not forthcoming, by writing under the Inspector or Magistrate's hand, copies of which shall be delivered to the employer and the labourer.

J.—Repatriation of labourers and others.

Repatriation of labourers whose contract is determined under section 122.

"142B. If any labourer, not being a native of the labour-districts, whose contract is determined under section 122, desires to be sent back to his native district, the Inspector may, instead of awarding a sum as receivable by such labourer from his employer, as provided by that section, order the employer to deposit such amount, whether in excess of the three months' wages awardable under that section or otherwise, as shall, in the Inspector's opinion, be sufficient to cover the entire expenses of sending the labourer to such district. Such amount shall be deposited by the employer in the Inspector's office and shall be expended by the Inspector in sending the labourer back to his native district.

"On failure of the employer to deposit such amount within twenty-four hours in accordance with any such order, the Inspector may pay the same, and any amount so paid shall be recoverable from the employer as if it were an arrear of wages.

Repatriation of immigrants not under contract who are physically incapacitated.

"142C. If any person, being a native of India but not being a labourer, who has emigrated from his native district to a labour-district for the purpose of labouring for hire in any estate situate therein, or being a dependent of any person who has so emigrated, has no means of subsistence and is, in the opinion of the Inspector or Magistrate, permanently incapacitated from earning his livelihood in a labour-district, the Inspector or Magistrate may, on the application of such person, send him back together with his dependents (if any) to his native district, and may, subject to the control of the Local Government, charge the expenses incurred in so doing to the Inland Labour Transport Fund.

Repatriation of labourers wrongfully recruited.

"142D. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the Inspector or Magistrate may send back to his native district any labourer, together with his dependents (if any), whose contract has been cancelled under section 111A or 111B on the ground of coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation, or of any irregularity in connection with his recruitment or the execution of his contract, and may recover, as if it were an arrear of wages, from the employer on whose estate such labourer was under contract to labour, the whole or any part of the expenses incurred in so sending him back.

Repatriation of persons not under contract wrongfully recruited.

"142E. If it appears to the Inspector or Magistrate, on complaint made before him or otherwise, that there is reason to suppose that any native of India, not being a labourer, has been induced by any coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation to emigrate to a labour-district, the Inspector or Magistrate shall call upon the employer on whose behalf such person was made or induced to emigrate, or to whose estate he is being or has been conveyed, or, if the employer cannot be communicated with without undue delay, upon his agent or any one accompanying such person or conveying him to any labour-district or estate, to appear before the Inspector or Magistrate and show cause why such person should not be sent back to his native district.

"If the Inspector or Magistrate is of opinion after such enquiry as he thinks sufficient that such person was engaged or compelled or induced to emigrate by any such coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation, as would justify his being sent back to his native district, the Inspector or Magistrate shall record a finding to this effect and shall send such person, if he so desires, together with any other persons dependent on him (if any) back to his native district

"Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the whole or any part of the amount expended in sending a person back to his native district under this section may be recovered as if it were an arrear of wages from the employer on whose behalf such person was induced to emigrate or to whose estate he was being or had been conveyed; or if the employer is not known, or if there is no such employer, by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the person accompanying such person or conveying him to any labour-district or estate.

Arrangements may be made for escorting persons ordered to be repatriated.

"142F. In any case in which a labourer or other person is sent back to his native district under the provisions of section 142D or section 142E, the Inspector or Magistrate may provide an escort or make such other arrangements as may appear to him to be necessary for ensuring that such labourer or person is actually conveyed to such district Any expenditure incurred in providing such escort or making such arrangements may be recovered as part of the amount expended in sending such labourer or other person back to his native district"

Amendment of sections 143 and 145.

26. To section 143 of the said Act the words "In addition to any other power to make rules conferred by this Act" shall be prefixed; and in section 145 of the said Act for the word "hereunder" the words "under this Act" shall be substituted.

Addition to section 151

27. For section 151 of the said Act the following shall be substituted:—

Garden-sardár failing to report himself, &c.

"151. Whoever being a garden-sardár, fails, within fourteen days after his arrival in the local area within which he is authorized to enter into contracts under this Act, to report himself to the local agent (if any) specified in his certificate, or fails without sufficient cause to return to his employer within the time specified in his certificate, or fails to account for the money advanced to him by his employer for the purpose of engaging labourers, and whoever being a garden-sardár or a person appointed under section fifty or section seventy-three to accompany labourers to a labour-district wilfully abandons any labourer or his dependent on the way to such district, or removes or attempts to remove any person to a labour-district before he has been registered as provided by section sixty-six, or

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or with both."

Substitution of new section for section 152.

28. For section 152 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Garden-sardar making over labourers to contractors, or committing like offences.

"152. Any garden-sardar who makes over to any contractor, sub-contractor or recruiter, or to the garden-sardar or local agent of any employer other than the employer by whom his certificate was granted or, without authority from his employer, to any other person, any persons whom he has engaged or intends to engage as labourers, or places any such person in a contractor's depôt or in the place of accommodation provided by a recruiter in accordance with the provisions of section 27, or allows any persons engaged as labourers by any contractor or sub-contractor or recruiter to share the accommodation provided by him under section 57.

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees or with both; and his certificate may be impounded by the convicting Magistrate

"Any Magistrate impounding a certificate under this section shall send it for cancellation to the Magistrate by whom it was countersigned."

Amendment of section 164.

29. In section 164 of the said Act, after the word "inquiry" the words "or omits to comply with any requisition" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 170.

30. In the second paragraph of section 170 of the said Act, after the words "any Inspector who receives any such statement shall" the words "if the employer so desires" be inserted, and to the same section the following shall be added, namely —

"The Inspector may also at any time other than that of his visit to the estate on the application of either the employer or the labourer, after due enquiry, endorse such days of absence on, and add them to the term of, the labour-contract: Provided that an employer who omits to apply for the endorsement of such days on any labourer's labour-contract when the Inspector is actually visiting the estate shall be debarred, in the absence of sufficient reasons to the contrary shown to the satisfaction of the Inspector, from applying afterwards for such endorsement so far as days of absence reported in statements sent to the Inspector previous to the date of his last visit are concerned."

Addition of new section after section 171.

31. After section 171 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Statement of deserters.

"171A. Every employer may on or before the fifteenth day of each month send to the Inspector a statement in writing in such form as the Local Government may prescribe containing the names of all or any of his labourers who have deserted from his service during the preceding month, or who, having deserted at any previous time, have been absent during the preceding month, or who, having deserted during the month or previously, have been arrested or have returned to his service during the preceding month."

32. For section 173 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new section for section 173.

"173. The police-officer in charge of such station shall, on the appearance of the parties, take down in writing the statements of the labourer arrested and of the person arresting the labourer.

Procedure at police-station.

"If the labourer admits the contract and does not claim to be forwarded to a Magistrate, the police-officer may permit the person arresting the labourer to convey him to the estate on which he is under contract to labour, and shall then transmit the statements recorded and a report of his proceedings to the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the police-station is situated.

"If the labourer does not admit the contract or claims to be forwarded to the Magistrate, or if, for any reason, it appears to the police-officer desirable that he should be so forwarded, the police-officer shall forthwith send such labourer, together with the statements recorded as aforesaid and a report of his proceedings, to the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the police-station is situated.

"If the estate on which the labourer is under contract to labour is not situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate referred to in the last two preceding paragraphs, such Magistrate shall forward the statements and report received by him from the police to the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such estate is situate. He shall also, when the labourer has been sent to him by the police, either forward the labourer to, or take security for his appearance before, such Magistrate.

"On receipt of such statements and report, the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such estate lies may, after making such inquiry as he considers desirable into the case, pass such order in accordance with law as he thinks proper. For the purpose of any such inquiry such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, in any case in which the labourer arrested has not been sent to, or appeared before, him require the labourer to appear before him."

Additions to section 175.

33. In section 175 of the said Act—

(a) after the words "one month" the words "or with fine which may extend to twenty rupees or with both,"

shall be added respectively.

34. For section 182 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new sections for section 182.

"182. When any labourer is convicted under section 171 of absence from labour or is sentenced to imprisonment for an offence under this Act, the Magistrate so convicting or sentencing him shall endorse on the employer's copy of the labour-contract the period during which such labourer is convicted under the section aforesaid of being absent from his labour or the term for which he is sentenced to imprisonment, or both, as the case may be.

Endorsement on contract of period of unlawful absence or imprisonment for offence against Act.

"182A. When any labourer is convicted under section 175 of desertion from his employer's service, the Magistrate convicting him shall, on the application of the employer or his agent, endorse on the employer's copy of the labour-contract (in addition to the term of imprisonment to which the labourer may be sentenced for such desertion), the period during which the Magistrate finds that the labourer was absent from his labour in contravention of his contract owing to such desertion:

Endorsement on contract of period of desertion or imprisonment for desertion.

"Provided that no such endorsement shall be made in any case in which the labour-contract has been cancelled under the provisions of section 177 or in any case in which the original term of the labour-contract has expired on the date of the conviction, and more than three years have elapsed from the date of the labourer's desertion to that of his arrest:

"Provided also that the employer has duly reported the particulars of the desertion in the monthly statement provided for in section 171A.

"182B. When any labourer is sentenced to imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years for any offence other than an offence under this Act, the Court or Magistrate so sentencing him shall, if the employer or his agent shall so request, endorse on the employer's copy of the labour-contract the period for which the labourer is sentenced to imprisonment, or, if such period exceeds the unexpired term of the labour-contract on the date of the sentence, so much of such period as is equal to such unexpired term.

Endorsement on contract of period of any other imprisonment

"182C. The periods endorsed under the three last preceding sections shall be added to the term for which the labourer contracted to serve; and such labourer shall not be deemed to have performed his labour-contract till he has served for the term specified therein in addition to the periods so endorsed."

Periods endorsed to be added to term of contract.

35. After section 183 of the said Act the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Addition of new section after section 183.

"183A. Whoever, being bound under section 111 to forward any labour-contract to the Inspector, or under section 111B to cause any labourer to appear before the Inspector or Magistrate, wilfully omits or neglects so to forward such labour-contract to the Inspector at or within the time specified, or to cause such labourer to appear before the Inspector or Magistrate within a reasonable time, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees."

Failure to forward contract under section 111 or to cause labourer to appear under section 111B.

36. In section 192 of the said Act, after the words "leave allowances" the words "for meeting the cost of sending labourers and other persons back to their native districts" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 192.

37. (1) In the schedule to the said Act opposite the word "labour" where it first occurs, the following note shall be inserted, namely:—

Amendments of schedule.

"* State nature of labour, if the labourer is to be required to work under the ground.

(2) In the same schedule, for the portion which follows the tabular statement, headed "Form of Description of Labourer," the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"[Endorsement to be filled up by Registering Officer before whom the contract is executed.]

I hereby certify that, before the said A B signed this contract, I personally explained it to him.

Dated at } Signed ________
This day of } Registering Officer or Inspector or Magistrate.

[Endorsements on labourer's copy of contract, to be filled up when the contract is determined or cancelled.]

I hereby certify that the foregoing contract has been determined by effluxion of time.

Dated at } Signature of Employer
This day of } or Inspector.

I hereby certify that the foregoing contract has been cancelled under the provisions of section of Act .

Dated at } Signature of Inspector
This day of } or Magistrate."

38. Act XXII of 1891 (an Act to extend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882,) is hereby repealed.

Repeal of Act XXII of 1891.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACTS OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VICT., CAP. 67, AND 55 AND 56 VICT., CAP. 14.

The Council met at Government House on Thursday, the 9th March, 1893.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G.C.M.G., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., presiding.
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, K.C.S.I.
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, V.C., G.C.B., G.C.I.E., R.A.
The Hon'ble Sir P. P. Hutchins, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Sir D. M. Barbour, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Sir A. E. Miller, KT., Q.C.
The Hon'ble Lieutenant-General H. Brackenbury, C.B., R.A.
The Hon'ble Sir C. B. Pritchard, K.C.I.E., C.S.I.
The Hon'ble J. L. Mackay, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose.
The Hon'ble Palli Chentsal Rao Pantulu, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Sir G. H. P. Evans, K.C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Fazulbhai Vishram.
The Hon'ble C. C. Stevens.
The Hon'ble J. Buckingham, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble A. S. Lethbridge, M.D., C.S.I.
The Hon'ble J. Woodburn, C.S.I.

NEW MEMBERS.

The Hon'ble DR. LETHBRIDGE and the Hon'ble MR. WOODBURN took their seats as Additional Members of Council.

QUESTIONS.

The Hon'ble SIR GRIFFITH EVANS said that he had been requested to read the question proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Rattigan, who was not present in Council. The question was as follows:—

Whether the attention of the Government has been directed to the conflicting Full Bench Rulings of the Calcutta High Court (reported in I. L. R. 18 Cal. 372) and of the Chief Court of the Punjab (a printed copy of which is placed on the table), respectively, on the subject of the amenability of military officers to be sued for debts under four hundred rupees in amount; and whether in view of this serious conflict of judicial opinion in regard to the true interpretation of the existing law, which it is undesirable should continue, and of the extreme hardship which merchants in the Punjab will suffer if the construction adopted by the Chief Court of the Punjab—according to which a military officer, who is frequently stationed at a place where no Small Cause Court exists, cannot be sued for a debt under four hundred rupees in amount except in a Small Cause Court having local jurisdiction in the place where he may happen to reside, and which is not open to any revision by way of appeal—is maintained, the Government proposes to take any measures to remove this conflict of opinion and to remedy the hardship referred to.

The Hon'ble LIEUTENANT-GENERAL BRACKENBURY replied:—"Until the notice of the Hon'ble Mr. Rattigan's question was received, the Government of India had not heard of the decision of the Punjab Chief Court referred to by the Hon'ble Member, as it had not up to that time been published in the Punjab Record or any other recognised law report received by the Government. But the Government of India had reason to believe that the same view as that taken by the Punjab Chief Court was acted upon at Bombay, and was aware of the full Bench ruling of the Calcutta High Court reported in I. L. R. 18 Cal. 372, to which the Hon'ble Member has also referred.

"The question is one of the construction of the Army (Annual) Act, which is an Act of the Imperial Legislature. This is a matter entirely for the Courts, and it may be hoped that a future Army (Annual) Act will place the intention of Parliament beyond doubt. The Government of India has already called the attention of the Secretary of State to the doubt which has arisen as to the meaning of the Act, and will now forward to him the decision of the Chief Court of the Punjab, the Hon'ble Mr. Rattigan's question, and this answer."

The Hon'ble MR. CHENTSAL RAO put the following questions:—

I. I observe that within the last twelve years there has been a surplus of Rx. 11,339,000 in eight years, and a deficit of Rx. 5,297,000 in four years, leaving a net surplus of Rx. 6,042,000. Will the Government of India be pleased to explain how the net surplus has been spent and what portion of it is included in the cash balance at the end of 1892-93?

Surplus.	Rx.
1881-82	2,582,727
1882-83	706,633
1883-84	1,387,496
1886-87	178,427
1888-89	37,018
1889-90	2,612,033
1890-91	3,688,171
1892-93	146,600	estimate
Total	11,339,105
Deficit.	Rx.
1884-85	386,446
1885-86	2,801,726
1887-88	2,028,832
1891-92	80,000	estimate
Total	5,297,004
Net surplus	6,042,101

II. Will the Government of India be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of Europeans (excluding Eurasians) employed in each Province and each Department, excepting the Military, distinguishing Covenanted from Uncovenanted officers; giving also the aggregate amount of salaries drawn by them in a year, say, 1891-92; the salaries being arranged, if possible, in the following groups, i.e., number drawing Rs. 200 and less, over Rs. 200 and up to Rs. 400, over Rs. 400 and up to Rs. 600, over

Rs. 600 and up to Rs. 800, over Rs. 800 and up to Rs. 1,000, from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,500, from Rs. 1,500 to Rs. 2,000, from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 3,000, and from Rs. 3,000 upwards?

III. Will the Government of India be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the extent to which the Land Improvement Loans Act has been availed of during the last five years, and the amount of bad debts, if any, which have had to be written off as irrecoverable, with any explanation that may exist as to why the Act has not been more largely availed of?

The Hon'ble SIR DAVID BARBOUR replied to the first question put by the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao as follows:—

"1. In addition to the money required to meet ordinary expenditure, the Government of India find funds for the construction of railways and canals and for loans to municipalities, agriculturists and others.

"2. The bulk of the expenditure on the construction of canals and railways and the disbursements on account of loans are not charged against Revenue, and do not affect the surplus or deficit of the year.

"3. Funds for such purposes are ordinarily provided by borrowing, but when there is a surplus of Revenue over Expenditure in any year the cash balance is increased by the amount of that surplus, and the sums that must be borrowed for the public service are correspondingly reduced. Such reductions in the amounts to be borrowed keep down the charge for interest in future years.

"4. Briefly, therefore, the answer to the first portion of the question of the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao is that the net surplus of the last twelve years has been used in diminution of borrowing by the Government of India.

"5. As the surplus of each year is absorbed in the cash balance, from which funds are drawn as required, it is impossible to say what portion of the net surplus of the last twelve years will remain in the cash balance at the end of 1892-93, but, if a net surplus had not accrued during the last twelve years, the Government of India must either have borrowed more money than they have done or accepted a corresponding reduction in the cash balance."

The Hon'ble SIR DAVID BARBOUR replied to the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao's second question as follows:—

"To prepare a table of the nature described by the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao would be a work involving very considerable delay.

"But it so happens that a similar return was prepared a year ago for presentation to Parliament. I lay on the table the return* presented to Parliament, being 'A statement of the numbers and annual salaries of officers on active service in India on the 31st March, 1890.'

"I also lay on the table two statements† showing the distribution by Provinces of the officers (other than military) included in the return presented to Parliament.

"Although these tables do not draw all the distinctions which the Hon'ble Member desires, and although the classification of salaries is different from that which he suggests, they give substantially the information he asks for, and I hope it will not be considered necessary to undertake the preparation of an entirely new set of tables."

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS replied to the third question put by the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao as follows:—

"As requested, a statement‡ has been prepared showing the loans granted in the several provinces under the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, during the five years ending with 1890-91, and also the extent to which instalments which had become due were remitted in those years. The total advances have risen during these five years from R4,68,000 to R8,56,000, or by over 80 per cent. The average remissions amount to R1,170 per annum, but, in the absence of any information as to the instalments which fell due during each year, I cannot tell what proportion of the debts can be regarded as irrecoverable. It is, however, safe to say that there are very few bad debts.

* Vide Appendix A.
† Vide Appendices B and C.
‡ Vide Appendix D.

"I am sorry that I am unable at present to give any later figures. The Hon'ble Member's question does not include advances made under the cognate Act of 1884, the Agriculturists' Loans Act; the only statistics as yet available for 1891-92 give the two classes of loans in combination, and it is impossible just now to separate them. Moreover, they cover a period of 17 months, and, as they have been taken from the famine reports, they are confined to those provinces which suffered from drought. They have, however, been added to the statement, as they show generally that the two Acts were employed in 1891-92 to an extent hitherto unknown. To make this clear I have had another statement* prepared showing advances made under the Act of 1884. Taking both Acts together, about 12¾ lakhs represent the average sum advanced per annum, but in 1890-91 the aggregate sum had risen to 20½ lakhs. But during 1891-92 and the first five months of the following year—the period of 17 months already mentioned—no less than 48 lakhs were distributed as loans in seven provinces, Madras alone accounting for about 30 lakhs—principally for the construction of wells. I think I may venture to say that similar large advances are likely to be made available again, if required, in times of famine.

"The Hon'ble Member asks also why the Act has not been more largely availed of. The exact figures given only carry us up to March, 1891, or 7½ years from the date on which the Act came into force. It is true that the Act of 1883 was not an altogether novel measure: it replaced an Act of 1871: but the earlier Act had proved ineffective, and I believe it was condemned by the Famine Commission. After 1883 fresh rules had to be made and promulgated: my hon'ble friend must be well aware that it takes a considerable time for any new set of rules to reach and be understood by illiterate villagers. The extent to which loans can be given is not unlimited: it is bounded by the allotments which our financial position enables us to make to the several provinces. Bearing these facts in mind, the progress made has not been discouraging, and it may reasonably be anticipated that in future every allotment which the Government of India can afford will be fully worked up to. There is reason to believe that some of the original rules were needlessly cumbrous and elaborate, and under them nearly every application had to be referred to some high district official for sanction. Where this was the case, they have undergone amendment, and I think I may venture to claim that they are now in every province as simple and elastic as is consistent with the proper scrutiny of the security tendered and with the safety of the public money for which the Government is responsible to the general tax-payer. The only other explanation which has come to notice of the backwardness of the people to apply for loans under the Act is their preference for the local money-lender, to whose ways they are habituated, who lives among them, to whom they must resort for loans not covered by either of the Acts, and whose high rate of interest enables him to be more lenient in exacting punctual repayment of his capital. It has been represented too, and I am afraid only too truly, that the acceptance of a State loan often brings on the cultivator the hostility of the money-lender which he cannot venture to incur. The question of establishing agricultural banks to render the raiyats independent of the money-lender has been carefully considered, but the measure was found fraught with danger to the general tax-payer and to involve the creation of such enormous establishments as to be quite impracticable."

LAND ACQUISITION ACT, 1870, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODBURN moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Stevens be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PARTITION BILL.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Law of Partition be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

His Honour the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL moved that the following be added to section 2 of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee, as sub-sections (2) to (4), namely:—

"(2) When the Court has directed a sale under this section, it shall cause a valuation to be made of the property in such manner as it may think fit, and shall after due enquiry pass an order approving or modifying the valuation. An appeal shall lie from an order approving a valuation of the property to the next superior Court.

"(3) The cost of such valuation shall be paid out of the proceeds of the property when sold.

"(4) When a valuation has been made under this section and a sale of any particular share or shares is afterwards directed under section 3 or section 4, no fresh valuation of such share or shares shall be made under those sections, but the value of such share or shares shall, for the purposes of such sale, be determined with reference to the valuation so already made as aforesaid."

He said:—"This amendment is the last of several suggestions which I have communicated to the Hon'ble Mover of the Bill, some of which have been accepted by him and embodied in the subsequent amendments which he is about to move, and some of which he has shown to me good reasons for considering not to be necessary. I confess that, although holding the view that the Bill as a whole is a valuable one, and one which it is necessary should be passed, I have entertained considerable anxiety as to the manner in which it may be used, especially in outlying mufassal stations, and the effect with which it may be worked by the stronger shareholders as against the weaker shareholders in undivided property. The Bengal Government in its reply on the Bill as first drawn up urged that some compensation should be given to those shareholders who were compelled to see their property sold, on the ground that it was in the nature of a compulsory sale. It is true that the second clause of the Bill prescribes that the Court shall hold that it is for the convenience and advantage of the shareholders that the sale should be carried out; and it is further obvious that it would be extremely difficult to provide a fund out of which compensation should be paid to these shareholders, and therefore we did not think it right to press that suggestion; but at the same time we were strongly impressed by the feeling that, in sales of this kind, conducted as they are in the outlying districts, there is great danger that injustice may be done and that a property may be sold for something considerably below its value. I have lately had before me, under very careful consideration, an extremely important letter from the High Court which was addressed to the Bengal Government on the subject of the proposed amendment of the Certificate Act and the sale law; and, with the permission of the Council, I will read two extracts from that letter as explaining the nature of the views which had influenced me in bringing forward this amendment. This letter, I may explain, is with reference to the amendment of the Certificate Act, under which a certificate has the effect of a decree of a Civil Court, and sales take place in execution of the decree. In paragraph 15 of their letter of the 29th August, 1891, the High Court wrote—

'Whatever system may be adopted, and however carefully that system may be administered, there will occur cases in which properties are sold very much under their real value, and even on the assumption that in such instances nobody has been to blame except the judgment-debtor himself, who, therefore, suffers by reason of his own negligence, still it seems a frightful penalty to impose on a man for his neglect to pay a trifling sum that his estate should be sold for a fraction of its value and he himself reduced to ruin. Extremely hard cases of this nature have occurred under the existing law. The Judges recommend that a provision should be introduced, analogous to that contained in the Bengal Tenancy Act with regard to sales for arrears of rent, by which a debtor whose property has been sold should always be at liberty to come before the Court and pay the amount of the demand, or so much of it as remains unsatisfied, together with a penalty, or, if the whole of the demand has been satisfied, to pay simply the penalty and the amount of the purchase-money with interest, and thereupon to have the sale set aside. This the Judges would allow him to claim as of right without any inquiry into the circumstances. It seems to them that by this provision Government could not possibly be a loser; the purchaser could sustain no serious injury; and extreme hardship would be avoided in individual cases.'

"Then in paragraph 19, turning to the cognate question of the sale law, they wrote —

'On the other hand, the Judges recommend that, while taking away the power of bringing a civil suit, the Legislature should give to the owner of an estate sold for arrears of land-revenue a right similar to that which now exists in the case of an estate sold for rent, and which they have recommended in paragraph 15 of this letter with regard to estates sold for the recovery of public demands other than land-revenue. They would allow the person whose estate has been sold to appear before the Collector within a fixed time, to pay the amount due to Government together with a penalty, and the amount of the purchase-money with interest; and thereupon the Collector should be empowered, and it should be his duty, to set aside the sale, his order having the same effect in this respect as the decree of a Civil Court. This proposal, if adopted, could in no case entail any loss of revenue, or any delay in its realization. It would tend to secure prices at revenue-sales corresponding more nearly than now with the value of the land sold; for, instead of having to face the possibility of costly and complicated litigation on the part of the person whose land is sold, the worst that a purchaser would have to fear would be the return of his purchase-money with interest. And it would provide a remedy against the extreme hardship that occurs from time to time when properties are sold at revenue-sales for a small fraction of their value, and the owners are brought to ruin.'

"Looking to the great experience of the High Court, and to the high authority with which they write, it seemed to me important to bring this utterance of theirs to the notice of the Council, and I had intended to propose an amendment to carry out their views as to giving a power of redemption; but the Hon'ble Mover of the Bill proposes to introduce a separate amendment to the Civil Procedure Code which will meet that particular case and will allow the particular shareholder who is bought out to redeem his property within a limited time. But still we have the fact brought to our notice that, in cases of this kind, extreme hardship does often occur, and I was anxious that in the preparation of this Bill every possible care should be taken to avoid such hardship. One of the simplest and clearest methods of avoiding hardship is that a reserve price should be put upon the estate, and that it should not be allowed to be sold by auction in a way which is said sometimes to occur under what we may call 'a conspiracy of silence'—in the absence of those most interested in the sale of the property, and when it would not be likely to fetch an adequate price. A proposal to meet this case has been made by the Hon'ble Mover and will be introduced subsequently.

"But no explanation is there given as to how the reserved price is to be decided on, and it is for this, among other things, that my amendment provides. Moreover, in section 3 the case is put where a shareholder who is not one of those who applies for a partition desires to purchase, and in that case a valuation has to be made; and in section 4, where a transferee who is not an original shareholder desires to effect a partition, one of the remaining shareholders has the power to buy on valuation; that is to say, the law has provided for two cases in which a valuation should be made by the Court. It is also going to provide that there shall always be a reserve price put upon the sale. It seemed to me, therefore, that it would simplify the Act and make the procedure plainer if it was laid down in the first place in section 2 that in all cases a valuation should be made under the order of the Court. Then, when the shareholder applies to purchase, the valuation is already made, and it would not be necessary to have a second valuation on his application; and, in the other case, when the transferee desires to have the property sold, one of the original shareholders has the opportunity of using the same valuation: and, thirdly, on that valuation might be based the reserve price, which the Judge need not disclose, but which he would frame in his own mind and communicate to the auctioneer so as to avoid the chance of the estate being sold very much below its value.

"I put this suggestion to the Council as it seems to me to be a simplification of the law as proposed. I admit that the three sections taken together for the most part cover the matters which it seems necessary to cover, but I submit that it will be a more simple and less complicated procedure that the valuation should be made in the first place as a matter of course under the ordinary rules, and that it should be referred to afterwards in the subsequent sections; and that the cost of the valuation should be costs in the case, paid out of the sale of the property, rather than that it should be made specially on the application of the shareholder, and that if the valuation turned out larger than he expected, so that he is unable to buy this property, he should be saddled with the cost of doing what it seems to me the Court should do in all cases for the sake of the whole body of the shareholders."

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER said:—"I entirely sympathise with the Lieutenant-Governor in his desire to secure that no sale should take place at an under-valuation; but I have had a great deal of experience in the sale of property,—both of property belonging to lunatics and that sold in the ordinary jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery,—and I am satisfied that nothing would tend more to spoil the sale of property than that the official valuation of it should be known before the sale. I can tell you exactly how it works in England, and I think that it would work much the same way in India. Property is set up for sale by auction. A number of men want to buy it cheaply. If they know what the reserve price is, any one of them would bid up to the reserve price but not beyond it. I have seen that over and over again. They bid just enough to show that they are interested, in the hope that the property will be bought in, and then they come running into chambers with an offer. and say 'Now, I will give you the reserve price as nobody else has done it' I have seen on one occasion myself, when no bid came within £100 of the reserve price, no less than five or six applicants came next morning to offer to give me the minimum price for the property; and greatly to their astonishment, instead of letting them purchase it amongst themselves or giving it to the first applicant, I put it up to a sort of irregular auction then and there and got £400 over and above the price fixed for it. So that I am most desirous that, whatever is done, the valuation of the property should be kept a secret until after the sale is over, and the principal objection I have to His Honour's suggestion is that it provides that an order should be made approving the valuation which will make it possible for everybody who has access to the records of the Court to know precisely what that valuation is. It is quite true that where it has been necessary in the interests of shareholders to provide that where the property is not to be sold to any other but a shareholder, a valuation must be made; because there is no other way in which you can give a right of pre-emption, but such valuation will have been asked for by the applicant at his own risk of what it may amount to; and I confess that, if a shareholder chooses to say, 'Value this share, because I want to buy it,' I think he should be unable afterwards to withdraw from the application without paying all the costs thereby incurred, and I should be sorry to give him an opportunity of obtaining any such valuation on speculation. Therefore, although, considering that as the Bill originally stood there was no provision made for a reserve price—I can quite understand the motives which induced His Honour to propose this valuation now—I should very much prefer that the reserve price should be fixed in the ordinary way by a Judge without any order, or without any one knowing what it is, or even what it is like. If a property is to be sold, there should be no contest over the valuation, no previous hearing in Court, no possibility of appeal as to the amount before any order for sale is actually made, all of which would no doubt add to the cost of litigation and tend, I am afraid, to impair the excellent amendment of the law which is proposed by this Bill. I would myself have proposed some such clause as the Hon'ble Mover has now proposed with regard to reserve price, if I had not taken it for granted that the Court would do that of its own motion, as the Courts in England do; but, as I understand that, under the existing practice in execution sales, this would not be done, I quite agree that it is necessary to provide for the case; but I think that a reserve price will be sufficient to prevent any risk of sale at undervalue; and moreover it is to be remembered that for properties through the country generally this Bill will probably have very little operation. If you have property to be divided through the country generally, it will consist mainly of land, and there is seldom any difficulty in making a partition in specie, while the parties to whom the property belongs generally prefer a partition in specie to a sale and partition in money. It is only when you come to a town, where there are small bits of property divided into perhaps ten or fifteen different shares, and which would be incapable of being enjoyed separately, that the value of a sale instead of a partition comes to be recognised; or when you have a dwelling-house, such that if divided into separate tenements none of them could be beneficially enjoyed, it is evident that his share of the purchase-money would be much better for each shareholder than his share of the house. But, under any circumstances, I think the owners would be sufficiently protected, and the Court would have more power over the sale, by taking the ordinary course of a sale by auction with a sale reserve price below which the auctioneer is instructed not to go, than by having a valuation fixed by order beforehand which everybody knows and as to which everybody is quite determined that, whatever else he may bid, it will not be so high as that."

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE said:—"I regret I am unable to see my way to accept the amendment of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor. His Honour admits that the amendments which stand in my name cover the same ground, or very nearly the same ground, as the amendment proposed by him. But His Honour claims for his amendment the merit of simplicity. I am sorry I cannot agree with His Honour. I have objections to the substance as well as to the form of the proposed amendment, but as these objections run into one another I do not think they can be usefully kept distinct. I propose, therefore, to deal with my objections to His Honour's proposal in the order which suggests itself to me as the most convenient. The first clause of the amendment runs thus:—

'When the Court has directed a sale under this section, it shall cause a valuation to be made of the property in such manner as it may think fit, and shall after due enquiry pass an order approving or modifying the valuation. An appeal shall lie from an order approving a valuation of the property to the next superior Court.'

"Now this clause, while emphasising perhaps somewhat unnecessarily the duty of the Court to make due inquiry, not only leaves the Court no discretion in any case whatever to make the valuation itself, but compels it either to approve or modify the valuation when it has been made through some other agency; but why should not the Court have the power in a proper case to cancel the valuation altogether and direct a fresh valuation? The last part of the clause again gives a right of appeal to the parties from an order approving a valuation but not from an order modifying a valuation. It then goes on to say that the appeal shall lie to the next superior Court. Now, although the expression 'superior Court' has a technical meaning in England, it has no such meaning in this country. Assuming, however, as the use of the word 'next' before the words 'superior Court' would seem to show, that the words mean the Court immediately superior in grade to the primary Court, my objection is that the provision would have the effect of altering the whole law in this country as regards the forum of appeal. Take, for instance, a suit in the Court of the Subordinate Judge in which the amount at stake exceeds Rs. 5,000. The appeal in a suit like this would lie to the High Court. But, if you take the classification of the different Courts as you find it in our Statute-book, the Court of the District Judge is the next superior Court to that of the Subordinate Judge. Then, again, the clause does not tell us whether there is to be only one appeal or two appeals—one in the nature of a first appeal and the other what is known as a second appeal. I come now to the next clause, which runs thus:—

'The cost of such valuation shall be paid out of the proceeds of the property when sold.'

"The first question that occurs to me with reference to this clause is what is to happen if the property—by which I suppose the whole property is meant—is not ultimately sold. Under the proposed law it might not be at all necessary in a great many cases to sell the whole property, as some of the shares might be bought up in the manner provided in sections 3 and 4 of the Bill. How would the costs be paid in such a case? But there is another and perhaps a stronger objection which would readily occur to those who have any experience in such matters. A provision like the one under notice would encourage the temptation to indulge in the practice of what is known as 'making costs.' Only declare that the costs shall in all cases be payable out of the estate, and the parties would find themselves under a strong inducement to make frivolous opposition. The general rule is to leave all questions of costs to the discretion of the Court, except in rare cases, such, for instance, as those contained in section 3 of the Bill. It has been said by the Hon'ble Mover of the proposed amendment that, as in a great number of cases the Court would be obliged to value some of the shares in the property, you would not put the parties to any unnecessary expense by insisting upon a valuation of the whole. It would be simply a question of arithmetic. You would have only to multiply by so many times the value of an undivided share. But we must remember that a particular share might be subject to an encumbrance while the other shares might be unencumbered, and the Court under the proposed amendment would be bound to take an account of such encumbrances in every case, although in the end the account might be absolutely useless to the parties. Then, again, it has been said that the valuation would be useful for the purpose of settling the reserve price in those cases in which the shares are not bought up under sections 3 and 4. But is it really necessary to provide such an elaborate machinery with preliminary rights of appeal or appeals merely for the purpose of fixing a reserve bidding? Give the parties a right of appeal or of excepting to the valuation, and they would be sure to avail themselves of it to the utmost extent, however fruitless in the end the result might be. I venture, therefore, to think that the proposed amendment, instead of having the merit of simplicity as compared with the amendment which I am going to move, would give rise to a great many difficulties, causing unnecessary expense and delay to the parties."

The Hon'ble MR. CHENTSAL RAO said that while the Lieutenant-Governor's amendment was much to be commended, the objections to phraseology of it which had been pointed out by the Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose possessed considerable weight.

As the point was one which had not been fully considered by the Select Committee, if it was open to him to do so, he would beg leave to suggest that the Bill be referred back to the Committee for the purpose of reconsidering the question and submitting a further report.

The Hon'ble SIR GRIFFITH EVANS said that he had not intended to speak, but, as the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao had spoken out of his turn, he could only plead his irregularity as an excuse for—with His Excellency the President's permission—committing another.

He felt that, apart entirely from questions of phraseology, which, as the Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao said, were matters which could be easily set right—if there was any difficulty about phraseology—by a reference to the Select Committee, the question really was whether it was desirable to have those valuations made in every instance where there was an order for sale, or to leave them to be made in the particular instances where a shareholder wished to buy at a valuation.

He could not help feeling that the views expressed by Dr. Rashbehary Ghose upon this point seemed to be sound. If, whenever an order to sell was made, the Court was obliged to cause a valuation to be made, that would entail a commission for local investigation. The result would be that the parties would plunge into litigation; a report would be made, exceptions would be put in which would be argued before the Judge, and finally there would be a right of appeal to another Court. One could not help feeling that all this expense and delay was to be avoided if possible. The proposal made by Dr. Rashbehary Ghose, that the valuation should only take place when necessary, and that in every other case there should be an upset price fixed by the Judge, would seem to be a very much cheaper, more expeditious and more desirable method of dealing with the question.

He thought himself that the Court could be fairly trusted to fix some reasonable upset price, and would be supplied by the parties with ample materials.

With reference to what had been said about secresy, he feared that, with regard to the upset price and valuation, there was no possibility of anything of that kind. The nature of the proceedings was such as to render secresy out of the question.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS said:—"The substantial difference between the two amendments on the paper seems to be that His Honour desires to have a formal appraisement in every case, while the hon'ble and learned Member in charge of the Bill, admitting the desirability of commencing with an upset price, would leave the Court to fix such initial bid as it pleases, and not require a formal valuation unless it is proposed to sell a share only and to exclude public competition.

"In my judgment Dr. Rashbehary Ghose's amendment will sufficiently answer the real purpose which His Honour has in view, and I am prepared to vote for it. I do not think these are cases in which the property is at all likely to be knocked down at a price much below its real value. I agree with Sir Griffith Evans that it is more likely that, owing to the anxiety of each shareholder to retain the family house in which he has been accustomed to live, it will fetch a fancy value.

"His Honour's amendment is not quite consistent with the sections which follow, but I will not go into the question of phraseology, as any defects can easily be cured by re-committing the Bill to the Select Committee.

"It seems to me that the determination of an upset price does not at all require an accurate appraisement of the property, and that any one, be he a shareholder or not, who hinders the ordinary procedure of a sale by public auction and causes the expense of such an appraisement, may well be required to pay the costs if after all he refuses to pay the full estimated value."

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER said that before the vote was put he wished, with the permission of the Council, to say one word as to the objection which had been taken to the phraseology of the amendments. Although on the point of substance he had already given his opinion, he wished to explain that the phraseology was his. His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor had explained to him what he wanted done, and he had put it into the language in which he thought it would best carry out the intention. If in any respect, therefore, the language was open to criticism, that criticism should fall upon him and not upon his hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor.

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said:—"I should like to make one or two remarks before the votes are taken. With regard to the objections which have been taken to the wording of the amendment, it seems to me that the amendment is only open to those objections because it has attempted to go into questions which the sections of the Bill as they now stand have slurred over. The valuation must be made under sections 3 and 4, and although my hon'ble friend Sir Philip Hutchins has said that an absolute formal valuation need not be made if a reserve price is fixed, yet I would ask you to remember the manner in which practically this business will be conducted in the mufassal stations. Take, for instance, a case of a large pucka house standing in the country, far from the head-quarter station, and belonging to several shareholders at bitter feud with each other. The Munsif has never seen it, and the only possible way in which he can put on a reserve price is by sending the Civil Court amin to value it. Now the Civil Court amin is not, as a rule, a trustworthy officer, and the High Court have declared their desire that some measure should be taken to improve the condition and status of the Civil Court amins and the manner in which their work is carried out; and that question is still under the consideration of the Bengal Government. It was because I felt great distrust of the mode in which the valuation might be made, and of the manner in which the reserve price might be put upon an estate by a Court which had no personal knowledge of its value, and under circumstances in which there was every possible probability of temptations being offered to commit a fraud, that it seemed to me desirable that the valuation should be carried out in a formal and definite manner, and that provision should be made for contesting that valuation if it is an improper one. In fact, whether the law expressly makes provision for such proceedings or not, they will have to be carried out, and the Hon'ble Mover's Bill will not be improved by ignoring them.

"Again, with regard to Sir Griffith Evans' opinion that such property would always sell at a high value, I would only ask you to remember what the High Court has said in the letter I have just read, as to the frequency of sales much below the real value of the property. Now, if there was any property which it might be supposed would have fetched a high value, it is a permanently-settled estate in the province of Bengal; and yet I understand that hardly any appeal against a sale comes to the Board of Revenue in which the plea has not been put forward that the estate has been sold for a tenth of its value; and the High Court have asserted in this letter, which I have read, that occasionally there is truth in these allegations, and that property is sold below its value. And, if it is granted that property of this kind is often sold under value, surely there is still greater probability that property in the nature of house-property, for which in a country village there would be no competition, would be sold for an extremely nominal value. It is for this reason that I am anxious that all care should be taken in effecting the valuation and securing the rights of the weaker shareholders, whose position, I fear, may be somewhat imperilled by the passing of this Bill."

The question being put, the Council divided—

Ayes.	Noes.
The Hon'ble Mr. Woodburn.	The Hon'ble Dr. Lethbridge.
The Hon'ble Mr. Buckingham.	The Hon'ble Mr. Stevens.
The Hon'ble Fazulbhai Vishram.	The Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans.
The Hon'ble Mr. Chentsal Rao.	The Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose.
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor.	The Hon'ble Mr. Mackay.
	The Hon'ble Sir Charles Pritchard.
	The Hon'ble General Brackenbury.
	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller.
	The Hon'ble Sir David Barbour.
	The Hon'ble Sir Philip Hutchins.
	His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

So the amendment was lost.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE moved that the following amendments be made in the Bill as amended by the Select Committee, namely :—

1. That for section 4 the following be substituted, namely :—

"4. (1) Where a share of a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family has been transferred to a person who is not a member of such family and such transferee sues for partition, the Court shall, if any member of the family being a shareholder shall undertake to buy the share of such transferee, make a valuation of such share in such manner as it thinks fit and direct the sale of such share to such shareholder and may give all necessary and proper directions in that behalf.

Partition suit by transferee of share in dwelling-house.

"(2) If, in any case described in sub-section (1), two or more members of the family being such shareholders severally undertake to buy such share, the Court shall follow the procedure prescribed by sub-section (2) of the last foregoing section."

2. That in section 5, for the words " or an undertaking to buy given " the words " or an undertaking, or application for leave to buy, may be given or made " be substituted ; and that after the word " undertaking ", in line 8, the words " or application " be inserted.

3. That the following be inserted in section 6 as sub-section (1), namely :—

"(1) Every sale under section 2 shall be subject to a reserved bidding, and the amount of such bidding shall be fixed by the Court in such manner as it may think fit and may be varied from time to time.

4. That the present sub-sections (1) and (2) of the same section be re-numbered (2) and (3); and that in sub-section (2) as so re-numbered for the words "On any sale under this Act" the words "On any such sale" be substituted.

5. That the words "Save as hereinbefore provided" be inserted at the beginning of section 7.

He said that, with the exception of two of the amendments, the rest were all purely verbal, and he did not think it necessary to trouble the Council with merely verbal amendments. One of these two comparatively important amendments was contained in section 4, in which it was proposed to add the words "being a shareholder" after the words "any member of the family". He was indebted for the suggestion to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. Under the section, as it originally stood, it might have been argued that the privilege was not confined to those members only of the family who still retained an interest in the family dwelling-house, but might be claimed even by a person who, although he might continue to be a member of the family, had ceased to have anything whatever to do with the family house. The section now made it quite clear that the privilege could only be exercised by a member of the family who still owned a share in the property.

The next amendment of any importance was the addition which it was proposed to make to section 6. That addition had been already discussed, and it was unnecessary for him to say anything about it, as it seemed to be generally acceptable to Hon'ble Members. But he ought to explain why nothing of this kind found a place in the Bill as it was submitted by the Select Committee. Section 6 of the Bill provides that, in the case of property sold under a decree in Bombay, Madras or Bengal, the Court should observe the procedure governing Registrars' sales in the High Courts, and they all knew that in the case of a sale by a Registrar of the High Court there must be a reserve price in the conditions of sale. As regards the mufassal, rules must be made by the High Court, and it was taken for granted that the High Court, under the authority conferred upon it by this section, would make rules on the lines of those regulating Registrars' sales.

He had, however, no objection to insert a section in the Bill expressly giving the right to the parties to claim a sale only at a reserved price.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE moved that the Bill, as now amended, be passed. He said:—"In introducing the measure last year I pointed out the defective state of the present law relating to partition, and explained the manner in which it might be improved by giving the Court, in some exceptional cases, and under proper safeguards, a right to sell the property and to distribute the proceeds. It is unnecessary to repeat what I said on that occasion, and I propose now to deal only with some criticisms which have been levelled against the Bill, as, notwithstanding the favourable reception it has generally met with, the measure has not altogether escaped adverse comment. Nobody, I am glad to say, has seriously suggested that the present law is not susceptible of improvement, and the hostile criticisms directed against the Bill, which may be roughly divided into two categories, in a great measure neutralise one another. It has been said, on the one hand, that the numerous restrictions imposed on the Court are useless, if not mischievous, and that, where a partition cannot be properly made without injury to the property, the action of the Court ought to be left perfectly unfettered and not made dependent on the consent of any of the parties. On the other hand, it has been said that the power of sale is not adequately hedged round, and a suggestion has been made that compensation ought to be paid to the coparceners who are unwilling to part with their shares. To those critics who oppose some of the restrictions as altogether unnecessary, I should say that for obvious reasons sweeping innovations in matters of so much delicacy are always to be deprecated, and that we cannot proceed too cautiously. To those who object to the Bill as not sufficiently safeguarding the interests of the weaker shareholders, I would beg to point out, even at the risk of repetition, that it would be impossible for a powerful member under colour of this law to oppress the weaker shareholders, as the Court would never be able to direct a sale simply at the request of some of the parties, however large their interests might be. It must be satisfied that no partition by metes and bounds can be reasonably made, and also that a sale would be more beneficial not for one or even the larger number of the parties but for all the shareholders. It must also be remembered that, even when all the conditions essential to the exercise of the power exist, the Court would still have a discretion to direct or to refuse a sale—a discretion to be exercised, like all judicial discretion, on a consideration of the whole of the circumstances of the case. A request for sale made out of spite or from vexatious or other indirect motives would, I am sure, never be listened to by any Court of Justice, while the provision with regard to fixing a reserve price just introduced into the Bill would prevent the property from being sold at an inadequate price.

"I will now deal with the question of compensation which has been raised in the course of the discussion on the Bill, and it is the more necessary that I should do so as I find that some of my remarks in presenting the Report of the Select Committee have been misunderstood. I am reported to have said on that occasion—and no doubt correctly reported—that there can be no compulsory sales under this law. Now, I was then dealing with the recommendation of the Local Government, which I understood was based on the suggestion of the British Indian Association, that an additional 20 per cent. should be paid to the shareholder who is compelled to part with his share for the valuation price under section 3 of the Bill. That section, however, deals with the sale of the shares only of those who request a sale in favour of the other shareholders. The proposal of the Association therefore seemed to me to be based upon a misconception, and in saying that the Bill does not authorize a compulsory sale I evidently meant a forced sale by one shareholder to another. Indeed, if I might be permitted to say so, it never occurred to me that any question of compensation for disturbance, to use a familiar expression of the present day, could possibly arise in the case of a sale under section 2, which can only be directed when it is for the benefit of all the parties.

"I have now dealt at some length with the various criticisms which have been directed against the measure—criticisms for which I cannot say I was altogether unprepared. Whenever any change is proposed, whether in the sphere of legislation or in other spheres, there is sure to be some opposition. Some warning voice is sure to be raised when one ventures into untrodden paths, and we are invariably thankful for it, although sometimes compelled to disregard the warning. I am, however, glad to be able in the present instance in some measure to re-assure those who are always 'perplexed by fear of change.' Although the experience of the working of a particular law gained in other countries might sometimes be a very misleading guide, there is in the present case no reason to fear that the cautious innovation we are now making would be attended with any mischievous results, for we are not happily without some experience of the operation of a somewhat similar but far more trenchant law in this very country. In Chandernagore, and I believe also in the other French possessions in India, the far more drastic provision of the Code Napoleon has been long in force; and I am not aware, notwithstanding my enquiries on the subject. that the Hindu and Muhammadan citizens of the Republic have ever complained of its working. It has certainly not disintegrated joint families. It has not enabled the opulent members of a family to oppress their poorer relations. But it certainly has had the effect of preserving much property from ruin and of considerably reducing legal expenses. I do not wish to be understood as promising any very wide-reaching benefits from the operation of the present measure. Indeed, it would be rash, if not unbecoming, on my part to do so. But of one thing I am confident, and that is that, if the law is properly worked, as I have not the least doubt it will be worked, my countrymen will not find their patrimony converted into lawyers' bills and the estate divided not among those who are entitled to it, but among those who are called on to assist them in its division.

"In conclusion, I have a word to say to those who seem to fear that the measure under discussion might possibly lead to the disintegration of the joint family, of which idyllic pictures have been sometimes drawn. I have nothing but the most fervent sympathy with those who cherish the institution, and will not therefore pause to enquire whether the portraits have net been occasionally painted without the shadows. I would only remind these gentlemen that suits for partition are by no means uncommon among coparceners, and that such suits are often fought with a bitterness which has become proverbial, ending not seldom in the ruin of the family. Those who think that any reasonable facilities given to coparceners for severing their interests would tend to the dissolution of the joint family system forget that a great lawsuit is a great evil, and that a protracted partition action is 'protracted woe.' Such men also greatly overrate the operation of positive law on society and betray a very imperfect appreciation of the strength and delicacy of the fibres and the play and interaction of the subtle forces which hold together the different members of that remarkable organization known as the joint Hindu family."

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER said :—" I should not wish to intervene again in this matter, but I want to take this opportunity of counteracting, if I can, what seems to be a very widely-spread misapprehension as to the object and effect of this Bill. I will take the liberty of reading two paragraphs, both very short, from a well-known newspaper which has taken a great interest in this matter. They are as follows :—

'The case against the Partition Bill now pending before the Viceroy's Legislative Council admits of being very briefly put. The right to claim partition is valuable, and the Bill takes it away, without sufficient reason, from a body of men who deserve special care and are of peculiar use to Government. That is all that we have to say against the revenue-officers.

" Then after some argument on the point it says :—

" The whole policy of the present landlord and tenant law in Bengal may be said to be to raise ordinary cultivators to the position of landowners, in the hope of extending the economical and moral advantages which it has secured to those who occupy it, * * * * and it may fairly be asked whether one of the most important rights of a class so valuable is to be taken away, in order that the Courts may be relieved of occasional embarrassment. Fairly viewed, we think that the security of tenure of the smaller landlords in these and other provinces may be found to be more important than the case of a few revenue-officers.

" Now, I should be very sorry that the idea should get about, first, that this Bill in any way takes away the right of claiming a partition. It does nothing of the kind. Every owner of an undivided share has always had a right to claim a partition, and he has still that right. All the Bill says is this, that where the persons interested think that a partition would be more beneficially made by selling the property and dividing the money than by dividing the property in specie, and where the Court agrees with them, then the partition will take place in that particular form. And as for the statement that this is a Bill to contribute to the ease of the revenue-officers, the revenue-officers have nothing whatever to say to it, and, so far as the collection of revenue is concerned, it would require a completely different proceeding, and one which is very well known, to effect any change in connection with revenue. I am told that the paper has itself corrected this mistake. I can only say thay I have not seen the correction in the Statesman; but I wish it particularly to be understood that we in no way propose to limit the right to partition of any one who asks for it, nor do we in any way limit the power of the Court to grant it."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

BILL TO LEGALIZE EXECUTION IN BRITISH INDIA OF CAPITAL SENTENCES PASSED BY BRITISH COURTS IN FOREIGN TERRITORY.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to legalize in certain cases the execution within British India of capital sentences which have been passed by British Courts exercising in, or with respect to, foreign territory jurisdiction which the Governor General in Council has in such territory be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the following section be added to the Bill as amended by the Select Committee, namely:—

"3. The tribunals mentioned in the proviso to section 19 of the Prisoners Act, 1871, shall be deemed to be British Courts for the purposes of this Act:

Certain tribunals to be deemed British Courts under Act.

"Provided that every warrant issued under this Act by any such Court shall be signed by that one of the presiding Judges thereof who is the 'officer of Government' mentioned in such proviso."

He said:—"When this Bill was before the Select Committee there were a good many proposals for amending the Prisoners Act of 1871 in connection with it, but the Select Committee came to the conclusion, and I think rightly, that this was a separate matter of its own and that the desired amendments in the Prisoners Act should be made, if at all, separately; but it has since been pointed out by the Foreign Department that we are legislating for the execution of sentences of certain British Courts, and that there are certain courts which might or might not be considered to be British Courts. These are courts which sit under the authority either of the Governor General in Council or of the Native Chiefs, one of the presiding Judges of which is an officer of Government, and it is obvious that there may very probably be some of these courts acting under the particular circumstances for which this Bill was introduced—that is to say, that such a court may very well sit in a State where there is no proper or convenient arrangement for carrying out a sentence of death: the Foreign Department has asked that we should definitely provide for these cases in this Bill, not that we should alter the Prisoners Act in any respect, but that we should say that, for the purposes of this Act, these courts should be treated as British Courts. That seems to me to be reasonable, and therefore I have consented to the proposal that the section which I have just now read to the Council should be added to the Bill."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill, as now amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PETIT BARONETCY BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill for settling the Endowment of the Baronetcy conferred upon Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, of "Petit Hall", in the Island of Bombay, be taken into further consideration. He said:—"It will be in the memory of the Council that this Bill was taken into consideration some three weeks or a month ago, and that it was postponed at the instance of my hon'ble friend Sir Griffith Evans in order that certain objections which had been taken to sections 11 and 12 of the Bill as they then stood should be referred back to the Government of Bombay. They have been so referred back, and proposals have been made by Sir Dinshaw Petit and accepted by the Government of Bombay which I hope will also be accepted by this Council as a sufficient solution of the difficulty, and I now ask that the Bill be taken into consideration in order that those amendments may be laid before the Council."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER then moved that the following amendments be made in the Bill, namely:—

1. That the following proviso be added to section 11, namely:—

"Provided always that the total amount of the stocks, funds and securities for the time being subject to the trusts of this Act shall at no time exceed fifty lakhs of rupees."

2. That section 12 be omitted and the following sections re-numbered accordingly, and that the reference to section 17 at the end of section 12 as so re-numbered be altered to section 16.

3. That in section 14, for the words "or any of them", in line 7, the words "concerning the said Mansion-house and premises" be substituted.

He said:—"I will take these amendments not exactly in the order in which I have read them, and will begin with the second of them, namely, that 'section 12 be omitted and the following sections re-numbered accordingly'. Section 12 of the Bill was the one which enabled further lands to be brought into settlement with the consent of the Local Government, and the main opposition was taken to that section. It was the section which my hon'ble friend Dr. Rashbehary Ghose moved should be omitted on a former occasion. Sir Dinshaw Petit is willing that it should be omitted, and I now, with the consent of everybody, propose that it should be excluded altogether from the Bill.

"The third amendment is 'that in section 14, for the words "or any of them" in line 7, the words "concerning the said Mansion-house and premises" be substituted', and is simply consequential upon that omission of section 12 which I have just moved. The reference to "any" of the trusts of this Act was necessary at a time when it was possible that there might be trusts of the Act applying to real estates brought in subsequently which that section was intended to cover. Now that it is clear that real estates are not intended to be brought in subsequently, it is necessary to show that section 14 will apply only to the Mansion-house and premises which are expressly settled by the Bill and not to any other real estate.

"As to section 11, which related to stocks, funds and securities, a compromise has been effected which I hope will be accepted. I myself could never understand the grounds on which the rule against perpetuities (which it will be remembered is merely a Judge-made rule, and not statutory law) was extended to personal estate. It was very properly made to avoid the possible effect of the Statute of Uses on settled estates, and the rule was so framed as to leave the maximum limitations of land under the Statute the same as they had been before the Statute was passed. Why that was extended to money I never could make out. But the rule has been in existence too long, and has been too persistently acted upon, to be shaken now, and it must be taken to be settled law in England, followed in India, and clearly without legislative authority it is no more possible to settle money in perpetuity than it is land. It is now proposed that, instead of giving Sir Dinshaw Petit and his successors the power of adding as much money to this perpetual settlement as they please, a limit should be put whereby the total amount shall not exceed 50 lakhs; that is, something less than double the amount which is immediately to be settled, and I do not think that if there is to be a limit to be put at all that this is an extravagantly high limit, and I hope that the Council will be satisfied that the limit is a sufficient one. You will remember that the odd 21 lakhs or so cannot be settled without the consent of the Local Government."

The Hon'ble SIR GRIFFITH EVANS said that he did not propose to trouble the Council with the question whether it would be desirable to alter the existing law so as to enable the enormous fortunes sometimes accumulated in money and stocks to be tied up for ever. He thought that the general feeling of most people was that it was far better that the fetter of the dead hand should not be allowed to paralyse the living in their dealings with the commercial capital of the world. The question before them really was simply this. There were certain exceptional circumstances in which it had been the practice to tie up property for the purpose of the maintenance of certain dignities, and that class of exception was one which he need not say he in common with others approved of when it was acted upon, as in this case, under proper safeguards; but it had been usual hitherto that the sum should be fixed and should be ascertained and forthcoming at the time when it was settled. Of course, so long as the limit was fixed by legislative power he did not see that there was any insuperable objection to allowing further money to be brought into the settlement, but he wished merely to say that the other had been the usual rule, and that no case had been shown by Sir Dinshaw Petit why an exception should be made in his case and why further money should be put in, but at the same time, so long as a limit was fixed by legislative authority, he could not see that there was any great objection to it if they choose to do it, the only consideration being that it was not easy to see why an exceptional course should be pursued in this particular instance.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Bill, as now amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE AND INDIAN LIMITATION ACT, 1877, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act, 1877. He said:—"As mentioned in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, land when sold in execution of decree seldom realises in this country anything like a fair price. Various explanations have been given to account for this evil, the wide existence of which cannot be disputed by any one familiar with the practical administration of the execution sections in the law. The uncertainty of the title, which there is generally no proper means of examining, the non-service or irregular service of the notices prescribed by the law, the absence of any reserve price in the conditions of sale, the difficulties frequently thrown in the way of the purchaser when he seeks to obtain possession, the litigation which generally follows the sale, have been variously assigned as creating a state of things hurtful alike to the interests of the debtor and his creditor and furnishing endless opportunities for unlawful gain to speculative purchasers—a class who thrive at the expense both of the honest creditor who is only anxious to recover his debt, and the debtor whose property is frequently sold at an enormous sacrifice, and which it must be confessed he sometimes tries to get back by means which are neither honest nor well-advised. It is true we are sometimes told that the difficulties of a creditor, according to a famous saying of Sir Barnes Peacock, only begin after he has recovered his judgment. But I need hardly say that all judgment-debtors are not dishonest, and that some of them at least are more sinned against than sinning. Improvidence, it is true, is the badge of all their tribe, but there is a general impression, not perhaps wholly unfounded, that they are not seldom made to pay too dearly for their want of foresight and business habits. I need hardly add that the compulsory sale of land for the payment of debts is not generally regarded with much favour by the people, and the way in which it is frequently carried out is certainly not likely to reconcile them to such sales. The moment the hammer falls and the property is knocked down to the highest bidder, the gates—I will not say of justice, but of mercy—are shut on the unfortunate owner. He may not redeem the land at any price, although he can apply to set the sale aside under a provision in the Code which is to him what the straw in the proverb is to the drowning man and is about equally useful. As a partial remedy for this grave evil, the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act for the first time introduced a provision enabling a tenant to redeem his property by paying into Court within a certain period the amount of the judgment-debt, and in addition a sum equal to five per cent. of the purchase-money to be paid as a bonus to the purchaser. This provision seems to me to be a very equitable one, as the creditor gets his money and the purchaser a bonus of five per cent. on his purchase-money. The Select Committee on the Tenancy Act observe in their report:—

'Applications under section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside sales cause expense and annoyance to the decree-holder and auction-purchaser. It is believed that they are often instituted merely with a view to recovering the tenure or holding which had been sold, and it is anticipated that, if a judgment-debtor is allowed to recover his property by depositing after the sale the amount decreed against him, the number of these applications will be considerably diminished.'

" Experience has amply justified the anticipations of the Select Committee by whom the provision was introduced into the Bengal Tenancy Act, and landlords have been enabled by it to recover their rents and tenants to redeem their holdings when they have been sold at an under-value, and I do not believe that it has had the effect of deterring intending purchasers in any case. It is now proposed to extend this boon to all judgment-debtors, and I do not think I should be wrong in saying also to all execution-creditors, by adding a similar section to the Code of Civil Procedure. This has been done by section 2 of the Bill. Section 3 is only supplementary to the addition made by section 2, and the slight amendment of the Indian Limitation Act in section 4 has been rendered necessary for the purpose of prescribing the period within which the money must be paid in order to entitle the debtor to redeem his property.

" In conclusion I am bound to say that it is a great and unexpected satisfaction to me to find that the learned Judges of the High Court approve of the proposal to extend the provisions of section 174 of the Tenancy Act to other compulsory sales, as appears from the communication read to us by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal."

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS said:—" As I understand, the effect of the proposed Bill will be to give a locus pœnitentiæ to a person whose immoveable property has been sold in execution of a decree, and enable him to redeem it within a month by paying off the decree and compensating the purchaser with a bonus of what may be regarded as a year's interest on the purchase-money. I think the Government of India will welcome any measure which has for its object the mitigation of the rigidity of the law of sale for debt and may tend to prevent the dispossession of an indebted agriculturist. The Council are aware that a Commission sat last year to enquire into the working of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, and the Government of India are only waiting for the Bombay Government's views on the Commissioners' report to again take up the whole subject. So far as the remedies to be applied have been formulated, they are quite consistent with the proposals now made by Dr. Rashbehary Ghose. Meanwhile it will be a great advantage to us that these proposals should be considered by Local Governments and the public, and that we should be made aware how far they are generally accepted."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 16th March, 1893.

APPROPRIATION REPORT ON THE ACCOUNTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA FOR 1891-92.

COMPTROLLER AND AUDITOR GENERAL.

CONTENTS.

APPROPRIATION REPORT ON THE ACCOUNTS OF 1891-92.

GENERAL REVIEW.

Throughout the report the figures are tens of rupees (Rx. 1=R10), with the last two figures cut off for brevity, thus, 149,7 reads one hundred and forty-nine thousand seven hundred tens of rupees.

In the Budget Estimates for 1891-92 the total Revenue was estimated at 86,025,3, and the Expenditure chargeable against it at 85,909,7, leaving a small surplus of 115,6. A substantial surplus was secured in each of the two previous years, but as it resulted mainly from temporary causes, no important remission of taxation or other great fiscal reform involving a serious sacrifice of revenue was possible in the Financial Statement of 1891-92. The only important financial measure undertaken in that year was the restoration of the Famine Insurance Grant to the full amount of 1,500,0, and after setting aside this sum for that purpose, the Government of India was able to show a surplus of 115,6 only in the Budget Estimate of the year as mentioned above. The accounts of the year now show a surplus of 467,5. Considering the magnitude of the transactions the difference in the net result is of little importance, but there were remarkable variations from the Budget Estimates under individual heads. The net revenue from Railways showed, apart from the loss due to a fall in the rate of exchange, a remarkable improvement of 1,428,7, chiefly in consequence of unusually heavy exports of wheat and seeds to Europe, and of an exceptionally heavy pilgrim traffic. The net revenue from Opium also showed the large improvement of 831,8, due partly to a rise in the prices obtained at the sales of Bengal opium, partly to larger exports of Malwa opium from Bombay, and partly to a reduction in the expenditure for production in Bengal owing to a poor crop. There were also satisfactory improvements in the revenue under Salt, Stamps, and Excise. These improvements were however nearly swallowed up by an increase of 675,2 in the charges under Exchange, due to the fall in the rate, an increase of 1,055,2 in the net Military expenditure of the year, excluding the effects of the fall in the rate of Exchange, due chiefly to the charges of the Manipur and other frontier expeditions, to the expenditure on the preparations to facilitate mobilisation, and to the purchase of additional transport and ordnance mules and remounts, and by a falling off of 433,5 in the collections of Land Revenue, due to scarcity in some provinces. The actual revenue and expenditure of the year under the different groups are compared in detail in the following paragraphs with the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimates.

2. No important changes of classification of revenue and expenditure, requiring special notice here, were made during the year.

3. The following summary gives the Budget and Account figures of 1891-92 to be reviewed in this report, and the details will be found in the statements on pages 134 to 135:—

Comparison with the year 1890-91.

4. The comparison in respect of revenues with the year 1890-91 is as follows:—

Revenues.	1890-91	1891-92.	Difference. 1891-92, greater (+) or less (—).
Principal Heads of Revenue . . .	58,890,2	59,517,0	+626,8
Interest	931,1	879 5	—51,6
Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint . .	2,537,7	2,575,7	+38,0
Civil Departments	1,612,1	1,656,2	+44,1
Miscellaneous	927,1	897,3	—29,8
Railways	17,236,0	19,938,1	+2,702,1
Irrigation	2,172,6	2,272,0	+99,4
Buildings and Roads	649,3	627,1	—22,2
Army Services	785,6	780,4	—5.2
	85,741,7	89,143,3	+3,401,6

5. The important variations under Principal Heads of Revenue are the following:—

Land Revenue	—79,4
Opium	+133,2
Salt	+112,8
Stamps	+193,1
Excise	+169,4
Customs	—41,9
	+487,2

There was a heavy falling off in the collections of Land Revenue in Madras (422,9), due to the scarcity prevailing there during the year, but this was nearly made good by larger collections in some of the other provinces, notably in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and the Punjab owing to revision of settlements in some districts, and the collection of suspensions of the previous year. The improvement under Opium resulted chiefly from larger exports of Malwa opium. There was an increase also in the prices obtained at the sales of Bengal opium, but the improvement due to this was to some extent counterbalanced by a reduction in the quantity sold in the last three months. Salt Revenue showed an increase in all provinces except Madras, where the revenue in 1890-91 was unusually high, owing to an exceptional increase in the cash sales, the rise in the price of Government Securities having induced salt-purchasers to pay the duty on their salt in cash instead of deferring payment on lodging Government Promissory Notes as security. The steady growth of Stamp revenue seemed to have received a temporary check in 1890-91, but the ground lost was more than recovered in 1891-92. The Excise revenue showed the normal advance in all provinces, arising chiefly from more efficient administration. The improvement was largest in Bengal. The falling off in Customs revenue occurred chiefly in Burma, where the revenue in 1890-91 was exceptionally high, owing to a large export of rice from the province.

6. Under Interest there was a falling off of 136,6 in the receipts in England, an unusually large amount having been realised in the previous year from the investment of the cash balances, while on the other hand there was an increase of 85,0 in India, due to an increase of the currency investment, to the grant of additional loans to the Calcutta Port Trust and other public corporations, and to larger realisations from Guaranteed Railways in consequence of their having overdrawn their balances. Post Office and Telegraph revenue both showed a considerable advance over the previous year, but this was largely counterbalanced by a decline in the Mint receipts, which were unusually large in 1890-91 owing to the exceptionally heavy silver coinage of that year. Notwithstanding a special receipt of 41,1 in 1890-91 from the sale of the Royal Lunatic Asylum Estate at Ealing, the receipts of the Civil Departments showed an advance in 1891-92 chiefly in Magisterial fines, sale of Jail manufactures, and Cattle Pound receipts. The falling off under Miscellaneous occurred chiefly under Gain by exchange, owing to the rate of exchange for remittances for the East Indian Railway, and for revenue stores of Guaranteed Railways having been especially favourable for Government in 1890-91. The improvement under Railways was to some extent nominal, being due to the inclusion of the gross traffic receipts of the South Indian Railway for the whole year in 1891-92 against gross receipts for the last three months only, and net receipts for the first nine months in 1890-91, when it was a Guaranteed Railway. But the greater portion of the improvement was due to an exceptionally heavy export traffic of wheat and seeds, to the increased movement of food grains owing to scarcity in certain parts of the country, to a large pilgrim traffic on account of a special fair at Hurdwar and to additions to the open mileages of certain Railways. A further development of irrigation from the Sirhind Canal, a large increase in the irrigated area in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, owing to the seasons having been exceptionally favourable for Canal irrigation, and the recovery of old outstandings in Bengal and the Punjab contributed to the increase in the revenue under Irrigation. Under Buildings and Roads there was a special receipt in 1890-91 from the sale of the Custom House premises at Calcutta to the East Indian Railway Company.

7. The comparison of the expenditure side is given below. The average rate of Exchange for the Secretary of State's drawings in 1891-92 was 1*s* 4·7333384*d* against 1*s* 6·0893039*d* in 1890-91. As there was a large difference in the rates of Exchange of the two years, the increases under the different heads due to the fall in the rate of Exchange are shown separately:—

	1890-9.	1891-92.	Difference 1891-92, greater + or less — Due to Exchange.	Due to other causes.	Total.
Direct Demands on the Revenues	9,536,0	9,547,2	+ 3,9	+ 7,3	+ 11,2

	82,252,1	88,916,7	+ 1,717,5	+ 4,947,1	+ 6,664,6

8. The increases due to the fall in the rate of exchange require no further explanation, and it is necessary to explain only the differences shown above as due to other causes.

9. As regards the Direct Demands on the Revenues there was a decrease of 319,0 in the opium expenditure due to the smaller outturn of Bengal opium, but this was more than counterbalanced by increases under the other heads, notably under Land Revenue and Forest. The Interest charges in 1890-91 included a considerable amount of special expenditure connected with the conversion operations in India, and for interest on the sterling loan which was, in order to take advantage of a favourable market, raised some months before the purchase of the South Indian Railway for which it was required, while those of 1891-92 were reduced by the transfer of a larger portion of the interest charges in India to the Railway Revenue account in consequence of additional capital expenditure on State Railways. This reduction was, however, partially counterbalanced by a large payment on account of discount on the sterling loan raised in England during the year. Under Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint the Post Office was charged for the first time with the cost of Stationery supplied to it from Central Stores and the printing work done for it at Government Presses, and the extended operations of the departments concerned also led to an increase in their expenditure which would have been met by the increase in their revenue, but for the falling off in the Mint receipts owing to the exceptionally heavy silver coinage of the previous year. In the Civil Departments expenditure connected with the Census largely increased the charges of the Scientific and Other Minor Departments, but there was an increase also under most of the other heads. The charges for Law and Justice were higher owing to the appointment of additional Judicial Officers and the transfer of some charges to this head from Land Revenue; the Jail charges were enhanced by an increase in the Jail population and a rise in the price of food-grains, and those under Medical by the transfer of the charges for Local Conservancy Establishments in Madras to this head from Miscellaneous. Under Marine, the contribution paid to the Admiralty was increased during the year, and some new steamers were purchased for Upper Burma and Madras; Education charges also had their normal growth. In the group Miscellaneous the increase occurred mainly in the English charges: there was a special payment to Maharajáh Duleep Singh on account of arrears of his pension and the payments of furlough and other allowances in England were higher; the normal growth of the retired list and the payment in England of pensions of the Uncovenanted Service at a minimum rate of exchange, of 1*s*. 9*d* considerably enhanced the Superannuation charges, while the charges under Stationery increased owing to a specially large local purchase at Calcutta. On the other hand, a considerable amount of expenditure was transferred from this to other sections in the accounts. As mentioned in para. 1 the Famine Insurance grant was raised during the year to the full amount of 1,500,0 including the net charges on the revenues on account of the Protective Railways, while the grant in the previous year, including the latter, was only 1,082,4. The expenditure under Construction of Railways, etc., is chiefly on account of the Mayavaram-Mutapet and the Hyderabad-Umarkot Railways, the capital expenditure on which is being met from revenue. In the Railway Revenue Account there was a large increase in the working expenses of the Railways and in the payments of surplus profits to Companies consequent on the improvement in their earnings and the interest charges were also higher owing to additional capital outlay. Under Irrigation extensive repairs became necessary to the Irrawaddy embankments and a large outlay was incurred in the construction of Famine Relief Works in Rajputana and Upper Burma and of a new canal from the Kabul river to Nowshera, while larger grants were made from Provincial Funds for Minor Works in Madras, and the interest charges were enhanced by additional capital outlay. As regards Buildings and Roads, a large outlay became necessary on Famine Relief Works in Rajputana and Upper Burma, and the Provincial Governments were enabled by their affluent circumstances to assign larger funds for expenditure on Provincial Buildings and Roads. The large increase in the Army Expenditure was due to the special expenditure connected with the Manipur and other frontier expeditions, the cold weather field operations in Upper Burma, the preparations made to facilitate mobilisation, the augmentation of transport, the purchase of additional ordnance mules and remounts, the rise in prices of articles of food for both men and animals, and the reconstitution of some regiments involving extra payments of pensions, bonuses and gratuities to men discharged. There was, on the other hand, a saving in the pay of British troops which was issued at a rate of exchange of 1*s*. 6¼*d*. in 1891-92 against 1*s*. 5*d*. in the previous year. The increase in the charges for Special Defence Works resulted from larger payments in England in connection with the supply of armaments and stores and from the vigorous prosecution of the Rawalpindi Defences and the Wet Basin at the Bombay Dockyard for torpedo boats.

Comparison of Accounts with Budget Estimates of 1891-92.

10. The following figures exhibit the differences in the net accounts, between the Budget and the Actuals, the loss due to the fall in the rate of exchange which was taken in the Budget at 1*s*. 5·25*d*. being shown in a separate column. The comparison of the gross figures has been given before under paragraph 3:—

11. The net improvement of 1,079,0 under the Principal Heads of Revenue is made up of an increase of 590,8 in the revenue and a saving of 488,2 in the expenditure. As explained in paragraph 14 the increase in revenue occurred principally under Opium, Salt, Stamps and Excise counterbalanced by a large falling off in the collections of Land Revenue in Madras due to scarcity; while the saving in expenditure occurred chiefly under Opium, Land Revenue, and Forest, as explained in paragraph 51. The Interest charges were higher owing to no provision having been made in the Budget for the discount on the new loan raised in England during the year. As regards Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint, there was a large expansion in the traffic of the Telegraph Department and the Post Office also would have shown an improvement but for the debit to the department of the cost of stationery and printing work required by it. The silver coinage operations at the mints were, however, considerably smaller than expected. The improvement under Civil Departments was the result partly of larger receipts from Magisterial fines, Cattle Pounds and Dockyards, partly of the non-payment to the Admiralty of a part of the subsidy payable for the India Government Defence Vessels, which were not taken over by the Admiralty during the year, and partly of a large saving under Police owing to the failure to carry into effect the contemplated reorganisation of the Bombay District and Presidency Police, and to a reduction in the Burma Police, partially counterbalanced by the additional expenditure connected with the Lushai police. The improvement under Miscellaneous resulted chiefly from some extraordinary receipts which were not foreseen when the Budget was framed. The charge under Famine Relief and Insurance represents the balance of the fixed grant after providing for the net charge on the revenues on account of the protective Railways constructed through the Agency of Companies which was smaller than expected owing to a large improvement in the net earnings of the Railways. Under Construction of Railways the construction of the Mayavaram-Mutapet Railway was not pushed on as fast as was expected. The improvement in the Railway Revenue Account was derived chiefly from an exceptionally heavy export traffic of wheat and seeds, an unusually large pilgrim traffic, and increased movement of food-grains owing to scarcity in certain parts of the country. Under Irrigation there was a large improvement in the net receipts of the Sirhind, Lower Ganges, and Ganges Canals, but this was partially counterbalanced by the extra expenditure on famine relief works in Rajputana and Upper Burma, which involved a large additional expenditure under Buildings and Roads also. The increase in the Army charges resulted from the special expenditure connected with the Manipur and other frontier expeditions, the cold weather field operations in Upper Burma, the preparations made to facilitate mobilisation, the augmentation of transport, the purchase of additional ordnance mules and remounts, and the rise in the price of food-grains, none of which were foreseen when the Budget was framed. The lapse under Special Defence Works was caused by smaller payments in England for armaments and stores, which were not supplied as rapidly as was anticipated. The progress of the works in India also, though better than in the previous year, was not as rapid as was expected.

12. The budget estimated for an excess expenditure of 712,8 on the whole account, but a sum of 828,4 out of the Provincial and Local Expenditure was payable from past accumulations of balances, leaving a net surplus in the Imperial account of 115,6. The accounts close with a surplus of 467,5 in the Imperial account, and a deficit in the Provincial and Local account of 240,9. The net Imperial Revenue has, therefore, been better than the Budget by 467,5 — 115,6 or 351,9, and the Provincial and Local Expenditure by 828,4—240,9 or 587,5. The details of these fluctuations are given below, the sign + meaning better and — worse than the estimate :—

14. The actuals exceeded the Budget Estimate by 590,8. There was an improvement of 419,0 under Opium, owing chiefly to the prices realised at the sales of Bengal opium having been higher than anticipated, but partly also to larger exportations of Malwa opium, of 292,7 under Salt, due chiefly to larger issues of salt in Bombay, Bengal, and Sambhar, and of 113,9 and 163.5 under Stamps and Excise, being the normal improvements under those heads. The scarcity in Madras on the other hand diminished the estimated collections of Land Revenue there to the extent of 522,3, which was partly counterbalanced by improvements in some of the other provinces, the net deficiency under the head being 433,5. Compared with 1890-91 there was an improvement of 626,8, to which Opium, Salt, Stamps, and Excise contributed 133,2, 112,8, 193,1, and 169,4, respectively. The falling off under Land Revenue in Madras was nearly counterbalanced by improvements in some of the other provinces, notably in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and the Punjab.

15. The most noticeable feature of the receipts under this head was the falling off in Madras due to the scarcity prevailing there during the year.

16. In India the Ordinary Collections exceeded the Budget Estimate in Coorg and Beluchistan, but the excess was to a large extent counterbalanced by a falling off in Ajmere-Merwara due to scarcity. The increase in the actuals of 1891-92 over those of the previous year is due to the transfer to this head of the ordinary land revenue collections realised in the Quetta Assigned Tracts and the Bori, Khetran and Zhob Valleys, which with the stamp and excise revenue realised in those tracts were previously shown under special heads under Land Revenue. The improvement in the Central Provinces is due to the rapid progress in the revision of settlements in the province. In Upper Burma the Budget erroneously included a sum of 40,0 under this head instead of under Miscellaneous on account of thathameda. Allowing for this the actuals show a slight decrease due to scanty rainfall in three districts. The improvement compared with the previous year is due partly to the extension of cultivation and partly to the enhancement of the plough tax. The improvement in Lower Burma is due partly to the extension of surveys and settlement which has added more than 4 per cent. to the assessed area, and partly to the high prices of grain, due to the failure of crops in Upper Burma, which enabled larger collections with arrears to be made. In Assam also there was an improvement due to extension of cultivation, progressive enhanced rate of assessments on waste lands and jungleburi tenures, and re-measurement and re-classification of lands by the cadastral survey as well as to the assessment of estates on the expiry of the revenue-free terms. In Bengal the actuals of 1890-91 included large arrear collections; and the Budget for 1891-92 was fixed at a lower figure being based on the normal annual demand after allowing for anticipated remissions, but it has been exceeded in the actuals owing to greater punctuality in the payment of the revenue and consequent reduction in the amount of arrears. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the Budget was framed 276,3 higher than the actuals of 1890 91, partly to provide for the realisation of the suspensions rendered necessary in the previous year by the failure of the kharif crops in several districts, and partly to provide for the increase due to the revision of settlements in the districts of Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Bulandshahr, Jhansi, and Basti. The actuals however, fell short of the estimate owing to collections having been delayed by the kharif harvest which was below the average and to a reduction of assessments due to the revision of settlements in certain deteriorated tracts, chiefly in the Agra and Muttra districts. In the Punjab the actuals have closely followed the Budget Estimate, but have exceeded those of the previous year owing to damage done by locusts having necessitated remissions and suspensions in that year The Revised Estimate was framed too high, sufficient allowance not having been made for the abolition of the Water Advantage Rate on the Bari Doab Canal in the Lahore and Amritsar districts. In Madras the collections were exceptionally low owing to two successive years of scarcity, the year 1890-91 itself unfavourable to agriculture having been succeeded by another year of drought owing to the failure of the monsoons. In Bombay in 1890-91 there were advance collections in Broach, and the season in Sind was also exceptionally favourable for the canal revenue, while in 1891-92 the inundation season was bad and the rainfall was also scanty The deficiency on these accounts was, however nearly counterbalanced by increased receipts from the introduction of revised survey rates and the sale of occupancy rights, by advance collections in some districts and by the collection in some districts of revenue postponed in the previous year, chiefly in consequence of the revenue establishment having been engaged during the collecting season on the census operations.

17. As regards the other heads, the introduction of revised survey rates accounts for the increase in Bombay under Assessment of Alienated Lands Less Quit Rents, while the increase under Capitation Tax in Lower Burma resulted from the expiry of the periods of exemption granted to immigrants and from the growth of population. Under Sale of Proprietary Right, etc., there was a special receipt of 8,1 in Bengal on account of the sale proceeds of leases under the new waste land lease rules, and the percentage on collections from Government estates set apart for their management and improvement was increased from 10 to 12 since the beginning of the year. Under Fisheries and Miscellaneous the falling off in India has been explained above as due to a change in the classification of the revenue realised in certain districts in Beluchistan. The increase in the Central Provinces was due to a special receipt of the capitalised value of remission on account of land acquired for the Indian Midland Railway and to large fines realised from the Mekrai State in the Hoshangabad district. As explained under Ordinary Revenue, the Budget Estimate of Upper Burma was really 40,0 higher than shown above. The large falling off was due to a decline in the demand for the thathameda in the districts affected by scarcity and also to the postponement of the payment of 20,0 by the Ruby Mines Company on account of the second instalment of their rent. The decrease in Bombay occurred chiefly in the stone quarry and sand receipts of Local funds.

II.—Opium—continued.

22. As regards excise opium the revenue in the Central Provinces was larger owing partly to an increased demand in the Feudatory States, while in Lower Burma there was a heavy decline in the sale of the drug The receipts of 1890-91 in Assam were abnormally low, a portion of the opium consumed in that year having been laid in by consumers in 1889-90 in view of the enhancement of the duty from R32 to R37 per seer from 1st April 1890. The Budget Estimate for 1891-92 was framed in the anticipation that in consequence of the enhancement of the duty there would not be any further increase in the consumption of the drug, but the anticipation was not realised and some extra opium was taken out by the vendors in the Lakhimpur district in the latter months of the year on account of a rumour that the duty would be further enhanced in 1892-93. The consumption of opium in Bengal also was larger than expected. The increase under "Miscellaneous," as compared with the previous year, was due chiefly to the credit for an amount realised in England by the sale of morphia recovered from the wreck of the P. & O. S.S. Nepal.

23. There was an improvement in all the provinces except Madras, the bulk of the improvement having occurred in Bombay. The falling off in Madras was not due to any decline in consumption but to an exceptional increase in the cash sales in 1890-91.

24. In India the proceeds of the sale of Government salt fell short of the estimate, chiefly owing to a reduction in the sale price of Sambhar salt, which, however, stimulated the sales and brought in a large increase in the duty. In Burma the Budget Estimate of excise duty was low, and the demand for the year was realised in full with arrears. A falling off in the imports during the last three months of the year reduced the import duty as compared with the Budget and the actuals of 1890 91. In Bengal the total quantity of salt imported was less than in 1890-91, but a larger quantity paid duty on being taken out of bond. The Budget under "Miscellaneous" anticipated increased receipts from the rent of warehouses in consequence of the construction of the Railway siding and other works in the Sulkea Salt Golahs, but the anticipations were not realised owing to the larger clearances of salt from bond. In Madras the falling off was due almost entirely to the abnormally large cash sales in 1890 91, the high price of Government securities having induced many purchasers to give up the credit system in order to realise the high premium obtainable by the sale of the paper that they would otherwise have deposited as security for credit purchases. Although the high price of Government paper and the consequent increase in the cash sales continued during 1891-92, the latter was not sufficient to bring up the figures to the level of 1890-91. The revenue realised in Bombay is the largest on record, and even the Revised did not make sufficient allowance for the increase The sales at Kharagoda, Ahmedabad, and the Salt Works near the island of Bombay were exceptionally high. The increase under "Duty on imported salt" is due to the duty on salt imported from the Portuguese territory having been collected as customs duty at the frontier stations instead of as excise duty since the abrogation of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty.

25. The steady growth of the revenue under this head appeared to have received a temporary check in 1890-91, but the ground lost was more than recovered in 1891-92. There was a large improvement in the receipts from the sale of Court-fee Stamps in all provinces except Ajmere, Bangalore and Coorg (under India) and Upper Burma due generally to increased litigation. In the Central Provinces it was also due to the Civil Courts having been closed on account of the usual vacation in January and February 1891 instead of in May and June, in order to facilitate the census operations, there having thus been two vacations in 1890-91 and none in 1891-92. The decline in Ajmere and Upper Burma was due to scarcity. Under Commercial and Other Stamps also there was an increase representing the normal development of the revenue under the head in all provinces except Ajmere (under India). It is specially attributed to the stimulus given to trade and to money-lending operations in the Central Provinces by the extension of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, in Assam by the Assam-Bengal Railway and the Manipur transport service, and in Bengal, Punjab, and Madras by the high prices of food-grains. In Burma increased facilities were afforded to the public for procuring stamps. The falling off under Fines and Penalties, etc, in Bengal is due to smaller receipts from duty on impressing documents, chiefly for debentures compounded.

26. The Excise revenue showed an advance in all provinces, the increase being nowhere very large but being largest in Bengal. In the North-Western Provinces it was not so large as it was expected to be when the Budget was framed.

27. Under License and Distillery Fees, etc., in India there was a falling off in Bangalore, but this was more than made up by an increase in the other districts. The increase compared with 1890-91 is due to the Excise receipts in the Quetta Assigned Tracts being now shown under this head instead of under Land Revenue as before. In the Central Provinces the revenue has steadily increased since 1888-89. The increase in 1891-92 is due to higher prices paid for the sale of monopolies owing to the substitution of triennial for annual leases. In Upper Burma the license fees for the vend of opium and preparations therefrom did not fetch half as much as was estimated owing to combinations among the Chinese to keep down bids in the auction sales. The falling off was, however, counterbalanced to a great extent by larger receipts from license fees for the sale of liquor and distillery fees. In Lower Burma the increase under license and distillery fees was due chiefly to heavy imports of Madras liquor, the receipts from which rose from 11,9 in 1890-91 to 21,1 in 1891-92. There was also an increase in the license fees for the wholesale vend of foreign spirits and for the vend of country fermented liquor and in the duty on distillery liquor, while there was a falling off in the license fees for the retail vend of foreign spirits and for the manufacture and sale of outstill liquor. The improvement in Assam is due partly to the enhancement of the rate of duty on flat ganja from R4-8 to R5 per seer from April 1891, partly to the higher upset prices fixed for the shops in the Surma Valley and to the keen competition for the shops in some other districts, and partly to the increased duty realised on Campbelpur rum, the distillery having done a large amount of business during the year. The large improvement in Bengal is attributed to fees of outstills and other shops being raised. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there was a considerable falling off in license fees, but this was to some extent counterbalanced by an increase under stillhead duty, both being due to an enhancement in the rate of duty from 1st October 1891. In the Punjab the Budget was framed at a figure below the actuals for 1890-91 and was too low. In Madras the revenue under this head was unfavourably affected by the scarcity prevailing in most of the districts, and there was a falling off in the consumption of spirits, but this was more than counterbalanced by an improvement due to the successful working of the tree-tax system in the Godavery and Tanjore districts and to the sale of shop licenses for the vend of intoxicating drugs prepared from the hemp plant having been effected at auction instead of as before at fixed rates. In Bombay the estimate was framed cautiously in view of changes in the excise administration calculated to diminish the receipts, but it has been exceeded in the actuals by 45,3, notwithstanding a large falling off in some of the districts due to scarcity. The chief causes which led to this improvement are (1) larger receipts from the tree-tax in consequence of an enhancement in the rate of the tax in two districts and the tapping of a larger number of trees in another; (2) recovery of arrears in two districts; (3) larger receipts from stillhead duty in two districts where the rate was raised and where a larger quantity of liquor was issued to the labourers employed on the Tansa Water-works, and (4) larger issues of liquor from the Uran distilleries for supply to Bombay and Karachi.

28. As regards the receipts from Opium, a larger demand for it in the Feudatory States enhanced the revenue in the Central Provinces, while the improvement in Upper Burma is ascribed partly to stoppage of smuggling and partly to Government opium taking the place of Shan and Yunan opium. The falling off in Lower Burma is attributed to punishments inflicted on some farmers for illegal practices, having checked their illicit operations and compelled them to reduce their purchases of opium from the treasury to what was actually required. The variations in Assam have been explained under II—Opium. The Budget for Bengal was framed too low, while that for the Punjab did not provide for the duty on Malwa opium imported into the Native States, owing to a misapprehension on the part of the Revenue authorities. The improvement over the previous year is due to the growing demand for Malwa opium and to an increase in the profit derived from the sale of Excise Opium. In Bombay the Estimate was framed too high.

29. There was a large falling off in Madras compared with both the Budget estimate and the actuals of 1890-91, and there was also a decrease in Ajmere (under India), but there was an improvement in the other provinces.

30. As stated in previous reports, the receipts under this head are largely subject to the same influences as the collections of Land Revenue, and the explanations given for the variations in the amounts of the latter apply generally to the former. There is nothing special to notice here.

31. The result was favourable in Bengal, but in the other provinces there was a falling off, notably in Burma, where, however, it was not quite so large as was allowed for in the Budget.

32. The Import Duties exceeded the estimate in Bengal, but fell short of it in the other provinces. There was a decline in the imports of spirits in all provinces except Bombay, but in Bengal the loss of revenue due to this was more than made good by larger imports of arms and ammunition and mineral oil. In Burma and Madras the imports of mineral oil were larger, but there was a falling off in the imports of arms and ammunition, while in Bombay there was a large falling off in the imports of petroleum, counterbalanced to some extent by an increase in the imports of arms and ammunition, fermented liquors and spirits.

33. As regards Export Duties, in 1890-91 an exceptionally good rice crop and a large demand from Japan and other eastern countries gave an unusual stimulus to the exports of rice from Burma. This was followed by a falling off in 1891-92, which was augmented by the scarcity in Upper Burma. The falling off was not, however, so great as was anticipated in the Budget. In Bengal the Budget was framed low, in the anticipation that the exports of rice would be affected by a deficiency in the crop. The actuals, however, not only exceeded the anticipation, but also the actuals of the previous year. In Madras and Bombay the exports fell off owing to scarcity. The only remark called for by the figures under Land Customs is that there was a falling off in the exports of rice from Madras by land also.

34. The revenue under this head continues to show a steady increase in most of the provinces, the improvement being ascribed chiefly to revision of assessments and the growing prosperity of the country.

35. As usual the India figures include, in addition to the collections made in the districts directly administered by the Government of India, the recoveries in the Non-civil Departments from the salaries of Government officers. The details are given below :—

1890-91. Accounts.		1891-92. Budget.	1891-92. Revised.	1891-92. Accounts.
98,5	Civil Department, India	96,9	97,2	100,3

7,6	Telegraph Department	7,6	7,5	7,6
215,3	TOTAL AS ABOVE	212,0	213,5	217,6

36. The increase in the Civil Department has occurred chiefly in the general collections and the deductions from interest on Government securities. The decrease in the Central Provinces is due to a smaller number of officers having been present on duty on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. The improvement in Bombay was general, but the chief increase occurred in the tax realised on the surplus profits paid to Railway Companies, which considerably exceeded the estimate owing to the unexpectedly large earnings of the railways. The figures for the other provinces do not call for any special remarks.

37. There was an improvement in most of the Provinces except Upper Burma, Madras and Bombay, where there was a falling off, due more or less to the prevailing scarcity.

38. The improvement in India under Timber and other produce removed by Government Agency occurred chiefly in Coorg, owing to larger sales of sandalwood at better prices. The increase, as compared with the previous year, was also due to the cause just mentioned and also to larger sales of timber in the Andamans, though in the latter case the improvement was not so great as had been anticipated in the Budget. There was also a falling off as compared with the Budget owing to the sale of firewood by Government Agency not having been carried out in Baluchistan as was estimated. The improvement over the Revised was due to unexpectedly high prices having been realized in the London market for timber from the Andamans, Large sales of timber on waste lands and arrear recoveries in Coorg and improved returns from grazing fees in Ajmere account for the increase under Timber and other forest produce removed by Consumers and Purchasers. The increase under Other Receipts occurred in Royalty fees in Baluchistan, which were collected this year for the first time and could not therefore be accurately estimated.

39. In the Central Provinces there was a falling off in the revenue under the first head, due partly to the want of an officer to supervise operations in respect of a special demand which had been anticipated and partly to the myrabolams collected during the year not having been sold owing to the failure of the contractor. The falling off in the revenue under the first head was, however, more than counterbalanced by an increase under the second head, due to prompt collections of commutation fees and to the abnormal increase in the demand for certain kinds of forest produce, in spite of an unfavourable season.

40. In Upper Burma a sum of 12,0 was erroneously included in the Budget under head I instead of under head II, and some of the timber expected to be removed by Government Agency was eventually removed by lessees. The falling off under the second head is thus much more than shown above, and is accounted for by a short outturn occasioned by deficient rainfall, which was, however, partly counterbalanced by the enhancement of the duty on teak, a larger trade in Pyinkadoo sleepers and increased cutch-boiling.

41. In Lower Burma there was a rise in the price of timber, and larger sales of timber removed by Government agency were effected in the Pegu Circle. There was, however, a falling off in the Tenasserim Circle, due to the state of the rivers during the latter part of the year having been unfavourable for the floating down of timber. Private extraction of timber decreased in the Pegu Circle, and cutch licenses were stopped in the Thayetmyo Division; the resulting decrease in Revenue was, however, partially counteracted by an increased demand for wood for boat hulls in the Tenasserim Circle, and by the sale of the right to collect kanyin oil in the Mergui District.

42. In Assam the falling off in the revenue from timber operations by Government was due partly to an early cessation of the rains and partly to a combination amongst timber traders, while the decrease under head II was due to the Lakhimpur rubber mahals having been sold for 4 against an estimate of 1,7, and certain sál forests in the Goalpara Division having been closed.

43. In Bengal Departmental operations in timber and firewood were not undertaken to the extent anticipated, but there was a large increase in revenue from timber extracted by private agency, owing partly to the revival of the timber trade in the Sunderbun Division, and partly to a larger demand for timber in the Singbhoom and Jalpaiguri Divisions. There was also an increase in Other Receipts arising chiefly from the compounding of forest offences.

44. In the North-Western Provinces, under head I, payments for supplies of timber to the Rajputana-Malwa Railway were not recovered, the supplies not having been completed during the year, and the sales of firewood also declined, but there was an improvment in the receipts from resin operations and from sales of chir karhis (beams). The increase over the actuals of the previous year was due to the realisation of arrears for sleepers supplied to the Rajputana-Malwa Railway in previous years. Larger sales of standing and dry timber, a better trade in bamboos, and the recovery of arrears of grazing fees contributed to the increase over the Budget under head II.

45. In the Punjab sales of timber realised better prices than in 1890-91 as anticipated in the Budget, but the demand for fuel, both by the Railway and the Public, was not so large as was expected. Under the second head the increase was due partly to recovery from the Public Works Department of the value of trees on lands taken up for a new road and a Railway line, and partly to sales of grazing and grass-cutting leases at higher prices. Larger receipts from drift timber contributed to the increase under Other Receipts

46. In Madras the falling off under the first head was due to the substitution of coals for firewood by the Madras Railway, and to the dull state of the red-wood market, and partly to a slackness in the demand for departmentally collected timber in some districts. The unfavourable character of the season accounts for the decrease under the second head, while large confiscations of timber and other produce caused the excess under Other Receipts.

47. In Bombay larger supplies of timber and firewood were required in Sind for the North-Western Railway, the Gun Carriage Factory, and the Commissariat Department; but the improvement due to this was more than counterbalanced by a very large falling off in the southern circle owing to the prevalence of famine in some of the districts. The improvement under the second head was the net result of an increase in the receipts from grass and grazing and sale of bamboos in the northern circle, and a decrease in the receipts from firewood and timber in the southern circle due to famine. The increase in Other Receipts was due to recoveries in cases compounded under the Forest Act.

48. The figures for every province indicate a tendency to rise, the increase being largest in Madras and Bengal.

49. The improvement in Bengal is attributed to a larger number of registrations of property, while in Madras it is largely nominal having resulted from the realisation of a large amount on account of search fees in connection with advances under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts which is counterbalanced by the corresponding charge under Land Revenue; see para. 55. In Bombay the growth of the revenue was helped by the prevalence of scarcity having forced the people to sell or mortgage their property.

50. In India 3,5 of the Oodeypur tribute was not realised during the year. The Budget for the Baroda tribute in Bombay provided for a refund of 5,0 to the Gaekwar on account of certain charges incurred by him in connection with the Gaekwar's Contingent, but the refund was not made, the question not having been settled before the end of the year. A sum of 9 was also realised on account of arrears of 1890-91. As regards the Tributes under R5,000 the improvement in Burma is due to the collection of arrears. Under Fees on Succession, etc., the whole amount due from the Alirajpur State in Central India instead of a part only, as was anticipated, was realised during the year.

51. The expenditure in 1891-92 approximated closely to the expenditure in 1890-91. There was a decrease of 319,0 in the Opium expenditure, due to a smaller outturn of Bengal opium, but this was more than counterbalanced by increases under the other heads, notably under Land Revenue (158,5) and Forest (59,8). Compared with the Budget there was a saving of 488,2, of which 412,8 occurred under Opium, owing to the total produce of Bengal opium having been smaller than anticipated, 52,3 under Land Revenue, owing chiefly to smaller expenditure on Surveys and Settlement, and 61,8 under Forest, due chiefly to the usual over-estimate in the Budget and to the greater portion of the large provision made for the reorganisation of the superior staff, and for increased establishments not having been required during the year.

52. Considering the fluctuating character of the charges under this head, the differences are not large. The only points requiring special notice are the following. In Burma some special forest refunds swelled the charges in the current year, while exceptionally high excise refunds, due to the non-settlement of certain leases of opium shops and abnormal forest refunds, augmented the charges in Assam in the previous year. In Bengal there was a special refund of Land Revenue amounting to 5,2 to the Maharajah of Dumraon, and the Customs refunds were also abnormally high. The Revised provided for a special refund to the Bengal Nagpur Railway, which was afterwards found to be debitable to deposits. In North-Western Provinces and Oudh there were some special Land Revenue refunds in the Agra district in consequence of the re-assessment of certain deteriorated tracts in that district, and the increase under other Revenue Refunds was due to specially large Excise refunds. In the Punjab the refunds of Land Revenue were unexpectedly inflated by a special payment of 5,2 to the Faridkote State and those on account of other revenue heads by special payments of 3,2 to certain Native States for duty on Malwa opium imported into their territories. In Madras there were some large refunds of Land Revenue in the districts of Salem and Cuddapah. In Bombay under Salt Refunds there were larger payments of wastage allowances on larger exports of salt, and there was also a special refund of 1,1 at Goa to the purchaser of the stock of salt, at cost price, on the expiration of the treaty, the sale having been disallowed by the British Delegate and Commissioner. The Budget for Customs refunds provided for the repayment of two years' common Customs receipts to the Portuguese Government, but payment for one year was made in 1890-91. The saving on this account was slightly counterbalanced by the refund of duty on spirits of wine supplied to Government departments.

53. In India the payments to Meywar in 1890-91 included an advance payment of 3,3, and the variations in the payments to the Jodhpur and Jeypur States under the Sambhar Lake Treaty arise from variations in the amount of salt sold. The saving on the Budget in Assam is due to the non-payment to the Manipur Durbar during the year of the Kubo Compensation of 6. The excess over the Budget Estimate in Bengal was due to the unexpected payment of some arrears, and that in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to a special payment of 6,0 on account of the capitalised value of the annual remission of revenue granted to a Sardar and to arrear payments of some malikana charges. In Madras some pensions formerly charged to "Territorial and Political Pensions" were in the year under review transferred to this head and shown against "Compensations in lieu of resumed lands," while the Budget Estimate under "Allowances to Inamdars, etc.," proved insufficient owing to the payment of some large arrears. As regards Bombay the charges classified as "Pensions in lieu of resumed lands" are really charitable allowances to temples and mosques and are not regularly claimed. The excess over the Budget under "Inamdars, etc.," is the net result of an increase in the adjustments on account of Alienated Land Revenue and of a saving in the cash allowances which fell into arrears. The Budget Estimate provided 11,8 for the Goa Customs tariff compensation which was not paid during the year, while there were extra payments of 3,2 on account of salt pan compensations in Portuguese India. The saving on the Budget Estimate under "Excise and other compensations" was due to the non-payment during the year of the opium compensation due to the Palanpur Durbar and the Excise compensations in the Mahikantha Agency and to the Sangli and Balasinore States.

54. These charges are continually increasing, and the increase is every year more than provided for in the Budget. The figures for the last five years were as follow:—

	Budget.	Actuals.
1887-88	3,668,8	3,486,7
1888-89	3,684,1	3,514,0
1889-90	3,629,1	3,624,2
1890-91	3,713,4	3,676,6
1891-92	3,887,4	3,835,1

From the above it will be seen that the increase in the year under review was larger than usual. The increase occurred chiefly in Charges of District Administration, Survey and Settlement, and Allowances to District and Village Officers. The principal variations are explained in detail below in the order of the minor heads.

55. Under Charges of District Administration the saving on the Budget under India occurred principally in Baluchistan in the Contingent Charges and in the provision made for Lambardari allowance in Zhob which was not utilised, as the allowance was paid in kind and the net receipt only was credited to Government. The increase over the previous year was due to a change in classification, by which a portion of the expenditure against Quetta Assigned Tracts, which used to be shown under "Other charges," was adjusted under this head. In the Central Provinces the reorganisation of the Commission involved additional expenditure, but this was more than counterbalanced by the saving effected by the gradual introduction of Mr. Neill's scheme for the reorganisation of establishments, and there was also a large saving in the Patwari Fund Charges, due chiefly to patwaries not having been entertained to the extent provided for in the estimate, though they were considerably in excess of the number entertained in the previous year In Lower Burma a larger number of officers were on leave than was expected, and the vacancies were in many instances not filled up owing to officers in the lower grades not having qualified for promotion; there were also savings in the establishment and other charges. In Assam the increase was due to the adjustment under this head of the charges for District Mandals instead of under Commission on collection. It would have been larger, but for a redistribution between Land Revenue and Law and Justice of the charges for the establishments at sub-divisions which led to a smaller amount being charged under this head and a larger amount under Law and Justice. The increase over the previous year in Bengal was due to the formation of the new districts of Palamow and South Lushai Hills. In the North-Western Provinces there was a large saving in the charges for Patwaries and Kanungos, but this was nearly counterbalanced by an increase in the salaries of officers due to probable savings having been over-estimated in the Budget. In the Punjab the increase was distributed over several heads, having occurred chiefly in Deputy Commissioners' and Kanungo establishments, in postage charges, and in travelling allowance of Tehsildars and Naib-Tehsildars. In Madras the provision for travelling allowances, temporary establishments, petty construction and repairs and postage charges was insufficient, while 11,9 were paid on account of fees for searches in Registration Offices (see paragraph 49) for which no provision was made in the Budget. The excesses under these heads were, however, partly counterbalanced by the failure to utilise fully the provision of 5,4 on account of one-fifth of the cost of the Additional Sub-Magistrates expected to be appointed for relieving Tehsildars of their Magisterial work (the remaining four-fifths having been taken under 19A—Law and Justice.) In Bombay the Budget provided for the introduction of Kanungo or Circle Inspector's Establishment in three divisions, but it was only partially introduced in one, and large savings also accrued in personal allowances and pay owing to the retirement and absence of officers of the Covenanted Civil Service,

Under Professional Surveys the Budget in Assam provided for the employment of two survey parties in the province, but only one was actually employed. The saving in Bengal is due to no cadastral work having been done in Behar during the year, though a sum of 5,8 was provided for it in the Budget. The saving in the North-Western Provinces is due to a smaller share of the charges of the Garhwal party having been debited to Cadastral surveys and a larger share to Traverse surveys under Scientific and Other Minor Departments in India. The retirement of the Survey and Settlement Commissioner and the absence on long leave of his successor, accompanied by a reduction in the strength of survey parties due to the contraction of survey operations, account for the savings in Bombay. The Survey Establishments were also reduced in Madras. Under District Settlement Charges the saving in India is attributed to smaller operations in Coorg and Baluchistan and to the erroneous inclusion in the Budget of a sum of 1,0 recoverable from private parties. The grants in most of the other provinces also were not fully required, except in Lower Burma, where traverse survey by local agency was done on a larger scale, and in Bengal, where the estimate of the charges for settlement operations in larger Government and temporarily settled estates was framed too low, no programme for the operations having been arranged at the time. They were not sufficiently provided for even in the Revised, as the greater portion of the charges was incurred towards the close of the year.

57. The differences under Land Records and Agriculture do not call for any special remarks except in Bombay, where the saving was due partly to the transfer of a grant of 1,0 for the construction of Record-rooms to the Public Works Department, and partly to a delay in the introduction of the District Inspector's Establishment.

58. Under Management of Government Estates the excess in Bengal was partly due to an expenditure of 4,1 on sanitary improvements and partly to charges for commission on collection of rents having exceeded the estimate by 4,2. The excess in the North-Western Provinces was due to a special payment of 5,0 to Messrs. Begg, Dunlop & Co. on account of compensation for the surrender of their lease of the Ghazipur Stud Farm to Government.

59. Charges for Commission on Collection fell off in Upper Burma with the collections of Land Revenue and Thathameda, but were larger in Lower Burma owing to larger collections of Land Revenue there. The saving in Assam was nominal, being due as mentioned in paragraph 55 to the transfer of the charges for District Mandals from this head to "Charges of District Administration."

60. Under Allowances to District and Village Officers the increase in Madras, consequent on the introduction of the scheme for the revision of village establishments, under which they are paid fixed salaries and recoveries are effected by means of the village cess credited under "VI.—Provincial Rates" was over-estimated. The charges in Bombay consist partly of cash allowances and partly of adjustments on account of the assessment of alienated lands. The variations occurred chiefly in the cash allowances which are irregularly claimed.

61. The Other Charges in India during 1890-91 included the charges of the Quetta Assigned Tracts and some other newly acquired districts in Baluchistan, but as mentioned in paragraph 55 they have been classified with effect from 1891-92 under the appropriate major heads as ordinary charges of a British Indian District.

62. The charges on account of Establishment and Contingencies of the two Bengal agencies together were 8,1 and 3,7 less than the Budget Estimate and the corresponding charges of 1890-91 respectively; the differences occurred mainly in the commission to Amlahs, which varies with the charges for cultivation. There were also savings in the charges for the purchase of tents in both agencies, and in the payments on account of rewards on confiscations and petty construction and repairs in the Benares agency.

63. The details of the Cultivation and Manufacturing Charges are given below. The charges being dependent on the produce of opium are liable to heavy fluctuations from year to year:—

	Advances to Cultivators.	Final Payments on delivery of the Crude drug.	Manufacturing Charges.	Miscellaneous.	TOTAL.
1890-91.
Behar	301,3	562,8	3,9	48,8	916,8

The Budget for 1891-92 was based on the forecasts of produce of the standing crop furnished by the Opium Agents in January and February 1891, the expected production being taken at 91,137 maunds. Owing to unfavourable weather, the actual outturn however amounted to only 82,382¼ maunds against an outturn of 86,826½ maunds in 1890-91. There was thus a saving of 404,0 on the Budget Estimate and of 315,7 compared with the expenditure in 1890-91.

64. Under Salaries and Establishment, the savings on the Budget in India occurred mainly in the Preventive Establishments owing to the full establishment not having been entertained and in the through traffic charges. In Bengal the excess over the Budget is due to an expenditure of 2,1 for the purchase of Kilby's patent scales for weighing salt, for which no provision was made in the Budget. The decrease in comparison with 1890-91 is due to larger expenditure in that year for the purchase of Kilby's scales and to the outlay on the construction of railway sidings in the Sulkea Salt Golahs to connect them with the Railway. In Madras the grants for rewards proved insufficient by 2,7, for freight and other charges for export and import of salt by 8,3, and for petty construction and repairs by 5,2, a special grant of 3,0 having been sanctioned under the last head for the acquisition of a plot of land required for the expansion of salt pans at Neidavasal in the Tanjore District. The excess under freight and other charges was due to the payment of two years' freight charges at the increased rates now charged, and to an increase in the quantity of salt transported owing to the expansion of fish-curing operations. Compared with the previous year the charges under all heads show an increase in consequence of the extension of the operations of the department. The Bombay actuals show the usual savings on the full sanctioned scale of establishments which was provided for in the Budget, the excess over the previous year being due to the purchase of boats and the creation of a separate salt establishment at Aden. The Manufacture and excavation charges at Pachbudra and Sambhar in India and the charges for Purchase and Freight in Madras were over-estimated in the Budget. The increase under the latter head in Bombay resulted from the necessity of transporting salt from Goa to Castle Rock, on account of the expiration of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty, from the increase in the outturn of salt at Kharagoda and larger removals of it to the Gujarat Agencies and from the increased manufacture of Maurypur salt and its removal to the Sukkur depôt.

65. The only remarks called for are that the deputation of the Assistant Superintendent of Stamps, Bombay, to England in connection with the case of robbery of Stamps ex S. S. Astræa caused an excess over the Budget under Superintendence in Bombay, that the charges for sale of Stamps consist mostly of discount and consequently vary with the Receipts, and that in most of the provinces the charges for stamps supplied from Central stores fell owing to a reduction in the contract rates for the manufacture of stamp paper.

66. In India some arrears of the Government share of the distillery establishment at Bangalore were paid in 1891-92, the amount due for 1890-91 not having been paid in that year. The saving on the Budget in the Central Provinces occurred under rewards and under salaries, the appointment of Commissioner of Excise having been held by an acting officer. In Upper Burma an additional establishment not provided for in the Budget was sanctioned during the year, while in Lower Burma the provision for establishments was not fully required, and there were also savings in the provision for rewards. The Budget in Assam provided 1,7 for an inspecting and assessing establishment, which was not entertained, and there were also some savings under contingencies. The saving in Bengal occurred chiefly in the salaries of District establishments and in the outlay under rewards and petty construction and repairs. The expenditure, however exceeded that of the previous year owing to additional charges for Distillery Establishment, Travelling Allowances and Rewards. The entertainment of Naib-Tehsildars in distilleries from October 1891 enhanced the charges in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, while in the Punjab the abolition of some distilleries diminished the expenditure. In Madras there is a combined establishment for the Salt and Excise Departments, and the total charges are divided between the two heads. There has been special expansion in the Excise Department owing to the extension of the Tree Tax system and the establishment of several new Circles in connection therewith. In Bombay the entertainment of additional establishments for the new distilleries in Kanara and Ratnagiri augmented the charges in 1891-92 as compared with those of the previous year, but this was more than provided for in the Budget.

67. In Burma there were larger payments of commission in consequence of larger receipts which were not fully foreseen in either the Budget or the Revised Estimate. The larger expenditure in Bengal is due to increased charges for establishments entertained for valuation and re-valuation work, for which no allowance was made in the Budget.

68. The saving in the Calcutta Port occurred in the charges for establishments and in the salary of the Collector, the permanent incumbent having been absent on furlough. The absence on leave of the Collector of Customs at Chittagong also diminished the charges of the outports in Bengal. The actuals of 1890-91 included a special payment of 4 on account of arrears of personal allowance of the Collector. In Madras the Budget did not provide for the local allowance of the Deputy Collector of Sea Customs and the pay of a Warehouse Superintendent and a cooper sanctioned during the year or for the establishment sanctioned in the Chemical Examiner's Office for the purpose of testing the obscuration of imported spirits. The saving in the charges of the outports arose partly from the grant for petty construction and repairs not having been fully utilised, and partly from a reduction in the fees distributed to Customs Officers for work done out of office hours. In Bombay a Commissioner of the lower grade held charge of the Department for the greater part of the year and the charges at the Presidency port were consequently reduced. The large excess in the charges of the outports, compared with the previous year, is due to the purchase of a steam launch for the Karachi Preventive Establishment and to the revision of the establishment at Karachi at an increased cost of 1,8.

The grant for temporary establishment was also not wholly utilized.

70. In India the smaller pay drawn by an Officiating Inspector General of Forests diminished the charges under "General Direction." Under "Timber, etc., removed by Government agency," the Budget provided for increased extraction of timber in the Andamans, and felling and carting operations in Coorg on a much larger scale. The cyclone in the Andamans however restricted the operations there, while in Coorg the rates for carting timber fell considerably during the year, and in Baluchistan it became impossible to carry out timber and fuel operations to the extent anticipated at a cost which would yield a profit. The increase in Other Charges was due mainly to the extension of roads and tramways in the Andamans, and to the cost of repairing the damages to the buildings done by the cyclone. The actuals of the previous year included a special charge on account of the purchase of elephants. Under "Establishment" the increase over the previous year is due to an increase in the pay of the Forest Officer and the appointment of an additional officer in the Andamans, and to an increase in the general establishment in Coorg as well as in the Forest School Establishment.

71. In the Central Provinces charges for removing timber, etc., departmentally showed a saving from the Budget owing to a decline in the demand for timber having necessitated a curtailment of operations in the Southern Circle. The increase over last year was due to an exceptionally large crop of myrabolams in the Northern Circle. The increase over the previous year in the charges connected with removals by private agency occurred chiefly in the printing and binding of license forms and in the increased rate of commission to License Vendors. The savings on the Budget under "Other Charges" was due to smaller expenditure on forest surveys carried out by the Forest Survey Branch. The Revised Estimate under this head did not provide sufficiently for the expenditure on surveys and maintenance of Forest boundaries. The Budget provided for a large increase in the clerical Establishments, which was not however sanctioned during the year, and also made too large provision for Travelling Allowance.

72. In Upper Burma the decrease in the revenue was followed by a diminution of the expenditure. The savings under Establishment occurred in the salaries of officers, two of the divisions, in the Western Circle having been under-officered during the year.

73. In Lower Burma the charges under "Timber, etc., removed by Government agency" increased owing to a large outturn of teak in the Pegu Circle, which overbalanced the short arrivals of timber in the Tenasserim Circle. On the other hand, there was a decrease in Other Charges due to unfavourable drift operations, non-purchase of elephants, and smaller expenditure on communications and buildings. The Establishment charges were greater than in the previous year, owing to the addition of an officer in the superior grade, and the grant of local allowances which were more than provided for in the Budget.

74. In Assam departmental timber work was restricted owing to the stoppage of floating operations on the early cessation of the rains; and larger commission was paid for the collection of Revenue from private consumers. The "other charges" of 1890-91 included the cost of four elephants more than in 1891-92 and a special refund of 1,0 in Luckimpur. In the Budget under Establishment provision was made for the pay of officers who were expected to be transferred from other provinces, but whose transfer was not effected during the year, for certain charges which were adjusted under Conservancy and Works and for additional establishments which were not sanctioned during the year.

75. In Bengal the curtailment of departmental operations for the extraction of timber and other produce with a view to encourage private enterprise in that direction led to a saving, while extensive repairs to boats and steamers in the Sunderbuns Division enhanced the charges in connection with timber removed by consumers. The saving under Other Charges was due to the proposed forest settlements in Palamau and the Sunderbuns not being carried out. Under Establishment the special provision of 1,5 for the additional expenditure involved by the reorganisation of the Indian Forest Service was not utilised.

11.—Forest Expenditure—concluded.

76. In the North-Western Provinces the savings on the Budget under Conservancy and Work resulted from the curtailment of works in the Oudh Circle and from a smaller delivery of fuel to the Commissariat Department in the Central Circle Compared with the previous year there was a saving in the charges for sleeper and scantling operations in the Oudh Circle, but it was counterbalanced by an increase in the cost of sending by rail large quantities of bamboos in the Central Circles, and by larger departmental timber operations in the School Circle. The increase in Other Charges occurred in buildings and roads and fire conservancy operations in the Oudh and Central Circles. Under Establishment the anticipated reorganization of the lower controlling staff was not sanctioned. There were also savings in temporary establishments, in leave allowances, and in salaries.

77. In the Punjab the saving in the charges for the departmental extraction of timber were mainly due to lower rates paid for sleepers, to a curtailment of floating operations in the Chamba Division owing to deficient snowfall, and to smaller deliveries of fuel The savings in other charges occurred chiefly in the Bushahr Division, owing to the anticipated reorganisation of the Indian Forest Service not having taken place and to smaller charges on account of Forest Surveys. The savings would have been greater but for an increased outlay in the Lahore Division on buildings and canals. The savings under Establishment were in consequence of absences on leave and deputation.

78. In Madras a decline in the receipts was followed by a decrease in the expenditure under Conservancy and Works. The Budget under Other Charges did not provide for the demarcation of forest reserves in North Arcot and Madura or for the re-employment of reserve watchmen. The savings under Establishment were due to absences on leave and to the provision for the reorganisation of the superior staff not being required.

79. In Bombay the larger supplies of timber and firewood made from the Sind Circle required a larger amount of expenditure, but the increase was largely counterbalanced by the saving effected in the Southern Circle in consequence of restricted operations. The Revised was raised in anticipation of larger payments for firewood, including arrears, and for communications, demarcations, and shares of leased forests in the Southern Circle which were not made. The adjustment of the charges on account of the Divisional Forest Officer in charge of Working Plans under Establishment instead of under Other Charges accounts for the saving under the latter head. The provision of 3,0 under Establishment for the reorganisation of the superior staff was not required during the year, and a change in classification by which charges on account of clothing of forest establishments were transferred to Conservancy and Works further reduced the charges under the head.

80 The saving in England resulted from no payment having been made during the year on account of Mr. Baden-Powell's work on Land Tenures, etc., for which 1,3 were provided in the Budget.

81. The expenditure under Superintendence in Bengal was specially low in 1890-91 owing to the recovery in that year from the salary of the Inspector General of an advance drawn by him when on leave in England. The saving on the Budget in the Central Provinces in 1891-92 is due to the salary of the officiating Inspector General and of the Officiating Inspector of Registration Offices having been less than the pay of the appointments. The District Charges were enhanced by larger payments on account of commission, in consequence of increased revenue in Bengal, N.-W. P. and Oudh, Punjab, Madras and Bombay.

82. Compared with the previous year there was a fallingoff in the receipts under this head of 51,6, being the net result of a decrease of 136,6 in England, due to the unusually large receipts from the investment of the cash balances in the earlier year, and an increase of 85,0 in India, due chiefly to an increase of the currency investment, to the grant of additional loans to the Calcutta Port Trust and other public Corporations, and to larger realisations from Guaranteed Railways in consequence of their having overdrawn their balances. These last receipts were not allowed for in the Budget, which accounts for more than the whole of the increase of 30,9 in India as compared with the Budget, most of the other heads having been slightly over-estimated. The remainder (42,2) of the increase, as compared with the Budget, occurred in England, where the receipts from the investment of the cash balances, though much smaller than in the previous year, were larger than was estimated.

83. The principal receipts under this head in India arise from the paper currency investment and from loans made by Government to municipalities, and other public bodies, Native States and cultivators, etc. The paper currency investment was raised during 1890-91 and 1891-92 by the purchase of Government Promissory notes of the nominal value of 950,6 and 955,8 respectively. But as the investments were made towards the close of the years no important amount was realised on account of interest on the new notes during the year in which they were purchased. In 1891-92 interest was realised on the investment made in 1890-91, but 3,3 had to be paid out of it on account of the accrued interest on the notes purchased during the year. The receipts from interest on loans to municipalities, etc., are increasing on account of the large advances made in recent years to the Calcutta and Bombay Port Trusts for the construction of docks, and also on account of the introduction of the Provincial and Local loans scheme described in paragraphs 114 to 118 of the Financial Statement of 1889-90, under which Local Governments have been making large advances to municipalities for constructing water-works and effecting other sanitary improvements. The following statement shows the balances of the different kinds of loans during the last five years :—

84. The interest paid in 1891-92 by the Local Governments to the Government of India on account of the loans held on the Provincial Account amounted to 76,5, while the actual sum realised by them and credited to Provincial Revenues aggregated 79,3. The fluctuations under the different heads are explained in detail below.

85. The recoveries from the Presidency Corporations exceeded the actuals of the previous year in Bengal and Madras owing to additional loans having been granted to the Calcutta Port Trust and the Madras Harbour Trust respectively. The small decrease in Bengal compared with the Budget is due to the loan to the Port Trust not having been taken as early as was anticipated. The variations in the recoveries from Municipal and other Public Corporations and those on account of Advances to Cultivators, etc., were due chiefly to variations in the amounts or dates of the loans and advances. In Bengal, North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, loans to Municipalities were not granted to the extent anticipated in the Budget, while in Bombay the Ahmedabad Municipality paid the interest due by it in 1892-93 in advance. In Bengal the greater portion of the interest due on the large drainage and embankment advances fell into arrears. As regards the interest on the Currency Investment the amount provided in the Budget was actually realised, but 3,3 had to be paid out of it on account of the accrued interest on the new notes purchased during the year, when the total investment was raised from 7 to 8 crores as mentioned in paragraph 83.

Under Securities of Provincial Funds the increase in Madras was due partly to the realisation of arrears and partly to larger investments than were anticipated on account of the Railway Guarantee Fund in the Tanjore District. The Interest on Overdrawn Capital represents the interest on the drawings of the Guaranteed Railways in excess of their balances. The amount in 1891-92 was realised chiefly from the Bombay, Baroda and Central India and Great Indian Peninsula Railways. Under Other items in 1890-91 there was a large receipt in India on account of interest on some advances made to the Bank of Bengal, and in Madras a sum of 3,7 was realised on account of interest on arrears of Peishkash left uncollected from the Ramnad Zemindary at the time the estate was taken over by the Court of Wards.

86. In England a larger amount was realised from the investment of cash balances than was anticipated. The amount realised in 1890-91 on this account was abnormally high owing to the loan required for the purchase of the South Indian Railway having been raised early in the year, in consequence of the favorable state of the money market, and also to the rate of interest obtained on the investment having been unusually high.

87. The charges for 1891-92 include 364,9 on account of discount on the sterling loan raised in England during the year, for which no provision was made in the Budget, while in 1890-91 the sum paid on account of discount on the sterling loan raised in that year was only 53,7. Omitting these, the charges for 1891-92 show an increase of 83,1 over the Budget, and a decrease of 191,3 from the actuals of 1890-91. The excess over the Budget was due chiefly to the fall in the rate of Exchange. Compared with the previous year also there was a large increase due to this cause, but this was more than counterbalanced by the special expenditure in 1890-91 due to the conversion operations in India and to the interest on the sterling loan having been raised in that year some months before the purchase of the South Indian Railway for which it was required, and by the transfer in 1891-92 of a much larger portion of the interest charges in India to the Railway Revenue Account in consequence of the increase in the total capital expenditure on Railways.

89. As announced in the Financial statement for 1891-92 no new loan was raised in India during the year, and there were no important transactions connected with the Public Debt in India. A sum of 5,5 was provided in the Budget for the discharge of expired loans, but 10,4 was actually claimed during the year Besides this Promissory notes for 43,9 purchased in previous years and held under the Security Purchase Account were cancelled during the year on the close of the Security Purchase Account, and stock notes for 1, were also discharged in cash. In England, as provided in the Budget, a 3 per cent. loan of £2,600,000 was issued, partly for the repayment of a portion of the India 3½ per cent. debentures which fell due on 16th August 1891, and partly for advances to Railway companies under the Oudh and Rohilkhund Railway Purchase Act. During the course of the year the Secretary of State issued additional 3 per cent. stock for £2,000,000 for the discharge of £911,900 debentures of the Southern Mahratta Railway Company which expired on 1st October 1891, and £1,000,000 Oudh and Rohilkhund Railway debentures which expired on the 1st April 1892.

91. The interest on the 4½ and 4 per cent. loans compares well with the estimates. The increase under 4 per cent. and a portion of the decrease under 4½ per cent. compared with the previous year is accounted for by the conversion in 1890-91 of a portion of the 4½ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879, the other portion of the decrease under 4½ per cent. being accounted for by the extra payments involved by the conversions in 1890-91. The payments under 4 per cent. in 1891-92 exceeded the amount due, chiefly in consequence of a sum of about 10,0 having been paid as anticipation interest in connection with the purchase of the new notes for the currency investment and transferred from the 4 per cent. loan of 1865 to the 4 per cent. loan of 1842-43.

The following are the details of the interest paid in England.—

1890-91. Accounts.		1891-92. Budget.	Revised.	Accounts

92. Under Interest not charged to Railways there was a saving on the Budget of 19,5, being one quarter's interest on the loan of 2,600,0, owing to the loan not having been issued so early in the year as was expected, and of 10,0 owing to the provision for interest on temporary loans not having been required. On the other hand no provision was made for 254,4, the discount paid on the 3 per cent stock issued during the year and for 3,7 on account of one quarter's interest on 500,0, India 3 per cent. stock substituted for debentures of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, and the amount transferred to the Railway Revenue Account on account of interest chargeable against companies on advances was less than the amount provided in the Budget by 4,0. Compared with the previous year the excess under this head was due to the discount paid on the new loan raised during the year partly counterbalanced by an increase in the amount transferred to the Railway Revenue Account, while that under Interest charged to Railways was due to the interest on the 3 per cent. stock issued for the purchase of the South Indian Railway and on the debenture capital of the Company, the liability for which was accepted by the the Secretary of State. The Interest charged against Companies was higher owing to fresh advances having been made.

93. The saving under interest on Special Loans in India occurred chiefly in the payments in the form of pensions for sums deposited by the late ex-King of Oudh, and in the annuities payable in respect of the 8 per cent. Madras perpetual loans. 94. The unfavourable result under Post Office, compared with the Budget Estimate and the Actuals of the previous year, was produced by the decision arrived at during the year to charge the Department with the cost of stationery supplied to it from Central Stores and the cost of printing work done for it at Government presses, which were formerly charged as ordinary Stationery and Printing charges, and by the reduction in the rates for letter postage to the United Kingdom and Aden from 1st January 1891. But for these changes the net result would have shown a considerable improvement over that of 1890-91.

95. The net result in the Telegraph Department was a considerable improvement over both the Budget Estimate and the Actuals of the previous year, due partly to a decrease in the capital expenditure on new lines, partly to a general expansion of the operations of the Department, and partly to a special increase in State traffic owing to military expeditions.

96. The deterioration under Mint is due to the unprecedentedly large imports of silver in 1890-91 having unfavourably affected the imports in the following year, and the receipts from seignorage duty having consequently fallen below the normal level.

97. The revenue in 1891-92 exceeded that of 1890-91 by 43,9, due partly to the normal growth of the revenue of the Department and partly to a reduction in the payments to the London Post Office owing to an arrangement made with it under which each country is to retain the letter postage collected by it, and a sum of £19,900 is to be paid to the London Post Office by India annually in England, the payment being finally charged in the Home Accounts as expenditure. The improvement would have been much larger but for the falling off due to the reduction in the rates of letter postage to the United Kingdom and between Aden and India from 1st January 1891, which affected the receipts for three months only of 1890-91, against the whole of 1891-92. There was a large falling off also in the receipts from Mail Cart and Parcel Van Passenger service and the Bullock Train collections, due to the abolition of the services from Umballa to Kalka in consequence of the opening of the Delhi-Umballa-Kalka Railway. The excess over the Budget is due to the allowance made in it for the normal growth of the revenue under some of the heads having proved insufficient, and to too large a deduction having been made on account of the reduction in the rates of letter postage referred to above. The variations under the minor heads are explained in detail below.

98. Under Parcel and other Postage collected in cash there was a falling off in the receipts from unpaid letters, but this was nearly counterbalanced by increased realisations of postage on privileged publications. The improvement under Sale of ordinary postage stamps has been explained above. Official correspondence increases from year to year and with it the sales of Service Postage stamps increase; the increase in 1891-92 is a little above the average. Under Payments to English, Colonial and other Foreign Post Offices there was a saving of 1,5 on the estimate for the payments to the London Post Office, while an extra payment of 1,6 had to be made to the Italian Government for the statistical year 1891, the practice in former years having been to make such payments for a statistical year in the following official year. Under Mail Cart and Passenger Van Service a considerable portion of the falling off due to the abolition of the line between Umballa and Kalka was made good by an increase in the rates and an improvement in the traffic between Kalka and Simla. The Money Order Receipts continued to show a steady development, but not to the extent anticipated in the Budget, which was a little too sanguine. The falling off under Bullock Train collections due to the abolition of the line between Umballa and Kalka was larger than anticipated. Other Receipts showed an improvement chiefly owing to increased supply of over-printed stamps to Native States and to larger receipts from the Aligarh Workshops. Under District Post collections the increase in the Punjab occurred chiefly in the income from the Mail Cart service established in the Dera Ismail Khan district in November 1890.

Indian Telegraph.

99. The receipts in 1891-92 exceeded those of the previous year by 70,5. The increase was due chiefly to the general expansion of the operations of the department and to a special increase in State traffic owing to military expeditions and partly to variations in the outstanding balances with other telegraph administrations. A part of the increase due to these causes was counterbalanced by a decrease of 14,3 in the foreign private traffic, resulting from the reduction during the year in the transit rate of foreign messages from 75 to 35 centimes.

100. Compared with the Budget Estimate, the actuals show an increase of 67,5, due to the expansion of the inland traffic having been much larger than was anticipated, and to the special increase in State traffic owing to military expeditions. The Revised Estimate allowed for these increases, but was exceeded in the actuals by 4,6, owing to the receipts of the last few weeks of the year having been exceptionally high.

101. The actuals of the last five years which are given below show how very much above the average, the expansion of revenue during the year 1891-92 was:—

Year
1887-88	664,2
1888-89	634,3
1889-90	659,7
1890-91	667,0
1891-92	737,5

Indo-European Telegraph.

102. The actual receipts of the year, compared with those of 1890-91, show an increase of 69,3 in India and a decrease of 2,1 in England. The decrease in England was the effect of the reduction in the tariff to Australasia, and would have been considerably larger had the payments made by the Secretary of State in respect of message revenue been deducted from the receipts as heretofore, instead of being added to the expenditure of the year. The introduction of the reduced tariff for Australasian messages, led to a large expansion of traffic from India and the far East to Europe and enhanced the receipts in India. The above reasons also account for the increase of the actuals over the Budget Estimate.

103. Owing to the large speculation in silver engendered by the prospect of legislation in the United States, the net imports of silver in India in 1890-91 were unusually large, and, being considerably in excess of the requirements of the country, unfavourably affected the net imports of the following year. The receipts from seignorage duty in 1891-92 accordingly fell considerably below the normal level. The importation of silver and the silver coinage at the mints in recent years have been as follows:—

	Net Importation.	Silver Coinage.	Seignorage.
1884-85	7,245,6	5,794,2	115,6
1885-86	11,606,6	10,285,6	202,6

1891-92	9,022,2	5,554,0	116,1

In only one of these years was the coinage of silver below the figure for 1891-92.

104. The Gain on Copper Coinage exceeded both the Budget Estimate and the Actuals of the previous year owing partly to a fall in the price of copper and partly to an increase in the amount of copper coin passed into circulation. The Other Receipts in 1890-91 were specially high owing to a large amount of work having been done for the Government of Ceylon and the Straits Settlements and the Imperial British East Africa Company.

105. The charges rose by 96,7 compared with the previous year; part of this increase arose from the normal expansion of the Department, but it was principally due to the inclusion under this head of the charges for stationery supplied to the Post Office from Central Stores and for Printing done at Government Presses, both of which were formerly finally charged in the Civil Department as ordinary stationery and printing charges, and to the payments made to the English Post Office in accordance with the arrangement referred to under receipts.

106. Under Chief Office a large addition was made to the Establishment of the Comptroller, Post Office, including the appointment of a 2nd Assistant Comptroller, which was only partially provided for in the Budget. Under Presidency and District Offices the Budget provided for a large increase over the previous year to meet increased Establishment and other charges required for the normal expansion of the Department, but less than half the increased provision was required. The savings were, however, partly counterbalanced by increased charges for travelling and by the inclusion under this head of law charges and of charges for construction and repair of Post Office buildings, provision for which was made in the Budget under the head Miscellaneous. The savings under Road Establishment and Contingencies is also due to the provision made for the normal increase in the charges not having been fully required. The excess under Railway Charges is due to increased payments to the Bengal-Nagpur and South Indian Railways, partly counterbalanced by a reduction in the payments for special trains. Payments for haulage of Mails to the South Indian Railway made for the first time in 1891-92 chiefly account for the increase over the previous year. Reductions in the Bullock Train Charges of the Simla-Umballa line were not carried out to the extent anticipated in the Budget, while larger reductions than were anticipated were made in the Mail Cart charges of the same line. The non-payment of the subsidies due to the Tigris-Euphrates Company for the second half-year and to the Steam Navigation Companies in Assam for a portion of the year account for the saving under Subsidies, etc., while that under Miscellaneous is accounted for by the transfer of law charges and charges for Petty Construction and repairs from this head to Presidency and Districts Offices as mentioned above. The large increase under Stationery and Printing has been explained above.

107. Under District Post Charges the establishment of a Mail Cart service in the Dera Ismail Khan District enhanced the charges in the Punjab, while the transfer of some District Post Establishments to Imperial reduced the expenditure in Madras.

108. The increase in the expenditure in England compared with the previous year has been already explained.

109. Omitting Exchange the expenditure in 1891-92 closely approximated to the Budget and Revised estimates of the year, but was 7,1 more than the amount spent in 1890-91. This was chiefly due to larger payments in England on account of stores. There was a decrease in the capital outlay in India due to the outlay on the construction of new lines in 1891-92 having been smaller than in the previous year, while there was an increase in the revenue expenditure, chiefly owing to the expansion of the operations of the department, necessitating larger establishments, more renewals, and the maintenance of additional offices.

110. The increase, as compared with the actuals of 1890-91 and the budget estimate, was chiefly due to the out payments in England, aggregating 34,9, having been added to expenditure instead of being deducted from revenue as in the previous year. This was provided for in the revised estimate which did not however provide for a special political charge of 7,1.

Exchange.

111. The differences under this head were due to the variations in the expenditure in England and in the rates of exchange.

112. In the Calcutta Mint the absence on privilege leave of the Mint Master led to an increase under Establishments, while a smaller recoinage of uncurrent coins caused a saving under Loss on Coinage. In the Bombay Mint there was a decrease in the charges under all the heads owing to the coinage of silver having been much smaller than that of the previous year and also than the amount provided for in the Budget.

113. The revenue in this section of the account showed a considerable improvement over both the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year. The improvement over the latter would have been much larger, but for the special receipt in that year of a sum of 41,1 on account of the sale-proceeds of the Royal Lunatic Asylum Estate at Ealing. The improvement occurred under most of the heads comprised in the section notably in magisterial fines, sale-proceeds of Jail manufactures, which were however over-estimated in the Budget, cattle-pound receipts, and receipts for work done at the Dockyards.

114. The receipts classified under this head, though liable to considerable fluctuations, have advanced steadily during the last five years, having risen from 323,0 in 1887-88 to 375,9 in 1891-92. The Budget for 1891-92 was taken a little higher than the Revised Estimate of the previous year, but it was exceeded in the actuals by 22,1, of which 18,9 occurred under the head General Fees, etc., due mainly to larger receipts from magisterial fines.

115. The receipts under Sale-proceeds of Unclaimed and Escheated Property fluctuated considerably in the various Provinces, but on the whole approximated closely to the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year. Under Court Fees realised in cash, also, there was a special receipt of 5,8 in Bengal in 1890-91, while in 1891-92 higher receipts on account of Ameen's fees raised the actuals in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

116. The falling off under Other Receipts in the Punjab was only nominal, being due to the transfer of Judicial Record Fees, which were formerly credited under this head, to Land Revenue. The increase in Burma and Madras was due to larger receipts on account of Pleadership Examination Fees.

117. The receipts under this head, although largely in excess of those of 1890-91, fell short of the estimate by 9,7. This was mainly due to a too sanguine estimate in Bengal of the Sale-proceeds of Jail Manufactures based upon the recent orders of the Secretary of State directing a larger use of those articles by the Public Departments. The receipts did expand but only to about half the extent that was anticipated. There was also a decrease of 6,5 under the head in the Central Provinces owing to the discontinuance of inter-departmental adjustments between jails. These decreases were partially counterbalanced by improvements in some of the other provinces, notably in Madras and the North-Western Provinces, due to an extension of the use of Jail manufactures, which involved also an increase on the Expenditure side in the cost of their production. Under Other Receipts there was an increase of 4,9 in the Punjab in the receipts from the hire of convicts owing to their larger employment on extra-mural work, and of 1,5 in India chiefly in consequence of some recoveries made from the Hyderabad State on account of the maintenance of its convicts in the Bombay Jails which were not provided for in the Budget, but these were partly counterbalanced by a decrease of 3,2 in Lower Burma and of 1,1 in Upper Burma, due to a decline in the demand for convict labour, chiefly by the Public Works Department. Under Convict Receipts at Port Blair the falling off was due to an over-estimate of the amount recoverable during the year from the Berar revenues on account of the prisoners of the Hyderabad State maintained at Port Blair.

Under Police supplied to municipal, etc., Funds, the India Estimates provided for a recovery from the Quetta Municipal Fund which has been adjusted in the accounts by deduction from the charges. The recoveries in Burma on account of Police supplied to Public Departments, etc., fell off compared with both the actuals of the previous year and the Budget, owing mainly to a large reduction in the punitive or additional police, but there was an increase in Bombay, due partly to additional punitive posts, partly to police entertained at new distilleries, and partly to larger recoveries from private individuals. The increase of 5,6 under Presidency Police in Bengal, is explained by the fact that recoveries amounting to 5,3 made in Calcutta on account of the Additional Constables Fund and Cattle Pound receipts, were not provided for in the Original Estimate, as they were in previous years treated in the accounts as Personal Deposits of the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta. There was a considerable increase under Fees, Fines, etc., an uncertain item, consisting chiefly of cattle-pound receipts which occurred chiefly in the North-Western Provinces and Bombay. Other Receipts showed a large improvement of which 3,9 and 1,3 occurred in India and the Punjab, being due to special recoveries from the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company of leave and pensionary contributions of the Rajputana-Malwa and Rewari-Ferozpore Railway Police Forces, respectively, and 1,4 in the North-Western Provinces, due to sale-proceeds of unserviceable tents and old clothing.

119. A considerable portion of the increase of 23,3 over the Budget occurred in Dockyard Services which exceeded the Budget by 16,1, chiefly in consequence of a larger quantity of work having been done for other Departments and Local Governments. Pilotage Receipts also showed an increase of 6,4 in Bengal where they fluctuate considerably from year to year, being dependent on the amount of tonnage visiting the Port of Calcutta. The receipts were abnormally low in 1889-90, but there was a considerable increase in 1890-91, and there was a still further improvement in 1891-92, which was not anticipated in the Budget Estimate. Under Sale-proceeds, etc., the sale of the "Chenab" of the Imperial Marine, of a steam launch and a flat of the Upper Burma Marine and of a steam launch of the Bengal Marine fetched 9, 2,8 and 5, respectively. Coast Light Dues exceeded the Budget in Lower Burma by 3,7 owing to a large number of vessels having entered the ports. The Other Receipts which fluctuate considerably fell short of the estimate in India by 6,6. In Lower Burma the receipts of the preceding year contained some exceptional items as noticed in my last report.

120. Of the total improvement of 8,1 over the Budget Estimate under this head, 5,1 was in Fees and Fines, of which 2,1 occurred in Bengal, where the fees derivable from Government Colleges were underestimated, and 1,3 in the North-Western Provinces, due to an increase of pupils in the Government institutions. The improvement over the previous year in Madras was the result of the opening of additional schools by District Boards. In the North-Western Provinces there was an increase of 1,9 under Contributions also, due partly to a special credit of 8, on account of a contribution by the Hindu School Society, Almora, and partly to the raising of the status of the Pilibhit school and its consequent transfer from the hands of the Local Municipality to Government. On the other hand the transfer of the management of certain schools to Municipalities in the Central Provinces produced a falling off of 7. Other Receipts, in Bengal, included a special refund of 1,9 by the District Board of Jessore, of charges paid for it by Government in a previous year, but this was partly counterbalanced by a decrease of 1,0 in cash recoveries. The increase of 1,7 in Bombay was due to larger sales of books.

121. The variations between the estimates and the actuals are small. The only Indian head which seems to call for remarks is Contributions. Under this head, the increase of 1,0 over the Budget Estimate in the Punjab was nominal, being due to the adjustment of contributions from Municipal and Cantonment Funds towards the maintenance of non-criminal lunatics under this head instead of under Lunatic Asylums under which they were budgetted for, and which consequently showed a decrease. The decrease of 1,1 in the North-Western Provinces was due to the non-realisation of the contributions from Town Funds towards the salaries of vaccinators, as the question regarding their status was decided too late for the recovery to be made during the year

122. In England the receipts of 1890-91 included an extraordinary item of 31,0 on account of the sale proceeds of the Royal Indian Lunatic Asylum at Ealing, as noticed in my last report.

123. The actuals exceeded the Budget by 16,9. The increase was distributed among all the heads, but the largest improvement occurred under Other Receipts, which exceeded the estimate by 7,7. There was an improvement of 3,5 in Bengal, mainly on account of a special contribution of 3,0 by Babu Shew Bux Bagla towards the establishment of a Veterinary School and Hospital, of 1,8 in Madras on account of examination fees, resulting from the introduction of Secondary and Primary School examinations in lieu of the Middle School and Special Upper Primary, the effects of which could not be fully estimated in the Budget, and of 1,5 in the Punjab, mainly due to a special credit on account of a jhil sold by the Peshawar District Board to the Military Department for purposes connected with fuel and fodder reserves.

124. Under Experimental Cultivation the increase in the Punjab is attributed to favourable rainfall and the recovery of arrears. Cinchona Plantations brought in a larger revenue in Madras on account of an increase in the demand for quinine febrifuge and bark. The increase of 2,4 in Receipts on account of Fairs occurred mainly in the Punjab, where the Budget was exceeded by 1,6 from the local income of cattle and other fairs. Government Bull and Stallion Receipts exceeded the Budget by 1,7, owing to special sales of stallions which could not be foreseen at the time of framing the Budget. Sale of Mathematical Instruments in cash by the Survey Department to officers in the Civil Department were under-estimated.

125. The expenditure in this section exceeded that of 1890-91 by 467,5, but fell short of the Budget Estimate by 122,7. The excess over the previous year was due to the extent of 48,1 to the fall in the rate of Exchange, of 125,3 to the higher charges for the Census operations, and of about 54,0 to the adjustment under Medical of the charges for the Local Conservancy Establishment in Madras which were formerly shown under Miscellaneous. The remainder was due chiefly to the normal growth of expenditure in almost all the Departments, the notable items being the appointment of additional Judicial officers in some of the provinces, an enhancement of Jail charges owing to an increase in the Jail population, and a rise in the price of food grains, purchase of some new steamers for Upper Burma and Madras, and an increase in the contribution paid to the Admiralty for Her Majesty's ships employed in the Indian seas and for manning and maintaining Indian Government Defence vessels. The saving on the Budget was due chiefly to the provision for the reorganisation of the Bombay District and Presidency Police not having been required, and to the greater portion of the subsidy payable to the Admiralty for the Indian Government Defence vessels not having been paid, as the vessels were not taken over by the Admiralty during the year ; there was on the other hand an increase under Medical, due to the change in the classification of the charges for Conservancy Establishments in Madras mentioned above.

126. Under Staff and Household, India showed a saving of 1,4 on the Budget due to smaller Hill Journey charges, counterbalanced partly by an increase in the Municipal rates. The increase in Bombay over the previous year represents chiefly the cost of constructing a metre gauge carriage for His Excellency the Governor. The excess of 3,9 in India, under Military Secretary, was chiefly due to revision of establishment. The Secretariat charges exceeded the estimate by 11,9. The greater part of the increase occurred in the India Secretariat charges, the usual details of which are given below :—

Secretariat (India).

127. The Government Record was a newly-created Department, which cost 3,0, but no provision was made for it in the Budget. Increased telegram charges mainly account for the increase of 4,3 in the Foreign Department. The Revenue and Agriculture and the Public Works Departments also exceeded their grants, the former chiefly in consequence of increased charges for salaries on account of privilege leave arrangements, the deputation of an officer on special duty, and an increase in the pay of the Under-Secretary, and the latter chiefly in consequence of increased establishment charges. A considerable part of the savings in the Finance and Home Departments occurred respectively in the Establishment charges, and in the Secretary's pay which was not drawn towards the close of the year.

128. The Central Provinces Secretariat exceeded its grant in consequence of the deputation of an officer on special duty, the absence on privilege leave of the Secretary, and the creation of the office of Revenue Secretary to the Chief Commissioner. The increase of 3,4 in Bengal was due to privilege leave arrangements, appointment of officers on special duty, payment at Calcutta of the leave allowances and salaries of some Assam and Burma officers, and, lastly, to increased contingent charges. The under-estimate in the Revised in this province is only apparent, being due to the tour charges of the Secretariat Establishment having been erroneously included under Tour Charges. The Madras Secretariat charges were also 4,0 more than the Budget, owing partly to increased contingent expenditure and partly to the adjustment, against the grant for the pay of the Under-Secretary in the Public Department, of the pay of the permanent officer who was on deputation on Census duty, as well as of that of his locum tenens. On the other hand there was a saving of 1,4 in the Punjab, consequent on absences on leave or deputation, and 2,0 in Lower Burma in the establishment and telegram charges, although the actuals exceeded those of 1890-91 by 2,5, owing to revision of establishment and higher rates of pay of Secretaries and Under-Secretaries which were drawn for a part only of 1890-91.

129. The sanctioned allotment for Tour Charges was not fully utilised in any province except Bombay, where it was exceeded in consequence of special expenditure in connection with the journey of His Excellency the Governor and Staff to Simla. The heavy expenditure under this head in India in 1890-91 was, as explained in the Appropriation Report for that year, due to special large advances drawn towards the close of the year. There was also special expenditure under this head in the North-Western Provinces in 1890-91, and the grant for 1891-92 was reduced to meet in part this overdrawal. Privilege leave arrangements and special deputations explain the excesses of 1,6 and 2,2 in Bengal and Madras under Board of Revenue, and the small excess in the North-Western Provinces is due to higher pay drawn by the Secretary and Joint Secretary. The increase of 2,0 under Commissioners in the North-Western Provinces was due to extra charges in consequence of the absence of officers on privilege leave; but the charges were less than in the previous year owing to the abolition of two Commissionerships.

130. As explained in the previous reports, the total charges for all the Account and Currency Offices should be taken together and not in detailof each office. The increase over 1890-91 was chiefly owing to privilege leave arrangements. The figures are as follow:—

		Civil Account and Currency Offices.	Office of A. G., P. W. D.	TOTAL.
Accounts.	1890-91	221,5	21,3	242,8
Budget	1891-92	225,2	22,8	248,0
Revised	1891-92	223,1	23,1	246,2
Accounts	1891-92	224,1	22,6	246,7

131. The saving in the Allowance to Presidency Banks occurred chiefly in the allowances paid for the management of the Public Debt, the increase in the currency investment and the enfacement of a large amount of Government securities for payment of interest in London having reduced the amount of the Debt on which the allowance to the Presidency Banks is calculated. Charges for the General Establishment of Local Fund Offices are steadily increasing in Madras, owing to the establishment of additional Punchâyats and Unions. The charges of District Fund Offices in Bengal are also increasing.

132. In England the increase in the sterling expenditure is attributed to increased demands for stores and to higher charges for the management of enfaced Rupee Paper.

133. The total Indian charges agreed almost exactly with the Budget Estimate, but there were large variations in the details. The most important of these are a saving of 15,8 under Civil Courts in Bengal, due to the scheme for the entertainment of a large number of additional Judicial officers and for the improvement of ministerial establishments, for which provision was made in the Budget, having been only partially carried out, and a saving of 17,7 under Criminal Courts in Madras, due to the additional Sub-Magistrates, for whom a large provision was made in the Budget not having been actually entertained. On the other hand there was an increase of 7,0 under Civil Courts in Madras chiefly owing to an over-estimate of the probable savings from salaries in consequence of absence of officers on leave out of India and of 3,8 in Assam due to the munsiffs on duty having been officers of higher grades, to the appointment of an additional munsiff, and to the adjustment under this head of the charges for Civil Court Process-serving Establishments at sub-divisions instead of under Land Revenue, and also of the charges for sadar and sub-divisional Civil Court Establishments instead of under Land Revenue and Criminal Courts respectively as before. There were also excesses under Law Officers, of 4,3 in Bengal and 4,4 in the North-Western Provinces, due to the charges for conducting certain important law-suits and prosecutions, and of 9,5 under Refunds, which occurred chiefly in Burma, Bengal, Punjab and Madras.

134. The other and less important differences calling for remarks are explained below in the order of the minor heads. Under High Court, etc., the charges in Upper Burma are those of the the Judicial Commissioner and his establishment who were first appointed in July 1890, and the charges were consequently smaller in 1890-91. The saving in Lower Burma arose from the absence of officers on leave, while the increase in Bengal was chiefly due to an over-estimate of the probable savings from salaries and to the payment, under the sanction of the Secretary of State, to the Receiver of the Court of three-tenths of net profits from fees realised by Government from private estates, and that in the North-Western Provinces to a Judge having drawn his salary for March in that month, on retirement, and also to a higher rate of pay having been drawn by the Judicial Commissioner, and to extra charges in consequence of deputation and privilege leave arrangements. Under Civil and Sessions Courts the low figure of 1890-91 in Lower Burma was due to a Judge not having drawn pay for three months (which, when drawn, increased the charge for 1891-92) and to the appointment of an Additional Judge having been vacant for half the year. The variations in Assam, Bengal, and Madras have been explained above. The increase in the North-Western Provinces occurred in diet allowances to complainants and witnesses and process-serving charges and in the pay of three temporary subordinate Judges whose terms of office were extended. The Revised was an over-estimate in the Punjab. The saving in Bombay was due to the appointment of a Joint Judge having been vacant for a time and to some of the appointments having been filled by statutory civilians. The saving was really larger than appears from the figures, as the cost of the Ahmedabad Small Cause Court, amounting to about 8, was charged to this head as the charge could not be separated from the cost of the other Judicial establishments in the District. This also accounts for a part of the saving under Court of Small Causes in Bombay, the remainder being due to a lower rate of pay having been drawn by the officiating Chief Judge of the Bombay Court, and to a delay in filling up the fifth Judgeship. Under Criminal Courts the increase over 1890-91 in India was due to the transfer of certain charges from "3—Land Revenue—Expenditure against Quetta Assigned Revenue," while the creation of some additional appointments increased the charges in the Central Provinces. The estimates for both Upper and Lower Burma were pitched too high. The saving in Assam was due to the transfer of the charges for sub-divisional Civil Court establishments from this head to Criminal Courts as mentioned above. The excess in Bengal was due to an over-estimate of probable savings from salaries, which was also the case in the North-Western Provinces, but a part of the excess there occurred also in the charges for travelling allowance and diet money to witnesses. The Budget was exceeded in the Punjab partly owing to revision of establishment. The saving in Madras has been explained above. In Bombay the savings were chiefly in salaries due to absence on leave and retirement of officers. Under Other Courts of Justice the excess in Bengal was due to an under-estimate of the charges for Mofussil witnesses attending the High Court, while the saving in Bombay was due to the provision made for a fourth Presidency Magistrate not having been required.

135. In England the savings included 2,0 estimated for coal for Port Blair, which was not supplied during the year. Provision was also made in the estimate for outfit allowance for four Judges, but only one Judge came out to India during the year.

136. The total charges exceeded those of the previous year by 33,2, but fell short of the Budget Estimate by 16,4. The excess over the previous year occurred chiefly under other Jail charges in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and the Punjab, owing to an increase in the Jail population and a rise in the prices of food-grains, and in Madras also owing to the latter cause. The saving on the Budget occurred chiefly under Jail Manufactures in Bengal, due partly to the restriction of manufactures in consequence of a falling off in the demand for them as noticed under receipts, and partly to the cost of manufactures supplied to Jails having been deducted from the charges under this head by debit to Other Jail Charges, which consequently showed an excess. There was also a saving of 10,8 under Other Jail Charges in Lower Burma, due to the provision of 5,0 for charges to be incurred on the occupation of a new Central Jail not having been required, and to smaller charges for rations, clothing, and passage money, but this was more than counterbalanced by increases of 15,2, 4,7 and 7,0 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjab and Madras respectively, which have been explained above. The Convict Charges at Port Blair were over-estimated in the Budget, the savings having occurred chiefly in the charges for commissariat supplies and passage money.

137. The other variations calling for special remarks are as follows :—The Revised estimate under Jail Manufactures in the Central Provinces anticipated a large saving on the Budget, but the greater portion of it was not realised owing to the purchase of raw materials having been very heavy towards the end of the year. The purchases of such materials were also heavier compared with the Budget in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Madras, while they were smaller in Burma and Assam. These variations in the expenditure were generally met by corresponding variations in the receipts from the sale of manufactures. The Budget Estimate of Other Jail Charges in the Central Provinces, Upper Burma, Assam and Bombay was pitched too high, a part of the saving in Assam being due to the closing of the temporary Jail in the North Lushai Hills.

138. The Budget provided for a considerable increase in the expenditure in Bombay and the Punjab owing to the anticipated reorganisation of the District Executive Force in both the provinces, and also of the Presidency Police in Bombay. The reorganisation schemes in Bombay were not carried out, while that in the Punjab was introduced at a later date than was expected. There were also large savings in the Budget in Upper and Lower Burma, owing to the Police Force having been below the sanctioned strength and to the transfer of 16½ companies of the Special Police in Upper Burma to the Military Department for the formation of two local regiments. These savings were, however, to some extent counterbalanced by a large increase in Assam and Bengal, due to the charges connected with the administration of the Northern and Southern Lushai Hills districts, which were taken over only towards the end of 1890-91, and for which only a small provision was made in the Assam Budget, and no provision was made in Bengal, as it was not known at the time that the charges would be Civil. The variations under the different minor heads are explained in detail below.

139. Under Presidency Police the Budget was exceeded in Bengal chiefly in consequence of a special payment to counsel in an important Police prosecution, while in Bombay there was a large saving, due chiefly to the special provision for reorganisation not having been required as mentioned above, counterbalanced partly by an increase in the charges for the Harbour Police, and those for private watchmen the latter of which were, however, covered by an increase in the recoveries credited under receipts.

140. The Superintendence charges in Lower Burma were high in 1890-91 owing to privilege leave arrangements and to the appointment of two special assistants to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, for whom one month's salaries were also provided in the Budget Estimate for 1891-92, but whose duties ceased before March 1891. The travelling allowance charges were also smaller in 1891-92 and there was a saving under salaries in consequence of the lower pay drawn by officers officiating during the absence on leave out of India of the permanent incumbents. Under District Executive Force a great part of the increase in India is only nominal, being due to the charges of the Zhob District Police and the Quetta Municipal Police having been adjusted under this head instead of under Special and Municipal Police, respectively, as originally provided for. The saving in the Central Provinces was due to the absence on leave of a number of officers, to some temporary vacancies among Assistant Superintendents not having been filled up and to the Police Force having been below its sanctioned strength. The large savings in Lower and Upper Burma were also partly due to these causes, as well as to an over-estimate of the charges under several heads, to reduction of the Punitive Police, to smaller travelling allowance charges, owing to restrictions imposed by the Local Government, and to the transfer of the grants for construction and repairs to the Public Works Department in Lower Burma. In Bengal an increase in the pay of 4th grade constables and the supply of free kit involved a considerable amount of extra expenditure, but the greater portion of this was met by savings under salaries and contingencies. The increase in the North-Western Provinces was caused partly by the transfer from Special Police of the police charges of Kumaon-Gharwal, a newly created district, where additional establishment was also sanctioned, partly by additional travelling charges on account of the Hardwar Kumbh Fair, and partly by specially high payments for rewards. The saving of 12,6 in the Punjab was due, as explained above, to the reorganization scheme having been introduced at a later date than was expected when the Budget was framed The large excess of 11,0 in Madras occurred in clothing charges, where unusually large supplies were made by the Jail Department at the close of the year. The saving in Bombay was due to provision for the reorganization of the Police Force not having been required as mentioned above.

141. Upper Burma showed a saving under Municipal and Cantonment Police chiefly on account of the Force being under strength and the cost of the arms and accoutrements of the men not having been separately charged for. Under Railway Police, the charges in India were less than in 1890-91, owing to the amalgamation of the Sind-Peshin Railway Police with the District Executive Force which led to an increase under the latter head. The excess in Bengal was due to payment of arrears on account of the watch and ward charges of the East Indian Railway, the recovery of whose share of the charges in the North-Western Provinces for the last quarter was not made till June 1892, thereby causing the increase in those Provinces. In Bombay arrears of pension contribution of the Rajputana-Malwa Railway Police Force were recovered and deducted from the charges of 1891-92. There was also delay on the part of the Bombay, Baroda Railway Company in claiming the amount due to it for Police charges for one quarter, and a junior officer was appointed Superintendent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Police. Under Village Police the decrease of 23,2 in Lower Burma is attributed to the abolition of headmen in those districts in which the Village Act was brought into operation and to a large reduction in the number of gaungs. The saving in Bombay is attributed to a delay in the introduction of revised survey rates in some districts, the cash allowances and the adjustments on account of the assessment of alienated lands being dependent upon the Land Revenue receipts There were large variations under Special Police in most of the Provinces. In India the Zhob Police charges were as mentioned above adjusted under District Executive Force. The saving of 46,0 in Upper Burma was due as mentioned above chiefly to the transfer of 16½ companies to the Military Department, to the Force having also been otherwise under the sanctioned strength, to less travelling expenses in consequence of the stoppage of recruiting in India, and of the restrictions imposed by the Local Government upon the grant of mileage, and to smaller purchases of ponies and baggage animals. The inability of the Ordnance Department to supply to the full extent the arms which it was intended to supply to the Guzrat Agency Police caused a saving in Bombay also. The savings were, however, more than counterbalanced by increases of 16,3 in Assam and 52,8 in Bengal due as mentioned above to the Lushai charges, and of 10,2 in the Punjab, due mainly to the revision of the Kohat Border Militia and to the transfer to this head of Derajat Border Militia charges previously debited to the Military Department. Larger receipts from Cattle Pounds naturally increased the charges in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Bombay. The inclusion in the accounts for the first time of the charges on account of cattle pounds and police supplied to private individuals in the Presidency town enhanced the Other Charges in Bengal, though as explained under receipts the corresponding recoveries were credited to Presidency Police. The charges under this head in Upper Burma were specially high in 1890-91 owing to heavy refunds of the Punitive Police tax in that year.

142. The saving on the Budget in the Indian expenditure occurred almost entirely under Other Charges, owing chiefly to the provision made in the Lower Burma Budget for a vessel for the Baragua flats and for a new lantern for the Light Vessel Krishna not having been required during the year, and to the adjustment of the cost of the new vessel Brahmakund having been effected in the Assam accounts for 1890-91 instead of in 1891-92 as was anticipated. The Other charges in India also showed a saving of 4,0, of which 3 were due to smaller charges of coal depots, 8 to short expenditure on account of hire of vessel for the tour of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and 1,0 to the adjustment of the charges for the Naval Commander-in-Chief in India under General Supervision and Accounts instead of under this head as was provided in the estimate. This last-mentioned head did not, however, show a corresponding increase owing to savings resulting from the leave on medical certificate of the Director of the Royal Indian Marine and vacancies in office establishments. The decrease under Marine Survey and Establishment was due to absences of officers on furlough and to vacancies in India and Lower Burma, but it was partly counterbalanced by an increase in Bengal owing to the appointment of an Assistant Engineer-Surveyor for the survey of steam vessels at Calcutta. The expenditure under Dockyards, though larger than that of 1890-91, owing to more work having been undertaken in the Kidderpore Dockyard, showed a saving on the Budget as the provision for erecting electric light apparatus in the Bombay Dockyard was utilized to a very small extent. Under Salaries of Officers and men afloat the saving in India resulted from the establishment having been below the sanctioned strength, owing to the loss of the Enterprise, and from the provision of 1,0 for allowances to officers serving on the floating defences not having been required, as the floating defences were not taken over by the Admiralty during the year, counterbalanced partly by the payment of arrears of victualling charges. A part of the saving in Lower Burma was due to a new vessel, for which establishment charges had been provided, not having arrived during the year, while that in Bengal was caused by the short strength owing to the loss of the pilot brig Coleroon. The increased expenditure under Marine Stores in India was due to special local purchases of English coal, that in Bengal to larger repairs to pilot vessels and the steamer Guide, and that in Lower Burma to heavy repairs to District Cess and Provincial launches, while in Upper Burma there was a saving on the Budget in the charges for repairs, coal and wood fuel. The charges under Pilotage, etc., fluctuate and vary with the tonnage of ships visiting the ports. Compared with the previous year, there was an increase in the total expenditure in India of 30,9, due chiefly to the purchase of some new steamers for Upper Burma and Madras and to larger purchases of Marine stores as explained above.

143. In England the Budget provided for a payment of 60,0 to the Admiralty on account of subsidy for manning and maintaining the Indian Government Defence vessels, but these were not taken over during the year, and a sum of 6,0 only was paid in respect of two gun-boats from 23rd January 1892, and on account of coal and canal dues. There was also a saving in the advances of pay, etc., to Marine officers on appointment, but this was more than counterbalanced by an increase of 17,3 under stores, the demand for which proved considerably higher than was expected.

144. The charges under this head continue to increase in most provinces with the spread of education, the increase in 1891-92 having been largest in Madras and Bengal. The Budget was, on the whole, a fair approximation to the actuals, a large saving in Bombay having been counterbalanced by increases in Bengal and Madras.

145. There was an increase of 11,4 under Inspection which occurred chiefly in Bengal owing to the estimate having been framed at too low a figure from want of sufficient data, the estimates of District Boards not having been received in time.

146. Under Government Colleges also there was an increase of 3,7 in Bengal, due to over-estimate of probable savings from salaries and to insufficient provision for the charges of the Boarding-house attached to the Bethune College for ladies. But it was nearly counterbalanced by savings in the North-Western Provinces, due to lower salaries drawn by acting officers, and in Madras where the Budget was pitched too high. The charges for Government Schools agreed closely with the estimate, taking all the provinces together; but taking them individually, Madras showed an increase of 10,8 consequent on the rapidly increasing number of schools, chiefly under District Boards, and North-Western Provinces of 2,7, owing to the raising of the status of several Zilla schools to that of high schools, and the establishment of new zilla schools at Almorah and Pilibhit, and to higher expenditure from increments of fees. On the other hand Bombay showed a saving of 7,9, as the revisions in Provincial Institutions, which were contemplated when the Budget was framed, were not given effect to during the whole of the year. There were savings in the Central Provinces and Bengal also, owing to the transfer of some schools to the control of Municipalities in the former and to Joint Committees in the latter. Grants-in-aid exhibited a saving of 15.2, of which 11,7 in Bombay was only nominal, a large amount having been transferred to Local Funds and charged under Contributions, and also to the Public Works Department for construction of school buildings. The Lower Burma Budget was pitched too high and the Madras one too low. The saving in Bengal was the result partly of the Budget having been framed on insufficient data as mentioned under Inspection and partly of the provision for certain Scholarships and Other charges under this head, whereas the actual charges were classified under the proper heads. Under Scholarships, the excess in Bengal has been partially explained above and the rest was due to no provision having been made for Assam Scholarships payable in Bengal. In the Punjab and Bombay the provisions were not fully utilized. Other charges exceeded the Budget in the Punjab owing to the construction of an endowed school at Delhi, for which no provision was made in the Budget, and in Bombay owing to larger purchase of books for the Government Book Depôt, but this was more than covered by additional receipts realised from the Depôt.

147. The charges under this head are liable to considerable fluctuations, owing to changes in the personnel of chaplains involving the substitution of junior for senior chaplains, or vice versâ. The only points requiring special notice are that under Church of England, there was a saving of 3,1 in India, due chiefly to the absence of the Lord Bishop on furlough, and of 2,8 in Bombay, due to the absence of a large number of chaplains on leave; while there were increases of 1,5 in Bengal and 1,8 in Madras, arising from an overestimate of the probable savings from salaries due to absences on leave, etc. Under Church of Scotland the Punjab Budget provided for a chaplain who was not entertained, while the Madras Budget provided for three chaplains, one of whom (as in the previous year) was not entertained.

148. The Indian charges under this head exceeded the Budget by 52,7 in the aggregate. This is more than accounted for by an increase of 57,4 under Sanitation and Vaccination in Madras which was however mostly nominal, being due to the adjustment under this head of the charges for the Local Establishments for clearing tanks and wells instead of under "22—Miscellaneous" as before. The charges, however, rose considerably at the close of the year owing to the famine in several districts. The excess under this head was to some extent counterbalanced by savings of 3,0 in Bombay, due to certain appointments having been kept vacant and some others filled by junior officers, and of 2,9 in Bengal, mainly due to the estimate of local expenditure having been framed too high for want of sufficient data in the absence of estimates from the District Boards.

149. Madras exhibited a large incr ease (9,5) also under Hospitals and Dispensaries, consequent on an increase in the number of patients in hospitals, and the establishment of new hospitals under District Boards. The Bengal Budget did not provide for the contributions payable by District Boards to Municipalities for the hospitals and dispensaries under their control, and there was also an increase in this Province in the diet and clothing charges, while the North-Western Provinces Budget was exceeded on account of some special grants sanctioned during the year. On the other hand, there was a saving of 2,0 in Bombay, due to smaller charges for diet and medicine, and of 1,4 and 1,2 in Upper and Lower Burma, where the estimates were framed too high.

150. Under Medical Establishment in Bengal the charges for travelling allowance and cost of medical stores were under-estimated, and too large a deduction was made on account of probable savings from salaries, while the similar deductions in the North-Western Provinces and Madras were too small. In the Punjab the appointment of Assistant Surgeons to have charge of districts in the absence on leave, etc., of Commissioned Medical Officers, diminished the expenditure under the head. The other heads do not call for remarks.

151. Under Political Agents, India showed a saving of 1,5, chiefly in contingent expenditure, although the actuals were 10,9 more than those of 1890-91, owing to the adjustment of a portion of the charges for the Quetta Assigned Tracts and some other Districts in Beluchistan under this head instead of under Land Revenue as before. In Bombay also there was a saving on the Budget of 1,,, owing mainly to the adjustment by deduction from the charges of foreign service contributions recovered in arrears from certain establishments which were declared during the year to be in foreign service. On the other hand, increased rates and arrears of pay, additional establishments, heavier travelling charges, and a special deputation to the Kachin Hills led to an increase of 3,5 in Upper Burma, while the North Lushai Agency charges and the Kashmir Residency charges caused the excesses over the Budget in Assam and the Punjab.

152. Charges on the North-Western Frontier were 3,2 and 3,8 less than the Budget in India and the Punjab. The India estimate did not provide for the newly sanctioned Commandant of the Zhob Levy Corps, still the actuals fell short owing to a large provision for the construction of buildings, etc., for the Zhob Levy Corps having been eventually transferred to the Public Works Department. In the Punjab the Budget provision of 4,0 for guarding the Gomal Pass and other tribal outposts was not utilized, but the actuals exceeded those of the previous year on account of the adjustment under this head of Zhob and Gomal Expedition charges which were formerly shown under the head Other Charges.

153. There was a saving of 11,7 under Political Subsidies, of which 11,0 occurred in India in the subsidy payable to the Amir of Afghanistan. 55,6 of the amount due for 1891-92 remained unpaid at the end of the year, while arrears amounting to 44,6 were paid during it. The small increase in the Punjab represents an additional subsidy sanctioned for the Ruler of Chitral and his sons after the Budget was framed.

154. The expenditure on Darbar Presents varies with the occasions for giving them. In India and Bombay savings of 4,2 and 1,3 were effected, while Bengal exhibited an excess of 1,1. Under Refugees and State Prisoners a provision of 1 0 for the marriage of Prince Jamshed Bukt in Lower Burma was not required. The departure of Sardar Mahomed Hashim Khan and his followers from Rawalpindi to Kurrachee in January 1892 and deaths and desertions among his followers as well as among those of Sardar Ayub Khan produced a saving of 1,9 in the Punjab. On the other hand, the Budget was exceeded in Bombay and the North-Western Provinces by 7,7 and 1,5, the net result under this head taking all the provinces together being an excess of 5,2. The increase in Bombay was partly due to the transfer of Sardar Mahomed Hashim Khan just mentioned, and the remainder was mainly nominal, being due to the adjustment of charges for Afghan refugees, amounting to 7,4 under this head instead of under "27—Territorial and Political Pensions" as before. The transfer of the allowances of Sardar Fateh Mahomed Khan during the year and the increases sanctioned to the allowances of the Afghan prisoners detained at Allahabad enhanced the charges in the North-Western Provinces

155. Other Charges showed an excess of 10,3, of which 3,2 occurred in India, owing mainly to the recoveries from Native States, on account of charges for organising the Imperial Service troops having been discontinued during the year. The Kaingtan-Chengmai mission and a larger outlay on rewards for intelligence mainly account for the excess of 2,1 in Upper Burma, while the charges in connection with the Sikkim Mission amounting to 5,0, for which no provision was made in the Budget, caused the excess in Bengal. The excess of 2,5 in the Punjab was chiefly due to Lieutenant Bower's special mission to Northern Thibet. The decrease in this Province as compared with the actuals of the previous year is due to the transfer of charges to the head "Charges on North-Western Frontier" mentioned above.

156. In England the sterling expenditure included the pay and allowances of an officer deputed to Lisbon in connection with the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty regarding Goa and of an officer attached to the suite of the Cesarewitch while in India, and a gratuity to a former Political Resident in the Persian Gulf, for which no provision was made in the Budget. There was also an excess of 7 for steamship service on the Karun River. Compared with the actuals of the previous year, the special charges just mentioned were met to a large extent by a saving of 3,0 in the contribution of the Government of India towards the expenses of the Mission to the Court of Persia, which was reduced during the year from 10,0 to 7,0.

157. Compared with 1890-91 there was a large increase in the charges under this head owing to the expenditure connected with the census operations. The bulk of the saving on the Budget occurred in the charges of the Survey of India, which showed a saving of 22,1 on the estimate, chiefly owing to the amounts recoverable from Wards' estates, etc., on account of the cost of survey work done for them both during 1891-92 and in previous years having been transferred to the head Advances recoverable, pending recovery, in lieu of the old practice of treating them as final expenditure and only deducting from the expenditure of the year the amounts actually recovered.

26.—Scientific and other Minor Departments—concluded.

158. The Geological and Archæological Surveys showed savings of 1,8 and 1,7 owing to vacancies during the year in the appointments of Deputy and Assistant Superintendents of the former Survey and to the non-payment of the cost of the publication of Dr. Burgess' reports on Archæology. Provincial Museums exceeded the Budget in Bengal and the Punjab owing to special expenditure in connection with the collections of specimens of Budhist remains and coins respectively. Other Scientific Departments represent in India charges for the exploration of coal and petroleum. The saving in Lower Burma occurred in the expenditure on tin-mining operations in the Mergui District. The Hardwar Kumbh Fair enhanced the charges under Public Exhibitions and Fairs in the North-Western Provinces. The increase in Bull and Stallion Charges occurred mainly under purchase and feed of stallions. The Other Agricultural Charges consist chiefly of veterinary charges. The variations in India and Punjab were chiefly due to the adjustment of the whole of the charges for the Lahore Veterinary School in the Punjab accounts instead of in the accounts of both the provinces in parts as before. The continuance of the Cattle Disease Inspection Department, the abolition of which was contemplated when the Budget was framed, accounts for the increase in Madras. In Burma the veterinary class at Rangoon was not opened from the beginning of the year as was expected, and the full complement of Veterinary Assistants provided for was not entertained, while in Bombay the post of the Veterinary Officer attached to the Bacteriological laboratory at Poona was left vacant for a portion of the year, and the Provincial grant of 1,5 for the "Civil Veterinary Department" was not utilised. The Other Statistical Charges represent mainly the cost of the Census operations, which, considering the character and magnitude of the charges, agreed fairly well with the estimate in the aggregate, though there were considerable variations in the individual Provinces. The variations under Miscellaneous were chiefly due to changes introduced in Madras in the Civil Service Examinations.

159. In England the accounts included the annual grant of 1,0 to the Imperial Institute, which was sanctioned after the Budget was framed. There was also an increase of 3,1 in the purchase of stallions. On the other hand, there was a decrease of 1,8 in objects of a literary, scientific, or antiquarian character.

160. The receipts fell short of those of the previous year by 29,8, but exceeded the Budget by 75,9. The falling off compared with 1890-91 occurred chiefly under the head Gain by Exchange, owing to the rate of exchange for remittances for the East Indian Railway and for revenue stores of Guaranteed Railways having been specially favourable for Government in that year. The improvement over the Budget resulted mainly from some extraordinary receipts, the chief among which are a repayment by the Bombay Port Trust of a portion of its non-interest bearing debt, the sale proceeds of some lands in Bombay, the recovery of the first instalment of the fine imposed upon the Manipuris on account of the late outbreak, and a special receipt in England on account of value of stores lost in transit to India. In 1890-91 also there were some extraordinary receipts, but they were slightly smaller.

161. Subscriptions to the Military, Military Orphan, and Medical Retiring Funds and the Civil Funds are declining every year with the retirement and death of old subscribers, the Funds being closed to new members. In Bengal the amounts under the first head represent the net proceeds of the Orphangunj Bazar at Kidderpore, near Calcutta, and the decrease was due to larger outlay for improvements to the Bazar.

162. Contributions for Pensions and Gratuities from officers lent to Foreign service increased in India owing to additional contributions paid by officers serving in Rajputana and Central India. The Budget did not provide in Bengal for the recovery of arrears of contributions which it was anticipated would be recovered in full in the previous year, in Madras for contributions from the officers lent to the South Indian Railway Company and in the North-Western Provinces for contributions from the officers and staff taken over from the Tirhoot State Railway by the Bengal and North-Western Railway Company. The decline in the Central Provinces was due to the diminished number of officers lent to Railway Companies, and that in the Punjab to reversions of some officers from Foreign to Government service and furloughs taken by other officers. In Bombay the receipts were over-estimated, the previous year's figures having been swelled by the recovery of arrears.

163. In England the increase occurred mainly in the receipts on account of the Bengal Military Fund.

164. The variations under Receipts from Sale of Stationery are mainly due to variations in the supply of stationery to State Railways; in Bombay, larger supplies were made to the Berar Administration. Receipts from Sales of Gazettes and other Publications were less than the Budget in the North-Western Provinces owing to the adjustment under Other Press Receipts of certain recoveries previously adjusted under this head, while the receipts were over-estimated in Madras. The Other Press Receipts of the preceding year were exceptionally high owing to large recoveries on account of printing work in connection with the Census The figures for 1891-92 in India, Bengal, Bombay, and the North-Western Provinces also include some recoveries on this account, which were not foreseen when the Budget was framed. In the Central Provinces the Central Jail Press at Nagpur, recently established, did extensive printing work, and in the Punjab the estimates which were based on the information available from the previous year's figures did not provide adequately for printing work done at the Central Jail Press, Lahore, for the Judicial Department.

165. The total gain fell short of the actuals of the previous year and the Budget by 46,7 and 9,9, respectively. There was a large increase in the gain on the remittances of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, resulting from the fall in the rate of exchange having enhanced the difference between the contract rate for the Railway and the average rate of the year and also, as far as the Budget was concerned, from an increase in the amount of these remittances. The fall in the rate of exchange would have increased the gain in connection with the remittances of capital of the other railways also, but for a considerable reduction in the amount of these remittances as compared with both the actuals of the previous year and the Budget. As regards the remittances adjusted through the remittance accounts of the Secretary of State, the fall in the rate of exchange added to the loss in all the cases. In the case of the East Indian Railway, the remittances for which are made at the average rate obtained for Secretary of State's bills during the previous half-year, there was a net gain in 1890-91 owing to the average rate for the half-years ending 31st December 1889 and 30th June 1890, at which the remittances of the Railway for nine months of the year were made, having been below the average rate of the year. The half-yearly average rates at which the remittances in 1891-92 were made, were however all above the average rate of the year, and as a consequence there was a large loss on these remittances. Notwithstanding a fall in the rate of exchange the loss on the miscellaneous remittances was smaller than the Budget by 24,0. This was chiefly due to the fact that towards the end of the year a considerable sum was received in this country on account of family remittances of officers serving in India, the rate of exchange at which they were allowed to be made having been considerably above the market rate at the time. The remittances having been made towards the end of the year, a large portion of them was not paid until 1892-93. The credits on the receipts in India had, however, to be taken to revenue in 1891-92, and thereby reduced the loss of that year, while the debits on account of exchange on the payments in England will swell the loss of 1892-93.

166. The bulk of the improvement over the Budget was due to the receipts credited under Extraordinary Items which could not be anticipated. They represented in Assam the first instalment of the fine imposed upon the Manipuris as a punishment for the late outbreak; in the Punjab, recoveries from Municipalities on account of contributions towards the cost of the last census; in Madras, the credit on account of the expenditure incurred from revenue in previous years on earth-work on the Villupuram-Guntakal State Railway now charged to its capital account; and in Bombay the following items:—

Payment by the Bombay Port Trust in part liquidation of the original loan not bearing interest	4,8
Land compensation paid to the Port Trust, Bombay, and applied to the reduction of the debt created against the Trustees by the Port Trust Act	7,8
Capitalised value of loss of revenue on land taken up by the Bombay Municipality for the Tansa Lake	5,3
Sale-proceeds of land on the Esplanade	4,5

167. Next to Extraordinary items the greatest increase over the Budget occurred under Rents principally in Madras, owing to the collection of arrears of choultry rents in the Tanjore District and in Upper Burma owing to the receipts of newly constructed bazars. Under Gain by Exchange the receipts were over-estimated in India, and in Burma where the receipts consist of premium charged on Burmese coins which did not come into the Treasuries as largely in the early part of the year as was expected. Under Premium on Bills there was an increase in Burma owing to a greater demand for supply-bills, especially in Upper Burma, for trade purposes, the Mandalay Treasury having issued bills for large amounts on Mogôk at a premium of 1 per cent. In Bengal and Bombay, also, the demand for supply-bills, to meet trade requirements, was greater, while it fell off considerably in Madras. The variations under Unclaimed Deposits are due to the uncertain nature of these receipts, and, as usual, the Budget proved too low in many provinces, while in Lower Burma, Assam, and North-Western Provinces it proved too high, the amounts of deposits lapsing to Government being smaller than usual. A decline in partition fees and fees for survey of tea lands and the transfer of the charges for collecting arrear cess from this head to Other Items diminished the Miscellaneous Fees, etc., in Bengal, which was partially counterbalanced by an increase in other provinces, chiefly in Madras in the local section of the account and in India in the fees for patents. The improvement in Government Audit Fees in India was due to the recovery of arrears, and in Bengal to the new prac ice of realising the fees annually instead of half-yearly having led to the recovery for three half-years against one half-year in 1890-91. Contributions were not so high as anticipated in the North-Western Provinces, chiefly owing to a Municipality having been specially exempted, under orders of the Local Government, from payment of a contribution to the District Board; but the decrease was more than counterbalanced by a large increase in Bombay, where some exceptional popular and Municipal contributions were received for Local Fund Works. Other Items are very uncertain. The Budget was exceeded in India owing to larger cash recoveries of service payments of previous years, in the Central Provinces and Burma owing to larger receipts of Local Funds, and in Bengal owing to larger recoveries of insurance and other charges on English stores, and of fees and fines of Revenue Courts and law charges other than those in pauper suits, to larger contributions from Local Funds towards the cost of Controlling and Account

Offices, and to contributions from private individuals for miscellaneous local improvements. The large decrease in Madras is only nominal, and is due to the transfer of the receipts of the Village Service Fund from this head to VI.—Provincial Rates. Berbera and Bulhar revenues in Bombay, consisting principally of customs receipts, declined in consequence of the disturbed state of the country which affected its export trade injuriously. Customs receipts of Zaila also fell off in competition with the French free port of Jibuti.

168. The receipts in England included a special credit of 4,8 on account of recovery of value of stores lost in transit to India, and larger Fines and Penalties were incurred by contractors in providing stores.

169. The increase in the expenditure under this group occurred chiefly in the charges incurred in England including exchange, which exceeded the accounts of 1890-91 and the Budget by 360,5 and 131,2 respectively. There was a special payment of 31,0 to Maharajah Duleep Singh on account of arrears of his pension, which was not provided for in the Budget. Payments of furlough and other allowances in England were higher by 44,8 than in the previous year, in which they were unusually low. Civil Service Annuities increased considerably, as also pensions of the Uncovenanted Service, in consequence of the payments having been made at a minimum rate of exchange of 1*s*. 9*d*. the rupee, the total pension payments being 250,1 more than in 1890-91 and 87,4 more than the Budget, but the greater part of these differences was due to the fall in the rate of exchange, the increases in the sterling amount being only 48,6 and 9,5 respectively. There was also an increase in the charges for replacing stores lost in transit to India. There was an apparent saving in the Indian charges as compared with the Budget, but this was much more than covered by the expenditure transferred to other sections in the Accounts, and there was in reality a very considerable increase of charge, chiefly under Stationery, where it arose from specially large local purchases for the Central Stores at Calcutta.

170. As noticed in my last report the payments on account of Territorial and Political Pensions are decreasing year by year owing to lapses on the death of pensioners and the grant of commutations in some provinces, and the decrease was more marked in 1891-92 than in the preceding year. A great part of the large saving in Bombay was, however, only nominal, as 7,4 on account of pensions of Afghan refugees were included in the Estimates under this head, while the charges were actually shown under "25—Political". The high figure for 1890-91 in the North-Western Provinces was due to the payment of arrears of pension to the Maharajah of Benares, as stated in my last report. Charitable Allowances exceeded the Budget in the North-Western Provinces owing to arrear payments.

171. In England there was a considerable increase, 31,0 being due to the payment of arrears of the pension of H. H. the Maharajah Duleep Singh, and 1,3 to the interest on advances made to the Maharajah, which is deducted from his stipend, having been calculated at a lower rate. There was, on the other hand, a decrease of 5 in the Bengal Nizamut Family Pensions owing to the pension of one member of the family not having been drawn.

172. The Indian charges represent leave allowances of officers lent to Foreign service. The amounts are fluctuating and depend upon the number and grade of such officers on leave. In England the decrease compared with the Budget occurred mainly in the Absentee Allowances of officers of the Covenanted Civil Service. The charges of the previous year were unusually low owing, as mentioned in last year's report, to a large number of officers having in that year elected to draw their pensions in India in consequence of the market rate of exchange having been for a part of the year higher than the official rate.

173. Variations in Superannuation and Retired Allowances depend upon the grants of new pensions and the lapses of old ones. As between the different provinces, individually, they are also due to transfers of pensioners from one province to another. As noticed in previous reports, these charges are continually increasing, as the admissions to the retired list are always greater than the lapses. The rate of increase will be seen from the following figures for the last five years :—

1887-88	646,9
1888-89	688,6
1889-90	721,8
1890-91	765.5
1891-92	792,6

174. The estimates provide only for the pensions actually in existence at the time they are prepared, and consequently always prove inadequate, as they did in the year under review. The charges under Compassionate Allowances were over-estimated in almost all provinces, the largest over-estimate occurring in the North-Western Provinces. The excess under Pensions of the Civil Funds in Madras was due to the transfer of payment of two annuities from England to this country and to the payment of passage-money to a pensioner. The remaining Indian heads call for no remark except that Other Charges in Bombay, during 1890-91 included some special refunds.

175. In England a large increase occurred over 1890 91 in the pensions of the Uncovenanted Service consequent on the payments having been made at the minimum rate of exchange of 1*s.* 9*d.* the rupee, and the actual increase proved to be higher than was expected. There was a large increase in Civil Service Annuities also, but it was sufficiently provided for in the estimates.

176. There was a large increase in the purchase of stationery for the central stores at Calcutta, but this was partly counterbalanced by a transfer of 47,2 from this head to the Postal Department, in consequence of the decision arrived at during the year to charge that Department with the cost of all stationery supplied to it, and of the printing work done for it at Government presses.

177. The increase in the charges of the Stationery Office, Calcutta, arose from increased purchases and larger supplies of stationery necessitating a larger outlay on rent of godowns and miscellaneous contingencies. Under Purchase of Stationery, as mentioned above, there was a large increase in Bengal, but this was to a small extent counterbalanced by savings in Madras and Bombay, due to failures in supplying articles on the part of contractors, and to insufficient accommodation for storage in Madras having restricted purchases for reserve stock. The expenditure of Government Presses increased considerably in India, both in the Central Press at Calcutta and in the Branch Press at Simla, partly owing to the transfer of a large quantity of additional printing work on account of the Postal Department from private presses, and partly owing to the Budget having been framed at too low a figure. In Assam, Punjab, and Bombay purchase of materials and stock was over-estimated, while the Superintendent of the Central Press at Bombay received a lower rate of pay on the retirement of the previous incumbent. In Bengal and Madras the growth of public business was not sufficiently provided for. The large increase in Stationery supplied from Central Stores in Bengal was in paper required for the printing of census forms. But savings were effected in the other provinces. The greater portion of the excess under Other Charges occurred in the Punjab, where the Local Government sanctioned during the year the printing of certain books, etc., and where a large supply of registers, etc., was required by the Judicial Department, involving an increase on the receipt side as noticed in the remarks under Receipts.

178. In England the savings under Stores were due to smaller demands, which were more than counterbalanced by larger purchases in India.

179. The bulk of the savings occurred under Petty Establishments and Other Items. The savings under the former head were more nominal than real, being due chiefly to the charges of Sanitary and Conservancy Establishments under District Boards in Madras having been adjusted under "24.– Medical" instead of under this head as before. The Madras Budget also contained a reserve of 70,0 in the Provincial and Local Sections under Other Items which was more or less appropriated to meet expenditure under other heads. The increase in India under this head is attributed to an expenditure of 3,5 in connection with the visit of His Imperial Highness the Cesarewitch, which could not be adjusted in the accounts of 1890-91, and to the investment in Government securities of the sale proceeds of certain Nizamut jewels credited to Government in 1881-82. The increase in Bengal was due to the writing off of some irrecoverable embankment advances made several years ago in the Mozufferpore district.

180. Of the remaining heads, Remittance Charges were over-estimated in many of the provinces, chiefly in India; it will be noticed that the total charge incurred under this head was more than covered by the receipts for premium on bills under the corresponding Revenue head. Charitable Donations increased in Bengal chiefly on account of enhanced contributions to the Calcutta Female Nurses' Institution, counter-balanced partly by the lapsing of the grant of 1,7 for the purchase of a new site for the Leper Asylum Rewards for the Destruction of Wild Animals are decreasing every year. Special Commissions of Enquiry consisted chiefly of the following Commissions, viz., Native Passengers Ships Commission and Leprosy Commission in India, the Police Organisation Commission in Bengal, the Police Administration Commission in the North-Western Provinces, the Malabar Marriage Bill Commission in Madras, and the Deccan Agriculturist Relief Act Commission in Bombay. Rents, Rates and Taxes were less in India in consequence of the Municipal taxes on buildings being now debited to the Department occupying them instead of to this head. But they increased considerably in Bombay owing to the adjustment of arrears of the Municipal rate on Government buildings at Bombay, the claim of the Municipality not having been settled in 1890-91 as was expected. The Extraordinary Items were 18,4 in Assam, representing the money looted from the Manipur Treasury during the disturbance of March 1891, and 6 in Bombay paid to Messrs. Thomas Cook and Sons on account of the guarantee for the conveyance of pilgrims to Mecca.

The increase in England occurred mainly in the charges for replacing stores lost in transit to India.

183 The expenditure in India was incurred for the relief of distress in Ajmere-Merwara which was not foreseen when the Budget was framed. In Madras also no provision was made in the Budget for the relief operations which became necessary during the year, and for which the provision in the Revised proved to be too high.

184. The total capital expenditure on Railways and Irrigation works shown under the heads "48 and 49—Capital Expenditure not charged to Revenue" is limited to 3 500,0. Any capital expenditure incurred on Railways in excess of that amount is accordingly charged to this head, provided it can be met from the Famine Insurance grant and that it has been spent on Protective lines. The total Capital Expenditure in the Budget, Revised and Accounts was as follows :—

	Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
State Railways	3,925,0	3,074,5	3,255,1
Irrigation	550,0	720,4	729,7
TOTAL .	4,475,0	3,794,9	3,984,8

The excess over 3,500,0 has in each case been transferred to this head. The fluctuations on the total Railway Capital Expenditure are explained under Section N.

185. The increase in the outlay in 1891-92 over that of the previous year and the Budget Estimate was due to the more vigorous prosecution of works in connection with the Rushikulya project in Madras. This increase, however, was to a certain extent counterbalanced by short outlay on the Betwa, Swat River, and the Nira Canals, which were approaching completion.

186. The charge under this head represents as usual the balance of the Famine Insurance Grant left after meeting the expenditure on the relief of famine and the construction of Protective Works (including the net charge for Protective Railways constructed through the Agency of Companies). In the Budget the whole available balance was allotted for expenditure on famine relief or on works; but there were savings on the famine relief and construction grants amounting to 456,9 and the actual net charge for the Protective Railways constructed by Companies was less than the estimate by 225,3.

187. During 1891-92 the construction of the Hyderabad-Umarkot Railway was commenced, on which heavy expenditure was incurred, while during the previous year the outlay on the construction of the Mayavaram-Mutapet Railway was more than counterbalanced by the refund obtained from the Rohilkhand-Kumaon Railway Company of the value of stores belonging to the Lucknow-Sitapur-Seramau Railway made over to the Company, and of the cost of five miles of railway beyond Gola Gokaran Nath constructed by Government.

188. The lapse on the provision made in the Budget Estimate is due entirely to short outlay on the Mayavaram-Mutapet Railway, and is ascribed to delay in the acquisition of land, owing to its having been under rice cultivation. The lapse on the Revised Estimate is also attributed partly to the difficulty experienced in acquiring possession of land, and in obtaining labour and material for the construction of the Mayavaram-Mutapet Railway, and partly to failure on the part of contractors to supply sleepers for the Hyderabad-Umarkot Railway.

1887-88	—1,121,4	—930,4	—18,8	—51,8	—2,122,4

These figures show that the State Railways did better than last year by 496,9. The improvement was due chiefly to the exceptional increase in the export traffic of wheat and seeds, and to an increase in the movement of edible grains and coal. A part of the improvement was also due to an increase in the open mileage and a general development of traffic on the newly opened lines. The Guaranteed Railways appear as having done worse than in the preceding year by 187,3. There was an improvement in their net earnings, but this was more than counterbalanced by the increased charges for interest consequent upon the less favourable rate of exchange and by the transfer of the South Indian Railway from the category of Guaranteed to State Railways.

190. The net loss to Government on the Revenue Account of Railways during the last few years as shown above has been considerably affected by the fluctuations in the rate of exchange. If the rate had not varied from that of 1886-87, the net result would have been as shown below—

1891-92	+315,5	—210,2	—2	—92,0	+13,1
1890-91	—552,5	—262,0	—4,8	—149.2	—968,5
1889-90	—746,0	—529,6	—20,1	—149,1	—1,444,8
1888-89	—991,1	—682,1	+14,7	—70,6	—1,729,1
1887-88	—1,002,0	—811,4	—18,8	—51,8	—1,884,0
1886-87	—375,1	—675,6	—43,6	—94,4	—1,188,7

The opening of the Frontier lines, and the commencement of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway increased the net loss considerably in 1887-88, but since then, if the rate of exchange had not varied from that of 1886-87, the loss would have steadily decreased year by year, until in 1891-92 there would have been a net gain to Government on the Revenue Account of Railways.

1890-91. Accounts		1891-92. Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
13,703,2	State Railways (gross)	14,660,0	16,168,1	16,412,0

17,236,0		17,872,4	19,654,9	19,938,1

192. As regards State Railways, the gross receipts exceeded those of the previous year by 2,708,8. Of this 552,6 occurred under the South Indian Railway, and was to a large extent nominal, being due to the inclusion under State Railways of a whole year's transactions of that Railway against three months in the previous year. The remainder of the increase was due to the exceptionally heavy export traffic of wheat and seeds, to the increased movement of food-grains owing to scarcity in certain parts of the country, to increased traffic in coal, etc., and to additions to the open mileages of certain Railways. The improvement of 1,752,0, as compared with the Budget Estimate, is due to the large increase in the exports of wheat and seeds, and to receipts from the pilgrim traffic to and from the Hardwar fair. The increase of 243,9 over the Revised Estimate is due to the traffic at the close of the year having been better than was anticipated. The net traffic receipts of Guaranteed Railways show a falling off of 8,2 as compared with the actuals of the preceding year. This is due entirely to the accounts of 1890-91 having included, under Guaranteed Railways, nine months' transactions of the South Indian Railway. Eliminating the figures pertaining to that Railway, the net transactions of the remaining Guaranteed Railways would have shown an improvment of 178,6 over the actuals of 1890-91, which was due principally to the heavy traffic on the Great Indian Peninsula, and Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railways in connection with the export of wheat and seeds to Europe, and edible grains to districts suffering from scarcity, which also led to the increases over the Budget and Revised Estimates.

193. Compared with the actuals of the previous year the receipts during 1891-92 show an increase of 529,1, which occurred chiefly in goods traffic owing to a large increase in the exports of wheat, rice, and seeds, to large movements of coal, to increase in the traffic in cotton piece goods, and to the settlement of bills for carriage of State Railway coal and stores, which had been long under discussion. The increase in the coaching traffic is due to some important religious festivals that occurred during the year. The above causes also generally account for the improvement of 507,3 over the Budget Estimate of the year. The excess of 27,3 over the Revised Estimate was due to a general improvement in the passenger traffic, and to adjustments on account of arrear freight charges on coal and stores.

194. The falling off in receipts to the extent of 73,7, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is due mainly to smaller earnings from jute. Compared with the Budget there was a falling off in goods traffic but this was nearly made up by an improvement in the passenger traffic.

195. The receipts exceeded the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year by 325,1 and 354,0 respectively. The increase was due to the heavy traffic connected with the Hardwar fair, to larger export of wheat and seeds, to an increase in the sugar traffic, and to the movement of edible grains on account of scarcity in various parts of the country. There was also a distinct improvement in the returns from salt and general merchandise. The Revised did not provide sufficiently for the heavy passenger traffic connected with the Hardwar fair.

196. The receipts exceeded the actuals of the previous year and the Budget by 578,2 and 559,0 respectively. Under Coaching traffic there was an increase, due to large traffic in connection with fairs at Hardwar, and to military traffic in connection with frontier expeditions. The opening of the Chaman and Mianwali-Mari Extensions also influenced the traffic to a small extent. The Goods traffic was unusually high, owing to larger exports of wheat, carriage of military stores for frontier expeditions, and carriage of stone for the Chenab Weir Works at Khanki, and for bridge protection works at Ferozepore. The increase of 89,0 over the Revised Estimate is due to the traffic at the close of the year having proved exceptionally good.

197. The receipts exceeded those of the previous year and the Budget Estimate by 144,8 and 99,3 respectively. The improvement was due to large fairs held both at the commencement and end of the year, to heavy exports of grain, and to increased receipts on account of mileage on rolling-stock. The increase of 19,3 over the Revised Estimate is due to both the Coaching and Goods traffic during the last few days of the year having been better than was anticipated.

201. The South Indian Railway was purchased by the State on the 31st December 1890. The accounts of 1890-91 therefore included the transactions of the Railway for only three months under this head. Compared with the Budget there was a falling off in the coaching traffic, but this was more than counterbalanced by a special credit on account of the late Company's Fire Insurance Fund.

Other State Railways—Imperial.

202. The improvement occurred chiefly on the Tounghoo-Mandalay, and was due to the inclusion of the earnings of an open section of the Mu Valley Railway, and also to a general expansion of traffic.

Other State Railways—Provincial, excluding Eastern Bengal Railway System.

203. In comparison with the actuals of the previous year the receipts show an improvement of 134,9. On the Burma Railway there is an increase of 29,3 due to development of the passenger traffic and carriage of rice to the famine-stricken districts. The increase of 98,6 on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways is due to the accounts of the previous year having included the earnings of the Company's line from 1st July 1890 only, the date of the amalgamation, whereas the accounts of the year under review embrace the transactions of a whole year.

204. The increase of 7,6 as compared with the Budget Estimate is due to an improvement of 23,5 on the Burma Railway, due to exceptionally heavy traffic, both in coaching and goods, attributable to scarcity, and to an increase of 3,8 in the receipts of the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway, due to development of traffic consequent on the through opening of the line. On the other hand, the earnings of the Tirhoot Railway fell off by 21,1, which is attributed to scarcity in the districts served by that railway.

205. The small improvement of 2,8 on the Revised Estimate is the result mainly of an increase of 3,9 on the Tirhoot Railway, due to an improvement towards the close of the year, an increase of 8 on the Lucknow-Bareilly due to development of traffic and adjustment of net earnings of the Bareilly-Pilibhit Railway for the 2nd half of 1890, and a falling off of 4,0 on the Burma Railway, due to an increase in the balance of outstanding earnings.

Gross Receipts.

206. The comparison of the Actuals of the two years shows an increase of only 93,4, but the figures for 1890-91 included 468,0 on account of the South Indian Railway, the transactions of which are now shown under State Railways, and omitting this amount the receipts of the year under review would show an increase of 561,4, which occurred on the Great Indian Peninsula, and Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railways. The improvements of 626,4 and 91,4, respectively, over the Budget and Revised also occurred on these Railways. The improvement on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway was the result of exceptionally heavy traffic, principally in connection with the export of wheat and seeds to Europe, and the local movements of food-grains, on a more extended scale than usual, consequent on the scarcity in the Madras Presidency and in the Southern Mahratta country. On the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway the increase was due to heavy traffic in wheat and other grains.

The increase on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway is attributed to increased expenses consequent on the improvement in traffic, to increased outlay on repairs of the line on account of flood damages in 1891, to heavy repairs to rolling-stock, and to the fall in the rate of exchange. The large increase on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway is mainly due to the heavy traffic worked during the year, and to the unfavourable rate of exchange. The increase on the Madras Railway is due chiefly to the renewal of 8 locomotives which were provided for in the Budget and to smaller credits for returned stores.

The credit under India represents the amount recoverable from the Mysore Durbar in settlement of the net charge for interest paid to the Southern Mahratta Railway Company in connection with the Mysore Railway. The receipts, working expenses, and interest charges of the Mysore Railway are recorded in the accounts under their respective railway heads, and the net charge for interest only (i.e., interest on Capital expended minus net receipts) which is recoverable from the Mysore Durbar, is credited under this head. The details are given below. The credit under England represents the Government share of surplus profits of the Rohilkhand-Kumaon Railway for the year 1890 (£995) taken in reduction of the Company's debt for advances of interest.

The charges under this group exceeded those of the previous year and the Budget Estimate by 2,330,6 and 879,8 respectively. The charges on account of Exchange were higher by 591,8 and 228,5, chiefly on account of the fall in the rate; the payments on account of surplus profits to the East Indian Railway Company, to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company for working the Rajputana-Malwa Railway, and to the Guaranteed and Subsidised Railway Companies were higher by 525,8 and 335,7, in consequence of a large increase in the earnings of the Railways; and the working expenses of State Railways were also higher by 1,230,5 and 395,6, owing to the heavier traffic during the year, and the additional open mileage. The excess of 70,2 over the Revised Estimate was due chiefly to the working expenses of State Railways having been under-estimated.

211 The details of these charges by railways are given on page 82. The charges exceeded the actuals of 1890-91 and the Budget Estimate by 1,442,5 and 560,3 respectively. The increases were due chiefly to the heavier traffic worked, to larger renewals of permanent-way on the Eastern Bengal and Rajputana-Malwa Railways, to the expenditure on repairs of flood damages and other special works on the North-Western Railway, and to larger payments on account of surplus profits to the East Indian Railway Company and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company for working the Rajputana-Malwa Railway, consequent upon the great improvement in the earnings of the railways. A part of the increase over the previous year was also due to the additional mean open mileage.

212. The increases of 158,4 and 83,0 in expenditure, as compared with the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate, were due to the larger payments on account of the Company's share of surplus profits consequent on the improvement in the earnings of the Railway. The saving of 32,0 on the Revised Estimate was chiefly due to smaller renewals of steel rails, owing to a deficiency of the materials in this country and to those expected from England not having been received before the close of the year, and to short expenditure on repairs and renewals of vehicles.

214. The increase of 161,8 in expenditure, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, was due to extensive re-laying operations consequent on the partial suspension of this work towards the close of 1890-91, to larger consumption of fuel owing to the heavier traffic worked, and to larger payments on account of the Company's share of surplus profits, for the first only of which sufficient provision was made in the Budget.

215. The increase of 204,0 over the actuals of the previous year was due to extraordinary expenditure on flood works on the Peshin section, to renewal of girders of the Malir bridge near Karachi, to the heavier traffic worked, to the higher cost of English stores owing to the unfavourable rate of exchange, and to adjustment of arrear freight charges on coal due to the East Indian Railway. The excess of 173,5 over the Budget Estimate is due to the adjustment of arrear freight charges on coal, renewals of vehicles, and the heavier traffic worked. The expenditure exceeded the Revised Estimate by 3,5. There was a decrease of 17,4 under Maintenance owing to the renewals of permanent-way at the close of the year not having been as large as anticipated, but this was more than counterbalanced by increased Locomotive Expenses for working the heavy traffic.

216. The expenditure exceeded that of the previous year and the Budget Estimate by 31,4 and 21,5 respectively, chiefly in consequence of the adjustment of old claims by the East Indian Railway for freight on coal and the heavier traffic worked during the year. The charges for repairs and renewals of vehicles were also heavier than in the previous year.

Other State Railways—Imperial.

217. The following are the figures for the other Imperial Railways shown on page 82 :—

1890-91. Accounts		1891-92. Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
234,9	Bengal-Nagpur	295,0	305,0	303 0
254,1	Indian Midland	270,0	293,0	267,6
336,7	Southern Mahratta	380,0	352,5	351,0
89,1	South Indian	482,5	492,0	497,7
382,4	Other Imperial Railways	407,5	400,3	411,3

218. Compared with the actuals of 1890-91 the increase on the Bengal-Nagpur and the Indian Midland Railways was due to the development of traffic, and to the former having been opened throughout for traffic only towards the end of 1890-91. On the Southern Mahratta Railway the decrease was due chiefly to the comparatively small outlay on special renewals of sleepers as contrasted with the expenditure on this account during the previous year. The South Indian Railway was taken over by the State from the Company with effect from 31st December 1890, and the accounts of 1890-91 accordingly included the transactions of the line under State Railways for one quarter only, while the accounts for 1891-92 embrace the transactions of a whole year. The increase under other Railways occurred chiefly on the Tounghoo-Mandalay Railway, being due to the opening of the Sagaing-Shewbo section of the Mu Valley Railway, and to development of traffic generally.

219. Compared with the Budget Estimate the excess on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway is attributed to increased charges for Locomotive and Traffic expenses, and to larger payments to the East Indian Railway Company for working the Northern Section owing to heavier traffic, and to an under-estimate of the Home Charges and Telegraph Expenses. The Estimate of the Southern Mahratta Railway was pitched too high, and the provision made for renewals of sleepers was not actually required. The excess on the South Indian Railway is attributed to insufficient provision having been made for Locomotive Expenses, and to no provision having been made for the additional half per cent. interest payable to the Company until the 31st December 1893 under the contract. Under other Railways there was a saving on the Sindia Railway due to a sum of 14,5 provided on account of the outstanding claims of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway against the Railway for running powers over the broad gauge line between the junction of the East Indian Railway, Agra East Bank and Agra Cantonment Stations, not having been required, as the amount was adjustable in the accounts of the East Indian Railway as workers of the Sindia Railway.

220. Contrasted with the Revised Estimate, the important differences were a saving of 25,4 on the Indian Midland Railway, due to the provision made for joint station expenses not having been utilized, owing to the non-settlement of the agreements; an excess of 5,7 on the South Indian Railway, due to heavier maintenance and repair charges ; and under other Railways excesses of 5,8 and 6,5 on the Mysore and Tounghoo-Mandalay Railways respectively, due to the heavier traffic worked.

221. The increase of 269,4 over the actuals of the previous year was due chiefly to the inclusion of a whole year's transactions of the Bengal and North-Western Railway, as compared with nine months, i.e., from 1st July 1890, in the previous year. A small increase also occurred on the Burma Railway, due to increased traffic worked, heavier charges for repairs to rolling stock, and adjustment of arrear freight charges on coal. The excess of 75,0 over the Budget Estimate, occurred chiefly on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways, being due to the payment to the Company of their share of net earnings for the half-year ended 31st December 1890, having been made in 1891-92 instead of in 1890-91 as was expected, and also on the Burma Railway in consequence of larger expenditure on new minor works, adjustment of arrear freight charges on coal, and extra repairs to rolling stock.

222. Omitting exchange the charges approximated closely to the Budget Estimate, but exceeded those of the previous year by 268,8, which was due partly to the interest paid on the 3 per cent stock issued for the purchase of the South Indian Railway, and partly to higher charges for interest on capital found by Government, which are increasing year by year with the progress of construction. The following statement shows how the interest charged in the accounts of 1891-92 has been computed :—

224. Excluding Exchange the important variations from the actuals of the previous year are—(1) an increase of 7,4 on account of the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway, representing interest on debentures of the Rohilkhand-Kumaon Railway Company to the extent of £147,000, and interest on advances made to the Company in India in excess of capital; (2) a decrease of 17,5 under the Southern Mahratta Railway, due to the reduction of the guaranteed interest on the share capital of £3,500,000 from 4 to 3½ per cent. with effect from 1st January 1891, under the terms of the contract with the Company; and (3) an increase of 30,0 under the South Indian Railway, representing interest at 3 per cent on the new Company's capital of £1,000,000.

225. As explained in previous reports the charges under this head represent the interest chargeable against the Companies on the advances made to them by the Secretary of State from funds raised under the provisions of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway Purchase Act.

226. The charges exceeded the actuals of the previous year owing to further advances having been made to the Companies by the Secretary of State, but fell short of the Budget Estimate as the Bengal-Nagpur Railway Company did not require the advance which it was estimated would be wanted in 1891-92. The fall in the rate of exchange, however, more than counterbalanced the decrease in the sterling payments compared with the Budget Estimate.

Surplus Profits.

227. The charges exceeded the actuals of the previous year and the Budget by 264,3 and 166,1 respectively, chiefly in consequence of the exceptional traffic obtained during the year. The excess of 4,8 over the Revised Estimate occurred on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway owing to the net earnings of the second-half of 1891 having exceeded expectations. The payment to the South Indian Railway was on account of the Company's share of the surplus profits for the year ended 31st December 1890, which also exceeded anticipations.

Land and Supervision.

228. The decrease of 10,0, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is due chiefly to less expenditure on land for Guaranteed Railways in Bombay. The lapse of 5,9 on the Budget Estimate was due to the charges of the office of the Consulting Engineer at Calcutta having been over-estimated, to charges for land in Bombay provided for not having been paid, and to the amount held in reserve not having been utilized. The excess of 1,9 over the Revised Estimate occurred chiefly in Madras, and was due to land having been acquired at a heavier cost than was anticipated. The increase over the actuals of the previous year in the amount recoverable from Companies for Government supervision was due to recoveries effected for the first time from the South Indian and Rohilkhand-Kumaon Railways, and to an increased recovery from the Bengal and North-Western Railway under the contract for working the Tirhoot Railway. The two per cent. of the gross earnings of the Delhi-Umballa-Kalka Railway retained by Government were also credited to this head, though not included under it in the Budget Estimate.

Section H.—RAILWAYS—EXPENSES—continued.

229. The charges in India represent the interest on the funds drawn by the railways in excess of the balances at their credit. These drawings having been larger than those of the previous year and the anticipations in the Budget, the interest charges were also higher. The sterling payments were smaller than those of the previous year, in consequence of there being no charge for the South Indian Railway, which was purchased by the State on the 31st December 1890. Notwithstanding a decrease in the sterling payments the charge on account of exchange was considerably higher than both the actuals of the previous year and the Budget owing to the fall in the rate of exchange.

14,6	TOTAL PROVINCIAL	15,1	14,4	14,2
36,3	GRAND TOTAL	50,1	37,7	33,1

230. The decrease of 2,8 under Imperial, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is due to the practical completion of the acquisition of land for the Delhi-Umballa-Kalka Railway, counterbalanced to some extent by the land and interest charges in connection with the Nilgiri Railway which appeared for the first time in the accounts for 1891-92. The Provincial charges were nearly the same as in 1890-91.

231. The lapses of 17,0 and 4,6 on the Budget and Revised Estimates are due to the non-settlement during the year of some land acquisition cases on account of the Bengal and North-Western Railway, and of disputed claims of land-holders in connection with land for the Nilgiri Railway. The actuals entered against the Nilgiri Railway include a sum of 9 on account of advances of interest.

232. The total outlay was less than that of the previous year by 57,1. No useful comparison can be made between the outlay of the two years by individual projects, as new surveys are being started every year. The lapse of 36,7 on the Budget Estimate was due chiefly to the cost of the Kawlin-Mogaung, and Bolan High Level Line Surveys having been charged as capital expenditure in consequence of the commencement of the construction of the lines. The amounts debited to the head Surplus Establishment and Miscellaneous Charges fell short of the Budget Estimate by 2,9, and the Moghalsarai-Howrah Survey was completed earlier than expected, and at a saving on the estimated cost. The excess of 3,1 on the Revised Estimate is due to no provision having been made for the Surveys in connection with the East Coast Railway, and to the Surplus Establishment and Miscellaneous Charges having exceeded the reduced provision made in the Revised Estimate, owing chiefly to the privilege leave allowances of officers employed on the Zhob Valley Railway Survey having been debited to this head after the close of the year.

Section J.—IRRIGATION.

233. The following is a general summary of the results under the head of Irrigation :—

1890-91. Accounts.		1891-92. Budget.	1891-92. Revised.	1891-92. Accounts.

—569,5	Net Expenditure (Irrigation)	—722,5	—713,6	—673,0

234. The net result on the whole was better than the Budget by 49,5 but worse than that of 1890-91 by 103,5. There was an improvement in the net receipts from Major Works of 87,6 and 53,0 compared with the Budget and the actuals of 1890-91 respectively, and the receipts from Minor Works were also better than both the Budget and the actuals of the previous year by 13,4 and 15,2, but the expenditure on Minor Works exceeded the Budget and that of 1890-91 by 51,5 and 171,7 respectively. The improvement under Major Works occurred chiefly on the Sirhind, Lower Ganges and Ganges Canals, while that in the receipts from Minor Works was mainly due to the recovery of arrears of clearance rates on the Indus Inundation Canals in the Punjab. The expenditure on Minor Works was enhanced in consequence of the construction of famine relief works in Rajputana and Upper Burma, the raising, strengthening, and retiring of several miles of the Irrawaddy embankments and the assignment of a larger grant from the Provincial revenues of Madras.

SECTION J.—IRRIGATION RECEIPTS.

2,172,6	REVENUE	2,160,6	2,249,6	2,272,0

235. The increase in the collections in 1891-92 was chiefly due to a further development of irrigation from the Sirhind canal, to a large increase in the irrigated area in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the seasons having been exceptionally favourable for canal irrigation, and to the recovery of old outstandings in Bengal and the Punjab.

DIRECT RECEIPTS—IMPERIAL WORKS.

236. The gross revenue exceeded that of the previous year by 47,0, and the Budget Estimate by 73,8. The increase occurred mainly in the Punjab, and was due partly to a further increase of irrigation from the Sirhind canal, and partly to the introduction of new water-rates, owing to which a part of the revenue was shown under this head instead of being treated as indirect revenue as before, and recorded under XXIX.—Portion of Land Revenue due to Irrigation Works. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the improvement was due to an increase in the irrigated area. The increase in Madras was chiefly due to an extension of the use of water from the Karnul canal for dry crops owing to scanty rainfall.

DIRECT RECEIPTS—PROVINCIAL WORKS.

237. The gross revenue in 1891-92 was better than that of the previous year by 73,0, and the Budget and Revised Estimates by 107,2 and 24,0, respectively. The improvement occurred chiefly in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and was due to a large increase in the irrigated area, chiefly on the Ganges and the Lower Ganges canals. The increase in Bengal was principally due to the recovery of old outstandings on the Midnapore canal and the Sone project, and to a greater demand for water, especially from the Orissa canals, which was not sufficiently provided for in the Revised.

238. The decrease in the realizations in 1891-92 occurred chiefly in the Punjab, Madras and Bombay. In the Punjab it resulted from the introduction of a new water rate on the Bari Doab canal, owing to which a part of the revenue formerly treated as indirect has been classified as direct receipts. The decrease in Madras is attributed to large remissions granted on the Pennér and Sangam anicut systems on account of an unfavourable season, and in Bombay insufficient supply of water in the canals in Sind and damage done to crops by locusts, which were not sufficiently allowed for in the Revised. The Budget in those provinces was pitched at a figure considerably in excess of past actuals and proved too sanguine.

A. Imperial. B. Provincial and Local.

239. The increase of 11,1 under Imperial over the actuals of the previous year was mainly due to the recovery of arrears of clearance rates on the Indus Inundation canals in the Punjab. The other variations under this head are comparatively small.

240. The expenditure in 1891-92 exceeded that of the previous year by 202,9 and the Budget Estimate by 61,9. The increase was chiefly due (1) to an increase under Interest on Debt caused by additional capital outlay; (2) to the construction of famine relief works in Rajputana and Upper Burma and of a new canal from the Kabul river to Nowshera in the Punjab; (3) to the expenditure incurred for raising, strengthening and retiring several miles of the Irrawaddy embankments; and (4) to a larger grant having been made available from provincial funds for minor irrigation works in Madras. In the Revised Estimate the requirements of some works in Bengal were over-estimated.

Imperial Works.

242. The increase over the actuals of the previous year and the budget estimate occurred chiefly in Bombay, and was due to the widening of the Begari canal and the execution of certain urgent repairs on the Desert canal. The increase in the Punjab over the actuals of the previous year was due to larger outlay on the re-modelling of the Bari Doab canal.

Provincial Works.

243. The expenditure in 1891-92 fell short of that of the previous year by 4,2. The decrease occurred on the Lower Ganges canal in the N.-W. Provinces and Oudh, and was due chiefly to short outlay on the river training works at Narora. In the revised estimate the requirements of the Sone project were over-estimated.

IMPERIAL WORKS.

246. The rise in the expenditure was due to the construction of famine relief works in Rajputana and Upper Burma counterbalanced partly by a decrease in Bombay, due chiefly to the approaching completion of the Mutha and Western Nara canals.

PROVINCIAL AND LOCAL WORKS.

247. The increased expenditure, as compared with that of the previous year and the Budget Estimate, occurred, chiefly in Lower Burma, Punjab, and Madras. The increase in Lower Burma is attributed to the construction of a lock at Wimpadaw in connection with the Kyaikto-Sittang canal, and the necessity for raising, strengthening, and retiring several miles of the Irrawaddy embankments threatened by river encroachment. In the Punjab the increase was chiefly due to the construction of a new canal from the Kabul river to Nowshera, while that in Madras is explained to be due to larger funds having been made available for expenditure on minor works under the charge of Revenue officers and to the construction of some famine relief works. The decrease as compared with the Revised is due to an over-estimate of requirements in Bengal.

248. The receipts fell short of those of the previous year by 22,2, but exceeded the Budget Estimate by 30,0. In 1890-91 there was an exceptional receipt in Bengal from the sale of the Custom House premises at Calcutta to the East Indian Railway Company. The increase over the Budget Estimate was due chiefly to receipts from tolls on roads and ferries having been under-estimated, to a special recovery of 6,1 in the Military Works Department from the sale of certain military buildings at Khanpur in the Indus valley, and to the sale of the Gauhati Workshops to the Bengal-Assam Railway in Assam. The last two items were also not provided for in the Revised, in which too the receipts from Rurki Workshops in the North-Western Provinces were under-estimated.

250. The increase of 1,6 over the Revised Estimate under Imperial was chiefly due to an improvement in the receipts from buildings set apart as residences in Upper Burma, and to the sale of a building at Simla.

251. Under Provincial the receipts by departmental officers fell short of those of the previous year by 31,6. The bulk of the decrease occurred in Bengal, where there was an abnormal recovery of 31,7 in 1890-91 from the East Indian Railway Company on account of the sale of the Custom House premises at Calcutta. Out of the total increase of 9,7 over the Revised Estimate of Departmental Receipts, 7,5 occurred in Assam, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and Madras. In Assam it was due to the sale of the Gauhati workshops to the Bengal-Assam Railway and to increased revenue from the ferry over the Brahmaputra at Dhubri; in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to larger receipts from Rurkhi workshops; and in Madras to heavier recoveries on account of sales of buildings and fines, refunds, and miscellaneous. The remainder of the increase was due to receipts from rents and sales of old materials having been larger than anticipated. In the receipts by civil officers there was a falling off of 5,3, compared with the previous year. This occurred chiefly in Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Madras. In Bengal the decrease is attributed to recoveries in 1890-91 from District Boards of the income of certain ferries erroneously appropriated by them; in the North-Western Provinces to smaller ferry tolls, and in Madras to smaller contributions for roads from the Jeypore State, and other miscellaneous receipts.

252. Under Local the receipts by civil officers were better than those of the previous year by 5,2, mainly owing to an improvement in the receipts from ferry tolls in Bengal, and an under-estimate under the same head accounts for the Budget being exceeded by 16,4.

253. The expenditure exceeded that of the previous year by 477,9, owing chiefly to larger outlay on famine relief works in Rajputana and in Upper Burma, and to larger grants having been assigned by the Local Governments for expenditure on Provincial roads and buildings. The excess of 99,7 over the Budget Estimate was also mainly attributable to outlay on famine relief works. The saving of 39,9 on the Revised Estimate was principally due to the expenditure from Provincial and Local funds having been over-estimated.

254. The total expenditure exceeded the Budget Estimate by 84,3, the excess having occurred chiefly under India and in Upper Burma. In the former it was due to special grants of 37,2 and 61,6, sanctioned respectively for the restoration of damaged buildings at Quetta, and for works designed to facilitate mobilization in time of war; and in the latter to additional grants sanctioned during the course of the year for accommodation for troops on the Chin Hills.

255. Departmental Officers.—The increase of 138,4, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, occurred chiefly in India, Upper Burma and Assam. In India it was due to outlay on famine relief works in Rajputana, and to the reduction of the outlay in 1890-91 by the transfer to the Military and Civil Departments and State Railways of their share of the cost of the Quetta Water-works (53,8); the charges in Upper Burma increased in consequence of the commencement of new roads undertaken as famine relief works, and those in Assam in consequence of the expenditure on the Nichu-guard-Manipur road. The increase over the Budget Estimate was principally attributable to the causes mentioned above. Special grants sanctioned for the construction of the Morgha-Gomal road and for special repairs to buildings at Quetta damaged by the abnormal winter rainfall also contributed to the excess.

256. Civil Officers.—The increase of 4,1, compared with the actuals of the previous year, was due chiefly to outlay incurred during 1891-92 on buildings and roads in Baluchistan. The saving of 7,4 on the Budget Estimate was due chiefly to grants of 9,0 and 4,2 provided in the Budget for the construction of the Consulate House at Meshed and Basrah respectively not having been utilized.

257. Departmental Officers.—The actuals exceeded those of the previous year by 245,1, the increase being distributed over all the provinces except Assam and Bombay. The quinquennial contracts made with the Provincial Governments in 1887 proved extremely favourable to them, and they were in consequence enabled to considerably increase their optional expenditure, and as a result exceptionally large grants were assigned by them for expenditure under this head. The increased grants were applied in the different Provinces in the following way:—In the Central Provinces and Madras to enlarging the programme of works generally; in Lower Burma to pushing on to completion the new public offices at Rangoon and the Central Jail at Insein; in Bengal to larger outlay on repairs to Civil buildings and to collecting large quantities of materials received from the Akra Factory and purchased in England; in the North-Western Provinces to the construction of several new roads in the Kumaon and Naini Tal divisions, and to large contributions for Municipal Water-works at Benares, Cawnpore and Allahabad; in the Punjab to larger outlay on Museum, Jail, Police and Educational buildings. The lapse on the Budget Estimate was due mainly to the restriction of expenditure on civil works in Madras; and that on the Revised Estimate was due partly to this cause and partly to savings in the grants for the Dapuri Bridge at Poona, and for improvements to certain roads in the Belgaum District in Bombay.

258. Civil Officers.—The increase of 27,7 over the previous year's actuals was mainly due to the large number of works of miscellaneous public improvement carried out in Madras during 1891-92. The lapse on the Budget Estimate was principally due to the postponement to the current year of the payments of contributions to certain municipalities for drainage and water-supply projects in Madras.

259. Departmental Officers.—The increases of 15,8 and 19,0 over the previous year's outlay and the Budget Estimate are ascribed to a larger programme of works in Bombay, for which supplementary grants were sanctioned during the course of the year by Local Boards. The lapse of 28,1 on the Revised Estimate was contributed by almost all provinces. The short outlay was mainly due in Lower Burma, Assam, and Bombay, to an over-estimate of requirements.

260. Civil Officers.—The outlay of the year exceeded that of 1890-91 by 35,9. The increase occurred chiefly in Upper Burma, Madras, and Bombay. In Upper Burma it was due to famine relief works; in Madras to larger outlay on repairs to roads, and in Bombay to a larger programme of works. The excess of 16,4 over the Budget Estimate was due chiefly to increased expenditure on roads in Madras.

262. The receipts in India fell short of the Budget Estimate and of the actuals of 1890-91 by 30,6 and by 10,5 respectively. The decrease occurred chiefly under Commissariat Receipts, owing to smaller consumption of malt liquor and to the British corps and batteries in Lower Burma having been permitted to make their own arrangements for the supply of this liquor instead of obtaining it on payment from the Commissariat Department, as before.

263. The Indian Army Expenditure for 1891-92 includes 529,2 on account of extra charges incurred for Upper Burma and 1,066,9 for special Expeditions, the preparations made to facilitate mobilization and the augmentation of transport. Details of the special items and the special grants sanctioned to meet them are given below. Excluding these the expenditure in India during the year compares as follows with that of the previous year and the Budget Estimate :—

264. The ordinary expenditure thus exceeded the Budget and the actuals of the previous year by 136,5 and 105,8 respectively. These excesses were due chiefly to the extra expenditure connected with the Hazara Expedition charged to ordinary heads on the closing of the special head for the expedition, to the purchase, feed, and keep of additional horses and ordnance mules, to the rise in prices of articles of food for both men and animals, and to larger purchases of barrack bedding and payments of pensions, bonuses, and gratuities to men discharged from reconstituted regiments. The increase resulting from these causes was however partly counterbalanced, as compared with the Budget by savings in regimental pay due to unexpected deficiencies in the strength of the British and Native Armies, in the charges for the purchase of malt liquor, owing to the special arrangements mentioned under receipts, and in payments on account of the capitalised value of officers' pensions. As compared with 1890-91 the excesses were largely counterbalanced by savings in regimental pay owing to the rate of exchange for the payment of British troops having been raised from 1*s.* 5*d.* in 1890-91 to 1*s.* 6½*d.* in 1891-92.

265. As regards the expenditure in England, the savings on the Budget arose chiefly from smaller expenditure on ordnance stores and from the delay in the final settlement with the War Office of the account of arrears of deferred pay of British forces serving in India.

266. The receipts under Regimental Pay fell off owing to smaller recoveries of disallowances appertaining to previous years. But the most important falling off occurred under Commissariat Supplies, which is the most important of the receipt heads, and the details of the principal sub-heads of which are as follows :—

1890-91. Accounts.		1891-92. Budget.	1891-92. Revised.	1891-92. Accounts.
312,1	Sale of malt-liquor	302,2	263,0	234,4

31,8	Other heads	41,6	38,0	31,8
435,3	TOTAL	441,8	398,0	373,3

267. The large falling off under the first sub-head was due to a smaller consumption of malt-liquor by troops still depending on the Commissariat Department for its supply and to the troops in Lower Burma having been permitted to make their own arrangements for its supply, in accordance with the practice obtaining in Madras and Bombay. The sale of "Provisions and Stores" was larger, but the increase was more than counterbalanced by smaller receipts under the sub-heads following it.

268. The increase in Remount and Veterinary receipts was the result of the sale of a large number of rejected cattle and remounts from depôts and of regimental cast horses, partially counterbalanced by a decline in the sales of chargers to officers. The issues of Clothing on payment were fewer, owing generally to corps being on field service and the condemnations of stores in factories were smaller than anticipated. But the loss was nearly made up by recoveries on account of the previous year's supplies to the Hyderabad Contingent and on account of stores supplied to the Hong-Kong Regiment. Medical receipts were higher, owing chiefly to all recoveries from other departments having been credited under this head, instead of being in some cases deducted from expenditure as before and to supplies of field equipment to the Imperial Service troops. The large increase in Ordnance receipts is attributed mainly to large sales of pig-lead, to supplies of ammunition to the Imperial British East Africa Company and of stores to the Imperial Service troops, and to the arming of two native infantry regiments of the Hyderabad Contingent with the new pattern Martini-Henry rifles. The increase was, however, partly counterbalanced by a decline in the sales of unserviceable stores in arsenals and, as compared with the Budget, by a decline in the recoveries for work done for other departments. Under Sea Transport Charges the Budget largely over-estimated the recoveries of Table money, etc., on Her Majesty's Indian troopships, while the under-estimate in the Revised was under the same sub-head Miscellaneous receipts fluctuate considerably from year to year. In 1891-92 there were large receipts from fines and forfeitures of contractors, and there were also special receipts in connection with the several expeditions and from the sale of railway materials to the Morvi State. The Budget under Pensions to Europeans included 10,2 for contributions from the Hyderabad Administration towards the pensions of retired officers, who had served partly under that Administration, but the recoveries were finally adjusted in the Civil Department. Contributions towards Widows' Pensions, etc., were slightly under-estimated, but they also showed a large increase over the previous year owing to new admissions, marriages, births of children, and recovery of arrears.

269. In England, the Budget Estimate for Effective Services was pitched too low. Receipts under Non-effective Services reached the same amount as in the previous year, the Budget did not allow for the recent reduction in the rates of subscription for Indian Military Service Family Pensions.

270. The increase under Army and Garrison Staff over the preceding year was due chiefly to the adjustment under this head instead of under Regimental Pay, etc., of the pay and allowances of rank of certain Station Staff Officers, who held no regimental appointments, to more extended tours of the Commanders-in-Chief, to the appointment of two Deputy Assistant Adjutants General and a paid attaché in the Intelligence Branch at the Army Head-Quarters in India, and to additions made to the Garrison Station Staff. The actuals agreed closely with the Budget, as provision had been made in it for the new appointments, and the increase under tour charges and Station Staff was counterbalanced by savings in Hill Sanitaria charges, and in the provision for an Assistant Inspector of Army Signalling, Bombay, no officer having been appointed to fill the post.

271. The savings in Administrative Staff were due to lower regimental rank of aides-de-camp on the personal staff of the Governor General and Lieutenant-Governors and to changes among the officers and establishments of the Military Accounts Department.

272. As regards Regimental Pay, etc., the figures relating to the European and Native Armies are as follow :—

	1890-91.	1891-92.
	Accounts.	Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
European Army	3,459,8	3,293,0	3,305,4	3,264,0
Native Army	3,752,9	3,843,2	3,807,6	3,817,5
TOTAL	7,212,7	7,136,2	7,113,0	7,081,5

273. The details of the principal sub-heads of the European Army are given below :—

1890-91. Accounts.		1891-92. Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
858,5	Artillery	810,3	822,7	823,0
369,2	Cavalry	356,4	350,9	352,9
10,7	Engineers	8,7	8,1	7,5
2,149,1	Infantry	2,045,1	2,055,5	2,013,9
9,2	Invalid and Veteran Establishment	8,6	7,8	7,7
39,2	Staff Corps, General List of Officers, Unattached and Unemployed Officers	38,3	36,6	36,8
9,9	Colonel's Allowances	9,7	7,7	6,7
14,0	Other Charges	15,9	16,1	15,5
3,459,8		3,293,0	3,305,4	3,264,0

274. The savings on the Budget arose chiefly from the cavalry and infantry having been below the expected strength. There were also fewer invalid and veteran officers and unemployed Officers of the Engineers, the Staff Corps and General Lists ; and Colonel's allowances were not drawn in India to the extent anticipated. The savings were, however, to some extent counterbalanced by increased charges under Artillery, due chiefly to the relief arrangements and to the number of officers on leave in Europe not having been so large as was anticipated. The greater portion of the saving, compared with the previous year, resulted from the rate of exchange for the payment of British troops having been 1*s*. 6½*d*. during the year against 1*s*. 5*d*. in the previous year.

275. The details of the principal sub-heads under the Native Army are given below :—

276. There was a large increase over the previous year in the cavalry charges owing to an increase in the pay of the Silladar Cavalry, but the extra expenditure was over-estimated in the Budget, and there were also some savings owing to the abolition of the Arab Levy attached to the Aden Troop. The savings on the Budget under "Artillery," "Body-Guard," and "Sappers and Miners" were due to an insufficient deduction having been made on account of probable short strength of officers and men. Half-mounting charges decreased owing to discharges from the re-constituted regiments in Madras and Bombay. Under Hutting-money a grant of 4,5 for the reconstruction of the Native Infantry lines at Barrackpur was transferred to the Military Works Department, while the allotments sanctioned for the improvement of lines in Bengal were not used in full. The savings under Reserve Forces were partly due to an over-estimate and partly to the gradual extinction of the Garrison Reserve. On the other hand, charges for Infantry exceeded the Budget owing partly to an under-estimate and partly to the raising of two battalions of Burma Infantry. A large number of enlistments in these battalions and in the new 24th Baluch Regiment increased the charges for Kit money.

277. The details of the Commissariat Charges are as follow :—

	1890-91.	1891-92.
	Accounts.	Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
Establishment	479,1	498,4	494,1	502,3

Mobilization Items	...	...	195,2	...
	3,068,5	3,138,6	3,410,3	3,681,0

278. There was an increase under all the heads over both the Budget and the actuals of the previous year, the amounts of the excesses being as follow :—

	Compared with actuals 1890-91.	Compared with Budget.
Establishment	+ 23,2	+ 3,9
Supplies	+ 101,1	+ 103,8
Services	+ 288,4	+ 238,0
Transport Branch	+ 199,8	+ 196,7
	+ 612,5	+ 542,4

279. The increases are due chiefly to the rise in prices of articles of food for both men and animals, to an expenditure of 157,2 incurred to facilitate mobilization and 49,5 for the augmentation of transport, to the expenditure on the Manipur and Chin-Lushai expeditions brought to account after 30th September 1891, when the special heads for them under Miscellaneous were closed, and to the expenditure on the cold-weather field operations in Upper Burma. The other minor causes affecting the estimates and accounts are explained in further detail below. The mobilization expenditure has been compiled under the ordinary heads affected in this and other grants, but the distribution under sub-heads could not be made in the Revised Estimate, and provision was therefore made under the different heads in lump sums.

280. Under "Establishment" there was an increase due to heavy telegram charges in connection with Upper Burma, to variations in the rank of officers, to an over-estimate of probable savings in Executive Establishment charges, and to an increase in Cattle Establishments owing to the augmentation of transport; but it was counterbalanced to some extent by savings in the supervising staff, due to the absence of officers on furlough, and in Ambulance Transport charges, due partly to a deficiency in the complement of ambulance elephants at Rangoon and ambulance bearers in Bengal and Madras, and partly to lower rates of pay to ambulance bearers in Burma.

281. Under "Supplies" besides the special items mentioned above, large stocks of articles of food were laid in at certain stations in the Western Circle, Bengal, and at the outlying posts in Upper Burma. On the other hand, there was a large saving in the charges for malt-liquor, owing to the regiments in Burma having been supplied directly by contractors instead of through the Commissariat Department as stated under Receipts.

282. Under "Services" the charges on account of hire of transport, sea and inland charges, and railway charges were unusually heavy, owing partly to Government carriage not having been available to the full extent anticipated in consequence of a large number of animals having been required for field service, and partly to large consignments of stores to Rawalpindi, Fort Sandeman, and Quetta, for stocking purposes. Heavy expenditure was also incurred on account of implements, godown furniture, and contingencies, for replacements and repairs of articles damaged in the field.

283. Under "Transport Branch" the charges were enhanced chiefly by the special items mentioned above, but there was an increase also in the charges for replacing damaged transport carts, mule gear, etc., and condemned ambulance transport doolies, gear, carts, and equipment, while there were savings in the charges for purchase and hire of animals, and for clothing for bearers and for feed of transport animals, owing to their having been below strength in Bombay.

284. More than one-half of the charges under Remount and Veterinary Establishments was on account of the purchase of remounts which exceeded the Budget by 36,7, owing to the purchase of additional Australian horses and ordnance mules, and to higher prices for the latter. An extra grant of 52,1 was made to cover this excess expenditure and the enhanced charges for feed and keep which resulted from the purchase of the new animals and the retention of 305 horses in depôts for one year longer in consequence of an order forbidding issues of horses from depôts until five years old instead of four years old as before. The arrangements made, to facilitate mobilization also caused additional expenditure under this head, but even after allowing for this the total excess expenditure exceeded the extra grant. Under Clothing Establishment, etc., the charges were enhanced by mobilization expenditure, by larger local supplies of clothing and by the alteration of the uniforms of men transferred to reconstituted native regiments. There were also some arrear payments in Madras for supplies appertaining to the previous year. Larger purchases of barrack furniture in Madras and barrack bedding in Bombay and more condemnations of miscellaneous supplies, which had to be replaced, contributed to the increase in the charges under Barrack Establishment, etc. The estimate of the charges for Administration of Martial Law was pitched too high. The grant under Medical was exceeded chiefly in consequence of the special expenditure for mobilization arrangements (of 11,7), for the Manipur expedition and for the cold weather field operations in Burma. An increase in the number of the sick in hospitals and the greater cost of European stores on account of the fall in the rate of exchange also contributed to the increase. On the other hand, there was a saving in Medical Establishments, due chiefly to variations in the ranks of the officers, to short strength of the Army Hospital Native Corps, and to a special provision of 4,6 on account of concessions to this corps not having been used. The saving on the Budget under Ordnance charges is the net result of a number of variations. There was extra expenditure due to the mobilization arrangements, and also in arsenals and depôts, both in the establishment charges and in the supply of stores. Freight charges were higher owing to larger consignments of stores, especially Martini-Henry rifles, received from England, and cartridges and tents despatched to Rangoon, and recoveries on account of supplies to other departments which are adjusted by deduction from the charges, were not as high in Bengal and Madras as was anticipated. But all these excesses were more than counterbalanced by the savings in the provision for Inspectors of ordnance machinery, who were not appointed, in the cost of local stores for manufacturing establishments, owing to smaller purchases and more favourable contract rates, and in the cost of tents, owing to contractors having failed to supply the full number in consequence of a difficulty in obtaining suitable cloth. The savings under Education occurred in the expenditure on school materials, in the office establishment of the Director of Military Education in India, and in the charges for garrison instruction owing to absence of officers on leave. Sea Transport Charges were higher owing to more officers and soldiers having been provided with passages in private vessels from port to port in India and to larger supplies of coal, stores and water to Her Majesty's Indian troopships by the Marine Department.

285. The head Miscellaneous Services may be analysed as follows:—

	1890-91.	1891-92.
	Accounts.	Budget.	Accounts.
Total Expenditure	525,3	304,2	896,4
Deduct—Special charges as given in paragraph 263	409,7	157,0	758,5
TOTAL ORDINARY EXPENDITURE	115,6	147,2	137,9

286. The special charges have been noticed in paragraph 263. The excess in ordinary expenditure was chiefly due to extra expenditure in Upper Burma, to payments of compensation for loss of assamies of the Aden troop on reorganization and for loss of appointments by officers on the reconstruction of certain native regiments, and to heavy charges for telegrams for a part of the year on account of expeditions. Under Sub-marine Mining there was, on the other hand, a large saving, the strength of Non-Commissioned Officers and Lascars having been below the sanctioned complement. Under Volunteer Corps no charges were incurred on account of grants-in-aid of constructing rifle ranges in the Western Circle, Bengal, and in the Madras and Bombay Circles, nor for the Railway Service Corps for which 5,0 were provided in the estimates. But the savings were partly counterbalanced by increased expenditure owing to the formation of new corps and on account of travelling and contingent charges.

287. As regards the Unadjusted Expenditure a sum of 9,6 out of the actual issues from the Treasury to the Military Department in 1891-92 was not brought to account in the Military books under the appropriate service heads; but as similar outstandings at the end of 1890-91, aggregating 70,7, were adjusted by the Military Department in the following year, the balance of 61,1 was shown here as a deduction from the charges.

288. Under "Non-effective Charges" incurred in India, Rewards for Military Services increased owing to a large expenditure on account of Burma and Chin-Lushai medals, while transfers of some pensions to England and smaller payments on account of the capitalized value of officers' pensions diminished the charges for Pensions to Europeans. There was a large increase in Pensions to Natives owing to new admissions to the pension list especially in consequence of discharges from reconstituted regiments, to a rise in prices which increased the payments of compensation for dearness of provision, and to large payments of bonuses and gratuities. The increase under Widows' Pensions was due to the payment of arrears of pensions to widows of warrant officers in sterling, converted at the annual rate of exchange, with effect from 1st April 1886.

289. In England the savings under Home charges of British Forces resulted chiefly from the provision in the Budget Estimate for the discharge of arrears of deferred pay not having been required, as the final settlement, resulting from the report of Lord Northbrook's Commission, was not effected within the year. The absence on furlough in England of a large number of officers of the Indian Service accounts for the increase in Furlough Allowance. The decrease under Indian Troop Service was the result of a saving of 25,0 owing to new machinery not having been supplied to the Euphrates as was expected, partly counterbalanced by unforeseen expenditure owing to the substitution of the transport "Avoca" for the troopship "Malabar." A larger number of officers than was estimated had to be provided with Passages otherwise than in troopships, while the pay and expenses of military officers on special duty enhanced the Miscellaneous charges. The decrease of expenditure on Ordnance Stores more than accounts for the difference under Stores. Under Retired Pay, etc., the payments to the War Office in respect of the year 1890-91 for retired pay, etc., of British Forces for service in India, were less than had been anticipated, while the payments to Non-effective and Retired Officers of the Indian Service did not increase so much as was expected.

290. The details of the extra charges for Upper Burma during the year, which amounted to 529,2 against 350,3 in 1890-91, as well as of the charges incurred to facilitate mobilisation, are given below. The Upper Burma charges include 94,8 on account of cold weather field operations and 45,2 on account of Chin-Lushai.

291. The principal works under construction during the year were the Wet Basin at Bombay for torpedo boats, the Aden Coast Defences, and the Rawalpindi and Attock Defences. The progress of these works, though much better than that in the previous year, was not however as rapid as was anticipated in the Budget. The expenditure in England in connection with the supply of armaments and stores, was also higher than in 1890-91, though not so large as was anticipated when the Budget was framed.

293. The above figures represent the surplus or deficit of each Provincial Government in respect of the revenues and charges assigned to it, including Incorporated Local Funds. The differences between the Estimates and Accounts under the various revenue and expenditure heads have been explained in detail in the foregoing pages, and the share of these pertaining to the Provincial and Local sections of the accounts for the several groups is given below separately for each province. These details show that the Provincial and Local shares of the Revenues were, on the whole, better than the Budget by 578,8 and 55,3, respectively, and the Provincial expenditure more by 100,7 and the Local less by 54,1, consequently the Provincial and Local balances were better than expected by 578,8—100,7 or 478,1 and 55,3+54,1 or 109,4, respectively. The Budget anticipated that there would be deficits in the Provincial and Local Accounts to the extent of 691,7 and 136,7, respectively, and as there were improvements of 478,1 and 109,4 over the Budget as just shown, the Provincial and Local balances were diminished during the year by 691,7—478,1 and 136,7—109,4 or by 213,6 and 27,3, the total decrease in the Provincial and Local balances taken together being 213,6+27,3 or 240,9. The largest improvements occurred in Burma and Bombay, amounting to 201,5 and 137,8, respectively. The improvements in the other provinces were small and do not call for special notice. In Madras the result was worse by 37,2 due chiefly to the falling off in the collections of Land Revenue owing to the prevalence of scarcity.

294. A considerably enlarged programme for the construction of Railways was sanctioned by the Secretary of State for 1891-92, but the total capital expenditure on Railways and Irrigation Works to be shown under the heads 48 and 49—Capital Expenditure in this group, was limited to 3,500,0, any capital expenditure incurred in excess of this sum being charged to the Famine Insurance grant, provided it was spent on Protective Railways. The total amount shown under this group in the Budget and Revised Estimates and the Accounts for 1891-92 was therefore the fixed sum of 3,500,0. In order to compare the actual expenditure with the estimates and the actuals of the previous year, the whole of the capital expenditure should be taken into account. The distribution of this was as follows :—

8,058,2		4,475,0	3 794,9	3,984,8

295. The charge under Redemption of Liabilities in 1890-91 was on account of the purchase of the South Indian Railway. There was no similar transaction in 1891-92. Excluding this charge, there was a considerable increase in the total capital expenditure due as mentioned above to an enlargement of the programme generally. The larger funds made available were devoted to the commencement of a number of new lines of Railway and to a more vigorous prosecution of the East Coast Railway and the Chenab and Sirsa Branch Canals. The progress on the new lines of Railway was not however so rapid as to absorb the whole amount allotted, and there was consequently a large saving on the Budget Estimate.

296. As regards the Lines under construction, the greater portion of the expenditure in 1890-91 was incurred on the Chaman extension, the Frontier Railway reserve, and the Mianwali Mari Branch of the North-Western Railway, the Villupuram-Guntakul Section of the South Indian Railway, the Mu Valley Railway, and the East Coast Railway. The first three were practically completed in 1890-91, and a comparatively small expenditure was therefore incurred on them in 1891-92. The Villupuram-Guntakul Railway was also practically completed in 1890-91, and the expenditure in 1891-92, though considerably smaller than that of 1890-91, was large in consequence of the adjustment of the value of stores issued from the South Indian Railway, which consequently obtained a large credit. The Mu Valley Railway was pushed on in 1891-92, and, compared with the previous year, a larger expenditure was incurred on ferries and rolling stock. The East Coast Railway was commenced in October 1890, and in 1891-92 the works were pushed on vigorously, about 43 per cent. of the total expenditure incurred on new lines during the year having been spent on it. The expenditure during the year also exceeded considerably the amount allotted for it in the Budget, and an additional grant was sanctioned for it. The Godhra-Rutlam and the Dharmaveram-Hindupur lines were also commenced in 1890-91, but only a small outlay was incurred on them in that year. In 1891-92 the progress of work on the first line was considerably retarded by the outbreak of sickness in the district, and the payments in England on account of stores also fell short of the estimate. The expenditure on the second line however exceeded the estimate, chiefly on account of the collection of a larger quantity of material. In the Budget Estimate a sum of 862,3 was kept in reserve, as the details of the new lines to be undertaken during the year had not then been settled. During the year funds were allotted from the Reserve for the construction of the Northern Section of the Assam-Bengal Railway, the Barsoe-Kisengunge extension of the Eastern Bengal Railway, the Lucknow-Rai-Bareilly-Benares, Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad, Mari-Attock, and the Mushkaf-Bolan, Railways, and also for the Peshawar Railway reserve project, but the expenditure on most of them was smaller than the allotments, and there was thus a large lapse on the Budget Estimate. The only one of these on which a comparatively large expenditure was incurred during the year was the Mushkaf-Bolan line, but a considerable portion of the excess was only nominal, being due to the transfer of stores at the close of the year from the North-Western Railway and the Chaman extension, which consequently received large credits for them.

297. As regards the open lines there was a heavy outlay on the East Indian Railway in 1890-91 for the purchase of the Custom House premises in Calcutta, while the expenditure of 1891-92 was reduced by larger transfers of stores to revenue, and by a delay in the arrival of new materials from England, and certain works for which provision was made in the Budget had to be postponed for want of sanction. The expenditure on the Rajputana-Malwa line was really much larger than that of the previous year owing to extensive works at Delhi and the addition of 10 engines to the stock on the line, but the excess was more than counterbalanced by the issue of stores to the Godhra-Rutlam Railway, and by a general reduction in the stock of stores by the utilisation and disposal of large quantities of surplus and obsolete materials for which no allowance was made in the Budget. The Eastern Bengal Railway expenditure of 1890-91 included a large outlay on the Assam-Behar Section which was completed in that year. The Budget

Estimate was exceeded owing to no provision having been made for the doubling of the line from Naihati to Ranaghat. There was a large lapse on the Budget Estimate of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, owing to the original programme of works not having been carried out. The expenditure on the North Western Railway was actually larger than that of the previous year, owing to heavier expenditure on gradient improvements, re-adjustments in connection with stores of the Sind-Pishin Railway, to expenditure on road crossings on main line from Karachi, to automatic brakes, to the construction of a troop-siding to Peshawar City and additional staff quarters, engine-changing shed at Dadu, purchase of military buildings at Khanpur, and to expenditure in constructing 300 open goods wagons for working the Kajpura-Bhatinda Railway. The increase was, however, more than counter-balanced by the larger reduction in the suspense balances, due to heavier issues of stores to works, and the transfer of stores to the Mushkaf-Bolan and Hyderabad-Umarkot Railways. The lapse on the Budget was due to short receipt of stores from England and to no allowance having been made for the credits received for the stores transferred to the Mushkaf-Bolan line. The large credit under the South Indian Railway has been explained above as due to the transfer of stores to the Villupuram-Guntakul Railway. The only remark called for by the figures under Other Railways is that the Revised anticipated a large reduction in the balance of the Stores Account, but the actuals showed a large increase.

298. The rise in the expenditure during 1891-92 was principally due to the more vigorous prosecution of works in connection with the Chenab and Sirsa Branch Canals and the Periyar project. The increase of 59,9 in the expenditure on the Sirhind Canal, as compared with that of the previous year, was chiefly due to the reduction of outlay in 1890-91 by the write-back of 46,6 from Imperial to Contributions, on account of the extra share of the cost of the canal debitable to the signatory States.

302. In the Budget Estimate it was not considered safe to take the net deposits of the Post Office Savings Banks higher than 200,0, excluding the credit on account of interest. The actual net deposits however amounted to 471,6. The fluctuations under Regimental Savings Banks are dependent to a great extent on the transfers of British Regiments between India and England, and are not therefore susceptible of an accurate forecast. The net credit under Special Accounts was chiefly on account of the General Family Pension and the Hindu Family Annuity Funds, which did not invest their balances owing to the high price of Government securities during the year. There was also a receipt of 6,2 on account of the Post Office Life Insurance Fund. The other accounts do not call for any special remarks.

303. The net debit under Provincial balances has been explained in paragraph 293. The credit under Appropriation for Reduction of Debt is the balance of the Famine Insurance grant not required for expenditure on Famine relief or construction of Protective Works, and accordingly charged to Reduction of Debt and then re-transferred to credit of Government under this head in relief of borrowing. The transactions of the Excluded Local Funds turned out to be as expected in the estimates. The Political and Railway Funds comprise the Bahu Begum's Fund and the several Guaranteed Railway Funds. The balance of the Bahu Begum's Fund is being gradually reduced, as the pensions payable from the Fund are considerably larger than the interest annually accruing on the balance of the Fund, which will be exhausted in 1892-93, and the pensions will then have to be paid by Government and treated as expenditure. Under Railway Funds there was a net credit of 8,5, chiefly on account of the deposits of the Provident Fund of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway and the Guaranteed and Contractor's Security Fund of the Madras Railway, counterbalanced partly by the payment to the shareholders of the amount deposited in the previous year on account of the surplus profits of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway. The character and magnitude of the transactions recorded as Judicial and Departmental deposits render them unsusceptible of an accurate forecest. The large net credit was due chiefly to an increase in the balances of the Municipal Funds in most of the provinces, notably in Central Provinces, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Madras and Bombay, in the balances of Civil Courts Deposits in Bengal and North-Western Provinces, and in the deposits of the Wards and attached States in Madras

304. The net figures entered against the head Advances may be divided as follows :—

	Budget.	Revised	Accounts.
Coinage Accounts	— 89,7	+ 17,1	+ 161,4
Other advances	+ 10,1	— 42,2	—93,7
	—79,6	—25,1	+67,7

305 The net credit under coinage accounts resulted chiefly from the new coins manufactured in the Mints having been more than the Mint certificates paid during the year, and from a reduction in the small coin depôt balances at Calcutta and Bombay.

306. The net debit under Other Advances represents chiefly some items of Military expenditure retrenched in 1891-92 and debited to this head on their recovery in 1892-93 before the accounts of the earlier year had been closed, some payments made on behalf of the Mysore and Kashmir States but not recovered from them before the end of the year, and a payment of 26,4 in liquidation of the debts of Zia-ul-Nissa Begum, a political pensioner of the Surat Nawab's family, to be recovered from the capitalized value of a portion of her pension. Under Suspense Accounts there was a debit of 60,0 on account of the purchase of bills of Exchange which could not be realised before the end of the year, and of 25,7 owing to an increase in the balances in the hands of Military officers, but these were met by the credit given under this head on account of the amount looted from the Manipur Treasury in March 1891, which was debited to this head in 1890-91, having been charged off as extraordinary expenditure in 1891-92, and by the credits given owing to a decrease in the balances in the hands of Civil Departmental and Postal officers.

307. The gross receipts and payments working up to the net figures under Exchange on Remittance Accounts are as follows:—

308. The following is a statement of the adjustments in the accounts by which the above result was obtained;—

309. The debit under Miscellaneous was chiefly on account of the Exchange on the decrease in the balance of the Secretary of State's bills which remained unpaid at the end of the year, counterbalanced partly by a credit of 43,5 under Security Purchase Account on the cancellation of the Government Securities held under that account.

311. The payment under Loans to Native States represents a portion of the loan granted to the Cooch Behar State for the Cooch Behar Railway. Under Loans to Presidency Corporations and Port Trusts the Budget provided for an advance of 467,6 to the Calcutta Port Trust on account of the Kidderpore dock, but only 390,0 was actually required during the year. Large Advances to Cultivators had to be made in Rajputana and Upper Burma on account of the scarcity prevailing there. As regards the recoveries, no provision was made for the repayment by the Cambay State of 5,0 out of the loan of 10,0 granted to it in the previous year, or for the repayment of 25,2 made by the Bombay Port Trust out of its surplus revenue of the previous year, and the compensation received by it for the land taken up for the Wet Basin and for that sold to private individuals.

312. The following are the particulars of the Provincial and Local Loans Account :—

1891-92. Budget. Amount advanced.	Amount repaid.		1891-92. Accounts. Amount advanced.	Amount repaid.

313. The estimates of the Loans to Municipalities were generally framed too high. The principal advances made during the year are—

Nagpur Municipality	10,0
Burhanpur „	10,5
Naini Tal „	15,0
Agra „	12,5
Allahabad „	31,0
Benares „	100,0
Cawnpore „	10,0
Delhi „	39,6
Hubli „	14,2

314. The 11,4 entered against Port Funds included a loan of 5,0 to the Kurrachee Port Trust and of 6,4 to the Chittagong Port Fund.

315. The 14,7 entered against District Committees was granted to the District Boards of Patna, Dinajpur, and Sarun in Bengal, and Ahmedabad in Bombay. The 50,9 under Loans to Landholders include a loan 40,0 to the Deo State in the Gya District in Bengal. The Budget Estimate under Advances to Cultivators was considerably exceeded in Madras and Bombay owing to scarcity. The Advances under Special Laws represent chiefly the Drainage and Embankment advances in Bengal, which were over-estimated in the Budget. The recoveries were also chiefly on account of these advances and of advances under the Jhansi-Encumbered Estates' Acts and the Oudh Talukdars' Relief Act.

316. As explained in former reports, these are all net sums. The Indian figures represent the difference between the advances taken by the Railway Companies and the credits given to them chiefly on account of stores used on revenue account. The English figures represent the difference between the capital deposited by the companies with the Secretary of State, and the withdrawals for expenditure on stores, establishment charges, etc. These figures are necessarily liable to great fluctuations.

317. The improvement in the transactions of the Guaranteed Companies in India was due to the withdrawals having been over-estimated and the credits to capital on account of stores transferred to revenue under-estimated. As regards the subsidised Railways, the Rohilkhand-Kumaon Railway, in order to take advantage of a favourable rate of exchange under the terms of the contract, paid its debenture capital in India instead of in England as was expected, while the requirements of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway were considerably under-estimated.

318. In England the receipts from the companies fell considerably short of the estimates. The Budget Estimate included a receipt of 1,000,0 from the Southern Mahratta Railway Company in lieu of Debentures to be paid off; of these Debentures 88,1 were renewed and 911,9 paid off, and the latter sum was advanced to the company out of the proceeds of sales of India 3 per cent., stock. As explained above instead of a receipt in England of £160,000 from the Rohilkhand and Kumaon Railway Company, the sum of R20,34,195 was received from them in India. Debentures of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company were renewed to the extent of 20,5, and the requirements of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company reduced by 569,0; on the other hand, the sum of 12,4 was received from the Madras Railway Company in 1891-92, which was estimated to have been received in 1890-91, and 102,9 was received from the Assam-Bengal Railway Company, the arrangements with which company were only completed in March 1892. The payments to the Companies were also smaller, partly owing to their requirements having been over-estimated, and partly owing to the renewal of the debentures of the Southern Mahratta Railway Company and of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company amounting to 88,1 and 20,5 respectively which were included in the Budget Estimate as to be paid off. The large difference between the Revised and the Budget is due chiefly to the provision in the former for the discharge of debentures of the Southern Mahratta Railway for £600,000, which were, however, renewed instead of being discharged. No provision also was made in the Revised for the capital received from the Assam-Bengal Railway.

The figures entered in this group are [the net result of very large transactions, but there i nothing special to record in respect of them, except that owing to the rate of exchange for family remit tances of officers and men having been considerably above the market rate, a large amount was receive in India for these remittances towards the close of the year, and a considerable portion of it could no be paid in England until the current year, and that the money order transactions continued to show rapid growth as will be seen from the following figures :—

		Issued.	Paid.
1887-88	Money order transactions	11,665,7	11,660,7
1888-89		12,781,4	12,758,2

Bills paid in 1891-92	16,796,5	23,948,6
Bills outstanding on 1st April 1892	845,3	1,297,8

Section V.—CASH BALANCE.

	Budget.	1891-92. Revised.	Accounts.
BALANCE ON 1ST APRIL 1891—
India	16,797,1	17,876,2	17,876,2
England	3,532,5	3,835,1	3,835,1
TOTAL	20,329,6	21,711,3	21,711,3
BALANCE ON 31ST MARCH 1892—
India	13,570,3	16,750,0	17,287,0
England	2,225,7	3,261,1	4,122,6
TOTAL	15,796,0	20,011,1	21,409,6
Increase (+) or decrease (—) of balance on 31st March 1892	—4,533,6	—1,700,2	—301,7

322. The above difference is distributed between India and England in the following proportions :—

	Budget.	1891-92. Revised.	Accounts.
India	—3,226,8	—1,126,2	—589,2
England	—1,306,8	—574,0	+287,5
TOTAL	—4,533,6	—1,700,2	—301,7

323. Taking India and England together, the net transactions of the year were better than expected by the unusually large sum of 4,231,9. The variations which brought about this result are as follows :—

	Better.	Worse.
Improvement in Imperial Surplus	351,9	...
,, ,, Provincial Deficit	587,5	...
Increase under Permanent Debt incurred	1,946,9	...
,, in Deposits of Savings Banks	316,2	...
,, under Departmental and Judicial Deposits	319,1	...
Net Improvement under Advances	143,2	...
Amount credited to Appropriation for Reduction of Debt	682,2	...
Increase in the balance of Secretary of State's Bill remaining unpaid at the end of the year	434,2	...
Larger withdrawals by Railway Companies	...	705,0
Minor variations	155,7	...
	4,936,9	705,0
NET BETTER	4,231,9

324. The large difference between the Revised and Actuals in England is due mainly to the differences under transactions of Railway Companies mentioned in paragraph 318.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 4th, 1893.

The weather during the week under review has on the whole been finer than that recorded during several weeks past, no severe storm having appeared over the Indian area. Unsettled weather, occasioned by the disturbances of the previous week, lingered over Bengal and the east of the North-Western Provinces during Sunday the 26th, and showers, generally of small amount, occurred over the Central Provinces and the east and south of the Peninsula more or less throughout the week, but with these exceptions the weather was fairly fine. The depression of temperature, due to the long course of unsettled weather, which has been so noticeable during the past two months continued uninterruptedly during the week under review, and the average depression for the whole week for the whole of India was as much as 4°·8.

The chart of Sunday, February 26th, exhibited the distribution of pressure which is characteristic of the cold weather, readings being highest over the Punjab and Rajputana, lowest over the south of the Peninsula and of the Bay. Gradients were moderately steep across the head of the Peninsula, and pressure was almost everywhere above the normal average. The winds were variable over the south of the Peninsula, but were anticyclonic elsewhere, circulating around the high pressure area over Rajputana. Rain was falling over the east of the North-Western Provinces, over Bengal, over Assam, and over the east of the Peninsula. The amounts were generally moderate or small, but at Cuttack and Coconada exceeded 1 inch. On the 27th pressure was generally rising over the eastern and falling over the western half of India. The distribution was, however, little changed, readings being still highest over North-Western India and lowest over the Peninsula and the Bay. The winds were also little changed. Rain had ceased over North-Eastern India, but showers continued at a few places in the east and south of the Peninsula. Salem received over two and Wellington over 1 inch. On the morning of the 28th pressure was decreasing over the North-Western Provinces and Bengal, and generally rising elsewhere. Readings were highest in the north-west of the Punjab and lowest in Malabar. The wind was generally northerly over Northern and southerly to south-easterly over Southern India, the force being fresh at several stations. Showers of rain continued in the east and south of the Peninsula and had commenced in the Central Provinces. At Wellington the fall equalled 3·66 inches, at Khammamett 1·13, inch. and at Tavoy 1·07 inch, but elsewhere the amounts were small. On March 1st pressure was still rising over North-Western India and the Peninsula, and falling over North-Eastern India, but the changes were generally small and the distribution of pressure was much the same as on the preceding days. The wind was westerly and north-westerly down the Gangetic plain, northerly over the head of the Bay and in Burma, easterly over the Central Provinces, and variable over the Peninsula. Light scattered showers of rain were reported from the central parts of the country and a few places in the Peninsula, and rain was also falling in Baluchistan and at Rawalpindi.

On the 2nd pressure was giving way briskly over North-Western India, and slowly in most other parts of the country. The changes were not sufficiently large to alter the general distribution, but owing to the briskness of the fall in the North-West gradients were slighter. The winds were little altered. Light showers of rain were reported from the Central Provinces, and from the stations of Madura, Wellington, Sholapur, Quetta, and Tavoy. The chart of the 3rd showed that a brisk recovery of pressure had commenced in North-Western India, but that elsewhere the changes had continued small. Gradients had consequently increased somewhat, but the general distribution was unaltered. The winds were also practically unchanged. The only rainfall reported wast at Sholapur, and a few Central Provinces stations. On the 4th pressure was decreasing over North-Western India, increasing over North-Eastern India, and steady over the Peninsula. The most important change was the brisk fall in Sind and Baluchistan. The winds had become variable in the Punjab, but elsewhere the directions were little changed. Light showers had fallen at Balasore, Colombo, Bijapur, Sholapur, Nagpur, and Gopalpur.

Temperature.—In Burma during the first five days of the week, in Madras during the first two days, and in Sind and Rajputana on the last day of the week, the mean temperature exceeded the normal average, but in all the other provinces throughout, and in these provinces on the other days of the week, the mean temperature was abnormally low. The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India :—

MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA .	− 7·5	− 6·6	−5·2	−4·4	−3·8	−3·7	−2·7	−4·8

The above shows an abnormal deficiency of 4°·8 for the whole of India for the whole week. On each day of the week also the mean temperature was low, the deficiency gradually decreasing from 7°·5 on February 26th to 2°·7 on March 4th. The provincial variations show an excess of 0°·7 in Burma and a deficiency elsewhere ranging from 0°·6 in Madras to 8°·3 in the Central Provinces. On the first two days of the week the general deficiency of temperature over Northern and Central India was about 10°.

Rainfall.—The earlier portions of the summary have shown that though no heavy or general fall of rain occurred during the week, yet that showers occurred in the north-east of India during the early part of the week, in the extreme north-west of India. and in the Peninsula in the middle of the week, and in the Central Provinces throughout the week. In consequence the table at the close of the summary shows that rain has been received in most of the divisions of India, the exceptions being the Burma divisions, except Central Burma, the west of the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab (south, Central Sub-montane and West divisions), the Konkan, Guzerat, Kattiawar, Sind, Rajputana, and Central India (West). The average actual rainfall of the divisions was generally moderate or small, ranging from 2·15 inches in the East Coast (North (a)) division, 1·71 inch in the Central Provinces (West), 1·70 inch in South Central Madras, and 1·13 inch in Berar to only 0·01 inch in the North-Western Provinces (Central and East.)

Of the thirty-six divisions which received rainfall, twenty-four had more, and twelve less than the normal fall of the week. The divisions which received an excess were Central Burma, Orissa, the two Behar divisions, the two Oudh divisions, Malabar, Coorg, Mysore, the Bombay Deccan, Khandeish, Berar; all the Central Provinces divisions, Central India (East), Hyderabad, and all the Madras divisions. The greatest excess was 2·04 inch in the East Coast (North), and all over Madras the excess was considerable.

As with the present week a fresh rainfall period is commenced, the information given in the last three columns of the table is the same as that given in the first three columns only in a different form.

The following gives the largest total amounts received during the week as reported in the rainfall telegrams of the week :—

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 11th March.—Rainfall most unusually heavy in the Nilgiris and most parts of the Southern Districts and considerable in South Arcot, in parts Central Districts, Deccan, two Northern Districts, and Malabar. Recent rainfall done special good in Southern Districts, where it has allowed the sowing of hot weather crops, freshened crops under wells, and will rapidly bring up pasture and relieve stock. It has removed anxiety regarding the state of Tinnevelly and most parts Madura where the starting of relief works now probably not necessary. Standing crops generally much improved, but area limited as stated last week. Prices slightly easier generally, but change small, and high rates for principal grains in Southern Districts, continue.

Bombay.—For week ending 15th March.—Rain in parts of eleven districts generally slight. Standing crops damaged by hail, rain, rust, rats, blight or floods in parts of eleven districts, otherwise good. Reaped crops damaged by rain in parts of two districts. Harvesting of late crops continues in parts of eleven districts and cotton-picking in parts of Surat, Dharwar, Baroda, and Kathiawar. Lands being prepared for next season in parts of six districts. Prices generally steady. Agricultural stock good. Fodder sufficient.

Bengal.—For week ending 11th March.—The rainfall of the week has been in excess of the normal except in Eastern Bengal, but not largely so except in Orissa. More or less injury is reported from several districts to the spring crops and particularly to potatoes where they are still in the field. Generally, prospects have not materially changed. Some crops including indigo and sugarcane have benefited. Opium has suffered in Monghyr, Shahabad, Gaya, and Hazaribagh, and elsewhere fine weather is required. Some damage has been done to the mango and mahua blossoms. Cultivation for the autumn crops is being pushed on rapidly, and indigo is being sown. Spring rice is being transplanted and is doing well. No marked change in prices of common rice. Fodder and water-supplies are plentiful except in parts of Hooghly.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 15th March.—Weather still cloudy and unsettled with showers in most districts: the fall was heaviest in Ballia and Moradabad. Spring crops have been injured by recent rain and clouds, and by hail in some parts, but prospects are generally favourable and in some districts excellent. Harvesting operations have begun. Poppy crops are healthy and opium collections are in active progress. Sugarcane pressing and sowing continues. Prices are still high. The price of wheat has risen.

Punjab.—For week ending 15th March.—Rain has fallen in nine districts; sowing of extra spring crops going on. Condition of standing crops is good to average; that of wheat in the Shahpur district, excellent. In most districts however some damage has been caused by hail and excessive rain and more rain will prove very injurious. Condition of cattle is generally good, and fodder sufficient in all districts except Rawalpindi. Poppy crops flourishing. Prices rising in three districts, but stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 16th March.— Extraordinarily cold and stormy weather continued during the week and has caused a deplorable amount of injury, especially in Southern Districts. Rust has destroyed a very large proportion of the finest crops, and the early sown wheat which had been cut before the rain set in has suffered much damage on the threshing floor, a great deal of the grain having sprouted in the ear. Prices are rising in the Nagpur country. In the Northern and Eastern Districts the damage has not been so extensive, but has sufficed to materially alter the character of prospects.

Assam.—For week ending 14th March.—Rainfall general. Ploughing for summer paddy continues. Condition of cattle normal. Fodder and water sufficient.

Burma.—For week ending 11th March.—LOWER BURMA: Agricultural operations completed as regards wet weather paddy in Thayetmyo. Sowing of dry weather paddy completed. UPPER BURMA: Sowing and transplanting of dry weather paddy in progress in all districts. In Sagaing reaping of jowar and sesamum nearly completed. Condition of standing crops good in all districts. The price of paddy has fluctuated only slightly in all districts, but in the Northern Shan States it has risen largely. Numbers on relief works, Meiktila, not reported.

Berar and Hyderabad.— For week ending 15th March.— BERAR: Weekly average rainfall good. Weather cloudy and cold. Standing crops damaged by heavy rain and hail storm. Fodder and water sufficient. Cattle healthy. Prices slightly risen in Amraoti and Akola.

HYDERABAD: Heavy rain during week. Hail stones have destroyed the spring and hot weather crops, killing cattle in some places. Prices:—wheat 9½, coarse rice 9½, white juar 13½, yellow juar 18½, and tur 10½ seers per current rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 15th March.—MYSORE: Rainfall good in the Chitaldroog district and slight in other parts. Crops and prospects good. Prices slightly fallen in the Bangalore and Mysore districts.

COORG: Rainfall 56 cents. Threshing of rice nearly completed. Threshing of ragi in progress. Coffee blossomed in most parts. Prices stationary. Water-supply for cattle sufficient.

Central India.—For week ending 15th March.—Unseasonable rain accompanied by hail in some parts fell throughout Central India, except in Goona. Standing crops are reported to be good in Western Malwa, Bhopawar, and Bhopal; fair in Goona, Nimach, and Bundelkhand; indifferent in Gwalior and Baghelkhand with corresponding probable outturn. Conditions of agricultural stock and pasturage generally good. Prices of food-grains remain steady, but high. Opium being extracted in some parts, but the plant has been damaged in most parts by hail and rain.

Rajputana.—For week ending 15th March.—Rainfall slight generally. Agricultural operations satisfactory. Standing crops and harvest prospects generally good, except in Kotah. Slight damage in parts by hail stones. Agricultural stock good, except in parts of Merwara. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices rising in six States, falling in one, and steady elsewhere.

Nepal.—For week ending 11th March.—Slight rain. Weather generally cloudy. Prospects good.

IMPERIAL, PROVINCIAL, AND LOCAL REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE

APPENDIX.

ACCOUNTS AND ESTIMATES.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT for 1893-94.

PART I.

IMPERIAL REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Preliminary.

In accordance with the Rules made under the Indian Councils Act of 1892, the annual Financial Statement must be explained in the Legislative Council of the Government of India and may be discussed by the Members of that Council, each of whom is entitled to receive a printed copy of the Statement.

A printed copy of the Financial Statement has been supplied to each Member of the Council, and I shall now proceed to explain the general financial position of the Government of India; such discussion of the Financial Statement as may be considered necessary can take place subsequently.

2. In the explanation which I propose to lay before this Council I shall confine myself almost entirely to Imperial Revenue and Imperial Expenditure, and I shall neither take up matters of minor importance nor attempt to deal with Provincial and Local Finance, my special object at the present moment being to convey to the Council and to the public a correct outline of the general financial position of the Government of India: those who wish for further and fuller information will find it in the body of the Financial Statement.

3. I shall deal, as is usual, with the transactions of the Government of India under the three following heads:—

(1) The Accounts of the financial year 1891-92 which have been finally closed.

(2) The Revised Estimate of the financial year 1892-93 which ends on the 31st instant.

(3) The Budget Estimate of the coming year—1893-94.

The explanation I am about to give is printed as Part I of the Financial Statement, and where Revenue or Expenditure is mentioned, it should be understood that Imperial Revenue or Imperial Expenditure is meant, unless the contrary is stated in the context.

4. The financial position of the Government of India, at the present moment, is such as to give cause for apprehension, and I shall be obliged, in the explanation I am about to lay before this Council, to go back a short way into the history of the past in order to bring out more clearly the nature of the difficulties with which we have to contend and the causes to which they owe their existence. It will not be necessary for this purpose to go back further than March 1891, the month in which the Budget Estimates of the financial year 1891-92 were issued. This is the latest year of which the Accounts have been finally closed.

Section I.—Accounts of 1891-92.

5. When the Budget Estimates for the year 1891-92 were being framed, just two years ago, the rate of exchange was taken at what would now seem the excessive figure of 1*s*. 5¼*d*. the rupee; the surplus shown in the Estimates was Rx. 115,600, and practical equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure was secured.

It was explained in the Financial Statement issued in March last that from a financial point of view the unfavourable incidents of the year 1891-92 were (1) a fall in the average rate of exchange of the year to 1*s*. 4·713*d*., involving an increase of the net Expenditure under Exchange by Rx. 782,200, (2) a considerable increase in Military Expenditure, chiefly on account of expeditions, and (3) a falling off in Land Revenue owing to scarcity; on the other, or favourable, side of the account there was (1) a very large increase of Railway Revenue, (2) a substantial increase of net Opium Revenue, and (3) a satisfactory growth of Ordinary Revenue other than Land Revenue.

It appeared at that time, March 1892, that the changes for the worse which had occurred during the year 1891-92 would slightly outweigh the changes for the better, and Expenditure was shown in the Revised Estimates of 1891-92 as being somewhat in excess of Revenue; at the same time it was anticipated that some improvement might occur at the last moment and that the Accounts of the year when finally closed would show a surplus. This hope has been realised, and the Accounts of 1891-92 have closed with a surplus of Rx. 467,000—a not unsatisfactory result, even though the larger part of that surplus is due to a payment which it was expected would be made to the War Office in 1891-92 having been postponed to 1892-93; the provision made on this account in the Revised Estimates of 1891-92 was £240,000. The amount actually paid in 1892-93 was £208,000 and the finances of the year 1891-92 have been relieved at the expense of those of the current year.

6. With 1891-92 the era of surpluses, I regret to say, comes to an end. During the four years from 1884-85 to 1887-88 there was an aggregate deficit of Rx. 5,039,000. In 1888-89 there was a surplus of Rx. 37,000, in 1889-90 of Rx. 2,612,000, in 1890-91 of Rx. 3,688,000, in 1891-92 of Rx. 467,000, the aggregate surplus of the four years being Rx. 6,804,000. The Revised Estimates of the year which is now drawing to a close, and the Budget Estimates of the year on which we are about to enter, show deficits of considerable magnitude.

Section II.—Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

7. I now come to the Revised Estimates of 1892-93—the year which is just about to close,—and I shall in the first place call attention to the conditions under which these Estimates of 1892-93 were originally framed. The fall in the rate of exchange during the year 1891-92 had been so great that in the Financial Statement for 1892-93 some difficulty was experienced in securing equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure. The fall in the rate of exchange, from 1*s*. 5¼*d*., the figure taken for the Budget Estimates of 1891-92, to 1*s*. 4*d*., the highest rate which it was considered safe to take for 1892-93, caused the charge for Exchange to increase by no less than Rx. 1,708,000. We were able to cover this heavy loss and to secure a small surplus of Rx. 146,600 in the Budget Estimates of 1892-93, but it was only a concurrence of fortunate incidents that enabled us to do so. These fortunate incidents were (1) the receipt of contributions to the extent of Rx. 466,000 from Local Governments on revision of the Provincial Contracts, (2) the anticipated growth of general Revenue under the Principal Heads (excluding Opium) to the extent of Rx. 625,000, (3) the anticipated growth of Railway Revenue to the extent of Rx. 606,000 in India, less increased expenditure in England of £51,800, and (4) a substantial improvement under Interest in India owing to our having been able to avoid borrowing for some years, and to our having increased the Paper Currency investment by one crore of rupees.

8. The rate of exchange taken in the Budget Estimates of the current year —namely, 1*s.* 4*d.* the rupee—has not been realised. The actual rate of exchange at the present time is unsettled, and at this moment is below 1*s.* 2·5*d.*, and the average rate for the year is slightly below 1*s.* 3*d.*; the net charge for Exchange has increased by Rx. 1,936,600, of which Rx. 1,635,300 is due to the fall in the rate of exchange, and the remainder to increase of sterling Expenditure. Nor is this fall in Exchange the only untoward event which has affected the figures of the year 1892-93; there is also an increase of the net sterling Expenditure in England, amounting to £602,600, and involving, with Exchange at the Budget rate of 1*s.* 4*d.*, an increased burden of Rx. 903,900, and there is an increase in the Expenditure under Army Services in India to the extent of Rx. 515,500.

9. The three great causes of increased Expenditure during the year 1892-93 have been (1) the fall in the rate of exchange, which caused an increase of Rx. 1,635,300, (2) increased sterling Expenditure, involving a burden of Rx. 903,900, and (3) increased Expenditure on the Army in India to the extent of Rx. 515,500, making a total of Rx. 3,054,700. As the surplus shown in the Budget Estimates was only Rx. 146,600, and the three causes I have just mentioned increased the Expenditure by Rx. 3,054,700, it will probably be a surprise to most people to learn that the deficit shown in the Revised Estimates is only Rx. 1,081,900, a figure which will no doubt be still further reduced when the Accounts of the year are finally closed. The Budget Estimates show a surplus of Rx. 146,600 and the Revised Estimates show a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900; there has, therefore, been during the year a falling off or deterioration on the whole account of Rx. 1,228,500, being the amount of surplus shown in the Budget Estimates plus the amount of deficit shown in the Revised Estimates. The three great causes which I have already mentioned having been sufficient to cause a falling off to the extent of Rx. 3,054,700 and the actual falling off, everything included, being only Rx. 1,228,500, it follows there must have been an improvement in other directions of Rx. 1,826,200, being Rx. 3,054,700 minus Rx. 1,228,500. I shall explain a little later in what way this improvement of Rx. 1,826,200 was obtained, but in the first instance it will be convenient to state the causes of the increase in sterling Expenditure and of the increase in Expenditure on the Army in India.

10. The chief increases in sterling Expenditure in England are £427,800 under Army Services, £123,400 under Marine, £81,900 under Superannuation Allowances and Pensions, and £37,600 under Interest.

The increased Expenditure under Army was caused by the payment of an arrear charge of £208,000 to the War Office in 1892-93 instead of in 1891-92 as originally intended, and by the adoption of a rule for the payment of furlough allowances and retired pay in arrears at the end of each month instead of in arrears at the end of each quarter. Such a change must, from the nature of the case, add to the total charge in the first year because the allowances are paid sooner than would otherwise be the case, and the amount due at the end of the year is reduced. The same cause accounts for the increase of £81,900 in civil Superannuation Allowances and Pensions. The increase in the Marine charge is due to payments on account of the construction of ships and a dredger, which were not provided for in the Budget Estimates.

The increase of £37,600 under Interest is due to discount on a sterling loan of £1,300,000 raised during the year for advances to Railway Companies and discharge of Railway Debentures.

11. The increased Expenditure of Rx. 515,500 on Army Services in India is due to the following causes:—

	Rx.
Suppression of disturbances in the Lushai Country	60,000
Isazai Field Force	50,000
Gilgit Agency	9,000
Kajuri Kach Force	100,000
Kurram Escort	45,000
Transport charges for supply of Gilgit Agency	78,400
Arrear charges connected with the Manipur Expedition	7,600
Rise in price of food and forage and increase in the number of transport animals to be fed (about)	150,000
Total	500,000

There were also other increases of charge of minor importance and some decreases of no great magnitude which need not be separately specified.

12. I come now to the explanation of the fact that, with an increase of sterling Expenditure involving at the Exchange of 1*s.* 4*d.* a burden on the finances of Rx. 903,900, with an increase in Army Expenditure in India amounting to Rx. 515,500, and with an increase of Rx. 1,635,300 on account of the fall in the rate of exchange, giving in all a deterioration of Rx. 3,054,700, the deficit is only Rx. 1,081,900. In making this explanation it will be most convenient to deal separately with the Opium Revenue, deducting Opium Expenditure from Opium Revenue so as to get the figure of net Revenue. It is at first sight not a little remarkable that an unfavourable Opium crop should, for the present, have had the effect of materially increasing the Revenue and at the same time largely reducing the Expenditure, the total gain in net Opium Revenue in India as compared with the figures of the Budget Estimates being no less than Rx. 971,900.

In the first place I may mention that the poppy cultivation failed to a large extent in the cold weather of 1892, so that the sums paid to the cultivators, which sums fall into the accounts of the current year, were greatly reduced in amount, and the total Expenditure in India under Opium in 1892-93 proved to be Rx. 1,593,900 as compared with the Budget provision of Rx. 2,233,900, the saving being Rx. 640,000.

The knowledge that the crop of Opium was a poor one immediately affected the market, and a rise took place in the price of Bengal Opium. In making our Budget calculations we had estimated the price of Bengal Opium at R1,050 a chest, while the average price actually obtained has proved to be R1,247. If we could have continued our sales throughout the financial year at the figures of the earlier months, the gain from the increased price of Bengal Opium would have been Rx. 1,065,200. As the reserve stock of Opium was running down, this could not be done, and the quantity of Bengal Opium to be sold monthly was reduced from 4,500 chests to 3,642 chests with effect from 1st October 1892. The exports of Malwa Opium also proved smaller than the Estimate, and than had been the case for many years. Consequently the gross Revenue from Opium exceeds the figure of the Budget Estimates by only Rx. 331,900. As the gross Revenue from Opium increased by Rx. 331,900 and the Expenditure was reduced by Rx. 640,000, the increase in the net Revenue is Rx. 971,900.

13. In addition to the great improvement in net Revenue from Opium, which I have just explained, and which, I must admit, is accidental, temporary, and, from a financial point of view, far from satisfactory, there has been a general increase of Revenue under almost every head in the Estimates.

The total gross Revenue in India shown in the Budget Estimates of 1892-93 was Rx. 65,399,500 ; the amount shown in the Revised Estimates which are now published is Rx. 66,423,300, being an increase of Rx. 1,023,800 Of this increase. I have already taken into account the increase of Rx. 331,900 in Revenue from Opium ; excluding the temporary and accidental increase in Opium Revenue, there has been, therefore, during the year, an improvement in Revenue of Rx. 691,900.

There is nothing which has so beneficial an influence on the growth of the general Revenue as timely and plentiful rains and good harvests, and, as India has been on the whole somewhat unfortunate in these respects during the last few years, the increase of Revenue which I have just stated is specially satisfactory, inasmuch as it shows that, although the progress of the country may have been impeded by the occurrence of unfavourable seasons, it has not been stopped or even seriously checked. Nevertheless, the growth of Revenue during the year appears to show traces of the influence of unfavourable seasons. There is not a very remarkable increase of Revenue in any direction, and the satisfactory aggregate increase which has been secured is due to moderate increases under almost all heads, and indicates steady and general improvement rather than unusual expansion.

14. The only decreases of Revenue of any importance are Rx. 120,700 under XXIV Exchange, Rx. 76,000 under Customs, and Rx. 34,800 under Interest.

The amount of Revenue shown under XXIV Exchange depends on the average market rate of Exchange during the year, on the rates fixed by contract with the Railway Companies for regulating certain transactions between them and the Government, on the nature and extent of these transactions during the year, on the extent of Remittances during the year, and on the rate of Exchange fixed yearly for the settlement of accounts between the Indian and the Home Government. Increases or decreases of Revenue under such a head are of course no indication of the general progress or prosperity of the country. The falling off under Interest is due to the fact that the Railway Companies did not overdraw their capital to the extent anticipated, and an increase or decrease of Revenue from interest on advances to Railway Companies has not any bearing on the question of the growth of ordinary Revenue. The falling off in Customs Revenue is due to reduced exports of rice from Burma.

The principal increases of Revenue are the following :—

Head of Account.	Rx.
State Railways	143,600
Land Revenue	117,800
Salt	104,900
Mint	99,400
Excise	79,800
Irrigation, Major Works including Land Revenue due to Irrigation	69,900
Stamps	60,200
Army receipts	51,100
TOTAL	726,700

15. As the increase in net Opium Revenue is Rx. 971,900, and the increase of Revenue under other heads is Rx. 691,900, we get a total improvement in Revenue of Rx. 1,663,800. This it will be recollected is the increase in Imperial Revenue, and does not take into account Provincial and Local Revenue, the amount of which has no bearing on the surplus or deficit of the year. I may, however, mention that the increase of Provincial and Local Revenue during the year is Rx. 592,500.

16. The growth of Revenue during the current year has, as I have just shown, been satisfactory, and it is hardly less satisfactory that the public Expenditure in India during the same period has, with only a single exception of importance, been kept well within the Budget Estimates. The Budget Estimate of this Expenditure for the current year was Rx. 41,628,500 and the corresponding figure of the Revised Estimate is Rx. 41,341,600, a reduction in the aggregate Expenditure of Rx. 286,900. If we eliminate from the account the decrease in Opium Expenditure of Rx. 640,000, which must be admitted to be accidental and temporary, and with which I have separately dealt, it will be seen that the increase of Expenditure under all other heads has been Rx. 353,100, an increase which is more than accounted for by the increased Expenditure of Rx. 515,500 on Army Services which I have already explained.

The Expenditure under all heads other than Opium and Army Services is very closely in accord with the Budget Estimates both in aggregate amount and in details and need not be further examined. It will suffice to mention that, excluding Expenditure under Opium and Army Services, there is a small saving of Rx. 162,400, an amount slightly less than the saving which occurs under the Railway Revenue Account.

17. The explanations already given, and which I fear may have proved somewhat tedious, place me in a position to sum up in a few words the financial results of the year 1892-93.

In the first place we have had a net increase of sterling Expenditure amounting to £602,600, which (taking exchange at the Budget rate of 1*s.* 4*d.*) involves an increased charge of Rx. 903,900. In the next place we have had increased Expenditure on the Army in India amounting to Rx. 515,500; and lastly, and most important of all, there has been a fall in the rate of exchange from 1*s.* 4*d.* to 1*s.* 3*d.*, involving a net increase of the charge in the columns headed Exchange of no less than Rx. 1,635,300; the total falling off during the year from these three causes being Rx. 3,054,700. To balance this great and disastrous falling off we have, in the first place, the temporary and accidental increase in net Opium Revenue in India of Rx. 971,900; in the next place we have a satisfactory growth of Revenue under other heads of Rx. 691,900, and we have a slight saving of Expenditure (excluding Army Services and Opium) which amounts to Rx. 162,400. The total improvement is Rx. 1,826,200.

Our losses exceed our gains by Rx. 1,228,500, and the Budget surplus of Rx. 146,600 is converted into a deficit on the Revised Estimates of Rx. 1,081,900.

18. The Final Accounts of each financial year usually, and I may say invariably, show improvement over the Revised Estimates, and I fully anticipate that in March 1894 my successor will be able to announce that the actual deficit of the year 1892-93 is below the figure at which it is now placed.

However satisfactory this result may appear at first sight, and under all the circumstances of the case, a closer examination of the figures affords ground for apprehension.

The temporary and accidental gain in net Revenue from Opium will disappear in 1893-94, and the influence of short crops in past years will still further reduce the income from Opium. On the other hand, the loss due to the fall in the rate of exchange will remain, and will increase, because there is at the present time no prospect that the rate of exchange will be as high in 1893-94 as it has been in 1892-93, and the fall will not merely add largely and directly to the burden of Indian Expenditure, but will materially increase the cost to be incurred on account of the British troops serving in India, whose pay is fixed in sterling. On the other hand, we may expect to retain a large proportion of the increase of ordinary Revenue which we obtained in 1892-93, and the causes by which the sterling Expenditure was swollen in the current year will no longer operate.

The prospective loss exceeds the amount of gain on which we can reckon, and we may say at once, and without waiting to examine the Budget Estimates of 1893-94, that the deficit of the year 1893-94 must exceed that of 1892-93 by a considerable amount.

Section III.—Budget Estimates of 1893-94.

19. In the Estimates of the coming year the total Imperial Revenue in India and England amounts to Rx. 66,648,800, and the total Imperial Expenditure to Rx. 68,243,900, and the deficit is Rx. 1,595,100.

The announcement of a large deficit will not, I believe, come as a surprise to those who have paid any attention to financial matters during the past year, or who have taken their opinions on the subject from the public Press. I shall now explain the exact influence exercised upon the financial position of the Government of India by the various causes which have come into operation during the last twelve months, and which have resulted in transforming the small surplus of the Financial Statement of 1892-93 into a deficit for the coming year which exceeds one and a half crores of rupees. The immediate and principal cause, as every one knows, is the fall in the rate of exchange, but there are other causes of less importance which also require notice.

20. In the explanation I am about to make I shall take as my starting point the Budget Estimates of 1892-93, which showed a surplus of Rx. 146,600, and shall trace the various changes, favourable and unfavourable, which in the course of twelve months have brought us face to face with a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100. For the purposes of this explanation it will be convenient to again call attention in this place to the leading features of the position as it presented itself in March 1892.

In the Financial Statement for 1892-93 it was stated that the fall in the rate of exchange from 1s. 5¼*d.* to 1s. 4*d.* had imposed on the finances of India an additional burden to the extent of Rx. 1,708,000, being the increase of Exchange on the net sterling Expenditure, in addition to an increase of Rx. 205,000 in the pay of the British Troops, and it was explained that this increase of charge had been met (1) by contributions from Local Governments, (2) by anticipated increase of Railway Revenue, (3) by growth of Revenue under the Principal Heads, and (4) by some improvement under Interest owing to our having been able to avoid borrowing for some years, and to our having invested in Government securities a larger amount of the Paper Currency Reserve. The additional burden thrown on the finances in March 1892 was a very heavy one, and it was only a combination of favourable circumstances that enabled us to meet it for the time. The further and additional burden thrown on the finances at the present time is even greater than that of a year ago and another combination of equally favourable circumstances does not recur.

21. In the Estimates of the coming year the rate of exchange has been taken at 1s. 2¾*d.*, the approximate market rate of the date on which the Estimates were first compiled. The market rate of the present moment is considerably below 1s. 2¾*d.*, but the recent fall appears to be due, to a considerable extent, to misapprehension and panic. In any case it is quite impossible for us to recast our Estimates from day to day in the vain hope of being able to follow the fluctuations in Exchange. It will suffice to say that a drop in Exchange from 1s. 2¾*d.* to 1s. 2½*d.* would add Rx. 439,000 to the Expenditure. The rate of 1s. 2¾*d.* taken in the Estimates, though in excess of the market rate of to-day, is five farthings lower than the rate taken in the Budget of 1892-93, and the additional Expenditure, direct and indirect, for which we have to provide in consequence of this fall in the rate of exchange comes to no less than Rx. 2,229,400.

£15,650,300, and the charge for Exchange at 1*s.* 2⅞*d.* the rupee is Rx. 9,814,600; if we could have taken Exchange at the rate adopted in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, namely, 1*s.* 4*d.*, the net charge for Exchange would have been only Rx. 7,825,200, and consequently the fall in the rate of exchange between March 1892 and March 1893 has added directly to the Expenditure of the Government of India the difference between these amounts, or the sum of Rx. 1,989,400.

The pay of the British Troops serving in India, or in any other part of Her Majesty's dominions, is fixed in sterling, and must be converted into the currency of the country in which they are serving at a rate fixed annually, and intended to approximate to the average market rate of the year. The fall in the rate of exchange to 1*s.* 2⅞*d.* has added on this account a further sum of Rx. 240,000 to the Indian Expenditure, causing the total additional charge, direct and indirect, on account of Exchange to amount to Rx. 2,229,400.

The estimated surplus of 1892-93 was Rx. 146,600, and the estimated deficit of the coming year is Rx. 1,595,100, showing a total deterioration in the year of Rx. 1,741,700; as this sum is less by Rx. 487,700 than the falling off due to the fall in Exchange alone, it will be obvious that, but for the fall in exchange below last year's Budget rate of 1*s.* 4*d.*, the Estimates of 1893-94 would have shown an improvement over those of 1892-93 amounting to Rx. 487,700, and I should now have been in a position to announce a surplus of Rx. 634,300 instead of a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100. An increase of Rx. 1,913,000 (Rx. 1,708,000 plus Rx. 205,000) in the burden on account of exchange, followed in twelve months by a further increase of Rx. 2,229,400 on the same account, the total increase amounting to over four crores of rupees, has imposed a strain on the Indian finances which they are at present unable to bear.

22. I shall now explain in what manner the improvement of Rx. 487,700, to which I have just alluded, has been obtained.

In the first place, I may mention that the estimated net sterling Expenditure of 1893-94 is less than that of 1892-93 by £99,300, giving, at an exchange of 1*s.* 4*d.*, a reduction of charge to the extent of Rx. 148,900. The details of this reduction will be found in the body of the Financial Statement, and I shall not further notice the question of sterling Expenditure in the present place. There remain for examination the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure shown in the Indian portion of the Accounts.

In examining the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for 1893-94 I shall deal with net Receipts in the case of Opium and Railways; in other words, I shall deduct the Expenditure from the Receipts, and employ net figures. I adopt this course in consideration of the fact that in both cases the Expenditure is so closely connected with the Receipts, and constitutes so large a deduction therefrom, that to treat the total gross receipts as Revenue would be misleading. I do not consider it necessary for my present purpose to treat any other head of Revenue in a similar manner.

In the net Revenue from Opium the Estimates of 1893-94, as compared with the Budget Estimates of 1892-93, show a falling off of Rx. 338,400; this is partly due to reduced exports of Malwa Opium. There has also been a large reduction in the quantity of Bengal Opium to be sold, and, though the falling off from this cause will be partly covered by the anticipated increase in the selling price, the reduction in Revenue from the sales of Bengal Opium alone is Rx. 207,000.

Under the Railway Revenue Account the net Receipts in India have increased from Rx. 6,678,300 to Rx. 6,899,400, or by Rx. 221,100.

23. Putting aside for the time the Revenue from Opium and the Railway Receipts, with which I deal separately, the total increase of Revenue in the Estimates of the coming year, as compared with the Budget Estimates of 1892-93, is Rx. 647,700. This satisfactory increase is spread over nearly all heads. The only large item of increase is Rx. 313,500 under Land Revenue, and there are decreases under a few heads.

The increase shown under Excise is only Rx. 36,500, and it may be well that I should explain that the increase of Imperial Revenue under this head would have been Rx. 104,000 had it not been decided recently to assimilate the Opium Law of Lower Burma to that of Upper Burma, or, in other words, to prohibit the consumption and possession of Opium by Natives of Lower Burma. This change involves a reduction of the Excise Revenue in 1893-94 by Rx. 67,500 and of the Opium Revenue by Rx. 22,500. The further loss which falls on the Provincial Revenues is Rx. 22,500. The loss of Revenue will be somewhat greater in subsequent years, as the proposed change is not expected to come into effect until three months of the next financial year have elapsed, and the reduction of Revenue will, therefore, affect only nine months of the year 1893-94.

24. Turning to the Expenditure side of the account, I have to observe that, excluding Opium Expenditure and the Expenditure of the Railway Revenue Account, the total increase of Expenditure in India in the coming year is estimated at Rx. 431,600.

In explaining the causes of this increase of Expenditure it will be convenient to state the increase or decrease under each Group of Heads ordinarily shown in the Indian Accounts. The following are the increases of Expenditure under each Group :—

	Increase. Rx.
Army Services	686,800
Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint	48,800
Grant for Famine Relief and Insurance	42,600
Buildings and Roads	40,300
Direct Demands on the Revenue (excluding Opium)	13,400
Salaries and Expenditure of Civil Departments	10,800
TOTAL	842,700

The increase under Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint calls for no special remarks. It is due to the development of the Departments concerned, and is accompanied by a more than proportionate increase of Receipts. That under Buildings and Roads occurs in Military Works Expenditure: the grant for 1892-93 was below the normal amount. The increase under the Famine Grant is merely a matter of account.

The small increases of Rx. 13,400 and Rx. 10,800 do not require special notice, but the increase of Rx. 686,800 under Army Services is of more importance. Of this sum, Rx. 240,000 is due to the increase in the pay stated in rupees of British troops serving in India, and is caused by the fall in the rate of exchange. This portion of the increase has already been taken into account in dealing with the question of Exchange and may be excluded from the present calculation.

The following are the principal causes of the balance of the increase in Expenditure on Army Services (Rx. 446,800):—

	Rx.
Provision for the Kajuri Kach Force, the Kurram Escort, and Arrear charges of the Chin and Lushai Expeditions	174,000
Increased Expenditure on Ordnance Establishment and Stores	88,200
Rise in the price of food and forage and increase in the number of transport animals to be fed	70,000
Transport and supply arrangements for Gilgit	30,000
Increased cost of clothing for British Troops	27,100
TOTAL	389,300

25. The decreases in Expenditure during the coming year, 1893-94, are as follows:—

	Decreases. Rx.
Interest	233,200
Construction of Railways	118,300
Special Defences	18,600
Miscellaneous Civil Charges	32,400
Irrigation	8,600
TOTAL	411,100

Of the items of decrease, the only one that requires special explanation is that under Interest. Speaking generally, this decrease may be said to be due to the transfer of Rx. 10,792,490 of the 4½ per cent. Loan during the current year to a 4 per cent. loan, thus effecting a saving of Rx. 54,000, and to the continuance of the practice of applying the surpluses of past years to the construction of Railways and Canals, and thus obviating the need for borrowing. On the other hand, there is an increase of the interest charge on increased deposits in Government Savings Banks. The reduction under Construction of Railways is due to the fact that we have no surplus Revenue to devote to such a purpose.

26. The final result at which we arrive is that, if we exclude the indirect increase of Expenditure in India caused by the fall in the rate of exchange, and leave out of account Opium Expenditure and the Expenditure in the Railway Revenue Account (for both of which a net figure has been taken), there has been an increase of Expenditure under certain heads in the Estimates of 1893-94 as compared with those of 1892-93 of Rx. 602,700, of which Rx. 446,800 is due to higher Expenditure under Army in India, and that there is a decrease under all other heads of Rx. 411,100.

27. I am now in a position to summarise in a few words the causes that have brought about a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 in the Estimates of 1893-94 as compared with the surplus of Rx. 146,600 shown in the Financial Statement for 1892-93. In the first place, the fall in the rate of exchange has caused increased Expenditure to the amount of Rx. 2,229,400; in the second place, net Opium Revenue is worse by Rx. 338,400, and in the third place, the cost of Army Services in India (excluding pay of British Troops) is greater by Rx. 446,800. The total deterioration from the three causes I have mentioned is Rx. 3,014,600. There is on the other side of the account, an improvement in ordinary Revenue in India to the extent of Rx. 647,700, an improvement of Rx. 221,100 in net Railway receipts in India, a reduction in the net sterling charge which reduces Expenditure by Rx. 148,900, and a reduction in Indian Expenditure (excluding Opium, the Railway Revenue Account, and Army Services) of Rx. 255,200. The total improvement is Rx. 1,272,900, and deducting this amount from the total deterioration of Rx. 3,014,600 we get a net falling-off of Rx. 1,741,700, which is just sufficient to account for the surplus of Rx. 146,600 shown in the Budget Estimates of 1892-93 being converted into a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 in the Estimates of 1893-94.

The figures may be stated in the following manner:—

Deterioration.	Rx.	Improvement.	Rx.
Exchange	2,229,400	Increase in Ordinary Revenue in India	647,700
Reduction in net Opium Revenue	338,400	Reduction in net sterling Expenditure	148,900
Increased cost of Army in India, excluding increase in pay of British Troops due to fall in exchange . .	446,800	Reduction in India Expenditure, excluding Opium, Railway Revenue Account and Army Services	255,200
		Improvement in net Railway Receipts	221,100
TOTAL .	3,014,600	TOTAL .	1,272,900

Section IV.—Present Position and Future Policy.

28. The Revised Estimates of the current year show a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900; the Budget Estimates of the coming year show a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100. The prospects of the future are disheartening because, although the ordinary Indian Revenue grows rapidly, the fluctuations in Exchange are such as to set all calculation at defiance. The increase in Expenditure during the last two years, caused by the fall in the rate of exchange, amounts to Rx. 4,142,400, and the increase of Expenditure due to this cause has not yet come to an end. The heavy fall in the rate of exchange has most seriously affected the position of Government servants not domiciled in India; their case cannot be put on one side much longer, and, as matters now stand, no remedy is possible which does not involve further increase of Expenditure.

We have, also, to take into consideration the possibility of the United States stopping their purchases of silver; the effect of which on the rate of exchange must be serious and might be disastrous. It has been found necessary to take net Opium Revenue for the coming year at a lower figure than has appeared in the Estimates during the last 22 years.

29. Under the circumstances stated in the preceding paragraph the natural and ordinary course would be for the Government of India to at once take such measures as would suffice to cure the existing deficit and establish equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure. Financial embarrassment gathers weight and force the further it proceeds, and it is the obvious duty of every Government to allow no avoidable delay to occur in dealing with a declared deficit. Postponement of action cannot be justified except on grounds of irresistible weight.

30. It will be found on examination of the existing position that there are insuperable objections to any attempt to deal with the anticipated deficit of 1893-94 at the present moment. The immediate cause of our financial difficulties, and the cause which, by comparison and for the time being, dwarfs all others, is the fall in the gold value of silver, which, as I have already shown, has added to the Indian Expenditure in two years more than four crores of rupees. If that fall could be stayed and the rate of exchange with England fixed permanently at even its present low figure, the difficulty of dealing with the present deficit would be comparatively light. The Revenue continues to grow in a satisfactory manner; even under the influence of indifferent seasons and poor harvests it has made fair progress. If we could feel assured that there would be no further fall in exchange, I have little doubt that increase of Revenue, restriction and reduction of Expenditure, with possibly some taxation of a temporary nature, would, in a very short time, re-establish equilibrium. A serious effort would no doubt be required in the first instance, but with a fixed rate of exchange we would have a definite task before us and our measures could be regulated accordingly. But it unfortunately happens that, unless some settlement of the currency question is obtained, there is no prospect of even the most moderate degree of stability in the rate of exchange. The disastrous and unprecedented fall in the gold value of silver which has been experienced during the last few years has destroyed confidence, and we know that the question of stopping their purchases of silver is being seriously agitated in the United States of America. The exact consequences of such stoppage it is impossible to foretell, but the conclusion I have come to is that the consequences would, at any rate for a time, be disastrous to the Indian Exchequer, and that the Government of India would in such case be involved in pecuniary difficulties of greater magnitude, and more lasting in their effects, than any which have hitherto been experienced in this country.

The imports of silver into India during the current year and the two preceding years have been of great magnitude. In the year 1890-91 the net imports of silver were Rx. 14,175,136, in 1891-92 they were Rx. 9,022,184, and in 1892-93 they promise to amount to Rx. 13,000,000. If the United States ceased to purchase silver, the best calculation I have been able to make shows that India would have to absorb about Rx. 8,000,000 worth of silver yearly in addition to what she imports already, and it is impossible to contemplate such a contingency without grave apprehension.

The consequences of a forced and sudden addition to the yearly imports of silver into India of Rx. 8,000,000 in a single year would, in the first instance at any rate, be overwhelming, and I should expect that the Eastern Exchanges would be for the time completely disorganised. The fall in the gold value of silver would be so great that the production of silver might be curtailed, but we cannot be certain that this result would follow, or to what extent it would follow, and, as mines that are in full working could not, and would not, be stopped immediately, the process of reduction would take time. If such reduction of output did take place, it would be due to the fall in the price of silver, and would not last longer than the fall in price lasted: every rise in price would be followed by increased activity at the mines and would tend to restore production to its old figure. In short, the stoppage of the purchases of silver by the United States must result in a great fall in the price of that metal, and, though a portion of the first fall might be recovered, it cannot reasonably be expected that, under such circumstances, even the present price of silver would be restored; confidence in the future would be still further weakened, and fluctuations in exchange, of excessive amount and most injurious in their consequences, would be inevitable.

31. I have now shown what we must expect if there is no settlement of the currency question, and if the United States stop their purchases of silver. The prospect of a settlement of the currency question lies on the other side of the shield. A settlement of this question would prevent any further fall in exchange, and would be likely to bring about, at the very least, some slight rise.

It is no violent hypothesis to assume that a settlement of the currency question might raise the rate of exchange by one penny, and so great is the influence of Exchange on our finances that a rise of even this small amount would give us equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure in the coming year, and cause our present financial difficulties to disappear.

In other words, our financial position for the coming year is at the mercy of Exchange and of those who have it in their power to affect in any way the price of silver. If we budget for the present deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 and exchange rises one penny, we shall have a surplus; if it falls a penny, we shall have a deficit of more than three crores; if we impose taxation to the extent of one and a half crores of rupees, a turn of the wheel may require us to impose further taxation of not less magnitude; another turn, and we may find that no taxation at all was required. It will be obvious from what I have just said that what we have got to consider in making our arrangements for next year is not so much the question of increasing the public Revenue, or restricting that portion of the public Expenditure which is under our control, but the chances of a settlement of the currency question.

32. I regret that I am unable to give any more definite information regarding the prospects of a settlement of this question than the public at present possess. We know that the question excites the greatest interest in the United States; and we know that, even if the people of that country were willing to let it sleep, the inexorable logic of events will force them before long to take a fresh departure either in one direction or in the other.

The International Monetary Conference which recently assembled at Brussels separated without arriving at any definite conclusions, but it is proposed that it should re-assemble in May. We do not know whether that proposal will be carried out or not, but in the meantime the currency question as it affects India is being considered by a Committee of experts in London under the presidency of the Lord High Chancellor of England.

The proceedings of that Committee are secret, and the Government of India have no information as to what the nature of its Report will be, or as to whether the Committee will agree upon a unanimous Report or not. But we know, as do the public, that the Report of the Committee will be made very shortly, and the Government of India have been informed by Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India that the decision on the Indian currency question cannot be delayed much longer. Under these circumstances the Government of India have decided—and the soundness of the decision does not appear to me to admit of dispute—that the proper course is to await the decision of the Home authorities on this question before adopting measures, which must necessarily be of a stringent and exceptional nature, with the object of re-establishing equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure. The immediate restoration of equilibrium would require the imposition of heavy taxation or a large reduction of Expenditure; and yet neither this taxation nor reduction of Expenditure, or even a combination of both means, would be final, or anything better than a temporary makeshift, if the currency question is not settled; measures that might suffice to meet the existing deficit would, in my opinion, be wholly inadequate if the United States ceased to purchase silver. I submit that the Government of India cannot be expected to initiate a policy at the present moment which must have very serious effects on the industry of the country, and disturb and unsettle the Administration, when the lapse of only a month or two might, and in all probability will, show either that their policy was mistaken and their measures uncalled for, or that that policy is wholly insufficient to meet the requirements of the case, and that their treatment of the disease had irritated the patient without materially advancing his progress towards health.

Disappointing as this decision may appear to some persons, and strongly as I am opposed to delay in dealing with financial embarrassment, I entertain no doubt that the course which the Government of India (with the sanction of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India) have decided to adopt in the present conjuncture is the wisest under the circumstances; and I trust that the Indian public will acknowledge the difficulties of the present position, and will not press for a hasty decision, or the inconsiderate adoption of measures which must, from the very nature of the case, prove to be either inadequate or unnecessary.

33. The Government of India having decided to budget for a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100, and the various Local Governments having decided to draw upon their Provincial and Local balances and to budget for expenditure in excess of their Revenue for the year by Rx. 751,200, the question of Ways and Means for the coming year becomes one of unusual importance.

We have to find money to cover the deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 in the Imperial Account, and of Rx. 751,200 in the Provincial and Local Account; we have also to find Rx. 3,550,000 for Expenditure on Railways and Canals, which is not charged against Revenue; and we have to provide funds for loans to Local Bodies, agriculturists, and others, to an extent (excluding the repayment of the balance of a loan by the Bombay Port Trust) which involves a net outgoing of Rx. 327,900.

We have also to meet the payments by the Secretary of State not taken into calculation in any of the above amounts to the extent of £1,889,100, amounting, at the exchange of 1*s.* 2⅝*d.*, to Rx. 3,070,400, of which about one-half only will be recovered in India from the remitters.

The task appears, at first sight, a formidable one, but I am glad to be able to say that a loan of 300 lakhs of rupees, to be raised in India, will, so far as can be judged at present, be sufficient to meet all our wants. The amount of this loan is less by 55 lakhs of rupees than the amount which we propose to spend on Railways and Canals and to charge otherwise than against Revenue, and is probably not in excess of the amount which might be raised yearly in the Indian market without producing any serious disturbance.

As the Government of India have not borrowed for some years, and Government Securities now stand high in price, it may be anticipated that the loan will be raised on favourable terms.

34. This satisfactory result as regards the amount to be borrowed is partly due to the high cash balance of Rx. 15,204,200 with which we expect to open the coming year. It is anticipated that the cash balance will be reduced during 1893-94 by Rx. 2,561,100. It is also due in part to the large net deposits in Government Saving Banks which we are now receiving. The figures of net receipts for the past two years, and the estimated receipts for the present and coming years, are as follows:—

	Rx.
1890-91	530,400
1891-92	824,100
1892-93	977,200
1893-94	811,000

The Bombay Port Trust has taken advantage of the favourable condition of the money market and proposes to repay on 1st April next a loan of Rx. 616,100. The Rampore State will also pay the balance (Rx. 220,000) of the amount it is providing for the construction of the Moradabad-Rampore Railway. The Ways and Means of the year are proportionately strengthened.

35. It is expected that the drawings of the Secretary of State will amount to £17,200,000 in the current year and to £18,700,000 in the coming year, making £35,900,000 in the two years. The large amount of these drawings may give rise to the erroneous belief that there has been a great and permanent increase in the Home charges. This is not the case. The Home Expenditure of the last four years has been as follows:—

1890-91	15,568,875
1891-92	15,974,699
1892-93 (Revised Estimate)	16,563,600
1893-94 (Budget Estimate)	15,848,800

The increased drawings are largely due to payments for Railway stores, and to repayments of money received in former years from Railway Companies, and such repayments, though inconvenient at the present time and involving a considerable temporary addition to the Home charges, will have a beneficial effect on the balance of India's indebtedness in the future.

36. I have already explained that our position in the coming year depends almost entirely on the course of exchange, and, though I must recur to the subject again, I have no intention of adding to the mass of literature that has grown up in connection with the currency question.

The arguments for, and against, an International settlement of that question, and the arguments for, and against, independent action on the part of India, appear to me to have been exhausted. Every scheme that it has been possible for human ingenuity to devise has been elaborated with the utmost care, and pressed on the attention of a perplexed and suffering public as being, in the opinion of its authors, a safe and infallible remedy for undoubted evils. I must plead guilty in my own case to having added something to the burdens of the patient public, but I hope I have not, as sometimes happens in the heat of argument on the currency question, ever used language which conveyed the impression that I looked upon the man with whom I had the misfortune to differ in opinion as being necessarily a person of doubtful honesty and deficient in ordinary intelligence. If I have done so, I retract and apologise. The matter is too serious to permit of any weight being attached to merely personal considerations, and I think I may now fairly call on the disputants to recognise that the suit has, for the time being, passed beyond the stage of pleading and of argument, and that it only remains to await the decision of the tribunal. If the members of that tribunal decide that a remedy is possible by means of independent action on the part of India and should be tried, let us, whatever our private and personal opinions may be, accept that decision and loyally endeavour to give effect to it. In asking others to accept a decision which they may, possibly, not wholly approve, I am not requiring them to do something which I am not prepared to do myself. The remedy which I have always advocated, which I still prefer, and which I hope may some day be adopted, is the solution of the currency question by International agreement; yet this is the solution which at the present moment is not under consideration.

If, on the other hand, it be decided that, having regard to the interests of India in their widest sense, no remedy for our undoubted difficulties by means of independent action on the part of this country is practicable, or should be attempted, it will be our plain and obvious duty to address ourselves, as best we may, to the task of establishing, securing, and maintaining the integrity of the financial position of India. That task may be a heavy one, but difficulties that are met in the right spirit are already half overcome, and I have confidence in the resources of the country and in the industry of its people.

37. In the first Financial Statement which issued under my name just four years ago, after calling attention to the financial dangers that threatened us in connection with the question of Exchange and the fall of the Opium Revenue, I remarked that, "if we could get rid of the Exchange difficulty, I should be prepared to adopt a hopeful view of the future, and, if there were in addition no risk of a great war, I should look forward to our progress in coming years with as much confidence as it is ever safe to feel in financial matters."

In the following year, when dwelling on the improvement that had taken place in the course of twelve months and on the grounds for expecting further improvemeht in the immediate future, I added the following words:—

"I fully recognise that we have difficulties of no slight magnitude still to meet, that the finances are exposed to many dangers, and that unforeseen disasters might for a time upset our calculations. There is every need for caution and for economy, and I should greatly regret if anything I now say, or have said in the past, conveyed the impression that the Government of India are in a position to embark on a policy of adventure of any description."

When I made these remarks the tide of Indian financial prosperity was rising, and it was held in some quarters that the policy I advocated was unnecessarily timid. The remission of taxation, it was said, would relieve the springs of industry, and public works should be vigorously prosecuted with funds raised by gold loans in London.

One of those disasters, the occurrence of which a study of the history of the Indian finances, and more than twenty years' practical experience of their working, had taught me to regard as possible at any moment, and on the shortest warning, has now come upon us, and I do not think the critics will look back with much satisfaction to the opinions they formerly expressed; for my part I have no wish to dwell on the subject, and I recall the matter at the present time merely with the object of adding force to what I have now to say.

Even under present circumstances, when the horizon is dark with the approach of what may prove to be the greatest financial convulsion of the present century, I do not draw back from the opinion I formerly expressed that the revenues of India are adequate to meet her wants; but I wish to say in the most emphatic terms that, if the Ship of State is to pass successfully through the storm which she is now entering, our measures must be taken in due time, must be regulated by prudence and forethought, and must be carried into execution with strict regard to economy.

PART II.

IMPERIAL, PROVINCIAL, AND LOCAL REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Section I.—Accounts of 1891-92.

38. The Revised Estimates for the year 1891-92 showed a deficit of Rx. 80,000. In announcing that deficit in last March, I stated my belief that the Final Accounts would show an improvement, and that it was more than probable that equilibrium would be secured. In June the Under-Secretary of State for India was able to announce in Parliament that this expectation had been realized, and he estimated the surplus of the year at Rx. 354,000. The actual surplus has proved slightly higher, being Rx. 467,535.

39. Explanations of the variations under the several heads will be found in the Appropriation Report, published in the Gazette of India of the 18th instant. The following statement contains a general comparison of the Revised Estimates with the Accounts of the year:—

		Revised Estimate.	Accounts.	Accounts Better.	Accounts Worse.

Surplus or Deficit	Rx.	—80,000	+467,535	547,535	...

1891-92, General Results.

40. The improvement in the Revenue and Expenditure in India was Rx. 422,900, of which Rx. 220,576 occurred in the Provincial and Local section of the Accounts, and Rx. 202,324 in the Imperial section. The improvement in the Revenue and Expenditure in England amounted to Rx. 345,211. The two amounts last mentioned make up the final improvement of Rx. 547,535, which converted the estimated deficit of Rx. 80,000 into a surplus of Rx. 467,535.

1891-92, Revenue in India.

41. Most of the heads of Revenue contributed to the increase of Rx. 553,960 in the Revenue in India. The largest increases occurred under the Principal Heads of Revenue, Rx. 190,849 (Rx. 85,274 of which was in Land Revenue), and under Railways Rx. 283,089.

1891-92, Expenditure in India.

42. In the Revised Estimates for the year, there was an under-estimate of the Military Expenditure in India of Rx. 116,062. Smaller variations under other heads result in a net increase of Rx. 14,998. These two sums together make up the amount, Rx. 131,060, shown as increase of expenditure in India in the table in paragraph 39.

Expenditure in England.

43. The decreases of expenditure in England Rx. 218,701 and in Exchange on it Rx. 123,087, are explained by the refusal of the War Office to receive in the year 1891-92 the sum provided in the Revised Estimate to pay off the claims of the War Office on account of British Forces serving in India.

1891-92, Expenditure not charged to Revenue.

44. The Capital Outlay on Railways and Irrigation Works, not charged to Revenue, was Rx. 3,500,000 as entered in the Revised Estimates.

Section II.—Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

45. The following statement compares the figures of the Budget and Revised Estimates of 1892-93 for Revenue and Expenditure in India and in England :—

Surplus or Deficit	Rx.	+146,600	−1,081,900	...	1,228,500

1892-93, General Results.

46. The considerable deficit which is now anticipated in 1892-93 may be ascribed to the fall in the rate of exchange. Had the rate of 1*s*. 4*d*. the rupee, which was taken in estimating last March, been realised, a surplus appreciably larger than that shown in the Budget Estimate would have been secured.

The Revenue has shown satisfactory progress in the year, almost every head showing an increase: and the Expenditure in India as a whole has been kept below the Estimate. The portion of these improvements which occurs on the Imperial section of the Estimates is more than sufficient to cover the increase in the sterling Expenditure in England with Exchange on it at the rate of 1*s*. 4*d*. the rupee. The increase in net Expenditure caused by the fall in the rate of Exchange from 1*s*. 4*d*. to 1*s*. 3*d*. the rupee (the effect of that fall on the head XXIV—Exchange being neglected) amounts to Rx. 1,635,300, which is Rx. 553,400 in excess of the deficit of the Revised Estimate. Consequently if that fall had not occurred, instead of a deficit, there would have been a surplus of over Rx. 550,000.

1892-93, Revenue in India.

47. The Revenue in India is now expected to be Rx. 1,616,300 in excess of the Estimate made in March last. Of this amount, an increase of Rx. 1,023,800 occurs in Imperial Revenue, and of Rx. 592,500 in Provincial and Local Revenue.

1892-93, Decreases of Revenue in India.

48. The only important decreases of Revenue in India are (1) one of Rx. 75,000 under Customs, for which diminished exports of rice from Burma account, and (2) one of Rx. 120,700 under XXIV—Exchange. It is very difficult to frame satisfactory estimates under the head XXIV—Exchange. The factors influencing the amount of the gain taken to that head, or of the loss taken to the corresponding charge head, 31—Exchange, as the case may be, are—

(1) The amounts of the withdrawals of Capital by Railway Companies for expenditure. It is possible to make an estimate of these amounts, though considerable variations are found to occur frequently, the Companies requiring more or less money than they anticipated at the beginning of the year.

(2) The amounts of payments to Railway Companies for Revenue Stores. These can be estimated on the basis of past experience, but are subject to variations.

(3) The rates of exchange fixed by the several contracts with the Companies for the adjustment of Capital and Revenue transactions. The rates for the adjustment of withdrawals of Capital in India are in most cases fixed definitely by the contracts, but the rates for the adjustment of withdrawals of Capital in England and for the adjustment of Revenue transactions depend on the course of exchange in the half-year immediately preceding that of the occurrence of the transactions.

(4) The amounts of the transactions other than those of Railway Companies which enter into the Remittance Account with London. These can be estimated from past experience, but are subject to variation from various causes.

(5) The rate of exchange fixed annually for the adjustment of transactions between India and England. This is known beforehand.

(6) The average rate of exchange at which the Secretary of State sells his Bills on India during the year. This cannot be foreseen with any accuracy.

The differences between the actual average rate of exchange, (6), and the other rates of exchange mentioned applied to the amounts of the transactions concerned give the gain or loss by Exchange entered under one or other of the two heads.

Of the total reduction of Rx. 120,700 below the Budget Estimate of the current year for this uncertain head of Revenue, the decrease occurring in connection with the transactions of Railway Companies is Rx. 70,900, and that in connection with other payments and receipts on the Remittance Account is Rx. 49,800.

1892-93, Increases of Revenue in India.

49. The more important increases of Revenue are—

	Rx.
Land Revenue, including that due to Irrigation	203,300
Opium	331,900
Salt	103,900
Stamps	228,600
Excise	101,200
Forests	60,400
Mint	99,400
State Railways	235,500
Irrigation—Major Works, Direct Receipts	164,000
Army receipts	51,100

The increase in Land Revenue is the consequence partly of a favourable season, and partly of settlement operations having resulted in larger increments of Revenue than anticipated. All Provinces, except the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, contribute to the increase, but the Province showing the largest increase is Burma: in addition to a specially large increase from settlement operations and extensions of cultivation, the Revised Estimates for that Province include arrears of the rent due by the Ruby Mines Company amounting to Rx. 20,000.

The price of Opium rose very much after March last: the average price realised at the monthly sales of Bengal Opium has been R1,247 a chest as compared with the estimated price of R1,050; and the receipts in Bengal have consequently exceeded the Estimate by Rx. 422,200, notwithstanding the reduction from October last in the quantity offered for sale each month. The increase in Bengal is partially counterbalanced by a falling off in Bombay consequent on a diminution of the exports of Malwa opium.

The increase under Salt occurs in the Northern India Salt Department, from which the issues have been unusually high. In Bombay the issues have fallen off largely from those of 1891-92, and in Madras, Bengal and Burma to a smaller extent.

The Stamp Revenue has increased in almost every Province and notably in Madras, Bengal, and Bombay.

The Excise Revenue has also increased in most Provinces, especially Bengal, Lower Burma, and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. The Revenue in Madras, however, is expected to be Rx. 50,000 less than the Budget Estimate.

The increase under Forest has been secured in Burma. The season in Lower Burma has been a specially favourable one for floating timber down the rivers.

The Mint Receipts have increased because the amount of silver tendered for coinage has been considerably above the average.

The falling-off in the Railway Revenue from the exceptional amount realised in 1891-92 has not been so great as it was deemed prudent to assume in the Budget Estimate.

The increase under Irrigation is ascribed partly to the recovery of arrears in Orissa, but mainly to the area irrigated from the canals in the Punjab and in the North-Western Provinces having been greater than was anticipated.

The Army Receipts are uncertain. The receipts from the sales of cattle and remounts and of Commissariat and Ordnance Stores, from issues of malt liquor and from arms issued to the Police, will be greater than anticipated.

1892-93, Revenue in England.

50. The small increase in the Sterling Receipts occurs chiefly in Telegraph Revenue, Superannuation Fund Subscriptions, and Miscellaneous Store Receipts.

1892-93, Expenditure in India.

51. The expenditure in India is expected to be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 492,300. Of this amount a decrease of Rx. 286,900 occurs in the Imperial Expenditure and of Rx. 205,400 in the Provincial and Local Expenditure.

The decrease is the net result of a number of decreases and increases.

1892-93, Decreases of Expenditure in India.

52. The more important decreases are as follow :—

	Rx.
Land Revenue	74,800
Opium	640,000
Forest	75,100
Police	54,000
Education	51,100
Famine Relief	53,200
State Railways, Working Expenses	76,400
Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure	70,100

The decrease under Land Revenue occurs in all Provinces except Bengal (where there has been an increase of Expenditure on Surveys and Settlements), and Burma (where the large increase of Revenue has involved increased Expenditure in collection), and is due partly to new measures not being introduced so soon as expected and partly to Local Governments making rather liberal provision in the Budget Estimates for the existing scale of expenditure.

The decrease under Opium is due to the failure of the Opium crop in Bengal. This failure necessitated a considerable reduction in the quantity of opium offered for sale at the monthly sales, beginning with the sale of October last.

The Budget Estimates made too liberal provision for the expenditure under Forest, especially in Bombay and Madras, in which Provinces the Revenue is also less than the Estimate.

Under Police the Expenditure will exceed the Budget Estimate by Rx. 22,800 in Bengal, where the provision made for the charges in South Lushai has proved to be insufficient by Rx. 500 in Assam, this small excess being also caused by increased charges in the Lushai country, and by Rx. 15,900 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where a scheme of reorganisation not provided for in the Budget Estimates has been sanctioned and brought partially into operation. In other Provinces the Police Expenditure will generally fall short of the Budget provision: the reasons are the same as those given for the decrease in Land Revenue Expenditure.

The decrease under Education is distributed over nearly all the Provinces, and may also be ascribed to too liberal provision in the Budget Estimates.

The decrease under Famine Relief occurs because the favourable rains in Madras rendered it unnecessary to utilise fully the amount provided by the Madras Government in view of the unfavourable prospect which existed in March last. In Bombay also the provision made was not required. On the other hand the Local expenditure in Bengal has been greater than the estimate, and in Ajmere and Rajputana some expenditure has been incurred under this head in addition to that on Public Works undertaken to provide labour for persons in distress.

The reduction of Expenditure on State Railways—Working Expenses occurs on the North-Western Railway on which the traffic has been exceptionally light this year: on other Railways generally the improvement in the traffic has caused an increase of both the Working Expenses and the Receipts.

The decrease under Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure is caused by the transfer to the account of the Assam-Bengal Railway Company of the amount spent on the survey of the line by the Government of India before the Company was formed. The actual expenditure in the year on Railway Surveys is higher than the Budget Estimate, as some new surveys not included in the Estimate were begun.

1892-93.—Increase of Expenditure in India.

53. The savings of which the more important items are explained in the preceding paragraph are to a considerable extent counterbalanced by increases under other heads. Of these the more important are—

	Rx.
Interest on Debt	56,800
Political	50,500
Irrigation—Minor Works	43,100
Army	5,15,500

The excess under Interest arises in connection with the successful conversion of the larger part of the outstanding 4½ per cent. loans into 4 per cent. debt. The half-yearly dates for the payment of the 4 per cent. paper issued in exchange differ from the dates for the 4½ per cent. paper received in exchange, in such a way that the payment of a portion of one-half year's interest is made in the later months of 1892-93 instead of in the earlier months of 1893-94. There was also a charge, adjusted in India, of Rx. 9,600 for brokerage on the conversions effected in London. But for these non-recurring increases the conversion would have resulted in a saving of ½ per cent. per annum for nine months on the amount converted: in future years the saving will be ½ per cent. on the amount converted.

The increase under Political is caused by increase in the establishments at Gilgit (partly by transfer from the Military Estimates), by the occupation of the Kurram Valley, by missions on th North-West Frontier, and by expenditure in the Lushai country.

The increase under Irrigation—Minor Works—is due to expenditure in Upper Burma and Rajputana on works undertaken in consequence of the scarcity which occurred in those Provinces before the last rains.

The excess under Army is due to the following causes the approximate amounts for each being stated :—

		Rx.	Rx.
Expeditions.	Lushai	60,000	262,600
	Isazai	50,000
	Kajuri Kach	100,000
	Kurram	45,000
	Manipur (arrears)	7,600
Transport and supply arrangements for feeding the Indian and Kashmir troops in Gilgit			78,400
The new system of supply of clothing to British troops			20,500
Purchase of additional horses, and other smaller grants			10,000
Rise in the price of food for men and animals and an increase in the number of transport animals to be fed			150,000

1892-93. Provincial and Local Adjustments.

54. The sum of Rx. 797,900 entered opposite "Adjustment of Provincial and Local Surplus or Deficit" represents the amount by which the reduction of their accumulated balances by Local Governments has been less than they proposed when the Budget Estimates were framed. Of this improvement in the position of Local Governments increase of Revenue accounts for Rx. 592,500, and reduction in Expenditure for Rx. 205,400.

1892-93. Expenditure in England.

55. The increase of £613,200 in the Expenditure in England is accounted for by the increases under the following heads :—

Interest on debt	37,600
Marine	123,400
Superannuation	81,900
Army Effective charges	237,900
„ Non-effective charges	189,900

The increase under Interest is due to the discount and commission charges of £43,900 on the sterling loan of £1,300,000 raised during the year for advances to Railway Companies and discharge of Railway Debentures, the provision made for interest on temporary loans, on the other hand, not being required.

The increase under Marine is caused by payments for the construction of the troop-ships Warren Hastings and Minto and the dredger Mud Turtle, which were not provided for in the Estimate.

Under Effective Army charges, £208,000 of arrears of payments to the War Office, which it was intended to pay in 1891-92, have been paid this year: the payments of furlough allowances are expected to exceed the Estimate in consequence of the payment of allowances monthly instead of quarterly which has the effect of causing the allowances due for the last two months or so of 1892-93 to be paid within the year instead of in the early months of the following year: the payments for Clothing, Commissariat and Medical Stores are increased by £78,600: and, on the other hand, the amount provided for Ordnance Stores is expected to be less by £86,000, representing payments postponed to next year.

The increase in the non-effective Army charges is due to the payment of pensions monthly instead of quarterly, as explained above in regard to furlough allowances.

The increase under Superannuation Charges is also due to the cause just mentioned.

1892-93, Exchange.

56. The net charge for Exchange on the Revenue and Expenditure in England is Rx. 9,811,400, being an increase of Rx. 1,936,600 over the Budget Estimate of Rx. 7,874,800. Of this increase the sum of Rx. 301,300 represents the Exchange at the Budget rate of 1*s.* 4*d.* the rupee on the net increase of sterling Expenditure, and the remainder, Rx. 1,635,300, is due to the fall in the rate to 1*s.* 3*d.* the rupee.

Section III.—Budget Estimate of 1893-94.

1893-94, General Results.

57. The following statement compares the Revenue and Expenditure in India and in England in the Budget Estimate of 1893-94 with that in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93:—

		1892-93.	1893-94.	1893-94 better than 1892-93.	1893-94. worse than 1892-93.

The reasons which have led the Government of India to take the very unusual course of adopting a Budget Estimate which results in a large deficit have been explained in Part I. A very substantial development of revenue is taken credit for. The increase of expenditure is also considerable; it would, however, have been more than covered by the increase in Revenue, but for the serious addition to the Exchange on sterling expenditure caused by the fall in the rate from 1*s.* 4*d.* to 1*s.* 2⅞*d.* the rupee.

1893-94, Revenue in India.

58. The Estimates for next year anticipate an increase of Revenue in India over the Budget Estimate of 1892-93 of Rx. 1,624,200. Of this amount, an increase of Rx. 934,500 occurs in Imperial Revenue, and of Rx. 689,700 in Provincial and Local Revenue.

1893-94, Decreases of Revenue in India.

59. There is only one important decrease of Revenue, namely, that under Opium, of Rx. 318,400. Of this, the larger part, Rx. 207,000, is caused by the reduction in the quantity of Bengal Opium to be offered for sale necessitated by the failure of the crop last year and the exhaustion of the reserve: had it not been for the considerable rise in the price of opium which enables us to count on securing a higher average price next year than that taken last March, the decrease in the Bengal Opium Revenue would have been very much larger. The remainder of the decrease is caused by the heavy falling-off in the exports of Malwa Opium from Bombay and by the change in the Lower Burma Opium regulations described in paragraph 71 below.

A decision of the Government which leads to an appreciable diminution of Revenue may be mentioned here. It has been decided that officers who are entitled to make family remittances through the Government may do so at the rate of Exchange of 1*s.* 4⅝*d.* the rupee, instead of at 1*s.* 2¾*d.*, the rate fixed for the adjustment of transactions between England and India in 1893-94. This concession will it is estimated cost Rx. 77,700 and reduces the receipts under XXIV—Exchange by that amount. The increase in the receipts under that head in connection with the Railway Companies' transactions, however, more than counterbalances this loss, and the receipts under XXIV—Exchange in the Estimates for 1893-94 are slightly higher than in the Budget Estimates for 1892-93.

It may be mentioned also that the rate of 1*s.* 4⅝*d.* will be applied to the payment of furlough and absentee allowances in England as well as to remittances: the additional Expenditure entailed will appear in the sterling charges, which would be less were the official rate of exchange, 1*s.* 2¾*d.*, applied to the calculation of the allowances due.

1893-94, Increases of Revenue in 1893-94.

60. The following are the more important increases of Revenue which are anticipated in the Budget Estimate:—

	Rx.
Land Revenue including that due to Irrigation	592,900
Stamps	204,500
Provincial Rates	84,000
Telegraph	58,200
Railways, State and Guaranteed	722,600

The increase in Land Revenue is distributed over all Provinces except the North-Western Provinces. The Estimates for each Province will be noticed more in detail in paragraph 67.

It is believed safe to assume that most of the increase in Stamp Revenue in 1892-93 will be retained in 1893-94.

The Receipts under Provincial Rates generally rise or fall with the Receipts on account of Land Revenue, and the increase of Rx. 84,000 is contributed to by nearly all the Provinces.

Under Telegraph a moderate normal increase of Revenue is taken in the Estimates.

Under Railways it is assumed that the Revenue shown in the Revised Estimate of 1892-93 will be realised in 1893-94, together with an increase consequent on the increased mileage open and on specific circumstances expected to develope the traffic on lines already opened.

1893-94. Expenditure in India

61. The increase of Expenditure in India over the Budget Estimate of 1892-93 amounts to Rx. 1,114,900, composed of an increase of Rx. 835,700 in the Imperial Expenditure and Rx. 279,200 in the Provincial and Local Expenditure.

1893-94. Decreases of Expenditure in India.

62. The decreases of Expenditure in India, which it has been found possible to secure next year, are unfortunately not large. The only important ones are—

	Rx.
Assignments and Compensations	37,800
Interest on Debt	256,800
Famine Relief	89,500
Construction of Railways charged against Revenue	226,400
Irrigation—Minor Works	93,600

The saving under Assignments and Compensations is secured by the stoppage of the Goa Subsidy of Rx. 40,000 and the Customs Tariff Compensation of about Rx. 6,000 payable to the Indo-Portuguese Government under the treaty of 1879, which was abrogated with effect from the 15th January 1892. The saving of the subsidy in 1892-93 was counterbalanced by the payment of arrears of the Customs Tariff Compensation under the treaty, and of compensations to the owners of Salt Pans which were claimable under the treaty on its termination. Some of these last-mentioned compensations will remain over for settlement in 1893-94 as the assessment of the amounts due takes time.

The decrease under Interest is due to the amount transferred from Ordinary to Public Works Debt on account of the Capital outlay on Railways and Irrigation Works, and to a saving of Rx. 54,000 secured by the conversion, in July last, of Rx. 10,792,490 of the 4½ per cent. Loan into 4 per cent. Paper.

The scarcity which prevailed in March last in Madras and other Provinces rendered it necessary to make a considerable provision for Famine Relief in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. Fortunately that necessity does not exist now. But the Governments of Madras and Bengal have judged it prudent to enter Rx. 30,000 and Rx. 10,000 respectively for possible Famine Relief next year as a precautionary measure.

Of the decrease under Construction of Railways charged against Revenue Rx. 118,300 is Imperial. In the general position of the finances as disclosed in this statement, it was impossible to allot anything from Revenue for the construction of Railways, and the Capital outlay next year has accordingly to be restricted to the grant not charged to Revenue and the sum available from the Famine Insurance Grant. The remainder of this decrease is Provincial: so large a provision as last year is not required for the Mayaveram-Mutupet Railway in Madras and the Hyderabad-Umarkot Railway in Bombay.

The Budget grant for Imperial Expenditure on Irrigation--Minor Works in 1892-93 included Rx. 44,000 for Famine Relief Works in Ajmere and Rajputana. It is not necessary to make a similar provision next year. Several of the Local Governments have also reduced their Provincial Expenditure under this head below the Budget Estimate of 1892-93.

1893-94, Increase of Expenditure in India.

63. The more important increases of Expenditure in India are—

	Rx.
Land Revenue	81,400
Political	61,700
State Railways—Working Expenses	208,700
" " Interest	180,400
Military Works	58,500
Civil Works	140,800
Army	686,800

The increase under Land Revenue is due to expenditure on Surveys and Settlements in several Provinces, and to increased expenditure being necessary to collect the increased receipts.

The increase under Political is mainly caused by an increase of the Civil staff at Gilgit (partly by transfer from the Military Estimates), by the occupation of the Kurram Valley, by the demarcation of the Burma-Siam boundary, and by increased expenditure on Imperial Service Troops.

Of the increases in State Railway Expenditure that for Working Expenses is required to earn the anticipated higher revenue, and that for Interest is a transfer from Ordinary Debt, following the yearly addition to the Capital Expenditure.

Of the increase under Military Works a portion is counterbalanced by a decrease in the sterling Expenditure in England, and the remainder is explained by the fact that a special deduction was made from the grant for 1892-93 in view of the excess expenditure in 1891-92.

The increase of Expenditure on Civil Works occurs entirely in the Provincial and Local section of the Accounts. The necessities of the position have compelled the Government of India to restrict Imperial Expenditure on Public Works. Burma and Assam are the Provinces in which the largest increases of Provincial Expenditure are proposed.

The last of the increases is the largest, that under Army. The main items of Expenditure accounting for the increase are—

	Rx.
Increased pay of British Troops owing to the fall in the rate of exchange from 1*s*. 4*d*. to 1*s*. 2⅞*d*.	240,000
Grant of Armament pay to the Garrison Artillery necessitated by the similar grant in England	14,900
Increased expenditure on Ordnance establishment and stores	88,200
Increased cost of clothing British Troops under the new system promulgated in Army Circular No. 165 of 1892	27,100
A rise in the price of food for men and animals and an increase in the number of transport animals to be fed	70,000
An increase in the gross amount of pensions to Native soldiers and the payment of pensions in the Eastern Circle, Bengal, within the year for five quarters instead of for two half-years in consequence of the transfer of the payments to the Civil Department	23,500
Extension of grass-farming operations	13,500
The provision made for the cost of the Kajuri Kach and Kurram Valley Forces, and arrear charges of the Chin and Lushai Expeditions	174,000
Transport and supply arrangements for feeding the Indian and Kashmir troops in Gilgit	30,000
The reconstitution of the Hindustani Regiments	12,500
The provision of Rx. 18,800 instead of Rx. 6,800 for the transfer of the 1-1st Goorkha Regiment from Dharmsala to a more healthy Station	12,000

In the above list no item which does not amount to a lakh of rupees is mentioned. There are other smaller items of increase, and, on the other hand, there are a few items of decreased expenditure.

1893-94, Provincial and Local Adjustments.

64. The entry of Rx. 410,500 opposite "Adjustment of Provincial and Local Surplus or Deficit" in the table in paragraph 57 means that the Local Governments propose to draw against their accumulated balances to a smaller extent than in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. This reduction of the drawings against balances is due entirely to the improvement of Provincial and Local Revenues: and is secured notwithstanding an increase of expenditure. The increase of Provincial and Local Revenues is Rx. 689,700 and the increase of Expenditure Rx. 279,200.

1893-94, Expenditure in England.

65. A decrease of £106,600 in the sterling expenditure in England is expected. A reduction of £54,400 occurs under Special Defence Works in consequence of the approaching completion of the payments due by India for the stores for the Aden Defence Works. Under Army there is a reduction of £97,000. The cause of this is a diminution by £270,000 in the payments for Ordnance stores. Considerable progress having been made with the re-armament of the Army in India, it may be hoped that these charges will still further decline in future years. On the other hand, the cost of other Military stores is increased by

£66,300: payments for deferred pay are higher by £52,000, a consequence of the considerable augmentation of the strength of the British Army in India in 1885 and 1886; and the non-effective Army charges are increased by £56,300.

The Marine charges in England also show an increase of £39,700 mainly because of further heavy payments to be made on account of the Troopships Warren Hastings and Minto.

The variations in the remaining heads of the Home Estimates other than Marine, Army and Special Defences are smaller, and, on the whole, nearly counterbalance each other.

1893-94, Exchange.

66. The increase of Rx. 1,960,700 in the Exchange on Expenditure in England is due to the fall in the rate of exchange from 1*s*. 4*d*. to 1*s*. 2¾*d*. the rupee. Had it been possible to hope that Council Bills will be sold at an average rate of 1*s*. 4*d*. in 1893-94, the column for Exchange would have shown a small reduction proportionate to the decrease in sterling expenditure.

Section IV.—Examination of the Estimates under the more important heads of Revenue and Expenditure.

LAND REVENUE.

67. The Estimates for 1892-93 and for 1893-94, and the Actuals for the three preceding years, are shown in the following statement:—

	Accounts, 1889-90.	Accounts, 1890-91.	Accounts, 1891-92.	Budget Estimate, 1892-93.	Revised Estimate, 1892-93.	Budget Estimate, 1893-94.

Expenditure	3,624,194	3,676,596	3,835,126	4,031,000	3,956,100	4,112,300

Land Revenue in 1892-93.

The Budget Estimate for 1892-93 was higher than it otherwise would have been owing to the inclusion of arrears from the previous year, mostly in Madras, the collections having been postponed on account of scarcity. The south-west monsoon rains were favourable: such arrears, due to the scarcity, as have not been finally remitted have been collected except some in Ajmere; and the Revised Estimate is for an amount considerably in excess of the Budget Estimate. In Madras, though the Estimate of March last will be realised, the failure of the north-east monsoon is causing some anxiety in regard to a few districts, and prevents an increase over the Budget Estimate.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh is the only Province in which the collections this year will fall below the Budget Estimate: floods in two districts and the fact that the estimate for the recovery of arrears was rather high account for this falling off.

Land Revenue in 1893-94.

In all other Provinces the collections will appreciably exceed the Budget Estimate. The increase is explained mainly by the fact that the Estimates did not make sufficient allowance for the increases resulting from settlement operations and extension of cultivation.

In the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 a further considerable increase of Revenue is counted on. Except Bengal, where the increase is trifling, and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where there is a decrease of Rx. 26,400 owing to the amount of arrears to be recovered being taken at a lower figure, experience having shown that every year some considerable arrears remain uncollected, all Provinces contribute to the increase, the amounts being—

	Increase as compared with the Budget Estimate for 1892-93.
	Rx.
India (chiefly Ajmere and Biluchistan)	29,600
Central Provinces	30,400
Lower Burma	155,000
Upper "	55,000
Assam	88,400
Punjab	77,000
Madras	47,800
Bombay	132,300

The progress of settlement operations is the cause of these increases in most cases: in the Punjab there will also be some receipts from the sale of lands in the Gujranwala District in connection with the colonisation scheme for the utilisation of the newly opened Chenab Canal: (there were similar receipts this year which increased the Punjab Revenue in the Revised Estimate): in Sind and Burma larger revenue will be secured from extension of cultivation as well as from settlement assessments: and in Ajmere there are arrears to be collected.

OPIUM.

Bengal Opium Revenue in 1892-93.

The Budget Estimate of the receipts from Bengal Opium was based on the assumption that 54,000 chests would be sold in the year at an average price of R1,050. Owing to the failure of the crop it became necessary to reduce the quantity to be sold each month to 3,642 chests, beginning with the sale of October 1892, and the total quantity sold in the year has accordingly been 48,852 chests only. On the other hand, the average price realised has been R1,247 a chest. The rise in price has more than counterbalanced the reduction in quantity, and in Bengal the Revised Estimate shows an increase of Rx. 422,200 over the Budget Estimate.

Bengal Opium Revenue in 1893-94.

For next year the present price and the recent course of prices justify the assumption of an average price of R1,250, or R200 a chest, higher than that taken in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. The reduction in the quantity to be sold is, however, so great that the receipts from the sales of Bengal Opium even at that price will be less than the Budget Estimate of this year by Rx. 207,000.

Bombay Opium Revenue in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The exports of Malwa Opium through Bombay have fallen muck below the actuals of 1891-92. And although some falling off was anticipated, the receipts in Bombay in 1892-93 are now expected to be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 100,900. For next year the Bombay receipts are placed at the same figure as in the Revised Estimate of this year.

Opium Expenditure in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The Opium Expenditure consists almost entirely of the payments for Bengal Opium. The crop this year was again a poor one, and, as an average crop was estimated for, there has been a saving of Rx. 639,800. For 1893-94

the Estimate again provides for the payments in connection with an average crop, it being too soon to forecast the outturn with confidence.

Salt Revenue in 1892-93.

The consumption of salt has increased considerably for India as a whole and the Revised exceeds the Budget Estimate by Rx. 103,900. The receipts are lower than last year in Madras, Bengal and Burma, and much lower in Bombay. The increase in the receipts of the Northern India Salt Department however more than counterbalances the falling off elsewhere, and it is probable that Northern India salt has in some tracts displaced Bombay and imported salt.

Salt Revenue in 1893-94.

The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 has been taken at a somewhat lower amount than the Revised Estimate for 1892-93.

Stamp Revenue in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The Stamp receipts in 1892-93 are expected to be in excess of the Budget Estimate by Rx. 228,600, the renewed improvement, which began in 1891-92 after the check in this head of Revenue in 1890-91, having continued this year. The increase this year being considerably in excess of the average, the Budget Estimate for next year has been placed slightly lower than the Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

Excise Revenue in 1892-93.

As in England so in India, the Excise Revenue shows a constant tendency to rise. The Revenue in 1892-93 is now expected to be Rx. 101,200 in excess of the Budget Estimate which was slightly below the actuals of 1891-92. The Punjab and Madras are the only Provinces which do not contribute to this increase. In the Punjab the decrease is nominal. In Madras the stoppage in the annual increment of Revenue which has occurred for several years is probably a consequence of the scarcity which was felt in that Province up to July last.

The increase is largest in Bengal where the stricter policy introduced some years ago, which had for a time the effect of reducing the Revenue, is now producing the usual result of augmenting it.

The next largest increase is in Lower Burma: the Budget Estimate allowed for a reduction of the Excise Revenue in that Province below the figure of 1891-92 because of certain measures designed to restrict the consumption of opium which were introduced rather more than a year ago: this expectation has not been fulfilled, and the Revenue in Lower Burma this year is expected to exceed that of 1891-92 by Rx. 33,300.

In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh some important changes of policy were introduced in the latter part of 1891-92. These changes were expected by the Local Government to result "in a very considerable decrease of Revenue during the first few years at least." Nevertheless the Revenue in 1892-93 will be Rx. 25,700 higher than that of 1891-92.

Excise Revenue in 1893-94.

The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 of Excise Revenue for the whole of India except Lower Burma is taken at an amount rather higher than the Revised Estimate for this year.

In Lower Burma it has been decided to make a very important change of policy, and to assimilate the rules regarding the sale, possession and consumption of opium to those in force in Upper Burma. The sale to and possession by persons of Burmese race will be generally prohibited. It is estimated that this change will involve an annual loss of Revenue of Rx. 150,000, of which Rx. 120,000 will occur under Excise and Rx. 30,000 under the head Opium. As the change was only finally decided on at the beginning of this month, and, as the necessary arrangements for its introduction require some time to complete, the Chief Commissioner fears that he will not be able to introduce the change for two or three months, and it has been assumed for the purpose of the Estimates that the change will not be made till 1st July. accordingly the loss of Revenue in 1893-94 has been taken at three-fourths of the amounts named above.

Customs Revenue in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The Customs Revenue has not done well this year on the whole; but the chief cause of the falling off in the Revenue as compared with the Budget Estimate for the year and with the actuals of 1891-92 is the diminished export of rice from Burma and Bengal. The crop in Burma is reported to be a good one but late, and the depression of trade in Europe is believed to have had some effect in retarding exports. Prices are high in Burma and Bengal, but low in Europe.

If the exports are only retarded, the Revenue next year should show some recovery: for this reasen and because it is reasonable to expect that the special depression of the Customs Revenue which has occurred this year will to some extent disappear, the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 has been taken higher than the Revised Estimate of 1892-93.

The increase in the receipts in 1892-93 occurs chiefly in Lower Burma, where the season was specially favourable for floating timber down the rivers. The recurrence of an equally favourable season in 1893-94 is not assumed in the Budget Estimate.

INTEREST.

Interest Revenue.

75. The Interest receipts since 1889-90 are shown below :—

		Accounts, 1889-90.	Accounts, 1890-91.	Accounts, 1891-92.	Budget Estimate, 1892-93.	Revised Estimate, 1892-93.	Budget Estimate, 1893-94.

Interest Revenue in India in 1892-93.

The Revised Estimate of Revenue in India is less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 43,300. The Guaranteed Railways did not find it necessary to overdraw their Capital account to the extent anticipated, and the receipts from Interest on overdrawn Capital are less than the Estimate by Rx. 35,800. The Government of the North-Western Provinces reduced the rate of interest on the loans to certain municipalities from 4½ to 4 per cent. and made a refund in order to give retrospective effect to the reduction. The receipts in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh are consequently less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 13,200. In other Provinces the Budget Estimate will be more than realised.

Interest Revenue in India in 1893-94.

The Bombay Port Trust have borrowed in the open market in order to repay the balance, amounting to Rx. 616,104, of a loan granted by Government some years ago, the favourable state of the money market enabling them to borrow at a lower rate than that fixed when the Government loan was made, and the Government have waived their right to receive the higher rate during the term of the loan, and agreed to accept repayment on 1st April next. This does not affect the Interest receipts in 1893-94, as the interest is payable yearly on 1st April, but it will reduce them in future years.

In 1893-94 the Railway Companies are not expected to overdraw their Capital account to a greater extent than this year, but the receipts of interest in India on loans to municipalities and agriculturists will increase with the yearly growth of the Capital amounts. The Governments of Bombay and Madras made in 1892-93 advances of very large amounts to agriculturists. The Government of India are anxious to extend these advances as much as possible, but the state of the balances renders it necessary to reduce the amounts available for the purpose in 1893-94 considerably below the amounts advanced this year.

Interest Revenue in England in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The receipts in England in the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 and in the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 are lower than last year and than the Budget Estimate of this year, because the rate of interest obtainable on temporary investments of the cash balance has been unusually low, and the balances are expected to be such next year that little money will be available for temporary investment.

Interest Expenditure.

76. The Expenditure under Interest (other than that charged to Railways and Irrigation Works) has been as follows since 1881-82 :—

Interest Expenditure in India.

In addition to the decrease in the Interest charges in India caused by the annual transfer from the Ordinary to the Public Works Debt, a further saving of Rx. 54,000 a year has been secured by a reduction of ½ per cent. in the rate of interest payable on Rx. 10,792,490 of the rupee debt.

In 1890-91 an offer was made to convert the 4½ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879 into 4 per cent. paper on certain terms: the offer was accepted by holders of paper of the value of Rx. 8,313,000; and the balance of the two loans outstanding was reduced by that amount, and on the 1st April 1892 stood at Rx. 12,126,817. Under the terms of the loans repayment can be made, after three months' notice, on 15th September 1893. In order to reduce the amount to be dealt with on that date a further offer for conversion into 4 per cent. paper was made, on terms less favourable to the holders than those of 1890, in the Notification No. 2290, dated 6th June 1892. Holders of paper for the amount of Rx. 10,792,490 accepted these terms. The result is that an annual saving of interest of Rx. 53,963 has been secured with effect from 30th June 1892, and that only a balance of Rx. 1,334,327 remains to be dealt with on 15th September next. For the reason explained in paragraph 53, the saving will not produce an effect on the Accounts until the year 1893-94.

Interest Expenditure in England.

The increase in the Expenditure in England in 1892-93 is caused by the discount on the sterling loan raised during the year.

General Administration Expenditure.

The Expenditure on General Administration,—the larger part of the Indian Expenditure is Provincial—necessarily rises with the increase of the administration in efficiency and complexity. Over 60 per cent. of the increases shown in the totals given above under the head in the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 and in the Budget Estimate for 1893-94 occurs in the Exchange or the Sterling Expenditure.

Law and Justice, Police, Education, and Medical Expenditure.

The Expenditure under Law and Justice, Police, Education, and Medical also tends to increase from year to year. The Expenditure on these heads is almost entirely Provincial and Local, and as the Local Governments are mostly in a flourishing financial position, the difficulties of finding funds to devote to the improvement of the administration and to meeting the growing wants of the country are not so great as in the case of Imperial Expenditure.

Marine Expenditure.

The increases under Marine are caused by the construction in England of the new vessels mentioned in paragraphs 55 and 65. In Bengal and Burma also expenditure is being incurred on the construction of a pilot vessel, a light-ship and steam-launches. The charges in other Provinces and of the Imperial Marine Department are not increasing.

Political Expenditure.

The reasons for the increase of Political Expenditure this year and next have been explained in paragraphs 53 and 63.

Furlough Allowances and Pension Expenditure.

The only heads in this group regarding which any explanation seems necessary are the second and third. In addition to the increase caused by the fall in exchange and, in the case of pensions, by the normal increase in the number of pensioners, the Expenditure under both these heads in the Revised Estimate is augmented by the practice recently introduced in England of paying the allowances monthly instead of quarterly. Pensioners have availed themselves of the concession to a smaller extent than officers on leave, and some provision is made in the Budget Estimate for pensioners making their election to draw monthly after the close of this year. The addition from this cause is not a permanent increase to the Expenditure, but occurs only while the change is being introduced.

Expenditure on Famine Relief.

The reduction in the amounts to be spent this year and next year on Famine Relief has been explained in paragraphs 52 and 62.

Loss on Famine Railways.

The increase in the net loss on the two Railways this year and next, as compared with the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, is mainly due to the fall in the rate of exchange, the Interest charges being payable in sterling.

Capital Expenditure on Protective Railways.

The balance available from the Famine Insurance Grant of Rx. 1,500,000 after meeting the charges for Famine Relief, Protective Irrigation Works, and the loss on the two Railways, is applied to Capital Expenditure on the construction of Railways.

Railways in 1892-93.

The net loss on the Railway Revenue Account in the current year is now expected to amount to Rx. 1,710,800 or Rx. 136,300 in excess of the loss taken in the Budget Estimate. The net traffic receipts of State Railways are increased by Rx. 311,900: the sterling payments of interest in England are less by £18,500, but the fall in Exchange causes an additional charge under Exchange amounting to Rx. 563,000. The surplus profits payable to the old Guaranteed Railway Companies are increased by Rx. 31,600. The Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure will be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 70,100, owing to a refund by the Assam-Bengal Railway Company of past outlay incurred by the State on Surveys of the line.

State Railways, 1892-93.

The gross traffic receipts of State Railways will probably exceed the amount entered in the Budget by Rx. 235,500, while the saving in working expenses will be Rx. 76,400.

The principal fluctuations in net receipts are the following:—

	Revised Estimate more (+) or less (—) than the Budget Estimate.
	Rx.
East Indian	+156,500
Rajputana-Malwa	+244,300
Mu Valley	— 30,500
Burma	+ 95,000
Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot	— 12,500
Patna-Gya	— 14,500
Oudh and Rohilkhand	— 10,000
Indian Midland	+ 12,500
Bengal Nagpur	— 35,000
North Western	—110,000
South Indian	+ 25,300

As was the case last year on the lines shewing a considerable increase, the principal cause of the improvement is heavier traffic in wheat and seeds. The increase on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway is almost entirely attributable to this cause. On the East Indian Railway there has also been an improvement in coaching traffic, and the absorption into this system of the Patna-Gya Railway accounts for a portion of the improvement. On the Burma Railway there has been an unusually brisk traffic in rice, more particularly during the later months.

The increase in the net receipts of the South Indian Railway is caused by reduction in working expenses owing to the extensive renewals allowed for not having been carried out.

The large decrease in the case of the North Western Railway is due to great depression in traffic caused by diminution of grain exports and by breaches of the line during the monsoon. The decrease in the case of the Mu Valley Railway is due to the estimates of receipts and working expenses having been based on insufficient data, while that in the case of the Bengal Nagpur is attributable to a partial local failure of crops.

The receipts on the Bengal and North Western and Tirhoot System are slightly in excess of the original estimate, but the Company's share of net earnings is higher than was anticipated, and the Government share smaller. The Patna-Gya Railway has been incorporated with the East Indian Railway from 1st July 1892. On the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway the receipts are higher than the original estimate, but the expenses have increased to a larger extent owing to heavy repairs and renewals of permanent-way.

Guaranteed Railways, 1892-93.

The Madras Railway and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway show improvements of Rx. 15,000 and Rx. 65,000, respectively, in net receipts. The gross earnings of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway exceed the Budget Estimate by Rx. 80,000 due chiefly to heavier traffic in seeds and cotton. Part of the improvement has been absorbed by increased charges for working. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway shows a decrease in net receipts of Rx. 80,000. There have been increased charges owing to renewals of engines, the fall in the rate of exchange, and payments to other lines of their shares of through traffic earnings.

State Railways, 1893-94.

In 1893-94 the gross receipts of State Railways are estimated at Rx. 512,100 more than in the Revised Estimate of 1892-93. The most noticeable variations in net receipts, from the Revised Estimate of 1892-93, are as follow:—

	Rx.
East Indian Railway	+45,000
Rajputana-Malwa Railway	—35,000
Oudh and Rohilkhand	+10,000
Indian Midland Railway	+20,000
North Western Railway	+75,000
Bengal Nagpur	+35,000
South Indian	+17,500
Southern Mahratta	+18,000

The expectation of so considerable an improvement over the probable receipts of this year may seem sanguine. But the several increases have been taken either—

(1) in consequence of additional mileage recently opened or to be opened next year; or

(2) in the case of more recently opened lines, in the hope that the average increase of receipts secured in past years will continue in 1893-94; or

(3) in the case of the older lines showing exceptionally bad results in 1892-93, by the expectation of a return to normal conditions in 1893-94, and it is believed that they will be secured. The traffic on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway during 1892-93 has been so specially favourable that it has not been considered prudent to anticipate such good results in 1893.

Guaranteed Railways, 1893-94.

The net traffic receipts of Guaranteed Railways are taken at Rx. 3,235,000, or Rx. 25,000 below the Revised Estimate of 1892-93. The estimate for the Madras Railway is the same as the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 In the case of the Bombay, Baroda Railway, it has not been considered prudent to anticipate so large a traffic as in 1892-93, but the reduction in earnings has been to a large extent counterbalanced by a reduction in expenses owing to the completion in 1892-93 of repairs of damages by floods, the net result being a decrease of Rx. 5,000 only. The net receipts of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway are estimated at Rx. 20,000 less than in 1892-93 in consequence of a larger provision for renewal of engines.

Irrigation Revenue and Expenditure in 1892-93 and 1893-94.

The Revised Estimate of receipts is higher than the Budget Estimate for the current year by Rx. 187,600, the increase being due to extended irrigation in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab, Bombay, and Madras.

The decrease of Rx. 66,600 in the receipts for 1893-94, as compared with the Revised Estimate of the current year, is due mainly to the demand for water in the Punjab and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh having fallen off considerably owing to abundant rain in the autumn of 1892, and partly also to the fact that the realizations of the current year in Bengal have been swollen by collection of arrears.

The decrease would have been larger but for an increase of Rx. 90,300 in Madras, due to new settlements and extension of irrigation.

Net Earnings of Major Irrigation Works.

Revenue.

The improvement in Revenue in the Revised Estimates is due mainly to the sale of certain ferry plant and stores in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and to the sale of a Government building in Burma.

Expenditure.

The increase in Military Works expenditure in the Revised Estimate is due to large expenditure having been incurred in providing accommodation for troops in the Chin Hills. There is a decrease in Imperial Civil Works expenditure of Rx. 37,400, due mainly to transfer of grants to the head Minor Works and Navigation to provide for outlay on Famine Relief works in Upper Burma.

The Military Works Budget for 1893-94 provides for a small increase in expenditure, while the Civil Works Budget provides for an increased expenditure of Rx. 154,600, all of which is Provincial and Local, the Provincial balances, especially in Lower Burma and Assam, admitting of larger assignments for expenditure on public works.

1892-93	Revised "	559,300
1893-94	Budget "	536,600

The anticipated short expenditure during the current year is attributable to the expenditure in England on stores and armaments having been over-estimated.

The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 is less than the Revised Estimate for 1892-93 by Rx. 22,700.

The total expenditure on Special Defence Works being estimated at Rx. 5,030,000, if the amounts shown above for 1892-93 and 1893-94 are spent, there will remain Rx. 426,287 to be incurred in 1894-95 and future years.

Capital Expenditure on Railway Construction.

89. The following table gives the figures of the estimates for 1892-93 and 1893-94 for Capital Expenditure on Railways exclusive of sums found by Local Governments out of Provincial resources, the amounts charged to the Famine grant and to the head "37—Construction of Railways" being included for convenience, although charged to Revenue :—

	India.	England.	Exchange.	Total.
	Rx.	£	Rx.	Rx.
1892-93, Budget Estimate . . .	2,542,000	1,382,000	691,000	4,615,000
1892-93, Revised Estimate . . .	2,880.300	1,068,000	640,800	4,589,100
1893-94, Budget Estimate . . .	1,980,200	1,151,800	722,300	3,854,300

Of the totals shown above the following amounts are taken as charges against the Famine Relief Grant namely, in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, Rx. 1,011,700, in the Revised Estimate, 1892-93, Rx. 993,900, and in 1893-94, Rx. 1,054,300.

The Capital Expenditure on Railways in 1892-93 will be less than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 25,900.

During the course of the year additional funds were allotted for the East Coast, Godhra-Rutlam, Tirhoot and East Indian Railways, but, on the other hand, the grant for the Assam-Bengal Railway was withdrawn on the transfer of that line to a Company, and the allotment was further reduced by the amount of the refund by that Company of the outlay incurred by the State in the previous year. The heaviest expenditure has been incurred on the East Coast, the Mu Valley, the Godhra-Rutlam, and the Mushkaf-Bolan Lines. The Villupuram-Guntakal Section of the South Indian Railway, the Dharmaveram-Hindupur Extension, and the Barsoe-Kissengunge Branch will be practically completed at the close of this year.

The provision for 1893-94 is less than the estimated expenditure during 1892-93 by Rx. 734,800. Large grants have been allotted to the East Coast, Mushkaf-Bolan, Mu Valley, Godhra-Rutlam, and Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad Railways, but, owing to the reduced grant available, work on the Mari-Attock line has been partially suspended. The funds allotted will, it is anticipated, be sufficient to advance work on the Godhra-Rutlam Railway and on the Jherriah Extension of the East Indian Railway, so as to admit of the lines being opened before the close of the year. A considerable length of the East Coast line will also be advanced sufficiently to admit of its being opened for public traffic, and the Lucknow-Rai Bareli line will be practically completed during the year.

1892-93, Council Bills.

The total estimate of the Secretary of State's drawings for the two years 1892-93 and 1893-94 is £35,900,000. To reduce to some extent the very large drawings in 1893-94 the Secretary of State has raised the drawings of the current year above the Budget Estimate of £17,000,000, and it is now expected that £17,200,000 will be drawn in 1892-93.

Sterling loans in 1892-93.

The Southern Mahratta Railway Company Debentures for £600,000, which it was intended, as stated in paragraph 99 of the last Financial Statement, to discharge on 31st March 1892 were renewed. The Secretary of State was consequently able to reduce the amount of the sterling loan of the year from £1,800,000 to £1,300,000. The loan was issued at an average price of £96-18*s*.-4¾*d*. per cent.

1892-93, Capital transactions with Railway Companies.

92. The Capital transactions with the Railway Companies vary with the changes in the programmes of the Companies. The Estimates for 1892-93 as now prepared show an increase in the net receipts from the Companies of £239,200. The following statement shows the details of the transactions :—

Great Indian Peninsula Railway	435,000	352,800
Madras Railway	102,000	67,300
	1,430,300	950,600

The Assam-Bengal Railway Company was expected to raise its whole capital of £1,500,000 in 1892-93; £102,905 was, however, paid in March 1892, and only £1,179,000 is expected to be paid this year, leaving £218,095 to be paid hereafter. The receipts from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway are now expected to exceed the Budget Estimate by £169,200, fresh Capital having been raised to the extent of £209,600 in excess of the estimate, while debentures for £40,400 were renewed instead of being replaced by fresh capital. The reduction of £97,800 in the Capital receipts from the Madras Railway Company represents the value of debentures renewed instead of being replaced.

The payments for discharge of debentures of the Great Indian Peninsula and Madras Railways provided for in the Budget, were not required owing to the renewal of the debentures as already explained. The issues to the Companies for Expenditure depend necessarily on their actual requirements, which are not always foreseen with accuracy.

1892-93. Deposits and Advances.

The "Deposits and Advances" in 1892-93 are now expected to result in a net payment of £300 instead of a net receipt of £4,600 owing to smaller recoveries and larger advances on account of Expenditure in England on Defence works at Aden recoverable from the Imperial Government.

1892-93. Remittances to India.

There has been a large increase in the family remittances from India in 1892-93, owing to the fall of the market rate of exchange considerably below the rate fixed for the year for the adjustment of such transactions, but this increase was partially counterbalanced by a falling-off in the remittances by Money Orders. The net remittances from India were also affected by larger repayments in England of advances on account of Emigration of coolies and supplies to Her Majesty's ships of the East India Station, etc.

93. The following is the Budget Estimate of the Ways and Means of the Home Treasury for 1893-94:—

	Budget, 1893-94. £

On account of remittances from India	1,383,200
Add—Closing Balance	1,972,526
TOTAL	24,025,026

1893-94. Council Bills.

It is now estimated that the drawings of the Secretary of State in 1893-94 will be £18,700,000. The Budget Estimate of the current year provided for drawings amounting to £17,000,000.

Capital transactions with Railway Companies.

The very large increase next year is almost fully explained by the variations in the capital transactions of Railway Companies in the two years. In the last Financial Statement, credit was taken for a net receipt in 1892-93 from Railway Companies of £357,900, whereas according to the present Statement, there will be a net payment to the Companies in 1893-94 of £1,189,200.

Sterling loan in 1893-94.

It is the present intention of the Secretary of State to raise a loan of £1,300,000 in 1893-94 to be applied to the discharge of £729,000 Oude and Rohilkund Railway Debentures and £520,200 South Indian Railway Debentures falling due in the course of the year.

It should be understood that, in stating the present intentions of the Secretary of State no sort of pledge is given that he will adhere to the programme.

The headings in italics are connected with, and explained by, the corresponding figures of the Secretary of State's account in England. The others refer to purely Indian transactions.

8 Ways and Means in India in 1892-93. Main features.

95. We expect to close the year 1892-93 with a cash balance of Rx. 15,204,205 against Rx. 13,298,844 taken in the Budget Estimates of the year, being an improvement of Rx. 1,905,361. The more important items of variation from the Budget Estimates are :—

On the one hand an increase of Rx. 1,842,900 in the payments of Council Bills. For the bulk of this the fall in exchange is responsible, the sterling drawings having been increased by £200,000 only.

And on the other hand, an increase in the net revenue in India of Rx. 1,310,700, a reduction in the drawings of Provincial Governments on their accumulated balances of Rx. 797,900, a net receipt from Railway Companies on Capital Account of Rx. 29,400 instead of the net payment of Rx. 408,500 which was anticipated, an increase in the opening balance of Rx. 536,961 and other improvements in the net cash receipts which, though large in the aggregate, would require too much detail to be explained here.

Ways and Means in India in 1893-94. Main features.

96. In 1893-94 we have to provide for the payment of Council Bills Rx. 4,301,600 more than was required in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93, about one-half of this being caused by the increase in the sterling drawings and one-half by the fall in the rate of exchange.

To meet this very heavy demand on our cash balances, we have a repayment of a loan of Rx. 616,100 by the Bombay Port Trust, a reduction of Rx. 410,500 in the excess of Provincial and Local Expenditure over Revenue, and some other improvements in net cash receipts.

For the remainder of the increased demand on the balances provision has been made by the entry of a loan of Rx. 3,000,000.

Council Bills, 1893-94.

97. As already explained in paragraphs 35 and 93, the increase in the amount of the Bills of the Secretary of State is not due to any increase in the sterling expenditure of the Government of India, but to the fact that whereas the Secretary of State this year received from Railway Companies on Capital Account more than he paid, the reverse will be the case in 1893-94.

Public Loan.

98. No public loan has been raised in India since 1889-90. The present estimates provide for a loan of three crores in 1893-94. But the Government of India are unable to say whether this is the exact amount that will be raised, and full liberty is reserved, as usual, to modify the present estimates to any extent that may be considered expedient, to increase or reduce the amount of the loan if necessary, and not to issue a loan at all if it should be found that none is required.

Savings Banks.

99. The following are the usual details of the transactions of Savings Banks during the last few years:—

Year	Net additions to deposits cash.	Interest	Total addition.
	Rx	Rx.	Rx.
1887-88	656,330	224,000	880,300
1888-89	685,200	261,800	947,000
1889-90	—362,900	272,200	— 90,700
1890-91	250,700	279,700	530,400
1891-92	517,900	306,200	824,100
1892-93 Budget	459,400	333,800	793,200
1892-93 Revised	636,800	340,400	977,200
1893-94 Budget	438,600	372,400	811,000

The Post Office Savings Banks deposits continue to increase. The Budget Estimate for 1893-94 is taken at about the same amount as in that of 1892-93.

Loans to Municipalities, etc.

100. As stated in paragraphs 34 and 75, the Bombay Port Trust have taken advantage of the favourable state of the money market to raise a 4 per cent. public loan to repay Government the balance of a 4½ per cent. loan of Rx. 616,100. Excluding this special receipt in 1893-94, the net amount of advances in 1893-94 is taken at Rx. 327,900 against Rx. 611,500 entered in the Estimate of 1892-93. The gross amount placed at the disposal of Local Governments and Administrations for advances to Local Bodies, etc., in 1893-94 is Rx. 608,200, being Rx. 54,700 less than the amount entered in the Budget Estimate of the current year. Larger amounts, if available, could be advantageously allotted for advances and loans to cultivators and municipalities, but unfortunately the state of the Government balances does not permit of further amounts being granted at present. The large excess over the Budget of the amount entered in the Revised Estimate of 1892-93 on account of loans to municipalities, etc., is due chiefly to an additional loan having been sanctioned during the year for the Kidderpore Docks, and also to increased advances to agriculturists in Madras and Bombay.

Capital of Railway Companies.

101. The Capital transactions of Railway Companies in 1892-93 are now expected to produce a net receipt in India of Rx. 29,400 instead of a net payment of Rx. 408,500 provided in the Budget Estimate. This is due generally to smaller withdrawals by the Companies and to some extent to the receipt from the Mysore Durbar of Rx. 44,300, being the value of the Nanjangod extension of the Mysore Railway.

Cash balances.

102. The current year is now expected to close with a cash balance of Rx. 15,204,205, and for 1893-94 a closing balance of Rx. 12,643,105 is taken. The estimated transactions of the year thus result in a reduction in the balances of Rx. 2,561,100.

Section VII.—Summary.

103. The principal features in this Statement are—

(a) The Accounts of 1891-92 have closed with a surplus of Rx. 467,535.

(b) The Revised Estimates of 1892-93 show a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900 against the surplus of Rx. 146,600 shown in the Budget Estimates of the year. The sterling Expenditure has considerably exceeded the Budget Estimates; the Expenditure in India has on the whole been less than the Estimates, a considerable increase in Military Expenditure having been more than counterbalanced by a large saving in Opium Expenditure in consequence of the failure of the crop: the Revenue has shown satisfactory progress. If the rate of exchange taken in the Budget Estimate, 1*s*. 4*d*. the rupee, had been realised, there would have been a surplus somewhat higher than that shown in the Budget Estimates. But the fall in the rate of exchange to 1*s*. 3*d*. has caused an increase of Expenditure of Rx. 1,635,300 and converted the surplus into a heavy deficit.

(c) The Budget Estimates of 1893-94 show a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100.

(d) The main cause of the deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 is the fall in the rate of exchange. The Currency question is now under the consideration of the Secretary of State. Till he has decided what action, if any, should be taken in regard to the currency, it is impossible to say whether the deficit in the coming year will be of the amount shown in the Budget Estimate, or whether it will be largely increased, or will disappear and become a surplus. The decision of the Secretary of State is expected to be not much longer delayed, and in the circumstances just stated, the Government of India have postponed for the present the determination of the measures to be taken to place the finances in equilibrium.

(e) The rate of exchange is taken at 1*s*. 2¾*d*, and at that rate the direct addition to the expenditure caused by the fall from 1*s*. 4*d*. is estimated at Rx. 1,989,400.

(f) The sterling Expenditure will be somewhat less than in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. The Expenditure in India will, on the other hand, be considerably higher. The estimate of net revenue from Opium is taken at Rx. 5,061,200, being lower than the amount taken for any of the last 22 years. A substantial improvement in Railway Revenue and in the Revenues generally is anticipated.

(g) The Capital Expenditure on Railways and Irrigation Works, not charged against Revenue, is estimated at Rx. 3,986,700 in 1892-93 and at Rx. 3,550,000 in 1893-94. These sums are in addition to Rx. 1,215,400 charged against Revenue and the Famine Grant in 1892-93, and Rx. 1,119,300 charged against the Famine Grant in 1893-94.

(h) It is expected that the Secretary of State will in 1893-94 sell Council Bills to the amount of £18,700,000 and raise a loan of £1,300,000 for the discharge of Railway Debentures. These announcements are accompanied by the usual reservation of entire liberty to the Secretary of State to vary the amounts to be obtained by bills or raised by loan as he may find occasion.

(i) The Estimates provide for the issue of a loan in India of Rx. 3,000,000. Full liberty is, however, reserved to the Government of India to raise a smaller or a larger loan, or not to raise a loan at all if it should appear later that none is required.

(j) The dominant factor influencing the financial position of India at the present time is the rate of Exchange. If that rate rises as high as 1*s*. 4*d*., the deficit shown in the Budget Estimates will disappear. If it falls still further, the deficit will be further increased: it is impossible for the Government of India to decide what measures should be taken for the restoration of financial equilibrium until the Home authorities have given their decision on the currency question.

Summary of Financial Statement, 1893-94.

THE Financial Statement was presented to the Legislative Council to-day, and is puhlished in a Gazette Extraordinary.

The Accounts of 1891-92 have closed with a surplus of Rx. 467,000.

In the Revised Estimates for 1892-93 the Revenue is estimated at Rx. 90,021,200 and the Expenditure at Rx. 91,103,100, giving a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900.

The fall in the rate of Exchange during the year below 1*s*. 4*d*., the rate taken in the Budget, has added Rx. 1,635,300 to the Expenditure, and there has also been a considerable increase of sterling expenditure, and of expenditure on the Army in India. On the other side of the account, there has been an increase of net Opium Revenue in India to the extent of Rx. 971,900 and a large and satisfactory growth of general Revenue. The unfavourable influences outweigh the favourable, and instead of the surplus of Rx. 146,600 shown in the Budget, a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900 is expected. It is explained that the large increase in net Opium Revenue is due to an unfavourable season and a poor opium crop. The payments for crude opium have consequently been less than the Estimate, and the selling price of Bengal opium has largely risen owing to reduction from 1st October of the quantity sold monthly.

In the Budget for 1893-94 the Revenue is estimated at Rx. 90,005,700 and the Expenditure at Rx. 91,600,800, giving a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100.

The rate of Exchange is taken at 1*s*. 2$\frac{3}{4}$d., and the fall in the rate of Exchange adds Rx. 1,989,400 directly and Rx. 240,000 indirectly to the Expenditure, making a total addition to Expenditure of Rx. 2,229,400. There is also, as compared with the Budget figures of 1892-93, some addition to Expenditure on the Army in India, and some reduction in net Opium Revenue.

Among the influences which have favourably affected the Estimates of 1893-94 are an increase of ordinary Revenue of Rx. 647,700, some improvement in net RailwayReceipts, and some reduction in net sterling Expenditure and in ordinary Expenditure in India.

It is explained that the fall in the rate of exchange has in two years added Rx. 4,142,400 to the Expenditure, and that the future of Indian finance at the present time depends on the course of Exchange.

Although the Government of India are most unwilling to budget for a deficit, it is considered inexpedient to take measures for the restoration of financial equilibrium until the Home Government have received the Report of Lord Herschell's Committee and given their decision on the Indian Currency question.

It is clearly shown that any measures which could be adopted at the present moment must be either inadequate or unnecessary, and it is stated that the decision on the currency question cannot be much longer delayed. Sir David Barbour appeals to all persons who have taken part in the disputes on the currency question to put aside personal feeling in the matter, to accept whatever decision may now be given, and to endeavour loyally to carry it into effect. He adds that he is willing to take this course himself, though he still prefers a settlement of the question by International agreement, and hopes that it may be possible to secure it at some future time.

Notwithstanding the difficulties of the present day he repeats his former opinion that the resources of India are adequate to her wants, but on the condition that the measures of the Government of India are taken in good time, are regulated by prudence and forethought, and are carried into effect with strict regard to economy.

The Estimates of 1893-94 provide Rx. 3,550,000 for Capital Expenditure not charged to Revenue as well as Rx. 1,119,300 under the Famine Grant for construction of Railways and Canals.

It is expected that a loan of Rx. 3,000,000 will be raised in India during the year, but no pledge is given.

It is announced under the usual reserve that the Secretary of State will probably draw bills for £18,700,000 during the coming year, and will raise a loan for £1,300,000 for discharge of Railway debentures.

No. 1541, dated 29th August 1889.
No 2401, dated 16th December 1889.
No. 878, dated 8th May 1891.

No. 321.—IN exercise of the power conferred by section 17 of the Indian Arms Act (XI of 1878), and in supersession, as regards both Upper and Lower Burma, of Home Department Notifications marginally cited, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules to determine the officers by whom, the form in which, and the terms and conditions on and subject to which licenses to possess arms, ammunition, and military stores, and to go armed, in Burma may be granted :—

RULES.

13. Licenses to possess arms and ammunition in reasonable quantities, and to go armed for purposes of sport or protection or display, may be granted by the District Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, in Form VIII of the forms appended to the rules issued with the Notification of the Government of India, No. 518, dated the 6th March 1879. For each such license a fee of four annas per weapon shall be paid. Such a license authorizes its holder to carry the arms described in the license on occasions when they may reasonably be required for the purposes named in the license. But the holder, unless specially authorized by the Magistrate, must not go armed in railway carriages, to fairs, religious processions, pwès, or other public assemblages. Licenses granted under this rule may be counter-signed by the Commissioner of a division for any one or more districts of his division, and shall then be valid for the district or districts specified by the Commissioner. Such licenses, on countersignature by a Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, shall be valid for any divisions or districts specified by such Secretary.

14. Licenses to possess arms and ammunition, and to go armed, may be granted by the District Magistrate in Form A to persons living in fenced or stockaded villages, subject to the conditions endorsed on Form A and on payment of a fee of four annas for each license.

15. Licenses to possess arms and ammunition, and to go armed, may be granted in special cases by the District Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner of the division, in Form B, to circle thugyis and village headmen who require arms for their protection but are not able to fulfil the conditions of licenses in Form A. Such licenses shall be granted subject to the conditions endorsed on Form B and on payment of a fee of four annas for each license.

16. Licenses to possess arms and ammunition, and to go armed, may be granted by the District Magistrate in Form C to persons employed in forests, who require arms for their protection but are not eligible for licenses in Form A. Such licenses shall be granted subject to the conditions endorsed on Form C and on payment of a fee of four annas for each license.

16A. Licenses in Form D to possess arms and ammunition, and to go armed, may be granted only to residents in the Mergui and Salween Districts and in the Hill Tracts of Northern Arakan, by the District Magistrate, subject to the conditions endorsed on Form D and on payment of a fee of four annas for each license.

16B. Licenses to possess military stores, other than lead, may be granted by the District Magistrate in Form X of the forms appended to the rules issued with the Notification of the Government of India, No. 518, dated the 6th March 1879.

Licenses to possess lead in reasonable quantities proved to the satisfaction of the District Magistrate to be bonâ fide required for manufacturing or industrial purposes, other than the manufacture of ammunition, may be granted by the District Magistrate in the said Form X.

Licenses under this rule shall be granted subject to the conditions endorsed on the said form, and shall be granted without payment of any fee.

Form for renewal of License.

Date and year of renewal.	Date on which the renewed license expires.	Signature of Magistrate.

Terms and Conditions subject to which a License in Form A is to be granted.

[To be printed on the reverse of the License Form]

1. This license is granted subject to the provisions of the Indian Arms Act, 1878, and the rules framed thereunder.

2. It covers only the persons and arms named therein, unless it is certified to cover retainers of the holder.

3. It is void after the 31st March next following the date on which it is granted. The license-holder can have it renewed by presenting an application for its renewal on paper stamped with a four-anna stamp.

4. It extends only to the district or place named therein.

5. When the license covers firearms or ammunition, it is granted subject to the following conditions, and shall be void if and as soon as any of these conditions ceases to be fulfilled :—

(a) that the village in which the license-holder resides contains at least 50 houses ;

(b) that there are at least nine other license-holders in the village ;

[N.B.—Conditions (a) and (b) may be relaxed in the case of Karens of proved loyalty recommended by their Missionaries, and in other special cases, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the Division, provided that in no case shall the number of guns in any village be less than five.]

(c) that the village is well fenced or stockaded, so as to prevent its being rushed, and that the ground round it is kept clear of jungle or cover for the space of 50 yards ;

(d) that the license-holder engages to act as a special constable, and to resist dacoits whenever the village is attacked, and to pursue them when called upon by a competent authority. A competent authority means the headman of the village in which the license-holder resides or a Civil Officer not below the rank of Circle Thugyi in Lower Burma or Myoôk in Upper Burma, or a Police Officer not below the rank of Jemadar of Military Police or Head Constable of Civil Police, or any Military Officer in command of a party of troops ;

(e) that the license-holder shall not carry his firearm beyond the boundaries of his own village unless he has been called out by a competent authority to pursue dacoits or by the headman or thugyi to assist in the transport of public revenue or in any other public duty ; or, unless, being himself a headman or thugyi, he is engaged in the collection or transport of the public revenue or in any public duty ; provided that in Lower Burma the license-holder, when wearing his uniform or badge, may carry his gun within the limits of the circle in which his village is situated ;

(f) that if the license-holder is obliged to go away and leave his gun in the village for the night, he shall deposit it with the headman of his village until his return ;

[N. B.—If the license-holder is himself a thugyi or headman he shall deposit his gun with another trustworthy license-holder.]

(g) that the license-holder shall provide himself with a uniform jacket or badge, which will be given to him at cost price by the District Superintendent of Police, and that he shall wear this uniform or badge whenever he is called upon to act beyond the boundaries of his own village ;

(h) that he shall produce his gun for inspection whenever called upon by a Civil Officer not below the rank of a Myoôk in Upper Burma or of a Circle Thugyi in Lower Burma, or by a Military Police Officer not below the rank of Jemadar, or by a Civil Police Officer not below the rank of Head Constable ;

(i) that he shall keep and produce for inspection, when required, half a pound of powder, 50 caps, and a proportionate quantity of bullets or buck-shot ;

(j) that he shall not purchase ammunition from any one but the District Superintendent of Police ;

(k) that if the license-holder lends, loses, or in any way parts with his gun, this license and all other licenses to possess and carry firearms granted in the village in which the said license-holder resides shall be cancelled, and the firearms confiscated :

(l) this license is liable to be withdrawn at any time at the discretion of Government.

6. The license-holder when purchasing any new arms or ammunition shall have the following particulars endorsed upon his license under the vendor's signature :—

(1) the name and address of the person who takes delivery of the articles purchased ;

(2) the nature and amount of the articles purchased ;

(3) the date of purchase.

7. If any weapon covered by this license is lost or stolen, the license-holder shall at once give notice of the fact to the nearest police station.

8. The special attention of the license-holder is drawn to the following provisions of the Indian Arms Act, 1878 :—

Section 13.—" No person shall go armed with any arms except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted thereby.

Any person so going armed without a license or in contravention of its provisions may be disarmed by any Magistrate, Police Officer or other person empowered by the Local Government in this behalf by name or by virtue of his office."

[In Burma, the following persons have been so empowered, viz.—thugyis, village headmen, and rural policemen.]

Section 19.—"Whoever

*   *   *   *   *

goes armed in contravention of the provisions of section 13,

*   *   *   *   *

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years or with fine, or with both."

(e) that if the license-holder lends, loses, or in any way parts with his gun, this license and, if the license-holder resides in a village, all other licenses to possess or carry firearms granted in the village in which the said license-holder resides, shall be cancelled and the firearms confiscated ;

(f) this license is liable to be withdrawn at any time at the discretion of Government.

6. The license-holder when purchasing any new arms or ammunition shall have the following particulars endorsed upon his license under the vendor's signature :—

(1) the name and address of the person who takes delivery of the articles purchased ;

(2) the nature and amount of the articles purchased ;

(3) the date of purchase.

7. If any weapon covered by this license is lost or stolen, the license holder shall at once give notice of the fact to the nearest police-station.

8. The special attention of the license-holder is drawn to the following provisions of the Indian Arms Act, 1878:—

Section 13.—" No person shall go armed with any arms except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted thereby.

Any person so going armed without a license or in contravention of its provisions may be disarmed by any Magistrate, Police Officer, or other person empowered by the Local Government in this behalf by name or by virtue of his office."

[In Burma the following persons have been so empowered, viz.—Thugyis, village-headmen, and rural policemen.]

Section 19.—" Whoever

* * * * * *

goes armed in contravention of the provisions of section 13,

* * * * * *

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both."

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Part I, of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source, history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial), trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages, Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G, Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 9th March 1893, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT NO. IV OF 1893.

An Act to amend the Law relating to Partition.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to partition; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Title, extent, commencement and saving.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Partition Act, 1893.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

(4) But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect any local law providing for the partition of immoveable property paying revenue to Government.

Power to Court to order sale instead of division in partition suits.

2. Whenever in any suit for partition in which, if instituted prior to the commencement of this Act, a decree for partition might have been made, it appears to the Court that, by reason of the nature of the property to which the suit relates, or of the number of the shareholders therein, or of any other special circumstance, a division of the property cannot reasonably or conveniently be made, and that a sale of the property and distribution of the proceeds would be more beneficial for all the shareholders, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the request of any of such shareholders interested individually or collectively to the extent of one moiety or upwards, direct a sale of the property and a distribution of the proceeds.

Procedure when sharer undertakes to buy.

3. (1) If, in any case in which the Court is requested under the last foregoing section to direct a sale, any other shareholder applies for leave to buy at a valuation the share or shares of the party or parties asking for sale, the Court shall order a valuation of the share or shares in such manner as it may think fit and offer to sell the same to such shareholder at the price so ascertained, and may give all necessary and proper directions in that behalf.

(2) If two or more shareholders severally apply for leave to buy as provided in sub-section (1), the Court shall order a sale of the share or shares to the shareholder who offers to pay the highest price above the valuation made by the Court.

(3) If no such shareholder is willing to buy such share or shares at the price so ascertained, the applicant or applicants shall be liable to pay all costs of or incident to the application or applications.

Partition suit by transferee of share in dwelling-house.

4. (1) Where a share of a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family has been transferred to a person who is not a member of such family and such transferee sues for partition, the Court shall, if any member of the family being a shareholder shall undertake to buy the share of such transferee, make a valuation of such share in such manner as it thinks fit and direct the sale of such share to such shareholder, and may give all necessary and proper directions in that behalf.

(2) If in any case described in sub-section (1) two or more members of the family being such shareholders severally undertake to buy such share, the Court shall follow the procedure prescribed by sub-section (2) of the last foregoing section.

Representation of parties under disability.

5. In any suit for partition a request for sale may be made or an undertaking, or application for leave, to buy may be given or made on behalf of any party under disability by any person authorized to act on behalf of such party in such suit, but the Court shall not be bound to comply with any such request, undertaking or application unless it is of opinion that the sale or purchase will be for the benefit of the party under such disability.

Reserved bidding and bidding by shareholders.

6. (1) Every sale under section 2 shall be subject to a reserved bidding, and the amount of such bidding shall be fixed by the Court in such manner as it may think fit and may be varied from time to time.

(2) On any such sale any of the shareholders shall be at liberty to bid at the sale on such terms as to non-payment of deposit or as to setting off or accounting for the purchase-money or any part thereof instead of paying the same as to the Court may seem reasonable.

(3) If two or more persons, of whom one is a shareholder in the property, respectively advance the same sum at any bidding at such sale, such bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the shareholder.

Procedure to be followed in case of sales.

7. Save as hereinbefore provided, when any property is directed to be sold under this Act, the following procedure shall, as far as practicable, be adopted, namely :—

(a) if the property be sold under a decree or order of the High Court of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, or of the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, the procedure of such Court in its original civil jurisdiction for the sale of property by the Registrar ;

(b) if the property be sold under a decree or order of any other Court, such procedure as the High Court may from time to time by rules prescribe in this behalf, and until such rules are made the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure in respect of sales in execution of decrees. XIV of 1882

Orders for sale to be deemed decrees.

8. Any order for sale made by the Court under section 2, 3 or 4 shall be deemed to be a decree within the meaning of section 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure. XIV of 1882

Saving of power to order partly partition and partly sale.

9. In any suit for partition the Court may, if it shall think fit, make a decree for a partition of part of the property to which the suit relates and a sale of the remainder under this Act.

Application of Act to pending suits.

10. This Act shall apply to suits instituted before the commencement thereof, in which no scheme for the partition of the property has been finally approved by the Court.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 9th March, 1893, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. V OF 1893.

An Act to legalise in certain cases the execution within British India of capital sentences which have been passed by British Courts exercising in or with respect to territory beyond the limits of British India jurisdiction which the Governor General in Council has in such territory.

WHEREAS a capital sentence is occasionally passed by a British Court exercising in or with respect to territory beyond the limits of British India jurisdiction which the Governor General in Council has in such territory;

And whereas there may be in such territory no secure place for the confinement of a prisoner under sentence of death or no suitable appliances for his execution in a decent and humane manner;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Execution in British India of certain capital sentences not ordinarily executable there.

1. When a British Court in the exercise of such jurisdiction as is referred to in the first paragraph of the preamble to this Act—

(a) has sentenced any person to death, and,

(b) being of opinion that such sentence should for any such reason as is referred to in the second paragraph of the said preamble be executed in British India, has issued its warrant for the execution of such sentence to the superintendent or keeper of a jail in British India, such superintendent or keeper shall, on receipt of such warrant, cause the execution to be carried out at such place as may be prescribed therein in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in all respects as if it were a warrant duly issued under the provisions of section 381 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882. X of 1882.

Jails in which sentences are to be executed.

2. The jails of which the superintendents or keepers are to execute sentences under any such warrants shall be such as the Governor General in Council, or a Local Government authorised by him in this behalf, may by general or special order direct.

Certain tribunals to be deemed British Courts under Act.

3. The tribunals mentioned in the proviso to section 19 of the Prisoners Act, 1871, shall be deemed to be British Courts for the purposes of this Act : V of 1871.

Provided that every warrant issued under this Act by any such Court shall be signed by that one of the presiding Judges thereof who is the "officer of Government" mentioned in such proviso.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 9th March, 1893, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT NO. VI OF 1893.

An Act for settling Bonds of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay producing an annual income of one lakh and twenty-five thousand rupees and a Mansion-house and hereditaments called "Petit Hall" in the Island of Bombay, the property of Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, Baronet, so as to accompany and support the title and dignity of a Baronet lately conferred by Her Present Majesty Queen Victoria on him for and during the term of his natural life, and from and immediately after his decease to hold to his second son, Framjee Dinshaw Petit, Esquire, and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten, and in default of such issue with remainder to the heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, and for other purposes connected therewith.

WHEREAS by Letters Patent of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, dated at Westminster on or about the first day of September in the fifty-fourth year of Her Reign, and by Warrant under the Queen's sign-manual, Her said Majesty made known that she, of Her special Grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, had erected, appointed and created her trusty and well beloved Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, of "Petit Hall," in the Island of Bombay, Kinght, to the dignity, state and degree of a Baronet, and him, the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, for Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, she did erect, appoint and create a Baronet of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland by the said Letters Patent, to hold to him, for and during the term of his natural life, and from and immediately after his decease to hold to Framjee Dinshaw Petit, Esquire, second son of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten and to be begotten, and in default of such issue with remainder to the heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit lawfully begotten and to be begotten;

And whereas in fulfilment of an engagement in that behalf made with Her Majesty's Government the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit is desirous of settling in perpetuity such property on himself and on the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit and the heirs male of their respective bodies who may succeed to the said Baronetcy, as shall be adequate to support the dignity of the title conferred on him and them as aforesaid;

And whereas the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit is seised of a Mansion-house and hereditaments situate in the Island of Bombay called "Petit Hall," and has an absolute estate of inheritance therein, and is desirous, in fulfilment of the aforesaid engagement, of settling bonds or debentures of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay producing an annual income of one lakh and twenty-five thousand rupees, and the said Mansion-house and hereditaments, to the uses, upon the trusts and for the purposes hereinafter limited and declared, concerning the same respectively;

And whereas the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit is also desirous that the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit and the heirs male of his body, and also the heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, to whom the said title and dignity of Baronet shall descend, shall, at the time of such descent upon them respectively, take and bear the names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit" in lieu of any other name or names whatever which they respectively may bear at the time of such descent on them respectively; and he is also desirous that the Accountant-General, Bombay, the Collector of Bombay and the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Bombay, all for the time being, shall be trustees of the aforesaid Municipal bonds, Mansion-house and hereditaments, and be likewise the trustees for carrying into execution the general purposes and powers of this Act, with relation to the same securities and also with relation to the same Mansion-house and hereditaments;

And whereas the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit is desirous of settling the said bonds and the said Mansion-house and hereditaments so as aforesaid agreed to be settled by him for the purpose of supporting the dignity of the said Baronetcy, to the uses, upon the trusts and for the purposes hereinafter limited and declared concerning the same respectively:

And whereas it is expedient that the aforesaid purposes should be effected by an Act of the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations;

It is enacted as follows:—

Incorporation of trustees.

1. That Arthur Frederick Cox, Esquire, the Accountant General of Bombay, James MacNabb Campbell, Esquire, the Collector of Bombay, and Charles Philip Cooper, Esquire, the Chief Presidency Magistrate of Bombay, and their successors, the Accountant-General of Bombay, the Collector of Bombay, and the Chief Presidency Magistrate of Bombay, all for the time being, shall be and they are hereby created a Corporation with perpetual succession and a common seal under the style and title of "The Trustees of the Dinshaw Manockjee Petit Baronetcy," and that the said Arthur Frederick Cox, James MacNabb Campbell, and Charles Philip Cooper, and their said successors (hereinafter styled "The Corporation)," shall be and they are hereby constituted, as such Corporation, the Trustees for executing the powers and purposes of this Act.

Heirs of Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit to take his name.

2. The said Framjee Dinshaw Petit and the heirs male of his body and all other the heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, to whom the said title and dignity shall descend, pursuant to the limitations of the Patent whereby the said dignity was granted, shall take upon themselves respectively the names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit" in lieu and in the place of any other name or names whatever; and the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit, and also such heirs male of his body and all such other the heirs male of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit severally and successively, shall be called by the names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit," and by those names shall name, style and write themselves, respectively, upon all occasions whatever.

3. Immediately from and after the passing of this Act, bonds of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay producing an annual income of not less than one lakh and twenty-five thousand rupees shall be transferred into the name of the Corporation, who shall hold the same upon the trusts and for the purposes hereinafter expressed concerning the same, (that is to say,) upon trust to continue to hold the said bonds until the same shall be discharged by the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay or shall be sold by the said Trustees at their discretion, and on such discharge or sale to invest the sum to be received on such occasion in or on any stocks, funds or securities of or the principal or interest of which is guaranteed by the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or the Government of India; and in like manner, as often as the same shall become necessary, to alter, vary and change such stocks, funds and securities for others of the same or like nature; and upon further trust from time to time to pay and apply the dividends, interest and annual income of the said bonds, stocks, funds and securities unto and for the benefit of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit during his natural life; and from and immediately after his decease for the benefit of the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit if he shall survive the said Dinshaw Manockjee Petit during his natural life; and from and immediately after the death of the survivor of them the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit and Framjee Dinshaw Petit for the benefit of the person who, as heir male of the body of the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit or of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, as the case may be, shall for the time being have succeeded to and be in the enjoyment of the title of Baronet conferred by the said Letters Patent as aforesaid notwithstanding any rule of law or equity to the contrary, and upon failure and in default of heirs male of the body of the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit and Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, to whom the same title and dignity of Baronet may descend, upon trust for the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, his executors, administrators and assigns, which ultimate remainder or reversion it shall be lawful for the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, his executors, administrators and assigns, at any time or times, during the continuance of the said title and dignity of Baronet, and until there shall be a failure of heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit as aforesaid to assign, transfer, bequeath and dispose of by deed or will or other assurance or assurances.

Application of income during minority.

4. The Corporation during the minority of any person for the time being entitled to and in enjoyment of the said dignity of Baronet under the limitations of the said Letters Patent shall pay and apply for and towards the maintenance, education and benefit of such Baronet, in each and every year during such his minority as aforesaid, so much only of the annual interest, dividends and income of the said Trust Funds and premises as the Corporation shall in their discretion think proper, and shall from time to time invest the residue of the said annual dividends, interest and income of the said Trust Funds and premises in and upon stocks, funds and securities of or the principal or interest of which is guaranteed by the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or the Government of India, and shall upon such Baronet attaining his majority pay over, transfer and assign to him or as he shall direct and for his absolute benefit the said investments and all accumulations thereof.

Mansion-house limited to the use of the Baronet for the time being.

5. The Mansion-house and other hereditaments called "Petit Hall" situate in the Island of Bombay, with their rights, members and appurtenances, of which the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit is seised to him and his heirs, shall, by force of this Act, from and immediately after the passing thereof, stand limited unto and to the use of the Corporation upon the trusts hereinafter declared, (that is to say,) upon trust for the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit for and during the term of his natural life and from and immediately after his decease upon trust for the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit for and during the term of his natural life, provided he shall survive the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, and from and immediately after the decease of the survivor of them the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit and Framjee Dinshaw Petit upon trust for the heirs male of the body of the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit who may succeed to the title of Baronet conferred by the said Letters Patent as aforesaid, and, upon failure and default of heirs male of the body of the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit to whom the same title and dignity of Baronet may descend as aforesaid, upon trust for the heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit who may succeed to the said title, and upon failure and default of such last-mentioned heirs male upon trust for the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, his heirs and assigns for ever, which ultimate remainder or reversion it shall be lawful for the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit and his heirs and assigns at any time or times during the continuance of the said title and dignity of Baronet, and until there shall be a failure of heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, as aforesaid, to grant, convey, devise and dispose of by deed or will or by any other assurance or assurances by which such an estate in remainder or reversion is capable by law of being conveyed or disposed of by Parsee inhabitants of British India.

Devolution of interest where beneficiary refuses, neglects or discontinues to use the names Dinshaw Manockjee Petit.

6. Provided always that in case any person to whom for the time being the said title of Baronet shall have descended shall, for the space of one whole year after he shall by virtue of this Act become entitled to the dividends, interest and income of the said stocks, funds and securities, or to the possession or receipt of the rents and profits of the said hereditaments, or being then under age shall for the space of one whole year after he shall attain the age of twenty-one years, refuse or neglect to use the names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit" as hereinbefore enacted, or in case any such person having so used those names shall, for the space of six calendar months consecutively during his natural life, discontinue so to use such names, then, in any or either of the said cases, the estate or interest in the said trust funds and premises of the person who shall so refuse or neglect to use or having used shall so discontinue to use the said names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit" shall during the remainder of his respective natural life be suspended; and that, during any and every such suspension, the dividends, interest and income of the said stocks, funds and securities, and the possession and actual occupation and also the rents and profits of the said hereditaments shall devolve and belong to the person who, as heir male of the body of the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit or the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, as the case may be, would have succeeded to and been in the enjoyment of the title of Baronet conferred by the said Letters Patent in case the person so refusing or neglecting to use or discontinuing to use the said names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit" had departed this life; but if there should be no such heir male, then to the person or persons who would be entitled to the same in case there had then been a total failure of issue male of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit.

Power to charge settled property for jointure of widow.

7. It shall be lawful for the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit and Framjee Dinshaw Petit, and for any person upon whom the said title of Baronet shall from time to time descend, when in the actual enjoyment of the said title, and who shall not refuse, neglect or discontinue to use, for the respective periods hereinbefore in that behalf mentioned, the said names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit" as hereinbefore enacted, either before or after his marriage with any woman or women by any deed or deeds, writing or writings, with or without power of revocation to be by him sealed and delivered in the presence of two or more credible witnesses (but subject and without prejudice to any annuity or annuities, if any, which shall be then subsisting and payable by virtue of any appointment made under and in pursuance of this present power), to limit and appoint unto any woman or women whom he shall marry for her or their life or lives, and for her or their jointure or jointures in bar of dower or other legal or customary rights any annuity or yearly sum not exceeding the sum of ten thousand rupees, clear of all taxes, charges and deductions whatsoever to commence and take effect immediately after the decease of the person limiting or appointing the same and to be issuing and payable out of the dividends, interests and annual income of the said stocks, funds and securities, and to be paid and payable by equal half-yearly payments on the thirtieth day of June and the thirty-first day of December, the first of the said half-yearly payments to be made on the half-yearly day which shall first happen after the decease of the person who shall have appointed such annuity or yearly sum: Provided always that in case any person on whom such title shall descend shall have refused or neglected to use the names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit" or shall discontinue to use such names for six calendar months consecutively during his natural life, every such limitation and appointment, either previously or afterwards made by him, shall be and become inoperative and invalid, and no such annuity thereby created or appointed shall take effect or be payable, or chargeable, on the said stocks, funds and securities, notwithstanding any such limitation or appointment.

Limitation to amount of jointure.

8. Provided always that the said dividends, interest and annual income of the said stocks, funds and securities shall not at one and the same time be subject to the payment of more than the yearly sum of twenty thousand rupees for or in respect of any jointure or jointures which shall be made in pursuance of the power hereinbefore contained, so that if by virtue of or under the same power the said dividends, interest and annual income would, in case this present provision had not been inserted, be charged at any one time with a greater yearly sum for jointures in the whole than the yearly sum of twenty thousand rupees, the yearly sum which shall occasion such excess or such part thereof as shall occasion the same shall during the time of such excess abate and not be payable.

Exclusion of wives from interest in Mansion-house.

9. The said Mansion-house and hereditaments called "Petit Hall," with their rights, members and appurtenances, shall not be subject to any right, interest or estate whatsoever which the wife of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit or Framjee Dinshaw Petit or the wives of any of the persons who shall successively become entitled thereto may or might have or claim to have in the said Mansion-house and hereditaments under any custom or law of the Parsees, or otherwise howsoever.

Limitation of transfers to life of transferor.

10. Save as regards the ultimate remainders or reversions, hereinbefore limited in trust for the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns respectively, so long as the said title and dignity of Baronet shall endure, and until there shall be a failure of heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, to whom the said title and dignity of Baronet might descend pursuant to the limitations of the Patent whereby the said dignity was granted, neither the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit nor the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit nor any of the heirs male of their respective bodies in whose favour trusts are hereinbefore declared of the dividends, interest and annual income of the said bonds, stocks, funds and securities or of the said Mansion-house and hereditaments called "Petit Hall," shall transfer, dispose of, alien, convey, charge or encumber the said bonds, stocks, funds, and securities or any part thereof, or the dividends, interest and annual income thereof, or of any part thereof, or the said Mansion-house or hereditaments, or any part thereof, for any greater or larger estate, interest or time than during his natural life, and for such portion thereof only as he shall continue to use the names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit," nor shall any such person as aforesaid either alone or jointly with any other or others of them or with any other person or persons whomsoever have any power to discontinue or bar the estates tail hereinbefore limited in trust for the heirs male of the respective bodies of the said Framjee Dinshaw Petit and Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, or either of them, or any estate or interest hereby or herein created or declared in trust or for the benefit of any person or persons for whose benefit trusts are declared by this Act of the dividends, interest and annual income of the said bonds, stocks, funds and securities, or of the said Mansion-house, hereditaments and the rents and profits thereof, or to prevent any such person or persons from succeeding to, holding or enjoying, receiving or taking the same premises according to the true intent of the provisions hereinbefore contained, nor shall the same premises or any of them be held by any Court of law or equity to have vested in any such person as aforesaid for any greater estate or interest than during his life, and only during such portion thereof as he shall continue to use the names of "Dinshaw Manockjee Petit," and every attempt to make any conveyance, assignment or assurance contrary to the intention of this Act shall be, and is hereby, declared and enacted to be void.

Addition of stocks, funds or securities to settled property.

11. If at any time or times hereafter the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit or any other person or persons shall be desirous of augmenting the funds and securities for the time being subject to the trusts of this Act, and for that purpose and with that intent shall at his or her own expense transfer and deliver to the Corporation any stocks, funds or securities of or the principal or interest of which is guaranteed by the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or the Government of India, then and as often as the same shall happen the said Corporation may, with the previous consent of the Governor of Bombay in Council, accept such stocks, funds and securities, and the same shall thenceforth be held by the said Corporation upon the same trusts as are declared by this Act with regard to the said bonds of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay, or upon such of them as shall then be subsisting and capable of taking effect: Provided always that the total amount of the stocks, funds and securities for the time being subject to the trusts of this Act shall at no time exceed fifty lakhs of rupees.

Insurance of Mansion-house, and application of moneys received in respect of insurance.

12. The Corporation shall keep the said Mansion-house called "Petit Hall," and all the out-buildings and offices thereof, and also all other messuages or buildings which may from time to time be added thereto or substituted therefor, or which may hereafter become subject to any of the trusts of this Act, adequately insured in the name of the said Corporation or of the persons for the time being constituting the same against loss or damage by fire, and may apply any portion of the income of the funds for the time being subject to the trusts of this Act to that purpose, and in case the hereditaments and premises so insured or any part thereof shall be destroyed or damaged by fire, the moneys received in respect of such insurance shall either be laid out under the direction of the said Corporation in re-building or reinstating the hereditaments and premises so destroyed or damaged by fire, or, upon the application of the person for the time being entitled to and in the enjoyment of the said dignity of Baronet and with the consent of the Governor of Bombay in Council, to be notified by a resolution of the Government of Bombay, may be laid out in the purchase of other hereditaments in the Presidency of Bombay suitable for the support of the dignity of the said title, in which last-mentioned case the hereditaments so purchased shall immediately from and after the completion of the purchase thereof be and become subject to the uses and trusts of this Act or such of them as shall then be subsisting and capable of taking effect in the same manner and to the same effect as if such last-mentioned hereditaments had expressly been named or described in the fifth section of this Act. Until such insurance moneys shall have been so laid out the Corporation may invest the same or any part thereof in any of the Government securities specified in section 16.

Mansion-house and other hereditaments to be kept in repair.

13. The said Mansion-house and premises called "Petit Hall," and all additions thereto, and also all other messuages and hereditaments which from time to time may be or become subject to the trusts declared by this Act concerning the said Mansion-house and premises, shall be kept in good repair, order and condition by and at the expense of the person for the time being in the enjoyment of the title of Baronet conferred by the said Letters Patent, and in case any such person shall at any time neglect or refuse to keep the said Mansion-house, hereditaments and premises or any of them in such good order and condition, it shall be lawful for the Corporation to keep or cause the same to be kept in good order and condition and to defray the expense incident thereto from the income of the funds for the time being subject to the provisions of this Act.

Power of Corporation to sell or exchange Mansion-house or other hereditaments.

14. The Corporation shall hold the said Mansion-house and hereditaments known as "Petit Hall," and also any other hereditaments for the time being vested in them by virtue of this Act, upon trust with the consent of the person entitled to and in the actual enjoyment of the title of Baronet conferred by the said Letters Patent, and with the consent of the Governor of Bombay in Council to be notified as aforesaid, to sell or exchange for other lands or hereditaments in the Presidency of Bombay the said Mansion-house and hereditaments, and also any other such hereditaments as aforesaid, and upon any such exchange to give or receive any money for equality of exchange.

Powers of Corporation in respect of such sale or exchange.

15. And it is hereby declared that any such sale as aforesaid may be made either by public auction or private contract, and that the Corporation may make any stipulations as to title or evidence or commencement of title or otherwise in any conditions of sale or contract for sale or exchange of the said hereditaments or any part thereof, and may buy in or rescind or vary any contract for sale or exchange and re-sell or re-exchange without being responsible for any loss occasioned thereby.

Investment of moneys received on such sale or exchange.

16. And it is hereby declared that the said Corporation shall receive all moneys which may become payable upon any such sale or exchange as aforesaid, and with all convenient speed invest the same either in the purchase of any stocks, funds or securities of or the principal and interest of which is guaranteed by the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or the Government of India, or in the purchase of other lands or hereditaments situate in the Presidency of Bombay and suitable for the support of the dignity of the said title, yet so as that every such purchase of lands or hereditaments be made with the consent in writing of the person then entitled to and in the actual enjoyment of the said title.

Investments and lands resulting from such sale or exchange to be held on trusts declared by this Act.

17. And it is hereby declared that the stocks, funds and securities and the lands or hereditaments, respectively, so to be purchased or taken in exchange as aforesaid shall from and immediately after the completion of the purchase or exchange thereof, respectively, be held upon the trusts in and by this Act declared of and concerning the said bonds of the Municipal Corporation for the City of Bombay and the said Mansion-house and premises called "Petit Hall," respectively, or such of them, respectively, as may then be subsisting and capable of taking effect.

Reimbursement of expenses of Corporation

18. It shall be lawful for the Corporation out of the money which shall come to their hands by virtue of the trusts and provisions of this Act to retain and reimburse themselves all costs, damages and expenses which they shall or may sustain, expend or disburse in or about the execution of the aforesaid powers, trusts and provisions, or in relation thereto.

Saving existing rights

19. Saving always to the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, Her heirs and successors, and to all and every other person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, and his, her and their respective heirs, successors, executors and administrators and every of them (other than and except the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, his devisees, heirs and assigns), all such estate, right, title, interest, claim and demand whatsoever of, into, out of or upon the said Mansion-house and hereditaments called "Petit Hall," or any part or parts thereof, as they, every or any of them, had before the passing of this Act, and would, could or might have had, held or enjoyed in case this Act had not been passed.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th March, 1893 :—

No. 7 of 1893.

A Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, and the Indian Limitation Act, 1877; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

XIV of 1882. XV of 1877.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Civil Procedure Code Amendment Act, 1893; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Addition of section after section 310 of the Code.

2. After section 310 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the following shall be inserted, namely :— XIV of 1882.

Application by judgment-debtor to set aside sale.

"310A. Any person whose immoveable property has been sold under this Chapter may apply to have the sale set aside on his depositing in Court for payment to the decree-holder the amount recoverable under the decree with costs, and for payment to the purchaser a sum equal to five per centum of the purchase-money.

"Provided that, if a person applies under the next succeeding section to set aside the sale of his immoveable property, he shall not be entitled to make an application under this section."

Amendments in section 312 of the Code.

3. In section 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure, for the words "preceding section" the words "two preceding sections" shall be substituted, and the words "the objection be," "if the objection be", and "on the ground of such irregularity" shall be omitted. XIV of 1882.

Addition to Schedule II, Act XV of 1877.

4. After No. 165 of the Second Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, the following shall be inserted, namely :— XV of 1877.

Description of application.	Period of limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
"165A. Under section 310A of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside a sale in execution of a decree.	Thirty days	The date of the sale."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT is a well known fact that immoveable property put up for sale in execution of a decree seldom fetches an adequate price. To remedy this evil in the case of sales of tenures or holdings in execution of decrees for arrears of rent, the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, introduced into that Act a provision enabling a judgment-debtor to get the sale set aside by depositing in Court, within thirty days from the date of the sale, the amount recoverable under the decree, with costs, for payment to the decree-holder, and a sum equal to five per cent. of the purchase-money, for payment to the purchaser. This provision has, it is believed, worked satisfactorily and enabled tenants to save their tenures or holdings, when the prices offered have not been equivalent to the real market-value of the property. It is now proposed to give other judgment-debtors similar relief by inserting a corresponding enactment in the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to the sale of immoveable property in execution of decrees passed in ordinary civil suits. This is effected by section 2 of the Bill. The amendments in section 312 of the Code and in the second schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, proposed by sections 3 and 4 of the Bill are only supplementary to the above and need no explanation.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, February 25th, 1893.

During the first three days of the week under review the weather was showery over North-Eastern India and at most of the Hill stations, while it was fine in most other parts of the country, but on Tuesday a brisk barometric fall occurred in North-West India and Baluchistan, and from Wednesday till the close of the week the weather was under the influence of a series of depressions which passed from west to east across Northern India giving more or less continuous rain to the plains of Northern and Central India, and fairly constant snow to the Hill districts. This unsettled weather extended in a moderate degree to parts of the Peninsula and scattered showers were experienced in a few places. As a consequence the depression of temperature which has been so general during several weeks past has been maintained, and the mean temperature of the whole of India for the week has been nearly 4° below the normal average.

The chart of Sunday, February 19th, showed that the barometer was falling except in North-East India where it was steady or inclined to rise. Readings were high over North-West India and low over the east of the Peninsula, where a shallow depression was shown. The winds were anticyclonic in the North-West and irregularly cyclonic over the east of the Peninsula and generally northerly elsewhere. The force was fresh in many places. Moderate to heavy rain had fallen in the extreme south of the Peninsula, while light showers were reported from Sibsagar, Darjeeling, the east of the Central Provinces, and Orissa. On the morning of the 20th pressure was increasing except in Baluchistan. The depression over the east of the Peninsula had disappeared and readings decreased from a high pressure area in the north-west to a large area of uniformly low pressure over the Bay and the south of the Peninsula. The winds were moderate to fresh and generally normal in direction. Moderately heavy rain was falling around the head of the Bay and light showers at Patna, Chaibassa, Cochin and Colombo. On the North-West Himalayas hail and snow had fallen. On the next day, the 21st, pressure was increasing over North-East India and decreasing elsewhere. The fall had been brisk over North-West India and rapid in Baluchistan. The high pressure area which previously existed over North-West India had moved eastward to central and North-East India and very uniform pressures existed in the west. The winds were very variable, and over Northern India were very light in force. Snow had commenced at Quetta and Chaman and local rain showers were reported from several north-eastern stations. On the 22nd pressure was rising over Burma, Assam, and North Bengal as well as in Baluchistan and falling elsewhere. The fall has been rapid over North-West India and a well marked depression lay over the south of the Punjab and the north of Rajputana. Readings were highest in the Assam Valley, while they were very uniform over Central and Southern India. The wind was easterly across Bengal and up the Gangetic plain, cyclonic over North-West India and variable elsewhere. Rain was falling over the whole of Northern India from the Indus eastward to Behar, as well as at some central and southern stations. Snow had fallen on the Hills. The chart of the 23rd exhibited somewhat complicated conditions. Pressure was high and gradients moderately steep over North-Eastern India, but elsewhere pressure was uniform, though three slight depressions were shown, one near Chaibassa, one over Katthiawar and Lower Sind, and a third over the west of the Punjab and Upper Sind. The wind was easterly and south-easterly over Northern India and variable elsewhere. The force was fresh or moderate. Rain had ceased in Sind and part of Rajputana, but continued over Bengal, the Gangetic plain, and the Punjab as well as at one or two central stations. Snow had fallen on the North-West Himalayas. In many places the amounts received were considerable. By the morning of the 24th pressure had given way over North-East India and increased elsewhere. In consequence the area of highest puresrse had been retransferred to North-West India. Pressure was lowest off the Malabar Coast. The wind was between north and east over the greater part of the country and was fresh at several stations. Rain continued over the greater part of the Northern India and snow was still falling on the Hills. The amounts were, however, somewhat smaller than on the previous day. On the 25th the chart showed a high pressure area over North-West India and a low pressure area over the Peninsula, the Bay, and Burma, but a small local depression existed over the North-Western Provinces. The winds were northerly over North-West India and the west of the Peninsula, cyclonic over the Gangetic plain, and variable over North-East India and the east of the Peninsula. Rain had again fallen over the greater part of Northern and Central India the exceptions being the Indus Valley and East Bengal. In the Peninsula scattered showers were reported. Snow had fallen moderately heavily on the Hills.

Temperature—Has remained low except in Burma and Madras throughout the week. In Burma and Madras the mean temperature on each day exceeded the normal, while on the contrary in all the other provinces on no day was the mean temperature equal to the normal average, but in most provinces and on most days was considerably below it. The following table shows the variation of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India:—

PROVINCE.	19th.	20th.	21st.	22nd.	23rd.	24th.	25th.	Mean Variation of week.

MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA	—2·6	—3·1	—2·9	—2·3	—5·3	—4·0	—6·3	—3·8

From the above it will be seen that the mean temperature of the week for the whole of India was 3°·8 below the normal, and that on each day of the week there was a deficiency which increased from 2°·6 on the 19th to 6°·3 on the 25th. On the latter date there was a mean deficiency of between 9° and 12° over North-West India.

Rain.—The earlier part of the summary showed that rain had fallen heavily and fairly continuously over Northern and Central India, and as scattered showers over the Peninsula and the table at the close shows that rain has been received during the week in all the rainfall divisions except the Burma divisions, Coorg, the Bombay, Deccan, Khandesh, Hyderabad, and the East Coast (South). In the Peninsula and parts of North-West India the amounts were comparatively small, but in Bengal they were large. The average actual rainfall was heaviest, 2·90 inches in Chota Nagpur, this was followed by 2·61 inches in the Hill districts of the Punjab, by 2·35 inches in Deltaic Bengal, and by 2·27 inches in Central Bengal. In East Bengal, Assam (Surma), Behar (South), Oudh (North), the North-Western Provinces (Submontane), the Punjab (Central, Submontane and North-West), and the Central Provinces (East), the actual average rainfall of the division for the week exceeded one inch. In nearly all cases where rain was received, the amount exceeded the normal, the greatest excess being over 2 inches in Deltaic and Central Bengal and Chota Nagpur.

The three concluding columns of the latter show a large excess of rain for the period January 1st to February 25th in all parts of the country except Burma and part of the west and south of the Peninsula and Guzerat.

The following gives the largest total amounts received during the week as reported in the rainfall telegrams of the week:—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 4th March.—Considerable showers have fallen in many parts, especially in the Circars, Central and Southern Districts and on the Nilgiris. The rainfall has done much good in Tinnevelly, allowing sowings and improving pasture, but more rain is wanted there, and also in Madura and parts of Coimbatore. Standing crops generally confined to land under wells and largest irrigation works. Harvest continues with poor outturn in the southern districts, but fair elsewhere. Pasture, fodder, and drinking water generally sufficient, but scarce in a few parts of Coimbatore and Tinnevelly, though improved in latter district. Prices of principal food-grains easier in Deccan, but almost stationary elsewhere.

Bombay.—For week ending 8th March.—Slight rain in parts of seven districts. Standing crops damaged by blight, rats, rain, or rust in parts of nine districts; otherwise good. Harvesting of late crops progressing generally. Lands being prepared for the next season in parts of five districts. Prices generally steady. Agricultural stock good and fodder sufficient.

Bengal.—oFr week ending 4th March.—There has been little rain during the week and crops have benefited by the fine weather. The spring crop is being harvested, and in spite of the unusual rain of last week, prospects are generally promising. Reports from the opium districts show that though early sowings suffered and in some cases the poppy leaves were destroyed, the rain was beneficial to late sowings. With a continuance of fine weather, a fair outturn may be anticipated. Lancing and collection of the drug are in progress. Ploughing for the autumn crops is in full swing. Prospects of spring rice and indigo are favourable. Prices are almost stationary. Fodder and water-supplies are sufficient.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 8th March.—Weather cloudy and unsettled with general rain. Some injury has been caused to crops by blight, hail and frost, and by wet and cloudy weather. Prospects are generally good, though clear and dry weather is now wanted. Poppy is healthy. Harvesting of spring crops has commenced in eastern districts. Pressing and sowing of sugarcane and collection of opium continue. Supplies and fodder are ample, but prices are high and rising.

Punjab.—For week ending 8th March.—Slight rain has fallen in parts of five districts. Sowings of extra spring crops in progress. Prospects of standing crops are good to average. No more rain, but warmth and sunshine required. Crops have been injured by excessive rain in the eastern districts, and also by hail in Hissar. Condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder sufficient in all districts, except Rawalpindi. Poppy crop flourishing. Prices rising in five districts; stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 8th March.—Weather cloudy and rainy throughout the week, and crops have suffered more or less in consequence. Harvesting of winter crops progressing in parts, but retarded in the Nagpur country by the rain. Prices rising in three districts.

Burma.—For week ending 4th March.—LOWER BURMA: Threshing completed everywhere, except in Thongwa and Mergui. Cultivation of dry-weather paddy in Thayetmyo progressing.

UPPER BURMA: Reaping and threshing of wet-weather paddy almost completed. Cultivation of dry-weather crops progressing. Wheat and gram and peas are being reaped in two districts. Standing crops are reported everywhere to be in good condition, but in Pakokku, island crops with the exception of tobacco and gram, have all failed. In Lower Burma, except for a slight fall in Tavoy, the price of paddy remains practically unchanged, while in Upper Burma it has risen considerably in three districts and fallen slightly in two others. A very large increase is reported in the price of rice at Thayetmyo, and enquiry is being made as to the correctness of the figures The price has also risen in two other districts and fallen in one. In Upper Burma the price has fallen in four districts, while it has risen slightly in one. Number on relief-works—Meiktila, 365.

Assam.—For week ending 7th March.—Weather seasonable. Ploughing for summer paddy and pressing of sugarcane progressing. Condition of cattle normal. Fodder and water sufficient.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 8th March. MYSORE : Slight rain in parts of four districts. Prospects good. Sugarcane crop being harvested in parts. No marked change in prices.

COORG : Threshing of rice nearly completed. Seasonable showers for coffee blossom have fallen in most parts and prospects generally good. Prices stationary. Water-supply for cattle sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.— For week ending 8th March.— BERAR : Weather wet and cloudy. Picking of cotton completed. Spring crops damaged by rain and hail. Preparation of land for ensuing crops commenced. Fodder and water sufficient. Prices rising in one district ; elsewhere almost steady. Cattle generally healthy.

HYDERABAD : Rainfall good during the week. Weeding of hot-weather crops continues. Standing crops in good condition. Prices steady.

Central India.—For week ending 8th March.—Rain general, except in parts of Gwalior ; sufficient rain has fallen in Bundelkhand. Crops in three States and in Neemuch somewhat damaged by rain and hail. Condition of agricultural stock and pasturage good. Prices of food-grains high in two Agencies, rising in three others, steady elsewhere. Opium slightly damaged in parts by hail.

Rajputana.—For week ending 8th March.—Slight rain in parts of Bickanir and Abu. Agricultural operations satisfactory. Standing crops and harvest prospects generally good. Slight damage in parts. Agricultural stock generally good. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices falling in one State, rising in four others, and steady elsewhere.

Nepal.—For week ending 4th March.—Weather seasonable. Prospects good.

RE-ORGANIZATION AND RECRUITMENT OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY DEPARTMENT OF INDIA.

No. $\frac{3}{74}$.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department (Surveys),—dated Calcutta, the 8th March 1893.

READ the following despatches :—

From Government of India, Financial Department, to Secretary of State, Nos. 201 and 202, dated 28th July 1891.

From Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department, to Secretary of State, No. 67 (Surveys), dated 8th September 1891.

From Secretary of State, No. 86 (Statistics), dated 17th December 1891.

From Secretary of State, No. 6 (Statistics), dated 28th January 1892.

From Government of India, Financial Department, to Secretary of State, No. 150, dated 2 st June 1892.

From Secretary of State, No. 70 (Revenue), dated 25th August 1892.

RESOLUTION.

The papers read in the preamble have reference to the future organization and recruitment of the Geological Survey of In ia. Changes in the scale of pay, designations and other particulars having considerably modified the rules or conditions of appointment to the Department originally published in 1867, a revision of these rules was undertaken in 1886. Meantime, however, the constitution of the Department came under examination by the Public Service Commission appointed in that year, and it was found advisable to postpone further consideration of the subject until the recommendations of the Commission were before Government. A final settlement of the questions to be dealt with has been retarded by the discussion of proposals affecting scientific appointments generally, but the questions which specially affect the Geological Department have now been separately disposed of, and the rules as revised are appended to this Resolution.

2. The recommendations of the Public Service Commission regarding the Geological Survey of India, as recorded in Chapter X, paragraphs 70 to 74 of their report, are transcribed below :—

(1) That candidates should continue to be obtained from England so long as Indian schools do not provide adequate geological and scientific education, but that selection should be made irrespective of nationality.

(2) That appointments as Sub-Assistants should be limited to the number required to assist the upper grade, and that promotion to the upper grade should be open to Sub-Assistants who prove their ability for independent work.

(3) That the organization of the Department should not exceed that required to secure systematic investigation.

(4) That the graded system is unsuited to a Department which calls for the highest efficiency in an equal degree throughout the whole term of employment.

(5) That the system of engaging specialists for a limited term of years is advantageous and should be continued.

3. Subject to the exception and modifications explained in the succeeding paragraphs, these recommendations have been accepted generally by the Government of India and effect has been given to them in the revised organization.

4. In the Sub-Assistant class referred to in the second of the recommendations there are at present two appointments. These were created experimentally in 1873 with the object of affording natives of India educated in the country an opening in the Department. His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is anxious that natives of India, whether educated here or in England, should be utilized in the Department, provided that they are found to possess the qualifications essential to independent and original work in the field of geological investigation. It has been found, however, owing to the difficulty which is experienced in obtaining Asiatics with pronounced talent for geological research, that the system of appointing natives as probationary Sub-Assistants is not likely to be successful. It may, perhaps, be hoped that with an improved system of school education, in which habits of observation and practical enquiry will be more developed than they now are, candidates will eventually be forthcoming upon whose powers of original investigation more dependence can be placed than is the case at present. In the meantime it is undesirable to make any more appointments to the class of Sub-Assistants, which was only created as a tentative measure.

5 The Government of India have found themselves unable to accept the view of the Public Service Commission that the graded system is unsuitable to the Geological Survey Department. In the first place the officers of the Department become continuously more useful, at any rate for the earlier part of their employment, with each year of service, and secondly, a system of grade promotion is desirable to secure efficiency of labour as well as of qualifications; for even an officer who is eminently qualified for geological research will require some incentive to make a sufficiently industrious use of his abilities, especially under circumstances in which (as is often the case in the prosecution of geological investigation) it is not easy to detect perfunctory performance of work. A reduction in the number of grades has, however, been made in the revised scheme.

6. With the suggestions of the Public Service Commission, that the organization of the Department should not exceed that required to secure systematic investigation, and that the system of engaging specialists should be continued, the views of the Government of India are in entire accord. The necessity for reserving a certain number of appointments, to be held for a limited term by persons specially qualified for scientific or economic investigations in particular branches of science, instead of creating new posts whenever the need for such investigation arises, has long been felt; and the opportunity afforded by the present re-organisation has been taken to give an extended application to the principle advocated by the Public Service Commission by providing two appointments of this class, which may, when necessary, be recruited from specialists in other branches of science besides geology. These special appointments will be made for such term as the Government of India may determine in each case, and will not ordinarily be pensionable. They are made part of the cadre of the Geological Survey Department, first, because they will frequently be given for special geological investigations, and secondly, because it is convenient that the holders of such appointments should be subjected in respect of their movements, reports and other proceedings to the control of some responsible head of department.

7. The future staff of the department, to which the sanction of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India has been obtained, is contrasted below with that now existing, and the new scheme will come into force from the 1st of April 1893.

Present scale.

1 Director (Pay R1,500 and Personal Allowance R300).

3 Superintendents on R800—50—1,100 per mensem.

1 First Grade Deputy Superintendent on R700—50—1,000 per mensem.

5 Deputy Superintendents on R500—40—700 per mensem.

* 6 Assistant Superintendents on R350—30—500 per mensem.

1 Palæontologist on R500—40—700 and then rising by increments of R50 to R1,000 per mensem.

2 Sub-Assistants on R200—20—300 per mensem.

Future scale.

1 Director R1,500.

3 Superintendents on R700—50—1,100 per mensem.

4 Deputy Superintendents on R500—40—700 per mensem.

† 5 Assistant Superintendents on R250—30—500 per mensem

1 Palæontologist on R500—40—700 and then rising by annual increments of R50 to R1,000 per mensem.

2 Specialists on any salary not exceeding R1,100 and not less than R700.

* Two appointments were reserved to cover the cost of existing Sub-Assistants.

† Only one appointment is now reserved to cover the cost of Sub Assistants.

8. In order that there may be no interruption in the purely scientific geological inquiry, the Governor-General in Council has resolved that not less than eleven officers out of the total of sixteen executive officers, shall, as a rule, be employed on such duties. Of the remaining five officers, one will be the Director and one the Palæontologist. The remaining three, two of them specialists, will be available for mineral and other economic investigations. The staff assigned to scientific geological research is smaller than the originally sanctioned scale of the Geological Survey Department. But this scale has for some time not been worked up to, and the holders of even those appointments which have been filled have been largely employed on economic instead of purely scientific work. The reductions and alterations now resolved on are fully justified both by financial considerations and the undoubted necessity of expert advice and investigation for the development of the mineral and economic resources of the empire. Orders for bringing the new scale into effect will be separately communicated to the Director, Geological Survey.

9. One important point, viz. the infusion of a practical element in the training of candidates for the Geological Survey Department, which did not come under the notice of the Public Service Commission, has recently pressed itself on the attention of the Government of India. Under the system hitherto adopted for recruitment, the only qualification required from candidates has been a sound geological education of an academic character. Practical training has not been insisted on, but the necessity for combining scientific education with a practical training in applied science, especially in mining, has been brought prominently forward in connection with the development of the mineral resources of Burma, Baluchistan and other parts of the Indian Empire. After an examination of the character of the education which the officers in the Department had received and their qualifications for practical investigations, the Government of India find that, with a few notable exceptions, the appointments to the Department were filled until quite recently by officers who had not previously gone through a course of practical training, and that the talent for practical exploration, though in some instances of a remarkable character, has had generally to be developed by what has virtually amounted to an apprenticeship during the later years of service in India. The new rules accordingly provide that candidates must undergo one or two years' training in mines, or technical laboratories, as may be required by the Government of India.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to the Local Governments and Administrations marginally noted, and to the Director of the Geological Survey of India, for information, and that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.
